Dearest Florence:

Note fancy note paper. Enclosed is a card but I send this letter instead.

I have been thinking it over about Russia. You would better send me all facts about both of you, in advance, and I will apply for you before you even arrive. That will save time. It may take some time provided they have to ask Moscow if you may enter. Chatto says not--that for a short trip like yours he can get a trusted Communist here to recommend you and then the Russians here will give you a visum within three or four days. But if you have any fear, then send me everything and I will send in an application and forge your name. Send me two pictures (pass) of your honorable selves also.

Send me a wire when you arrive and I will meet you at the train. My only fixed appointments are with my doctor and from 2 to 4 on Tuesday for my university class. If by any chance at all I do not meet you at the train, come and wait in my room. Then we will go out and choose a room for you. I live in a very convenient section of the city. From the Station walk down to Potsdamer Platz (five minutes) and take the Untergrundbahn to Am Knie. Ask if it goes to Am Knie--for the road branches in a few places and you must get the right train. Get out at Am Knie and my street is about two or three minutes away and anyone can tell you where it is. I live within two minutes (literally) of Am Knie.

But I do not think I shall miss you.

I would reserve a room for you but it might not please you. Then I don't know when you are coming and so can not tell the landladies definitely.
