Dearest Florence:

Thank you for the check. It came yesterday.

For heavens' sake, don't hold yourself as responsible for my cold. I might have caught it in Berlin just as well. Did you also give me a falling arch - and did you give me the hemorrhoids that I'm now suffering from? The fact is that had I eaten more regularly, I would not have caught the cold. Yesterday I decided to eat regularly and I've started. How long it will last I don't know.

The Berlin Univ. is really ^{cool} a hall of ~~art~~ science, I find. The lectures are so intense, though, and cover so much ground that I doubt if I can ever ^{keep} up. I'm also studying " ~~Kultur-Philosophie~~" which covers a world of a

It is good that you have your baby still, and I'd like to be with you when it is born. Otherwise things might not go right! You must keep me informed though, of your health, and leave instruction for a cable to be sent me if you are well or not well when it is born. Don't forget that. I have your "St. Francis" & am sending it.

I send you my dear love and greetings for your homeward journey. Roger Baldwin arrives here next week.

Dearest Florence: Chitto says he can arrange for your viuum to Russia. It will take a few days after you arrive during which time you can examine Berlin. Chitto is very glad to help you.

You seem to be doing up the Continent brown. I've been asking for robes for you.
Kittles charge a cool M. 10 on. Pensions with a big double room (no table between beds?) cost M. 7. a day. There is one near me overlooking a green square with a nice cheap outdoor restaurant below where they have an orchestra that weeps and wails and will turn Sam's hair gray. But the food is cheap and perhaps you he most mind having his hair turn gray. Then there are other pensions also but not so pleasantly situated. I'm glad you are coming next instead of

Dearest Florence:

I am sitting up in bed after 5 weeks of the rottenest influenza you can imagine.
It affected my kidneys of course. Bakar came at Xmas time just as it all began and left before it had become so very bad. So my Xmas was lost also.
and a month wasted.

I'm glad to know you are settled on a street with such a stylish name. And in the Bronx at that! It is sad to learn
