almost time for the assisting forces of the opponent to join in the battle. Liu Tien-tsai skillfully hid himself in the mountain on two sides, he fired several shots on the top of this hill, and fired some shots on top of another hill. The reactionaries were so frightened, that they thought they were surrounded by partisan on all sides. They were forced to flee.

With the price of several bullets Liu Tien-tsai got back a light machine gun.

You may ask: "What is he doing now?" — he is a captain.

d) destroyed 84 strong points; c) destroyed 3415 telephone poles and collected 18972 cabbies of telephone wire; f) destroyed 117 trucks.

During the same period our losses included: 10856 fighters wounded, 8745 dead, making a total sum of 17601. The ratio of casualties between the enemy forces and ours is 1.4 to 1.

North China has become a desert area to the Japanese where they meet with a people's furious resistance. In the wide plains they can find neither their required provisions nor the people, but on the contrary they only encounter numerous bombs.

It is not accidental that a large part of the people in North China joined the anti-Japanese campaign, but due to the people's national enmity, the result of continuous attacks by the enemy, and the result of mobilization work directed by the anti-Japanese democratic administration, they have stood up to resist the enemy. Without the success of the democratic administration, the mobilization of the people, their participation in the war and the development of the fighting spirit of the people, it would be impossible to maintain the resistance.

Will you be so good as to forward her my Sincerest Congratulations on her fine achievement? Or send her this letter. She's done a grand thing for China & for Agnes Smalley. I wish I had had more than a nodding acquaintance with her when we were ~~both~~ in China. She's truly a fine and a rare type of human being - and a magnificent sister -
