RECITATION

By BEN RUSSELL

I've been asked to attend a wedding,
A wedding that might have been mine;
And this plain little invitation,
Tells all in a single line —

Miss Mary is "gonna" be married,
My Mary, the bride to be;
It's a drama without any ending,
A farce — but the laugh is on me.

To think that I once held a fortune,
Right in the palm of my hand,
But I let it slip right thru' my fingers,
Just like a hand full of sand.

My friends didn't like her on parties,
Not because she wasn't nice;
She made all the rest act like ladies,
I'm weak — and I took their advice.

I thought she'd keep waiting forever,
But she had a mission in life;
She had to be somebody's Mother,
Had to be somebody's wife.

They'll have a house full of Marys,
And maybe a Johnny and Jim,
And I'll stake my last chance on Heaven,
They're all "gonna" look just like him.

My friends will all be at the wedding,
Right in the front row, no doubt;
Me — I'll just be in a corner,
Eating my lonely heart out.

Ain't been in a church for a long time,
I almost forgot how to pray;
But I know that my conscience will prompt me,
And here is the prayer that I'll say:

NOTE: Finish with last eight bars of the chorus beginning with: "I Wish That I'd Been Satisfied With Mary;" etc.
