Apache County Information

November 2012

History of Apache County

The following information was taken in part from the Apache County, Arizona Centennial Book and the Apache County Commemorative Newsletter

On February 24, 1879 the Tenth Territorial Legislature created Apache County out of Yavapai County, one of the four original Arizona counties. The newly created county encompassed all of the present-day Navajo and Apache counties and parts of Graham and Greenlee counties.

Much of the 20,940 square miles was unknown and uninhabited. Apache and Navajo Indians continued to raid settlements. The entire county was torn by a range war between the Texas cattlemen, who were new to the area and Mexican and Indian sheepherders.

The area assigned to Apache County was not to remain undisturbed for in 1881 that part of it between the Black and Gila Rivers was cut off to form part of what is now Graham County. Apache also lost a great stretch of land when Navajo County was formed.

Apache County's present area is 7,151,360 acres. Snowflake was designated the county seat when it was first formed. After the first elections in the fall of 1879, the county government was set up at St. Johns. In 1880 St. Johns was superseded by Springerville. Springerville remained the county seat for two years until 1882, when St. Johns again became the county seat and has remained so.

Prior to 1977, the supervisors were all elected in the southern part of the county. Tom Shirley was the first Native American to be elected as county supervisor for the Sanders district. When new supervisory districts were drawn up to more equally represent the population, district were created and centered on Chinle, Ganado and St. Johns.

The Northern half of Apache County lies within the boundaries of the 14,450,369 acre Navajo Reservation. The reservation is changing rapidly, but the landmarks and history stay as they have always been.

Navajo land has within its boundaries some of the most spectacular monuments that have been created by nature. It has often been said that within the Navajo land lie the "Seven Wonders of the Navajo World".

Apache County celebrated its 125 years in 2004. In that time we have changed from a pioneer community to a modern, rural regional economy. The early industries such as ranching and native arts are now supplemented by modern transportation, major power plants, tourism, education, technology, communications, forestry, resource management and government services.

Recent improvements to roads, our county jail, courts and schools have offered benefits to our citizens. We endeavor to pursue a quality, countywide educational system in order to provide the knowledge and skills necessary for our next generation to have all the advantages of a good public education, from finding meaningful employment to contribution to their families' and communities' futures.

Dear Reader;

This Process Analysis manual has been specifically prepared as a tool to guide us in understanding data. To plan, develop, establish and implement appropriate educational services to all of our eleven public school districts in Apache County. We and our school districts use this information to chart progress made in many areas and to help make decisions to guide our educational policies and priorities in the future.

It is also a guide for those who are interested in providing the needed services to all the students, school district staff, school administrators, school boards and parents.

I thank my dedicated staff in making this manual possible for all of us.

Dr. Pauline M. Begay
Apache County Schools Superintendent

COUNTY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT

E.S.A. – PROGRAM SERVICES

Professional Development

A Comprehensive Professional Development Plan is developed and implemented to provide professional development services to the school administrators and educators with the 11 public school districts in Apache County. The county school office works in conjunction with the Arizona Department of Education (ADE), the Governor's Office of Education Innovation (GOEI), and the Northeast Arizona Regional Service Center (NEAZRSC), in providing programs and services in support of Arizona Ready. These efforts are focused on the four pillars of success: Standards and Assessments, Longitudinal Data Systems, Great Teachers, Great Leaders, and Supporting low achieving schools. Services such as summer academies, workshops, and conferences are also provided through various grants.

Summer Academic Academy

The Apache County School Superintendent and staff sponsors a Summer Academic Academy by providing the most current educational information through workshops facilitated by professional trainers for all public school personnel. Professional hours and/or college credits are earned by participants.

Technology Business Consortium

The county school technology consortium has a team of network administrators who assist school technology personnel. Their efforts are geared to the smooth running of Internet access, hardware and software management and expert advice. All school districts participate thru a Service Level Agreement. Funds are obtained through E-Rate application.

Jail Education

Within specific guidelines, the County School Superintendents office monitors Jail Education and compliance with state statutes relation to jail education for those inmates between ages 18-21, under Secure Care, and provide structured education utilizing county equalizations and state grants.

Juvenile Detention Education

The County School Superintendent in partnership with the Apache County Courts through an M.O.A. monitors the Juvenile Detention Center education of detained youth.

COUNTY SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT SPECIAL EVENTS

Educator of the Year Award

The Apache County Schools Superintendent awards Teacher of the Year and a School Administrator of the Year annually. The awards have been designed to identify those professional educators in Apache County who serve as models for their colleagues and are leaders in the improvement of their students, school, discipline and community. The awardees are acknowledged by their peers during the closing event of the Apache County Schools annual Summer Academic Academy. They are also nominated to participate in State Educators of the Year events.

County Spelling Bee

The County Superintendent's office is proud to sponsor the annual Apache County Spelling Bee each February. Comprised of the winners from each school and district, this completion draws out the best speller our county has to offer. The winner of this competition goes on to compete at the state level at the Arizona Spelling Bee in March.

Newsletter

The quarterly newsletter is published to provide updates on the progress, achievements and successes of the Apache County School Superintendent's office, School Districts and communities throughout the county.

School Board Trainings

The Apache County Schools Superintendent, in association with the Arizona School Board Association hosts orientation after board elections.

JOINT TECHNOLOGICAL EDUCATION DISTRICTS

(Through December 2012)

N.A.V.I.T. (Northern Arizona Vocational Institute of Technology) and N.A.T.I.V.E. (Northeast Arizona Technical Institute of Vocational Education) are Joint Technological Education Districts (JTED's), which provide and coordinate career and technological educational programs to students in northern Arizona. These are 'umbrella districts', which offer career preparation programs for students in various schools throughout our region in grades 11-14, including high schools and community colleges, serving those students who may not be bound for a traditional four-year college education. Our various school districts are represented by local members to participate on these regional boards.

Our Student Population

DATA ANALYSIS AS AN EFFECTIVE TOOL FOR SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT

In the field of education, there is no shortage of information. Results from standardized testing, student demographics, NCLB and state reports of school performance are not difficult to find.

At the Apache County School Superintendent's Office, we are charged with providing assistance to the schools in our county, as per ARS 15-302-11. To assist in that process, we collect and analyze different types of data to help track our schools successes and student achievement. Our ongoing effort is in deciding how to best interpret this information and assess its value in helping to drive decision-making for professional development and increasing student performance within our schools.

Our approach is to view the different types of data as pieces of the overall puzzle and to combine the information in order to generate effective strategies.

To this end, the data provided in this document is not only to inform the reader of current facts and figures, but will be analyzed in partnership with our districts and school administrators. This will help identify where improvements need to occur, and to chart the policies and strategies to create, and to monitor the effectiveness of those improvements. It is not only what we know about our schools, but how we approach the combined data for analysis and insights as to which choices will generate the desired results, leading to better and more helpful strategies for reaching our educational goals.

APACHE COUNTY STUDENT ETHNICITY DATA FY2011-2012

This chart shows the proportion of students in Apache County based on ethnicity. With little variation year to year, the overwhelming majority are Native Americans. Due to our population being reflective of the on and off-reservation communities, many of our northern schools have a student population of over 95% Native American. This offers both challenges and opportunities as we and our school districts work toward continued improvement of our students' academic success.
