Fry's Play Will Open AS Season

Christopher Fry's "The Lady's Not For Burning," first presentation of the year by the AS Drama Workshop will be performed, beginning at 8:30 p.m., in Payne Auditorium Nov. 19, 20, and 21.

Admission is a student activity card or a 75 cent ticket. Tickets are now on sale at the Memorial Union information desk, but they can be obtained at the auditorium the nights of the performances.

"The Lady's Not For Burning" is recognized as one of the finest romantic comedies in the modern theatre. It has been critically acclaimed in London and New York and seems well on its way to becoming a modern "classic," according to Dr. Yeater.

Fry's drama is considered, basically, a comedy of wit and character. The plot concerns a world-weary soldier (Thomas), so disgusted with man's hypocrisy that he wants to die, and a woman accused of witchcraft for turning a man into a dog.

Gammage Accepts New Stadium; Dedication At Homecoming Game

ASU's new stadium was dedicated Saturday night during pre-game ceremonies.

President Grady Gammage accepted the stadium on behalf of the university.

The official dedication party included Governor McFarland, architect Edward L. Varney, contractor Frank Antrim, and several members of the Board of Regents.

Mrs. Lynn Laney, wife of a Board of Regents member, christened the stadium with water from seven Arizona rivers, smashing the bottle against the north goalpost.

No name has been given the stadium as yet, although tickets bear the name Arizona State Stadium. Another popular name is Sun Devil Stadium.

SPLASH . . . Water from seven Arizona rivers sprays onto the turf as Mrs. Lynn Laney christens the new stadium.

REUNION . . . Fourteen members of the class of '18 at "old Tempe Normal" get together on the steps of the Memorial Union for a group portrait. The class was honored at Homecoming, as were the class of '38 and the '33 football team.

ALUMNI AWARDS PRESENTED

Craig, Creasman Honored

Alumni secretary James W. Creasman and Phoenix attorney Walter E. Craig have received the Arizona State Alumni Association's top awards for 1958.

Creasman, familiar campus figure, was chosen for the annual Alumni Service Award.

Craig, a Stanford graduate, was given the Alumni Appreciation Award. This award is presented annually to a non-alumnus selected by the association's board of directors, while the service award goes to an AS alumnus.

Presenting the service honor to Creasman, association president Marvin Palmer said, "No alumnus has ever deserved it more than Jim." Creasman's years of service to Arizona State date back to his undergraduate days. He was student body president his senior year, 1935.

The owner of a well known broadcasting voice, Creasman became executive secretary of the Alumni Association in 1947. He directed the alumni and advised and exhorted the students in the recent name-change campaign. His efforts have been acknowledged as instrumental in the campaign's success.

President Grady Gammage presented the Appreciation Award to Craig, observing that his long service to AS was "climaxed this fall by his inspiring leadership" in the name-change drive. He was chairman of the Citizens for Arizona State University committee.

Craig is a founder and director of the Sun Angel Foundation and was recently appointed to the Board of Visitors of his alma mater, Stanford.

Seniors, last names beginning with N-Z, may have their free yearbook portraits taken at the university photo lab today through Nov. 28. Seniors from previous groups also have until Nov. 28 to have their pictures taken.

Call campus extension 391 for appointments.

He has had an illustrious law career. He is past president of the Arizona Bar Association, the Maricopa County Bar Association and the Interstate Bar Council.

A member of the board of directors of the American Bar Association, Craig is also a director of the American Jurisprudence Society.

Campus Greets Alumni

Approximately 400 alumni registered for Homecoming last weekend, while hundreds more attended the game, according to the Alumni Association.

Honored were the classes of 1918 and 1938, while fifteen members of the football team of 1933 returned to be feted.

The alumni dance, held in the Thunderbird Room of Hotel Westward Ho, in Phoenix, began Homecoming activities for the alums on Friday evening. At the dance, Homecoming King and Queen Ben Anderson and Diane Eldridge were presented to the alumni for the first time.

M.C. for the evening was Ed Carson, Class of 1951 and president of the Phoenix chapter of the Alumni Association.

Separate luncheons were given for the Classes of '18 and '38, respectively in the Memorial Union. Charles Achauer, Newport Beach, Cal., read from a 1918 issue of the "Tempe Normal Student," a predecessor of the State Press, for his class. Marvin Palmer, Casa Grande, and president of the Alumni Association, read from a 1938 edition of the "State Press" for his class.

Concert Tickets Available For Symphony Tuesday

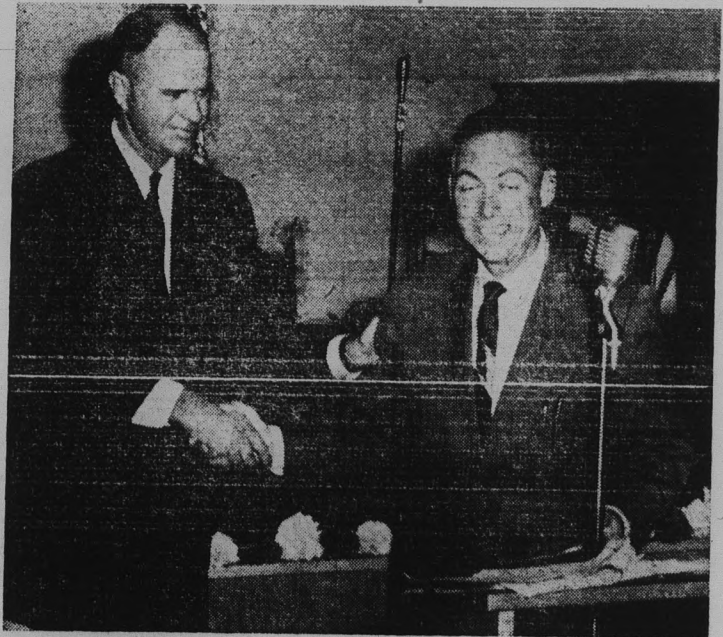

Tickets for the Phoenix Symphony concert next Tuesday will be available at the MU information desk.

The price is 60 cents for students and 80 cents for faculty members. Transportation may be obtained for 40 cents.

The program includes: Overture to Der Freischutz, by Weber; Prelude and Love-Death from Tristan and Isolde, Wagner; Mysterious Mountain, Hovhanness; and Violin Concerto, Tchaikowsky.

The symphony will feature guest soloist Joyce Flissler.

Ticket arrangements were made by the Cultural Affairs Board.

REWARD . . . Alumni Secretary James Creasman appears nearly overcome as he is given the plaque for the Alumni Service Award by Marvin Palmer, president of the Alumni Association.

PERSONNEL . . . of the Property Control Office go through another work-filled day in their busy office. Property Control maintains a simplified accounting system for all the fixed assets of Arizona State.

Music Teachers To Meet

The Arizona State Music Teachers' Association holds its 30th annual convention on the ASU campus Nov. 16-18, in the Memorial Union.

Registration begins at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. Philip Nelson of ASU will direct a concert at 3 p.m. A lecture by Dr. Alden Buker follows a half hour later.

Another concert, directed by Miles and Nadine Dresskell, will conclude the afternoon program.

A string trio from the University of Arizona and the Shrine of the Ages Choir, directed by Millard Kinney, will perform at 8:30 p.m. to top off the day's program.

Off-campus personalities scheduled for the program include Rosalyn Tureck, Victor

H. Baumann of Phoenix College, Millard Kinney of ASC at Flagstaff, Winifred Knight and Henrietta Lundquist.

Also Andrew W. Buchhauser, James Anthony, Edna Church, Robert A. Emile, Samuel Fain, Donald Hardisty, Onnie Michael Hartsell, Henry Johnson, Marguerite Ough, Anita Kalis Sammarco, and Anna Mae Sharp.

Seniors planning to graduate next January or May must file graduation applications this week, according to Alfred Thomas, Jr., Registrar and Director of Admissions.

A late fee of $5 will be charged for applications filed after Saturday.

Many Items Categorized By AS Office

About a year and a half ago, a new office went into operation at Arizona State. Since that time, the AS Property Control office has categorized and branded nearly every item of fixed and movable equipment owned by the school.

The function of the office, headed by H. Grady Wolfe, is to maintain a simplified accounting system for all the fixed assets of the school.

First, however, the method had to be developed. What followed has evolved into a system enabling the school to know exactly what it has in the way of equipment, buildings, and land.

From January to May of 1957, various procedures were examined and selected. The next step was a series of departmental inventories, started in July.

As equipment was inventoried, descriptions were recorded and each item assigned a number. Numbered aluminum tags matching the assigned numbers were attached to each item. The tags are now being replaced by sketched numbers wherever possible.

The record card is the basic instrument in the accounting procedure, since the complete, up-to-date history of the item is kept on it.

However, for easy reference, three identical IBM cards are punched and filed separately by number, department and description for identification purposes.

The Radio-TV Bureau will audition students for announcing positions today. The programs will be heard over KTYL-FM through KASC.

New Procedure Set For Student Check Payments

The AS Payroll department has announced a temporary change in procedure for payment of student employees.

Starting Nov. 25, student checks will be held at the Business Office in the Administration building and issued there after employees have checked and signed detailed record cards. The cards are necessary for the State Auditor's office.

The Payroll department also requests students who pay date falls on Dec. 10 to sign the cards Nov. 25 or 26. To avoid waiting, several windows will be maintained to accommodate large numbers.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING —

Excellent Performance

Another Homecoming is in the books, and it's time to evaluate the success or failure of the student body homecoming program.

From the over-all point of view, it was tremendously successful. Especially since the entire affair was disjointed due to the almost simultaneous culmination of the name-change drive.

The usual impact of Homecoming seemed somewhat lacking, possibly because of the separation of the parade from the rest of the week's events. Certainly, to those who built and exhibited floats, everything else was anticlimactic.

While the situation was unavoidable, it may have been the reason why crowds were below the expected level at the Western Week barbecue and following dance. The important thing is that the events were well staged. At another time, attendance probably would have been better.

We know of only two functional miscarriages. The first was unavoidable. As the winning floats were entering the stadium the night of Nov. 1, the Alpha Tau Omega float got stuck in the tunnel. Consequently, that entry, winner in the fraternity division, and the sweepstakes winner of Delta Sigma Phi were unable to appear in the half-time show.

Another hitch appeared in the beard contest, when several contestants waited to be judged at the dance. But, the beards had been evaluated several hours earlier at the barbecue. This was a change from previous years, and should have been better publicized.

The picture was generally bright, though.

Despite participation in the name-change drive, organizations managed to produce a record number of floats. A healthy proportion of the entries were above average. More non-greek organizations than usual participated in the parade this year, too.

Probably the most encouraging item of all, however, was the effort of the residence halls in fabricating the Western village on College Avenue and Orange Street.

Attempts to draw halls into the thick of the Homecoming preparations usually have failed in the past. But not so this year.

The halls deserve a hearty "well done" for their creations. Each one was an interesting display in its own right, and the total effect must have added immeasurably to the enjoyment of returning alumni.

It was a big week, and it was handled well. The football team added the touch of victory at the end, and only the most difficult to please could voice any complaint.

Alma Mater

November 22, ASU plays the U of A at Varsity Stadium in Tucson. Some 2,500 ASU students will attend the game and sit together in a bloc big enough to be heard over almost anything.

Spirit will undoubtedly be high. Let's show it by singing the alma mater so it can be understood all the way to Flagstaff.

Where the bold sahuaros raise their arms on high,

Praying strength for brave tomorrows from the western sky;

Where eternal mountains kneel at Sun-set's gate

Here we hail thee, alma mater, Arizona State.

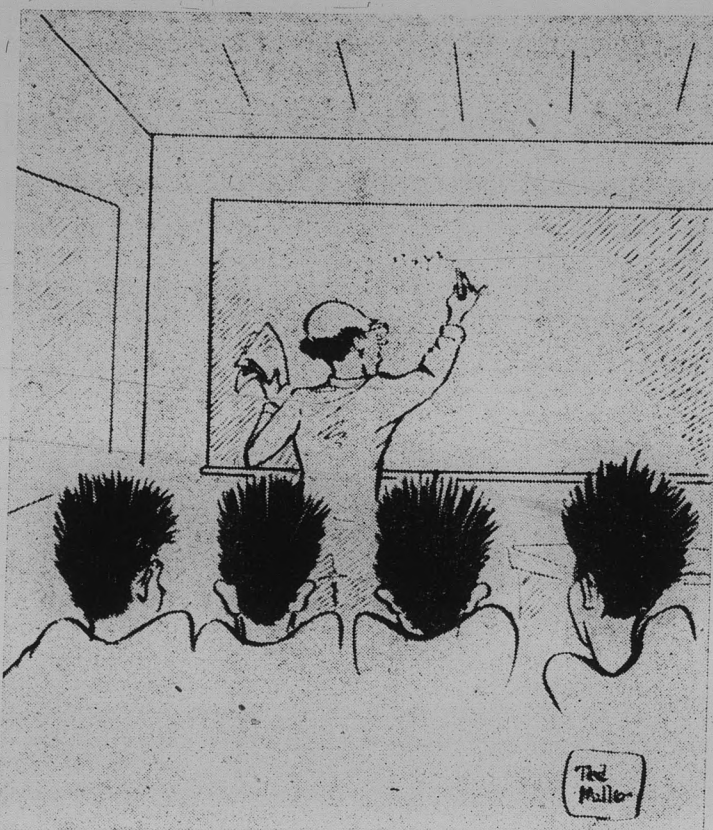

May thy sons ne'er fail thee, though the trail be long;

May thy daughters ever hail thee guardian true and strong;

As the desert's grandeur, may thy years be great;

Here we hail thee, alma mater, Arizona State.

Listen to it, sing it several times. It's a good song, and we should be proud of it.

That squeak bother anyone?

BY PHIL FRY

A joint statement was issued Monday by officials of ASU and the UofA asking that destruction and unnecessary disturbances by students of one school on the campus of the other be eliminated. Both student governments joined the respective administrations in the request.

It was issued in preparation for the annual grid battle, to be held in Tucson this year.

The statement reads: "Destruction of property, vandalism, and unnecessary disturbances by the students of one institution on the campus of the other will not be condoned."

"Any student apprehended attempting to carry out such acts will be severely disciplined."

In the light of events during the name-change drive, the statement is a wise precaution. During that period, several attempts at defacement of this campus were nipped at the start, and someone, probably from AS, did extensive damage on the Tucson campus.

The practice isn't uncommon. However, destruction and vandalism are such a waste of time. Before the COP-San Jose State game, student leaders from both schools met and signed a "peace pact," containing much the same type statement. Other schools are doing the same thing in increasing numbers around the nation.

It's so easy to have fun and impress the "enemy" with our spirit and desire to win without resorting to childish pranks.

Let's get behind our leaders—student and administrative—and show everyone, the U of A included, how university students can shoulder responsibility.

No fights, no damaging of property and plenty of positive spirit.

That goes for before and after the game, too . . . okay?

Incidentally, the Campus Patrol is in line for a pat on the back for the way it handled pranksters bent on plastering the campus with anti-Proposition 200 slogans prior to the general election.

The patrol comes in for plenty of criticism. Maybe it's deserved, I don't know. I do know the "Campus Cops" are on the job when they're needed.

By ROCHELLE MACKEY

Every university has school songs — an alma mater, a fight song and usually several others written to fit various occasions. This is true of our university. The only problem arises from the fact that ASU students don't know the songs . . . At least if they do they keep their knowledge of it well hidden.

Last Saturday's football game serves as a good example.

When the student body was asked to sing the alma mater only a slight unidentifiable murmur could be heard through the stadium. The Sun Devil Band played beautifully, but there were no words sung with the music.

Occurrences such as this are a disgrace . . . Especially after the overwhelming victory for ASU in the general election. Last Saturday night should have been a time to shout the words of the alma mater and other school songs loud enough for the whole state of Arizona to hear. But we didn't.

Ten days from now ASU students will again have the opportunity to show their school spirit and pride in their university. The chance will come at the annual Arizona State-University of Arizona football game in Tucson, Saturday Nov. 22.

Some way, somehow, the lyrics to school songs had better be learned; OUR school songs, that is. Not corny words written to fit the UofA's alma mater or fight song, but words to ASU songs.

In order to insure that each student have available to him copies of school songs, perhaps a campus group such as the Rally and Traditions Board could have printed and distributed to campus living units copies of these songs. If these copies were made available in the next four or five days, students would have ample time to learn the words.

So that at least the words to the alma mater are available to every student, the State Press has printed them at the bottom of the editorial column in this issue.

An easy way to learn them might be through group singing. Each living unit either has a song director or someone capable of leading the practice. If a 15 to 20-minute practice session were held every night until the UofA game, there would be no doubt that everyone would know the words.

Letter To The Editor

We would like to pose a question to Miss Velva Richey, chairman of the Banner Committee in charge of the banner contests among the halls for each home game, and to the judges (usually girls from Palo Verde Hall) for the contest of Nov. 1. Where were they when they were supposed to have been judging the banners?

As they know, they awarded the winning trophy to Haigler Hall at the Nov. 1 football game. May they hereby be informed that Haigler Hall hung no banner that week!

It has long been suspected that the winning hall has been drawn from a hat, as little regard has ever been shown for the quality of the banner judged best. In one contest the banners were judged a day late and after dark, because, and we quote, "two halls called in and said they couldn't get their banners up by the deadline."

This, then, is the type of consideration the halls receive after they spend many man-hours and much in expenses preparing a banner for each home game to forward school spirit—a slap in the face.

We suggest to Miss Richey that she either secure competent, unbiased judges and attempt to make amends in the short time left this year, or discontinue the contest entirely.

We prefer the former, since a university should surely have such enthusiasm and activities to promote it.

In the meantime we feel sure she must feel rather silly about the Nov. 1 award. We find it rather hard to believe, let alone conceive how it might have happened. Or is she even aware to whom the trophy was given?

Freshman Honorary Taps 4

Four recently chosen members of Alpha Lambda Delta, freshman scholastic honorary, include Ann Ward, Nancy Humble, Sue McCullough, and Mar-louise Greene.

Plans for their initiation will be discussed at the regular ALD meeting today, according to Darlene Arthurs, president.

Membership is based on the grade index accumulated during the freshman year. It must be 3.5 or above for eligibility.

Members are active throughout their sophomore year, becoming collegiate alumnae after that. The group attends cultural functions together at ASU, holding business meetings just once a month.

ANYONE FOR FOOTBALL?

When Pancho Sigafos, sophomore, pale and sensitive, first saw Willa Ludowic, freshman, lithe as a hazel wand and rosy as the dawn, he hemmed not; neither did he haw. "I adore you," he said without preliminary.

"Thanks, hey," said Willa, flinging her apron over her face modestly. "What position do you play?"

"Position?" said Pancho, looking at her askance. (The askance is a ligament just behind the ear.)

"On the football team," said Willa.

"Football!" sneered Pancho, his young lip curling. "Football is violence, and violence is the death of the mind. I am not a football player. I am a poet!"

"So long, buster," said Willa.

"Wait!" cried Pancho, clutching her damask forearm.

She placed a foot on his pelvis and wrenched herself free. "I only go with football players," she said, and walked, shimmering, into the gathering dusk.

Pancho went to his room and lit a cigarette and pondered his dread dilemma. What kind of cigarette did Pancho light? Why, Philip Morris, of corris!

Philip Morris is always welcome, but never more than when you are sore beset. When a fellow needs a friend, when the heart is dull and the blood runs like sorghum, then, then above all, is the time for the mildness, the serenity, that only Philip Morris can supply.

Pancho Sigafos, his broken psyche welded, his fevered brow cooled, his synapses restored, after smoking a fine Philip Morris, came to a decision. Though he was a bit small for football (an even four feet) and somewhat overweight (427 pounds), he tried out for the team—and tried out with such grit and gumption that he made it.

Pancho's college opened the season against the Manhattan School of Mines, always a mettlesome foe, but strengthened this year by four exchange students from Gibraltar who had been suckled by she-apes. By the middle of the second quarter the Miners had wrought such havoc upon Pancho's team that there was nobody left on the bench but Pancho. And when the quarterback was sent to the infirmary with his head driven straight down into his esophagus, the coach had no choice but to put Pancho in.

Pancho's teammates were not conspicuously cheered as the little fellow took his place in the huddle.

"Gentleman," said Pancho, "some of you may regard poetry as sissy stuff, but now in our most trying hour, let us hark to these words from Paradise Lost: 'All is not lost; the unconquerable will and study of revenge, immortal hate, and courage never to submit or yield!'"

So stirred was Pancho's team by this fiery exhortation that they threw themselves into the fray with utter abandon. As a consequence, the entire squad was hospitalized before the half. The college was forced to drop football. Willa Ludowic, not having any football players to choose from, took up with Pancho and soon discovered the beauty of his soul. Today they are seen everywhere—dancing, holding hands, nuzzling, smoking.

Have Editors... Need Writers!

Proposed plans for a campus literary magazine were discussed recently in a meeting headed by co-editor, Bill Decker.

The magazine, Idyls, comprising about 32 pages, will consist entirely of creative efforts of AS students. Short stories, poems, and essays are acceptable entries, according to Decker.

Manuscripts are due at the end of this month. Boxes will be set up in the bookstore and English building for the finished works.

Devils Blank TW; Hangartner Stars

By BOB LAIRSON

Thanks to the passing arm of stellar quarterback John Hangartner, the ASU Sun Devils surprised and delighted 25,400 homecoming fans last weekend. The Demons shocked Texas Western 27-0, to initiate a one-game winning streak as a university.

Hangartner completed 10 of 17 passes for 179 yards and two touchdowns. The 165 pound senior mixed his plays well to keep the hitherto tough TW defense off balance and also turned in a fine defensive performance.

Rollin' Nolan Jones scored the first Sun Devil touchdown on a 31-yard pass play. Jones then split the uprights to claim all seven points scored in the first quarter.

In the second period, end Karl Kiefer grabbed a Hangartner pass and waded 30 yards through several Texas Western defenders for six points. With the score remaining 13-0 until halftime, some 1,000 visiting TW supporters loyally waited for the Miners to retaliate.

The third period developed into a defensive battle with ASU unable to penetrate the Miner 20 yard line, and TW failing to cross the Demon 45. Dave Fonner, Jesse Bradford, and Charlie Krofchik sparked the Arizona State defense.

The Sun Devils exploded early in the fourth quarter with two quick dashes into the Miner end zone. Hard-driving full-back Joe Belland scored both, on two and one yard blasts. Leon Burton ran wide around end for a two-point conversion to raise the score to 27-0.

Coach Frank Kush then flooded the field with reserves. Several fourth-stringers saw their first action of the '58 season and performed well against the TW first and second strings.

Tackle Paul Widmer was removed from the stadium in an ambulance and was reported in fair condition after suffering a brain concussion.

The homecoming crowd at the new ASU stadium Saturday night set an all-time Arizona collegiate attendance record of 136,261. Arizona State has one home game remaining, and should push the record over the 162,000 mark.

Ben Anderson, crowned homecoming king at halftime, celebrated with two key blocks on Hangartner to Nolan Jones passes. The first enabled Jones to score the first Devil TD.

CRUNCH . . . Texas Western's Bob Laraba and ball carrier Joe Belland meet headon in this Saturday action. Belland spun away from Laraba on this play and added a few more yards. On the ground in the background is TWC's Bill Hannon. Devils crushed the Miner, 27-0.

Bruised BC Teams Retire To Loop Play

Four B o r d e r Conference teams will stay in their own league this week in hopes of improving their so-so records.

Last week three of four loop clubs tried to carry on a war outside their own territory and were soundly defeated.

Conference leader Hardin-Simmons was shelled, 60-15, by rough Arkansas; West Texas, winless in eight battles this season, was knocked down by Abilene Christian, 28-21, and University of Arizona was dropped by Texas Tech, 33-6.

Only New Mexico A&M returned to the loop's fold victorious. They walked away from little McMurry College, 10-7.

Arizona State chalked another mark into the win column by handing Texas Western a 27-0 defeat. It was the first time in 55 contests that the Miners were shut out.

Saturday Hardin - Simmons will engage West Texas and Texas Western will host Arizona. New Mexico A&M and Arizona State will take a rest.

Nealey Sole Returning Starter As Hoopsters Round Into Shape

With the 1958-'59 basketball season less than a month away, Coach Ned Wulk's Border Conference champions are busily readying themselves for their title defense.

Al Nealey, 6'3" forward who led the team in scoring last year, is the only returning Hardin-Simmons is leading the conference with a 2-0 mark. They still must face West Texas and New Mexico's Aggies. The Sun Devils, 3-1 in league play, have only their southern neighbors, Arizona, to contend with.

starter. Nealey averaged 16.4 points per game while leading the Devils to the NCAA Regional basketball playoffs.

Two junior college transfers, Paul Denham and Paul Howard, increase the Devils' chances of repeating as conference champs. Denham averaged 25.4 points per game at Hancock JC last year, also setting several school scoring records. He is currently playing forward, occasionally shifting to the guard position.

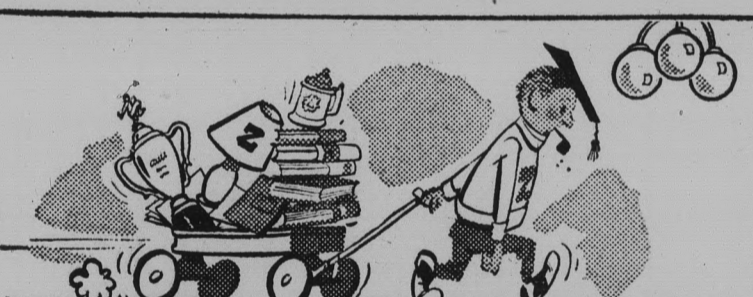

Howard is a 5'10" fireball who plays an aggressive brand of ball. He was a teammate of Denham's at Hancock JC. Howard was named to several JC All-American teams as well as almost every All-California team last year.

Also looking good in practice thus far, are Ed "Whitey" Olsen, John Bowen, Bill Pryor, Tom Hughes and Dick Jarvis.

FIG'S FILE

By VIC FIGARELLI

For the first time in a long while, complete tranquility prevailed as Sun Devil fans filled out of the new stadium last Saturday.

Up till then, the mode had been to make nervous wrecks of on lookers with hair-raising ball games, not decided until the last few moments of play.

So thorough was the Sun Devil job on Texas Western, that fans anxious to beat the traffic began filing out early in the fourth quarter.

We always knew there was an easy way to beat the traffic problem, and if racking the opposition early is the way, then by all means, let the vogue continue.

If West Texas is going to win a game this year, Saturday would be the best time for it. They meet Hardin-Simmons this week, and from the description of H-SU's game with Arkansas last week, Cowboy coach Sammy Baugh had to go onto the field afterwards and dig up the turf to find his battered eleven. Arkansas won, 60-15, and if that isn't a demoralizing factor, what is?

A WT victory, combined with an AS win at Tucson Nov. 22, would give Arizona State its second straight BC title. If WT can't do it, the Cowboys would still need a victory over New Mexico A&M to clinch the loop flag.

Fonner Player Of Week

By JEFF KIEHL

Because of his tremendous desire and fine all-around defensive showing against Texas Western, Sun Devil senior center Dave Fonner was selected "player of the week" by his coaches and was presented with the trophy in a show over station KPHO-TV Monday evening.

Fonner, a 6-0, 205-pounder from Harrisburg, Pa., ran roughshod over the Texas Western interference to stop the majority of Miner end sweeps around his side of the line, and took the lead in AS defensive statistics.

Playing his final year of collegiate football, Fonner is considered one of the most spirited players on the team by his teammates and was given the 1957 "Oil Can" award, given each year to the player who has added most to team morale.

Converted from fullback at the outset of the '57 grid campaign, Fonner seems to improve with every game. He is considered by line coach Dick Tamburo, himself a former All-American center from Michigan State, as a smart diagnostician of plays, which is the best talent a linebacker can have.

Against the Miners, in Saturday's Homecoming win, coaches felt that "Buckets" Fonner played one of his finest games of the year.

TOUCHDOWN PLAY . . . Devil end Karl Kiefer is about to gather in this pass from John Hangartner for the second Sun Devil touchdown. The play covered 30 yards and upped the score to 13-0.

UA-AS Game Ticket Rush Starts Today

The big rush for tickets to the University of Arizona-Arizona State game Nov. 22 starts this morning at 10 a.m.

Twenty-five hundred ducats go on sale for $1.50 each at the ticket window in the Men's Gym.

Students must present activity cards on purchase of their ticket. Only one ticket is allowed to each student, said John Weisand, AS ticket manager.

If any tickets remain after Friday, then people desiring more will be allowed to buy additional ones.

The 2,500 number has been the standard allotment for all UA-AS games at Tucson in previous years.

Arizona State's wrestling squad under coach Harvey Jensen will hold its initial workout in the old gym tonight at 7:30 p.m. All those interested in trying out for the team are urged to attend this first practice.
