Devils Trounce Cats In 47-0 Runaway

Arizona State's Sun Devils satisfied numerous Arizona grid fans as to their playing caliber last Saturday when they mauled Arizona, 47-0.

The AS victory was hailed as the greatest in the current series with the Wildcats as well as the finest team victory of the 1958 season.

UA head coach Ed Doherty predicted a clean, hard-fought, well-played game before the Saturday game.

His crystal ball must have been trained directly on the Devil practice field, for that's just the kind of a game it was. Most of the hard fighting and strong play came from Doherty's opposition, however, and the 47-0 score tied the largest AS victory margin in 32 meetings between the teams.

From the stadium seats, it was easy to see the Wildcats had little chance from the start. Devil blocking was the difference on offense and a spring-steel defensive unit held the UA in check.

ASU coach Frank Kush commented, "Our blocking, especially downfield, was good." He said the win was "a great team victory . . . and I'm proud of every one of them." Kush cleared the bench, using all the 41-player travelling squad in the contest.

"Speed was the biggest factor . . . they didn't make any mistakes either," Doherty commented.

Beleaguered Cat quarterback Ralph Hunsaker said the Devils rushed him harder than any team this year.

Senior right halfback Leon Burton racked up a total of 101 rushing yards to pace the Devil offense. The speedy 170-pounder scored three times and was a defensive standout.

Ron Erhardt, Joe Belland and Joe Drake kept the UA defense honest with power plays through the middle. Erhardt scored twice and Belland and Drake once each.

It was difficult to pick out a defensive standout for AS as Bill Spanko, Jesse Bradford, Mike Bartholomew, Dave Foner, Ken Kerr, Charlie Krofchik and Karl Kiefer were joined by a host of reserves to hold Arizona backs to a minus 53 yards rushing.

The Wildcats gained 143 yards passing and pass-catching slotback Dave Hibbert set a national receiving record with 61 catches for the season. He caught seven against the Demons.

The addition of All-American guard Al Carr to the forward wall gave the Devils the downfield blocking that had been missing for several games. Carr and Bradford broke in front of the fleet AS backs to pave the way to sizeable gains.

Workshop Production Hailed By Standing Room Audiences

By BROOKS ARTHUR

Standing-room audiences last week acclaimed the Drama Workshop's presentation of Christopher Fry's comedy of misguided and frustrated desires, "The Lady's Not For Burning."

If the players maintain their excellence, no doubt they'll take extra curtain calls next spring when they will present "As You Like It" at the Shakespearean Festival.

As directed by James Yeater of the Speech and Drama Department, "The Lady" develops into a tale of pride and passion set against a medieval background of suspicion superstition and hilarity. And the cast of 11 responded to Yeater's direction with comedy both high and low, and even a touching love scene or so.

Playgoers sang the praises of a trio of actors who carried the bulk of the action: Phil Auth, Jill Fisher, and Fred Norman.

Others in the cast included: Phil Wade, as a justice; Alvie Thomas and Larry Webb as the mayor's nephews; Delores Gregory as a maid; Kirk O'Higgins as a clerk; Bob Payton as the town drunk, and Michael Rost as a priest.

AS Entries Claim State Fair Prizes

Dr. Harry Wood, head of the ASU Art department, received the Arizona Artist Guild purchase prize as third place winner in the sculpture division at the State Fair.

His small sculpture in limestone, "The Gift," will now take a permanent place in the Phoenix Fine Arts Center.

Other prize winners from ASU include: oil division, Alan Chinn, alumnus, first; water color, Susan Harter and Gene Corno, alumni, first and second respectively; crayon, Terry Livingston, student, second; ceramics, Dick Smith, student, first and second and drawings, Bill Voss, alumnus, first.

New Show Added

ASU radio station KASC has added a regular live broadcast from the Devil's Den to its program schedule.

The show, emceed by Bob Stedelin and titled "As You Like It," consists of interviews of students and playing record requests. It is broadcast from 3 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

KASC now features music from 6 to 12 midnight. Requests and comments can be sent by campus mail addressed to Radio Station KASC.

was shown included: Professor Harter, John Waddell, Art Jacobson, Frances Failing, Douglas Hale, Ben Goo, Jean Hopkins and Charles Loloma.

The Agriculture department also made a very good showing at the State Fair. The department submitted twelve animals and all of them placed.

Iglesias, Spanish Ballet Perform Here Tuesday

The Spanish Ballet Company of Roberto Iglesias will appear at an all-campus assembly in the gym next Tuesday.

The company, making its first coast-to-coast tour of the US and Canada, will begin its free performance at 1:30, under the auspices of the ASU Concert and Lecture Series.

The next State Press will be published Wednesday, Dec. 3, after the Thanksgiving holiday. The State Press wishes everyone in the ASU community a very happy Thanksgiving.

Remember, if you drive home, be careful. Let's keep our enrollment the same.

The choreography for the program has been described as "full of originality and dramatic power, based on the purest examples of Flamenco and other native Spanish sources," and is the responsibility of Iglesias, the company's star.

The female lead is Rosario Galan, with Rosario Escudero and Ana Mercedes appearing as guest artists.

Others featured in the troupe are Maria Fabregas, soprano; Pepe Segundo, Flamenco singer; and Felix de Utrera, guitarist.

"Make no mistake, Mr. Iglesias is an artist. The evidence that he is essentially a master is unmistakable," commented the New York Times after the company's American debut last spring.

Phoenix Firm Adds To Fund

Money gifts usually presented to customers of the A. B. Robbs Trust Co. will be donated to Arizona State University's scholarship fund this year, the Phoenix mortgage banking firm has announced.

Formerly, the Trust Company has allocated $1000 for Christmas presents. Recipients this season will receive cards telling them the money has been given in their names to a special scholarship fund at ASU and will be used to help deserving students needing financial aid in preparing for careers in business administration or real estate.

Thank you notes, in the form of Christmas cards, will also be sent to the donators from ASU.

The Robbs fund will have two types of award: one for both merit and need ($500 maximum); and the other for outstanding scholarship.

At least five students will benefit from the fund each year.

This cash gift is the first donation to the new Merit System Scholarship Fund, recently established by the Arizona State University Foundation.

Final date for dropping classes officially has been set for Friday, Dec. 5, according to the Registrar's Office.

BEFORE DAWN . . . Saturday, these riders and morale boosters from nine fraternities gathered in front of the Memorial Union for the start of the traditional 120 mile Desert Derby bike race. Lambda Delta Sigma was first to cross the line in Tucson.

Debaters Compete In Meet

Four teams of ASU debaters, eight students in all, will return tomorrow from the Western Speech Association tournament at Salt Lake City.

Students from colleges and universities in 11 western states competed in the three-day meet at the University of Utah. It started Monday and will conclude today.

Debaters attending are Mike McNulty, George Nosek, Max Richards, Dick Steiner, Penny Albright, Gloria Valencia, Tom Riley and Ron Bartlo.

Student-Faculty Hour Set Dec. 9

The next student-faculty coffee-hour will be held on Dec. 9, in the faculty dining room. This is to be the last coffee hour before Christmas vacation and all students are urged to attend.

The coffee hours are designed primarily to give the students and faculty a better opportunity to meet each other on a more social basis and to get to know them personally as well as professionally.

THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE-BUT TODAY'S L&M GIVES YOU-

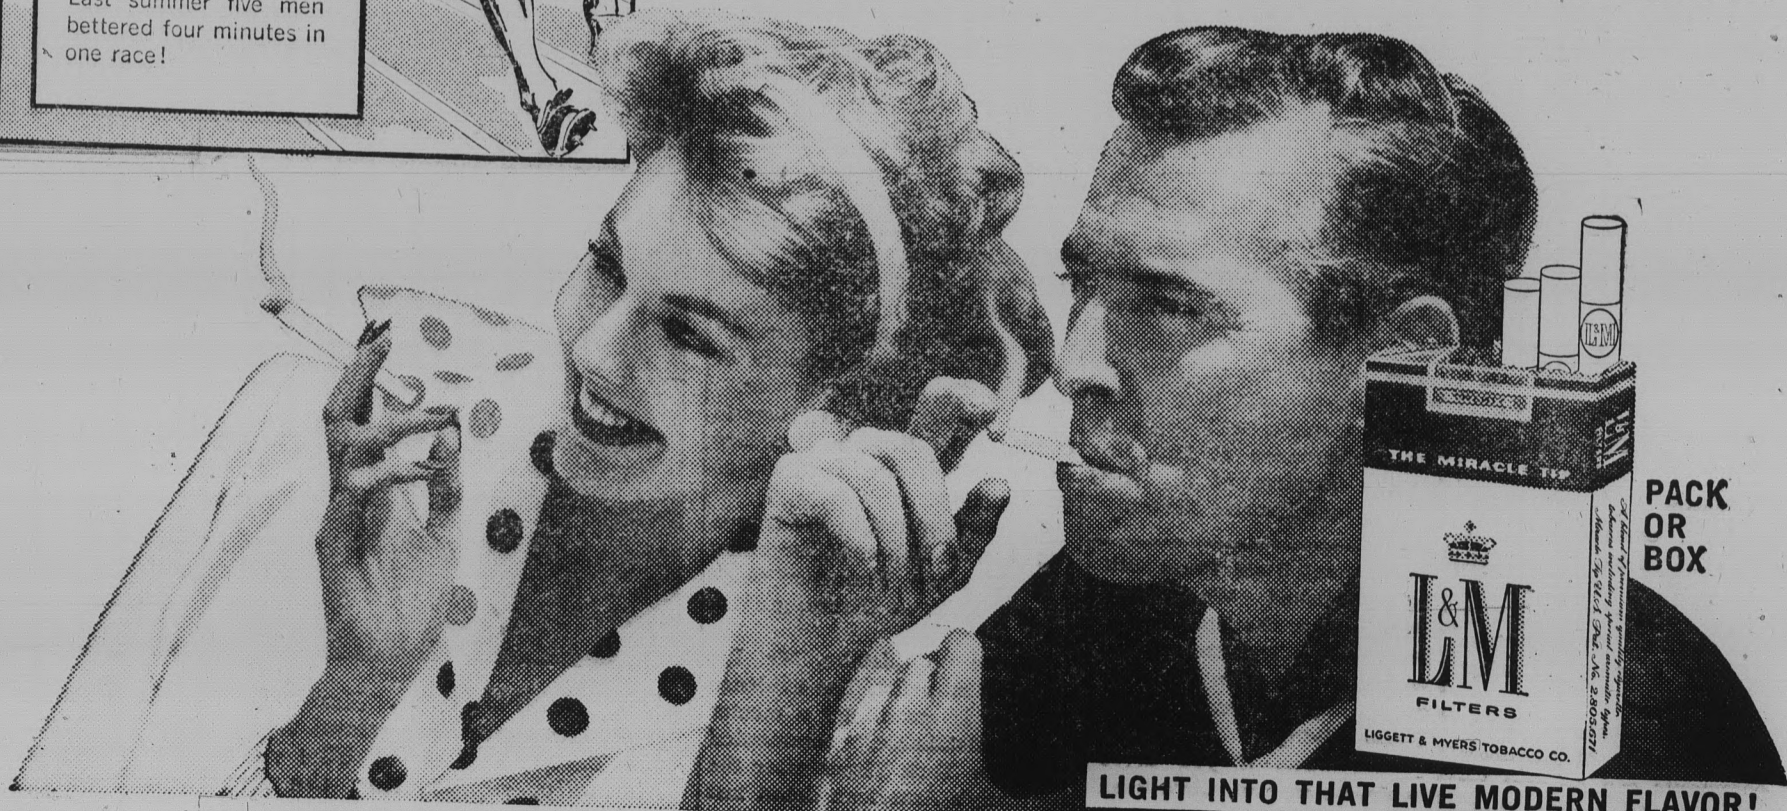

They said it couldn't be done! Only a few years ago, the four-minute mile seemed unattainable. But on May 6, 1954, the barrier was shattered, and since then, the feat has been repeated again and again. Last summer five men bettered four minutes in one race!

Puff by puff

Less tars & More taste

DON'T SETTLE FOR ONE WITHOUT THE OTHER!

Change to L&M and get 'em both. Such an improved filter and more taste! Better taste than in any other cigarette. Yes, today's L&M combines these two essentials of modern smoking enjoyment—less tars and more taste—in one great cigarette.

Judging Team Earns Trophy

The ASU team brought home the winning quarter horse judging trophy from the Grand National Livestock Exposition at the Cow Palace in San Francisco.

It was the fourth straight year the ASU livestock judging team won the trophy, in competition with 11 colleges and universities. The traveling trophy was retired last year and the team now has a firm hold on permanent possession of the new one.

Members of the team, coached by Robert D. Rasmussen, assistant professor of animal husbandry, are Franklin Flake, Snowflake; Logan Hansen, Lakeside; Roy Crosby, Greer; John Hadlock, Glenn Grubbs and William Cox, alternate, all of Tempe.

The team placed third among the 11 entries in the entire contest, with Crosby, Grubbs and Hadlock finishing as third, sixth, and 13th high individual, respectively, among 55 competitors.

Crosby finished third by being fourth high individual in quarter horses, second high in swine, and seventh high in judging beef. Grubbs was third high individual in sheep and ninth in swine. Flake was second high, Hansen third high and Hadlock sixth high in horses.

Art Work Displayed

Several art exhibits are now on display on the ASU campus.

A master thesis by Bill Wallace, consisting of twenty paintings in oil, water color and lacquer, is on exhibit at the Arts building. The paintings, ranging from realistic to experimental, have been two years in the making, most during summer session at Sedona. Wallace is an instructor at Carl Hayden High School.

On display at the Union is a loan from the permanent collection of the University of Arizona.

To First Chair Positions

Faculty Members Named

Two ASU faculty members have been named to first chair positions in the Phoenix Symphony orchestra.

Frank Stalzer, assistant professor of Music, and Edwin Putnik, lecturer, are top men in the oboe and flute sections, respectively.

A three-season member of the Symphony, Mr. Stalzer joined the ASU faculty in 1955, with a background of teaching at Louisiana State University and professional opera and symphony work in New Orleans and Baton Rouge. He is a veteran of theater pit bands in Louisiana, Kansas City and Phoenix.

He received his Bachelor of Music Education degree from the University of Kansas and his master's from Eastman School of Music. Also, he studied one year in France with Marcel Tabuteau, considered one of the nobility in the kingdom of oboe.

Mr. Putnik is in his first season with the Phoenix Symphony. He has played with the Chicago Symphony and Opera and the Denver Symphony. Once flutist for Lily Pons, he has played under such conductors as Mitropolous, Reiner, and Monteaux. He took his bachelor's and master's degrees in music from Northwestern University and did graduate study at Eastman.

Both Mr. Stalzer and Mr. Putnik are members of the Westwood Quintet, comprised of ASU faculty members.

Other ASU faculty members playing first chairs in the Phoenix Symphony are Eugene Chausow, instructor of Music, french horn; Mervin Britton, instructor of Music, percussion; and Dr. Jacob Fuchs, associate professor of Chemistry, timpani.

Research Center Physiologist Co-Authors Leaf Disease Article

Dr. John P. Decker, plant physiologist with the U. S. Forest Service research center at ASU, is the co-author of an article on the leaf mosaic disease.

Dr. Decker and Marco A. Tio, of the agricultural experiment station at the Puerto Rican University, did research for the article in 1957, when Decker was a consultant there.

The article, which appeared in the Puerto Rican Journal of Agricultural Research by the University of Puerto Rico, stated that the leaf mosaic disease, caused by a virus carried by the green citrus aphid, is a serious threat to Puerto Rican agriculture.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING —

Thanksgiving

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving. We look forward to days like Thanksgiving and Christmas because they mean time off, a holiday. This is a superficial attitude, of course, for these days are, above all else, a time to take stock, to reflect on the good things we have.

Thanksgiving, more than any other day, is devoted to this reflection.

We spend most of each year deploring the tax situation, the international situation, the segregation situation, and/or a thousand and one others of like nature.

In a narrower sense, we as students complain about too much homework or not enough, too early classes or too late classes, the coffee in the Den and on and on.

Tomorrow, we can look at the other side.

This year has been bountiful for Arizona State as very few others have since the founding date in 1885. Here are a few examples of what we mean.

First on the list is the name change, including the manner in which the entire university community gave unselfishly of time and expense to insure the eventual overwhelming margin of victory.

While the canvass of votes has been held up pending a recount of Pima County ballots, it is likely that AS will have been officially assigned the university title before next Wednesday's paper is on the street.

We can be thankful for the opportunity for higher education, denied so many people of the world. This, in itself, is enough. Although it's easy to sit at home thinking of the money that could have been made in the time it takes to get a good education, in the long run we know that education is worth so much more than money. Incidentally, studies show that money accumulates in greater amounts after a college education than it does without one.

To some, athletics are considered below the cultural level of thoughtful consideration, but think again. One of the most important domestic programs of the government is physical fitness. At Arizona State we have a fine intramural program including thousands of participants this year in every popular sport.

We are also blessed with an especially productive intercollegiate athletics program. Saturday's magnificent victory over the University of Arizona, while sweet beyond description, is only one example.

Finally, a new spirit pervades our campus. True, some things such as elections haven't drawn the support their sponsors wanted. In general however, student attitudes appear to have gained vitality and maturity beyond that evident in recent years.

We don't have to ignore the unsolved problems, but let's not forget the good things either.

Think It Over

The deadline for dropping classes is next Friday. Why not have a talk with the professor in the class you think you should drop. It could save you lots of grief later on, as well as the benefits in knowledge and credits.

"Brown-nosing" is a distasteful term. "Apple-polishing" aptly covers the same subject, but also has an unpleasant connotation.

Many university students are unduly and continually accused of both by their peers. Teachers can usually tell whether the title is deserved or not. Students doing the name-calling might well learn to be as discerning.

Higher grades sometimes earned as a result of private conferences with teachers usually are backed by extra study effort in the right direction, directed by the teacher.

It seems to be the disdainful students who refrain from checking on their academic progress who receive the lower grades and who also label others as "apple-polishers," etc.

To earnestly question teachers about your grades, class progress, and subject matter is to show sincere interest in your course of study. Naturally, teachers are willing to do their best for students who show interest in what they're supposed to be learning.

"Now remember, you've never played before but you'd like to give it a try!"

Letter To The Editor

To The Editor,

My purpose for writing is fourfold, and I will take up the four points as they occurred to me.

1. I had the pleasure of seeing an excellent play, "The Lady's Not For Burning," excellently done by the Drama Workshop. Since everyone is aware that Payne Auditorium is inadequate, I won't go into that problem, but rather try to suggest a solution. Might Cosner Auditorium be used?

How about theatre in the round in one of the gyms? Come the warmer weather, why not have an open-air theatre with the bandstand (near Old Main) for a stage and portable bleachers for seating?

2. Since I could fill pages with kudos about the International Fashion Program, let it suffice to mention that I particularly appreciated the talents of Miss Mercia Henry, Mr. Shun and Combo from Korea, Miss Elma Kwang and Miss Susie Miller.

3. Our student body is now large enough to support a magazine. The title of "Idylls" has been chosen. Sounds a little foreboding, doesn't it? The magazine should reflect the personality of the institution, don't you agree?

Probably the best college-type magazine today is not published by any campus but which is, nonetheless, a part of every campus — "Playboy." Eh, wot?

4. In conclusion, let me just add, "Yea Team!" Looks like ASU really knows how to play UNIVERSITY football. That was a "really big show" Saturday afternoon.

John Mazur

To The Editor:

On page one of the State Press for November 21 there was an article headed "Too Few Seats, Drama Held Over." Since Payne Auditorium holds only one hundred spectators the play, "The Lady's Not For Burning," had to be held over.

I do not know what inconveniences Payne Auditorium may hold for the production of plays, but the limited capacity is a blessing. As all actors know, the longer a play runs (within reason) the better it becomes to both spectators and performers.

Let us hope that when we are given a new playhouse it will be as small as Payne. "Better" is not always synonymous with "bigger."

J. D. Hale, Ph.D.

Praise Greet Fine Conduct

By JOANNE-SMOOT

"I want to congratulate the entire Student Body for its fine conduct at the UofA game. Some immature loudmouths were predicting that our conduct would be more along the hoodlum line than that befitting University students. We have been a university for several years and we certainly know how to conduct ourselves accordingly, as has been proven several times this year.

"Such conduct is not the product of spiritless people, with no pride or intestinal fortitude, but rather of people who have achieved the qualities of personal maturity as University students. This type of behavior in every phase of university life, both individually and in groups, is essential to the maintenance of University standards. The students of Arizona State University are to be commended."

This is the context of a letter sent to the State Press by Warren Summers, ASASU president.

Not only was Summers pleased, but also Douglas Paxton, director of Campus Security at the University of Arizona, said these words to Jim Creasman, ASU Alumni Secretary, just before the game Saturday.

"I would like to thank Dean Shofstall, Dean Schmidt, the student body president, and all those who helped for the wonderful conduct of your students."

Mr. Paxton went on to say that there hadn't been one infraction of the law or one incident to mar the feeling of cooperation between the two universities.

Gayle Schuman, Director of Campus Security at ASU, stated that "with out a doubt, this was one of the finest spirits I've seen all year, outside of the victory on Proposition 200, Nov. 4. I'm very proud of our students; they are truly university students."

Dean Catherine G. Nichols stated that the students had won two victories, "the victory on the name-change and the victory at the football game Saturday. Both were tense situations. Our student body, as a whole, conducted themselves with the maturity befitting university students.

"We are always proud of our student body and feel that there just isn't any other student body anywhere to compare with ours.

"A great deal of credit goes to the fine student leadership we have on our campus."

Dean Weldon P. Shofstall expressed his thoughts by saying, "our team won a victory on the field at Tucson. Our band looked fine. We are proud of both. We entered into a super-charged situation in which one outburst of childish arrogance could have branded every one of us as unworthy of our new name.

"Students, you are University calibre."

The above comments were expressed due to the doubly tense situation this year. The recent election victory and the usual rivalry between schools produced a situation which could have been disastrous.

However, this year it can be said that the students from both Universities were truly ladies and gentlemen.

"I CAN'T SIGN YOUR PETITION TO DROP MY CLASS—I NEED YOUR 'F' TO EQUALIZE MY GRADE DISTRIBUTION."

Holiday Prompts Fraternity Parties; Sorority Walkouts Have New Twist

By PETEY OLMSTED

Sigma Phi Epsilon members and dates will celebrate Thanksgiving with a barbecue and hi-fi dance at the fraternity house tomorrow evening beginning at 8 p.m.

Valley alumni of Phi Kappa will join ASU members of the Catholic social fraternity and their dates, for a Thanksgiving party this evening at the fraternity house.

Newest pledges of the group are Hank Kolb, Dennis Kennedy, Ray Reilly, and Frank Hernandez.

Lambda Delta Sigma did it again! This is the second consecutive time their team has earned first place honors in the bicycle race from Tempe to Tucson.

Following close behind were the Phi Delta Thetas for second place, and Phi Sigma Kappa won third in the traditional pedal-pushing. Congratulations, groups.

Congratulations for the week go to the men of Tau Kappa Epsilon who recently received the "most improved scholarship" trophy from IFC, for earning the grade index most improved over last semester's among all the fraternities.

The index? 2.48.

An Italian atmosphere prevailed at the Lambda Chi Alpha party over the weekend in Tucson. UA Lambda Chis hosted their ASU brothers at the Tucson chapter house after the Big Game.

The worst results of the Chi Omega active "walkout" from the regular meeting Monday night were a few "dampened" spirits, report some of the victimized actives.

But the Alpha Phi pledges turned the tables by honoring their actives with a "walk-in." The festivities included presenting a decorated sheet cake and punch to the surprised actives during the middle of the meeting Monday night.

ASU Phi Kappas, Catholic social fraternity, were victorious in their football game with UA Phi Kappas Sunday at Tucson. It was their fourth consecutive such win.

Elena Russell and Kathy Lund are now wearing Sigma Sigma Sigma pledge pins. They were pledged in ceremonies last week.

Sigma Nus and dates will have a party Friday evening at the fraternity house, with records and dancing on the agenda.

The Memorial Union will be closed Thanksgiving day. Friday the MU will be open from 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m., Saturday from 8 a.m. to midnight and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., according to Mrs. Cecelia Scoular, Memorial Union Director.

Devil Varsity Wins Debut, Routs Frosh

Some 1,000 basketball fans crowded the ASU gymnasium balcony for a pre-season view of coach Ned Wulk's defending Border Conference champs last Monday night.

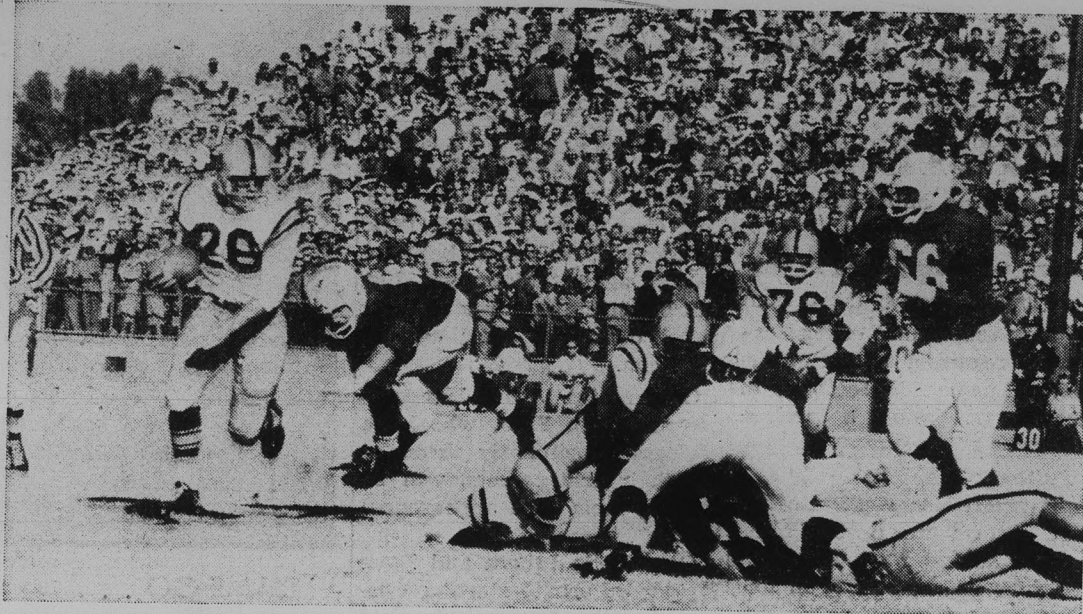

The fans were not disappointed, as the varsity trounced the freshmen 100-59.

Forward Al Nealey scored 24 points and gathered 19 rebounds to lead in both departments and serve notice that he is a candidate for any all-star team asking.

Paul Denham and Paul Howard turned in fine performances for the varsity, along with Bill Pryor, Ed Olsen, and Tom Hughes.

Harvey Darche and Ollie Payne led the Sun Imp cause, Darche snagging 12 rebounds, Payne scoring 18 points. The Imps turned in a respectable first half, but couldn't cope with the stellar play of the more experienced varsity in the second period.

The Sun Devil quintet delighted the unexpectedly large crowd with its slick ball-handling and blinding speed. If any Border Conference team has ideas about grabbing the BC basketball crown this year, the Demons showed they would be the team to beat.

GOOD BLOCKING . . . Devil halfback Allen Benedict takes advantage of some fine blocking to sprint into the Wildcat secondary. UA's Bill Christensen dives at Benedict, while Marty Hurd (66) prepares to leap over the fallen bodies. In the pile, Joe Belland is prone, Mike Bartholomew is supine, and Leon Burton is behind an unidentified UA lineman. With his backside up is Dave Hibbert, and 76 is Jesse Bradford.

Marquette Here

'58 Slate Ends Saturday

By BOB LAIRSON

ASU students and fans will have their last look at the '58 football squad as the Demons engage invading Marquette University in Sun Devil stadium this Saturday.

A win over Marquette would leave the Sun Devils with a 7-3 season record. The Hilltoppers from Milwaukee have compiled a 2-6-1 record so far this season against foes such as Wisconsin, Penn State, and TCU.

The Demons will face the biggest backfield fielded by any 1958 opponent in quarterback Pete Hall, 6-3, 205 pounds; halfback Silas Woods, 6-3, 220 pounds; and fullback Frank Mestnik 6-3, 208 pounds. The Hilltoppers also have a big, rugged line capable of giving the ASU gridders a rough time.

The loss of deceptive halfback Allen Benedict will hurt the Demons somewhat, but freshman Nolan Jones has proven a capable replacement.

Guards Al Carr and Jim Lambeth should be recovered from early injuries and ready to help the Sun Devil line when needed. Both Carr and Lambeth turned in fine performances against UofA last weekend.

Bufs Beat Aggies, Cowboys Idle

Arizona State's 47-0 drubbing of Arizona and West Texas State's first win of the season over New Mexico A&M 39-32, constituted the Border Conference league action over the weekend.

Texas Western stepped out of league play and was soundly thrashed by Trinity, 49-0.

Hardin-Simmons, needing a win over New Mexico A&M to take the Border Conference crown next week, had an open date. If the Cowboys lose, Arizona State gets the crown.

Fig's File

By Vic Figarelli

Arizona's Ralph Hunsaker must have felt like that Dutch cat who had his finger stuck in the dike.

Every time he pulled the ball away from his center last Saturday, the great wave of Tempe rushed in, flooding the Arizona backfield with pass harassers.

Occasionally, the U of A pilot was hindered by his own linemen, who in turn were in the process of being pushed out of the stadium by AS forwards and red-dogging linebackers.

Arizona now has been held to only two scores in the past four years by the Devils.

Got lucky on predictions last week, hitting on six of seven. West Texas fouled up a perfect score by beating New Mexico's Aggies. The record now reads 37-20 for a .648 percentage.

This week's slate lists four games.

AS-Marquette: The Warriors should have a tough time scoring. If the Devils play like they did against Tucson, look for a similar score. We say 40-0.

We must choose Hardin-Simmons over New Mexico A & M, but naturally, we'd like to miss this one.

Also, COP over Fresno State and Idaho State over Hawaii.

Carr, Burton, Kerr Among Sixteen Seniors In AS Finale

When the final gun sounds Saturday night, it will not only designate the end of the game between the Sun Devils and Marquette, but also it will mean the finale of collegiate grid careers for sixteen Arizona State Sun Devils.

Heading the list of graduating seniors are halfback Leon Burton and guard Al Carr, who are the two ASU nominees for All-American honors. Burton has starred in the Sun Devil backfield for all four years of his football competition at Arizona State, winning the national scoring and rushing titles in his junior year.

Carr, who has played in only five losing games throughout his high school and college career, is regarded as one of the fastest linemen in football, in addition to being a prolific blocker.

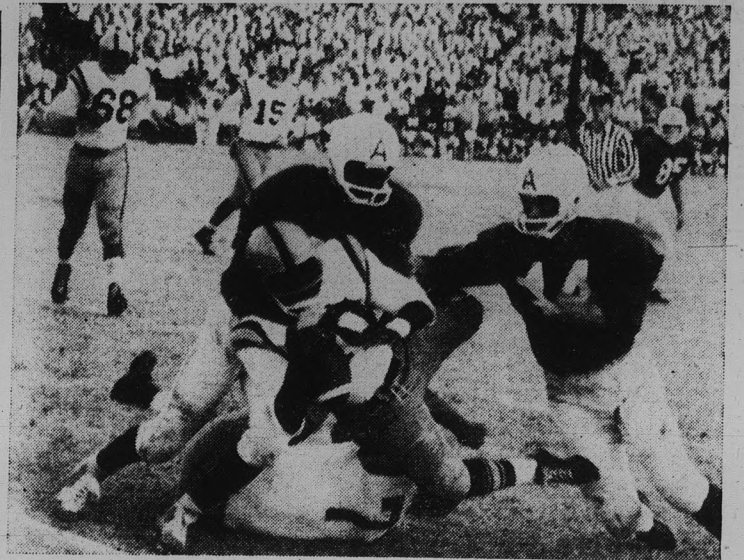

Fullback Joe Belland and right guard Ken Kerr also depart. Both were Border Conference second team members last year and should be in line for first team berths after this campaign.

Tackle Paul Widmer, end Tom Grassl and halfback Dick Kosidowski, will not be able to play against Marquette, but will be on the sidelines as their mates close out their careers for them.

Co-captains John Hangartner and Tom Ford, who have performed brilliantly throughout their grid careers, will be making their final appearances in Sun Devil uniforms.

Gino Della Libera and Dave Fonner, alternate starting centers for the Demons the last three years are also among the departing gridders who will be severely missed by Devil coaches and fans.

Other prominent players, whose absences will be felt next year are: quarterback-halfback O'Jay Bourgeois, fullbacks Ron Erhardt and Roger Worsley, end Ben Anderson and halfback Eddie Mitchell.

Leon MVP, Accepts Shrine Bid

Arizona State's answer to breaking the sound barrier, Leon Burton, received a double prize this week.

His coaches named him player of the week for the Arizona game, and he accepted a bid to play in the East-West Shrine game in San Francisco Dec. 27.

Sun Devil fans had been waiting for Leon to show his breakaway stuff all year, and Saturday's all-around AS effort gave him his chance. He scored three times, gained 101 yards on only eight carries and performed brilliantly on defense.

Burton's Shrine game appearance will make him the fourth Arizona State player to do so. Whizzer White, John Jankans and Clancy Osborne appeared previously. On his acceptance, Burton said, "I think I'll be playing among the best, and I think it's quite an honor. You find out where you stand."

The Flint speedster said he won't decide to whether to play for the San Francisco '49ers or a Canadian club until after the East-West game. His decision will be based on the best offer from the pros.

Because he led the nation in rushing last year, Burton became a marked man in '58. Devil injuries broke the cohesive spirit of the team, and blockerless. Leon had to wait till mid-season to be sprung loose on a long gainer. His best previous effort had been a 52-yard jaunt with a flat pass in the San Jose loss.

Head coach Frank Kush said of his prized halfback, "I consider him one of the finest college football players that I've been associated with, as a coach or a player."
