Fannin's Speech Makes Education Recommendation

In his message to the 24th Arizona Legislature's first regular session Monday, Governor Paul Fannin placed educational needs near the top of his priority legislation program.

The major portion of Fannin's speech was devoted to taxation and school financing, in which he stressed the importance of higher education, saying:

"We know that potential leadership in youth is not determined by economic or geographic origin. Thus we must provide exacting higher educational opportunities for those who are able and willing to apply themselves."

The governor said he is "persuaded that the parents of Arizona, as they watch their children facing the unknown of the future, believe the educational essentials are instruction in the basic intellectual disciplines which strengthen character and mind, and which prepare youth for a frequently hard world."

To meet the needs of education in Arizona, Fannin recommends creation of a joint study committee to prepare a constitutional amendment relating to the State Board of Education for submission to the 1960 legislature.

"Provision," he said, "should be made for general public representation on the State Board of Education."

Recommendations to meet the needs of education in Arizona followed closely on the heels of the Board of Regents' approval of a uniform admissions program covering Arizona's three major institutions of higher learning.

The regents' plan was evolved after a year of study by a committee composed of Dr. H.

D. Richardson, ASU academic vice president; Dr. David Patrick, UofA academic vice president; and Dr. Charles Meister, dean of Instruction at ASC.

Commenting on the governor's speech, President Grady Gammage said he feels the governor's proposals are "very constructive and helpful."

"Students and parents can expect more rigid requirements in the future," he stated.

President Gammage added that for educators to do the best possible job in "confronting the requirements of the age in which we live," the standards of education must be strengthened.

Thomas Tells Prerequisites For Admission To Register

An approved program of studies, completed registration materials, and money are the prerequisites for admission to Registration Hall, according to Alfred Thomas, director of Admissions.

Students who have not yet obtained an approved program of studies, signed by their advisor, must do so before they will be admitted to the registration hall, he said.

All registration material, with the exception of program cards, should be completed before entering Registration Hall. Program cards should be completed as soon as class cards are received.

Students who are not prepared to pay fees and complete registration will not be permitted to take materials from the hall for completion at a later date, but must surrender class cards for distribution to students who are so prepared.

Class and registration schedules are available in the Administration Building.

Registrar Issues Graduation Data

Seniors are warned this week by the Registrar's office that failure to apply for graduation by Feb. 5 will disqualify them for the May ceremony.

Those who expect to complete degree requirements next semester and have not applied for graduation may do so until Feb. 5, but will be charged a $5 late fee, since the regular deadline has passed.

Seniors completing requirements this semester and leaving the state, or seniors who will be unable to attend the ceremony for any reason, should have filed the necessary petition and paid a $7.50 absentee fee when they applied for graduation.

Seniors who have changed their degree plans since their original applications were filed are advised to reapply and complete a new check sheet. Feb. 5 is also the final deadline for this procedure.

The mailroom will be closed Jan. 23-24 for expansion purposes, Bob Short, supervisor, announced.

General Electric Section In ASU Center Vacated

A section of ASU's Engineering Center, occupied by General Electric, is being vacated, due to GE's expansion of its new Deer Valley Park plant.

The second and third floors of the building, the area to be cleared, will be used for classrooms and laboratories, Dr. George Beakley, professor of Engineering, said.

Computer, electronics, servo-mechanism, microwave and antenna laboratories, class rooms and a structures laboratory in civil engineering will occupy the second floor, while engineering drawing and architecture labs and classes will be on the third floor.

Many of these classes are presently held in the portion of the MU basement previously intended for a bowling alley. Laboratories are crowded and instructors' offices are "scattered all over campus," Dr. Beakley said. This move should bring everything together.

General Electric will continue to maintain its computer center on the ASU campus.

Debate Team Scores

ASU debaters took two second and three third places in their first participation in the "Golden Spread Tournament" in Amarillio, Tex. Jan. 8 and 9.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING —

Welcome Downpour

It never rains but what it pours.

The recent tide of moves to bolster educational standards in Arizona higher education forms a welcome downpour.

The latest entry is Governor Fannin's plea to the legislature for a constitutional amendment to establish general public representation on the State Board of Education. The board would be charged with the responsibility for creating more stringent requirements for graduation from state elementary and secondary schools.

If this is done, high schools will be able to send better-prepared students into colleges and universities. This should enable the higher institutions to raise their standards in turn, without fear of freezing out the average student.

While calling in general for tax cuts and wiser spending of money earmarked for education, one paragraph in Fannin's address, from which we quote, is of particular importance.

"Meeting both the quantity and quality educational needs of our children at all levels, particularly in view of the world power struggle swirling about us, is probably our most urgent challenge. Education in all its many phases today is so vital that we cannot risk either FALSE ECONOMY or POOR QUALITY."

This attitude in the statehouse, combined with the Board of Regents' recent admission standards action and the existence of the ASU committee recently engaged in a standards study, promises much for the quality of future education throughout the state and here at ASU.

LETTERS to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Just recently, I ran across the two paragraphs quoted below. I have enclosed them in this letter because they express in concise terms why a person should consider and join a fraternity.

"I would rather trust my son to the code of conduct prevailing in most fraternity chapters than to the standards of the usual dormitory or an unorganized student body. . . . (The) chief reason for the existence of church, family, state, and of fraternal organizations is the propagation and perpetuation of creeds and codes to challenge the mettle and try the will of the members."

"In spite of the best of home training and example set by parents, personal habits are not completely crystallized, as a rule, when a student enters college. The vows an initiate takes on entering a fraternity and the constitution which guides him are such that any parent would be proud if he had had the opportunity of writing them. Most parents, while having the same sort of selfish thought for their sons, sometimes lack the ability to put into writing some of their most worthwhile emotions. Fraternity rituals express in permanent form just such emotions."

Kim Rose
IFC Advisor

To the Editor:

American education is designed to do two main things. One is to help young people grow into their adult role as democratic citizens, and two, to advance knowledge by training young people in the techniques of scholarship and research. Those high school graduates trying to accomplish the facts mentioned, will find it a lot harder to enter any of the state's universities and the college at Flagstaff.

A meeting was held on Jan. 3, by the Board of Regents. In this meeting Dr. David L. Patrick, chairman of the Regents' committee on admissions requirements, proposed a plan for raising the requirements of college admission. I too feel that the admission requirements in English, mathematics, and laboratory science should be increased. Also, if a college education was open only to those graduates in the upper three-fourths of their high school class, it would help to eliminate the one-fourth that are not qualified for a college education.

We are asking the state legislature to spend $22 million on higher education for the new fiscal year starting July 1. Last year's budget granted ASU the largest increase as compared to the UofA and ASC at Flagstaff. This money should not go to waste, by helping those who think they are qualified for entrance. As the law stands now, any Arizona high school graduate must be admitted into one of the three institutions of higher learning.

This unified admission plan will probably go into effect by 1960. It would be a good idea for the Arizona high schools to begin adjusting to these changes.

An Interested Student.

You probably arose this morning much the same as you did yesterday. Unless you ran out of toothpaste, your day got off to its usual prosaic start.

Your coffee was too hot, until you diluted it with too much milk.

Or, egad, the cafeteria was out of coffee and you had to drink tea . . . maybe you're numb and don't care (robot!).

The rut . . . you're in the rut. What's worse, you don't know it.

But other people, the intellectually elite and the registrar's office, notice it and feel sorry for you. You're missing something, not getting enough out of life and the scintillating atmosphere of the university.

Even the small business owners at the outskirts of campus notice the rut, the absolute quagmire, into which you've wandered.

Nerve pill sales have fallen off since mid-semester. Coffee counter conversation has been the same for days. But you clever schemers have learned to prolong one cup of coffee to an unprofitable length . . . and you're getting better at it.

What you need is Inspiration. A shot in the arm.

The intellectually elite, the registrar's office, the small business owners all agree. You students need Something to liven your spirits.

By tomorrow afternoon the Something will take effect. You'll notice it, too.

The nerve pill line will delight drugstore owners. The intellectually elite will start stacking their yellow, blue, and fuschia exam papers in readiness for the morrow.

The registrar's office is already figuring the dropout percentage.

And you, dear student, are Inspired.

So you, loaded with suddenly expanded mental capacity, nerve pills, and last year's boot-legged exam papers, set out to fulfill the mission before you.

Final exams begin Friday. Best wishes, and we hope to see you arrive safely at the other end.

" . . . so, it's final exam time again!"

Devils Topple H-SU, Fall To West Texas

By BOB LAIRSON

The ASU basketball team pulled a mild upset Saturday night, downing tall Hardin-Simmons on the H-SU home-court 80-78. But the Devils' elation was short-lived as West Texas State College snapped a season slump and exploded for a 103-98 victory over the stunned hoopsters from Tempe.

The Ned Wulk - mentored quintet will return to action this weekend in a Saturday night fray with ASC at Flagstaff. The Lumberjacks will be trying for a reversal over an early-season contest in which ASU overpowered the Flagstaff five in the Jacks' gym.

In the Hardin-Simmons contest at Abilene, Arizona State had to depend on superior shooting ability and marksmanship at the free throw line to offset the Cowboys' height and rebounding. The Demons trailed from 3 to 7 points most of the game, effected a late rally to tie the score, 65-65, then matched H-SU scoring in the first overtime period, which ended 71-71. In the second overtime period the Demons completed 9 of 10 free throws for an 80-78 win and handed the Cowboys their first defeat on their home court this season.

Paul Howard was high scorer for the evening with 20 points, followed by Paul Denham with 19 and Billy Pryor with 11. Doyle Edmiston led the losers with a 19-point effort, followed by Carl Knight with 17.

Arizona State stormed on to the floor as if they were going to crush the Buffaloes, hitting 7 of their first ten floor shots. The homecourters from Canyon Texas exploded, and the Demons cooled simultaneously as West Texas quickly gained the lead and increased it to a 48-35 margin at halftime.

West Texas held stubbornly to its lead, and the 13-point advantage proved to be too much for the Devils to cope with. West Texas connected 49% of their field goal attempts and placed four players in the double-figure scoring column, while Demon Paul Denham vainly paced ASU scoring with 26 points. Al Nealey scored 23 points and Howard 16 for the losers.

Intramural sports director Tom Favero has called a managers' meeting for the first day of second semester classes, Thursday, Jan. 29, at 3:30 p.m. in MU 218B.

Badminton is the first sport up for next semester. It is scheduled to begin Feb. 14, with the entry deadline Feb. 2.

Ernie Zumer, Phi Sigma Kappa, took top honors in the recently completed horseshoe tournament, followed by Bob Fisher, Alpha Tau Omega, Pete Tyson, Phi Sig, and Ed Buell, Hayden Hall.

Since Zumer and Tyson were not entered as point men, ATO and Hayden took first and second place organization points.

At semester's end, organization points stand as follows: Phi Sig, 80; ATO, 64; Delta Sigma Phi, 60; Sigma Nu, 56; and Hayden Hall, 53.

"Kush Real Sportsman," Says Columnist Chanin

By PAUL JACKSON

Arizona Daily Star sports columnist Abe Chanin last week nominated ASU head football coach Frank Kush as "Arizona Sportsman of the Year" for keeping down the score in the ASU-U of A game last November.

Chanin made the comment in his sports page column,

"The Spectator."

Chanin wrote, "Frank Kush admitted what we always believed. 'It could have been 80 points,' Kush said."

According to Chanin, Kush also pointed out, "What would that have got us? I'm not interested in hurting anyone. Sure, I want to beat Arizona. But I'd like to see our two schools both be prosperous in football. Just imagine what kind of a crowd we'd have for a game if one school had a 9-0 record and the other had an 8-1? There wouldn't be two stadiums big enough in Arizona to hold the crowd."

Kush explained the substitutions which he used to keep the skyrocketing score from going higher: "Hell, I was one of 17 in our family. I know how tough things can get."
