FIRST AT ASU

Language Tourney Planned

The first annual Foreign Language Forensic Tournament is scheduled for Saturday at ASU. The opening assembly will be held in the Business Administration building at 9 a.m., announced tournament director Dr. Edwin P. Grobe, assistant director of German and French. All events are open to the public.

Competition starts at 9:30 a.m. in the second and third floor classrooms of Old Main. The awards and closing assembly will be held at 3:30.

Eighteen Arizona high schools are sending 375 students to the tournament.

Student categories are first year, second year and advanced groups. Students in the various groups will enter Latin, French, Spanish, native Spanish and German language divisions.

Types of recitations include prose, poetry, original prose, poetry and extemporaneous speaking.

The three- to five-minute performances will be judged by three teams composed of faculty members and student language majors. Judging will be based on pronunciation, intonation, organization of composition, and naturalness of idiom.

Top students in each recitation section of each language for the different levels will be awarded ribbons.

Two schools will be awarded plaques, one for the best point average of its participants and the other for the highest total number of points.

Dr. Grobe stated, "The purposes of the tournament are to help celebrate National Language Week, to create a better relationship between high school and college foreign language teachers, and to give high school language students an opportunity to display in public the skills they have acquired."

LAB TECHNICIAN . . . Jeane Pepple of the ASU Infirmary gives hemoglobin test to student Ben Marin. Students desiring to give blood to AMS-AWS blood drive are given the test at the Infirmary. Blood drive ends tomorrow.

Regents Increase Grid Scholarships

The number of football scholarships for Arizona State University and the University of Arizona was increased from 65 to 80 by the Board of Regents yesterday at the first session of their two-day meeting on the ASU campus.

Football scholarships at Arizona State College, Flagstaff, were increased from 40 to 49. A request for additional football scholarships was made by Dr. Richard A. Harvill, president of the UofA.

Dr. Grady Gammage, ASU president, reported research grants totalling $90,000 for ASU.

Next meeting of the Board of Regents will convene today at 9:30 a.m. in the regents conference room of the ASU Administration building.

Primary discussion is expected to center around catalog and course changes proposed by Arizona State. Proposals for catalog and course changes for ASU were tabled and referred to a regents committee at a meeting of the Regents earlier this month.

Following this morning's session, members of the board will appear before the Joint Appropriations Committee of the House and Senate at the state capital in Phoenix.

AMS Reveals Spring Agenda, Asks Support

A bathing beauty contest water sports day and AMS men's day are on the agenda for Associated Men Students of ASU.

AMS, intended to correlate activities of all men's organizations on campus, should have an elected representative from each of these organizations, according to Bill Sullivan, president.

Only four representatives attended the last AMS meeting, he said:

Other organizations wishing to participate in AMS should send a representative to BA 201, Thursday, Feb. 26. "AMS needs the support of every campus organization if these events are to be successful," Sullivan said.

Classes will not be held Monday, Dr. H. D. Richardson, academic vice president, announced.

Monday is a legal holiday celebrating Washington's birthday, which falls on Sunday.

Sumners Offers Questions For Future Campaigners

There are many questions a student running for a student body office should ask himself, said Warren Sumners, ASASU president.

Among them are the following:

1. Why do you want the job?
2. What are the duties of the position?
3. How long have you been on campus?
4. Have you ever applied for any other position? If so, what? Have you been interested in these?
5. Have you been active here on campus in other than Associated Students activities?
6. Have you had any experience with jobs of this type on other campuses?
7. Are you certain that you have the time necessary for this position?
8. Why haven't you applied for a position prior to this time?
9. Do you have any ideas or plans that would contribute to better the functioning of this position? If so, what are they?
10. Are you connected with any groups that might benefit from your holding this position? If so, explain. (Football player applying for the Awards Committee).
11. Do you realize how much time this will take?

Insurance Agents Establish Award For AS Student

A $200 annual scholarship for a junior or senior student majoring in insurance has been established at Arizona State University by the Arizona Association of Independent Insurance Agents.

D. M. Lovitt, Tucson, president of the association which is comprised of property and casualty insurance agents, said the scholarship is to be awarded annually to an Arizona resident, enrolled in the College of Business Administration, who "manifests a sincere interest in making property and casualty insurance his or her life's work."

Lovitt said the scholastic record of the applicant is to be the primary basis of selection, with need a secondary consideration.

The selection of the recipient is to be made by the major professor in insurance, the dean of the College of Business Administration and a representative of the donating agency.

The scholarship becomes effective next fall.

Former Ace Japanese Pilot To Speak In MU Tomorrow

Captain Mitsuo Fuchida, one-time ace pilot of the Imperial Japanese Navy and leader of the attack on Pearl Harbor, now a missionary, speaks tomorrow at 6:15 p.m. in the MU ballroom.

After the war, when the Japanese people blamed their military leaders for their hardships and defeat, Capt. Fuchida's thoughts turned to God, and he became a missionary.

He was summoned three different times by Gen. Douglas MacArthur to witness against those who practiced war atrocities.

While Capt. Fuchida was in America, Gen. James Doolittle and other high-ranking US officials welcomed him as a soldier and commended him on his preaching. He was invited to speak at the Pentagon, Annapolis and other military institutions.

In 1952, during his first trip to America, Capt. Fuchida was chosen Chief of Staff of the revived Japanese Air Force.

He declined, saying, "No more bombs — only bibles."

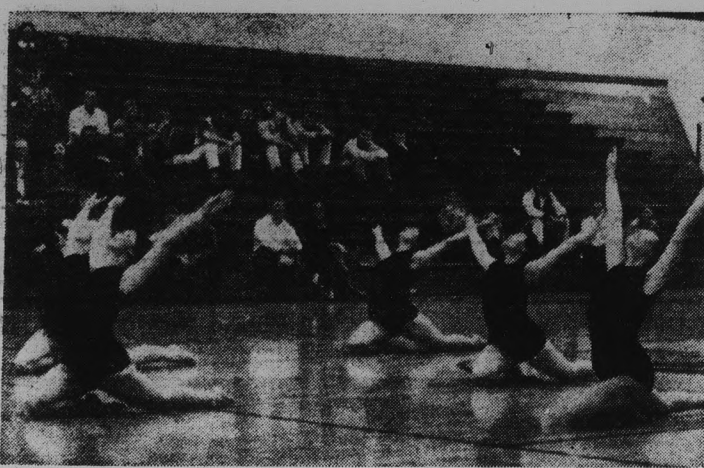

Recital Tonight Features Glick

A music recital featuring two ASU students will be presented in the MU ballroom tonight.

Joyce Glick, accompanied by LaVina Richey, will present a saxophone recital.

Neal Fluegel, accompanied by Judy Hunnicutt, will play both the marimba and timpani.

The free recital, open to the public, will begin at 8:15 p.m.

GRACEFUL . . . Danish gymnasts performed in the ASU gym last Thursday before a sparse crowd. The troupe, consisting of 28 men and women gymnasts, have performed in many sections of the U. S.

Dr. Keith Davis Heads Meeting

Dr. Keith Davis, professor and chairman of ASU's college of business administration management department, will be conference leader at the 12th Southwest Executive Development program, Feb. 16 to 20.

The program will be at the University of Houston's Management Development Center, where middle-management executives from all over the nation will attend.

Dr. Davis will teach employe communication and human relations.

'Faith And Intellect' SEW Theme

Spiritual Education Week at Arizona State University begins March 1.

With the theme "Faith and Intellect," the SEW committee has planned a "solid, college-level approach to religion . . . an introduction, a stimulus, and a challenge to all who will participate," said Warren Summers, ASU student body president.

A preliminary program, "The Arts and Religion," is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Union ballroom on Feb. 26.

Marjann Fletcher is general chairman of the SEW committee. Assisting her as committee chairmen are Phyllis Moore and Jessica Thomas, arrangements; Shirley Walkington, arts; Genevieve Voss, follow-up; and Nancy Weigle, faculty planning.

Radio-TV Meet Slated Feb. 19-21 At AS, Phoenix

Addresses, clinics, workshops and a general session on instructional TV are on the agenda for the 12th annual Western Radio-TV Conference, to be held at ASU and in Phoenix Thursday through Saturday.

In conjunction with the annual spring conference of educators, the radio-TV conference will concern educational uses of mass communication media.

Speakers include: Mrs. Dorothy Culbertson, producer of "Continental Classroom;" Dr. Darrell J. Mase, of the University of Florida; and Dr. Grady Gamage, ASU president.

More About . . . Summers

12. Would this position fit in with your vocational objectives?

13. Have you been a member of this committee before?

14. Do you know any of the problems with which this committee is faced at this time?

"Many students possess valuable leadership qualities. Why not look into the student government system, perhaps it will benefit both you and Arizona State University," encouraged Summers.

Dr. Darrel Mase, University of Florida, Gainesville, will discuss "Thinking as Our Respondent Thinks" Friday at 9:40 a.m. in the MU ballroom.

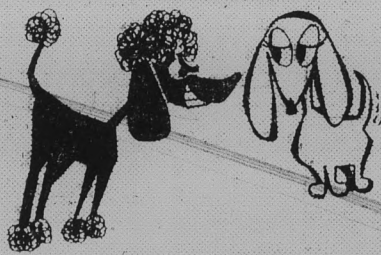

"Peyton Place," starring Lana Turner, will be shown Thursday and Friday at 7:30 p.m. in Cosner Auditorium.

Guadalajara Summer School

Sponsored by the University of Arizona in co-operation with professors from Stanford University, University of California, and Guadalajara, it will offer in Guadalajara, Mexico, June 29 to August 7, courses in art, folklore, geography, history, language, and literature. $233 covers tuition, board, and room. For more information, please write to Professor Juan B. Rael, Box K, Stanford University, Calif.

Bill Henrie Devoted Pal To AS Students, Teachers

Probably most ASU students have seen a tall, white-haired gentleman walking across campus. He's elegantly dressed and has a constant companion — a cigar.

Bill Henrie could have been a Kentucky colonel, an admiral or a major league ballplayer. Instead he heads one of the most important departments at ASU, the Maintenance department. It is under his supervision that the school keeps trim. If a teacher needs more chairs, a new finish on his blackboard, more heat or just a cup of coffee with a friend, he may look up Bill Henrie.

After graduating from high school in Philadelphia, Bill attended several technical schools before he went into the navy. He seriously worked on his hobby, baseball, after his time in the service. Though hoping to break into the major leagues, he injured himself so that he could no longer play ball. Later, he took up golf, which he has played ever since.

He brought his family to Arizona in 1946 because of his daughter's poor health and immediately started working at Arizona State in the position he now holds. His daughter died three years later, leaving him with the desire to help other young people. He is devoting his life to helping the students, faculty and staff on the ASU campus.

Robert Ramsdell, chief clerk of the Maintenance department, says, "Bill's friendly. He cooperates with everyone. When a person wants something done right, he goes directly to Bill. Though his work load has increased a thousand per cent, Bill still tries to help as much as he can."

of buildings and grounds, has this to say: "Bill's greatest contribution is his work with the male students. Every semester, there are those who need jobs, and Bill finds them work if he possibly can. He delights in helping his 'boys', and they in turn treat him as a second father."

Bill Henrie has had many gratifying moments while working on the campus. When asked his most gratifying, he tells the following story:

"Two summers ago, a Korean boy named Chun came to work for me. He didn't speak much English, and he wrote less. Chun and I became great friends. After working the summer, he asked me for a ten day leave so he could attend a religious conference at Lake Tahoe, Calif. I consented, and he left. After four days I got a letter from him. The English was poor, but there was one particular thing I'll never forget. The letter opened with, 'Dear Grandfather'."

If a tall, white-haired gentleman, smoking a cigar, passes you on campus, simply say, "Hi, Grandfather," and watch him smile.

BILL HENRIE

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING —

Whose Fault?

The student senate is a worthless organization, according to some people.

Sometimes, it looks like these folks have a point. As yet, the most important move of the senate is approval of the ASASU budget annually. Last year, when the existence of class councils was endangered, the senate argued, studied, and finally voted to retain class councils in our student government. Who endangered them in the first place? A small coalition in the senate!

Another measure on the current agenda proposes a method of inaugurating new ASASU officers. But ASASU officers have been inaugurated for years now. Last year's goal in the senate was complete revision and correlation of statutes passed by previous senates.

The whole business sounds like a waste of time. But consider:

The senate's true purposes have been victimized by office-seekers ignorant of senate duties and aware only of its privileges. As in past years, there has been a rapid turnover of senate members this year, leaving as many as 12 vacancies to be filled by more office-seekers. As senate membership totals 38, this could be disastrous — and has been.

New senators usually spend a semester, often two, learning the ropes and gathering enough courage to oppose or support opinions of the "experienced" members of this august body. By this time, either school is out or it's time to consider the ASASU budget again, and other work is laid aside for consideration later (usually next fall).

Revising the statutes was a fine idea. They needed it. When the coalition challenged the usefulness of class councils, they did student government a favor. The real worth of these councils was investigated. Though it looked like wasted effort, since class councils were finally retained, the time was well-spent. Councils were given a more effective place in the student government.

The Student Education Board just established by the senate might be another of its worthwhile accomplishments.

No, the senate hasn't been worthless. But it has been slowed down by insincere office-winners and rapid turnover of membership.

What work the senate has finally accomplished has benefited ASU students.

If the right people take out petitions for office this month, maybe the senate's worth will increase. Per usual, though, the popularity contest can take place, and people can go on condemning the senate.

Congratulations to you senators who pull the load. May your numbers increase.

LETTERS to the Editor

To whom it may concern:
This letter is directed to the 1959 Sahuaro Sports editor, whoever he or she might be.

For the past two years that I've been at Arizona State, I've been quite disappointed over the sports section of the yearbook. For a school of such size, this section is certainly inferior to that of other schools of similar stature or even schools with smaller budgets than ASU.

Football, the major sport, should receive the largest coverage of space and justifiably does, but the other sports have been somewhat ignored.

Many times as few as three or four individuals have represented a sport in which 15 or 20 participate. (Example — track and baseball). And there are teams that don't even make the annual: AS's wrestling team (now defunct), and the freshman football, basketball and baseball teams.

To remedy this situation, I suggest full team pictures in game uniforms of the varsity and freshman teams with individual shots for fill. In this way, no team or player would be slighted.

I know that the past sports sections of the Sahuaro have not been the work of this year's staff, and I'm confident this year's will be the best ever. The athletic program of any large university is supported greatly, and let the 1959 edition of the Sahuaro certainly be an indication of its support.

ROGER KUDRON

To the Editor:

I was among the students who donated blood on the first day of the drive. I would like to urge others to join in this campaign for the veterans hospital. It is a painless procedure and one that should not be feared.

While giving blood to aid in saving someone else's life, you may also save your own.

Sincerely,

An Interested Student

EDITOR'S Scratchpad

By ROCHELLE MACKEY

How's about it? Are you or aren't you going to give a pint of blood?

Arizona State's Blood Drive began yesterday and will continue today and tomorrow at the Infirmary.

At closing time yesterday 25 pints of blood had been donated.

Sponsored by AWS and AMS, blood donations are taken by Southwest Blood Bank of Phoenix and will be sent to the Phoenix Veterans Administration Hospital.

Mr. Howard N. Cooke, director of the blood program at the VA Hospital, told the State Press late yesterday that not only will patients at the hospital benefit from the donations of ASU students, but donors will benefit too. Donors are given a one year membership in a blood program entitling them, or the person they specify, to all the blood they may need. Membership is good in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Sure, 'tis a fact, most of the veterans on campus will make it over to the Infirmary to make their donations, but what about the rest of the student body?

Giving a pint of blood isn't difficult or even frightening. In fact it's quite simple and requires no effort on the donor's part — except, of course, walking over to the Infirmary.

First step in blood donation is taking a blood sample for a hemoglobin test. This tests the iron content in the blood and tells whether or not the patient is anemic. (Primary concern in this test is not for the one who might receive the blood, (all donations are checked for disease), but for the donor, who might if he is anemic, need the blood.)

Following the hemoglobin a nurse checks the donors' arms to find the largest vein and the vein nearest the surface. After the vein is selected, the donor is asked to lie down on a table.

Modern science has taken even the pain of a needle out of blood donation. A solution is sprayed on the donor's arm to freeze the flesh. This method is similar to numbing the gum before a shot of novocaine is given a dental patient. Easiest and least complicated part of blood donation is withdrawing the blood. Only requirement of the donor is that he lie still and flex his hand. Average length of time for drawing blood is 10 minutes.

After a short rest period and free coffee and donuts, it's all over.

Katrina Saby, Judy Skinner, and Julie Reany (ASU students who donated blood yesterday) will assure anyone who asks that blood donation is an easy, painless process.

So, how about it? Are you willing to sacrifice a little bit of time in order to help insure the life of someone else?

Remember, there may come a time when you'll wish there were someone willing to sacrifice a little of his time for your sake.

Recruiters At Placement Tomorrow

Four recruiters from different companies will be interviewing on campus tomorrow, the Placement Center has announced.

The Guy F. Atkinson Co. from the West Coast will interview mechanical and civil engineers, and the Martin Company will see engineers and physics majors. S. J. Arnold, New Mexico C. P. A., will interview accountants, and Union Oil will continue its second day of interviewing. Two Corporate recruiters and two school administrators will interview Friday. The Atkinson Company will interview accountants and general business majors. The Valley National Bank will talk to management, economics, accounting, general business and finance majors.

Mr. S. K. Solleder, Lemon Grove school district, Lemon Grove, Calif., will interview elementary and junior high level teaching candidates. Dr. Robert N. Burress, South Bay Union school district, Imperial Beach, Calif., will talk to kindergarten through sixth grade teachers.

On Tuesday, the Federal Aviation Agency will be looking for civil and electrical engineers and Physics majors. Chemistry majors interested in research will be interviewed by Merck & Co.

Also interviewing on Tuesday will be two school administrators. Mr. Willard D. Uasicker of Cajon Valley Public Schools, El Cajon, Calif., will seek kindergarten through eighth grade teachers. Interviewing teachers of the same level will be Mr. H. H. Roberts of Rowland Union School District, La Puente, California.

Elementary, junior and senior high level teachers will be sought by Mr. Maynard L. Bowen of Albuquerque Public Schools on Wednesday.

THE PEN IS MIGHTIER THAN THE SMOOCH

Back in my courting days (the raccoon coat was all the rage, everybody was singing Good Morning, Mister Zip Zip Zip, and young Bonaparte had just left Corsica), back, I say, in my courting days, the standard way to melt a girl's heart was to write poetry to her.

I don't understand why young men today have abandoned this gambit. There is nothing like poetry for moving a difficult girl. What's more, poems are ridiculously easy to write. The range of subjects is endless. You can write a poem about a girl's hair, her eyes, her lips, her walk, her talk, her clothes—anything at all. Indeed, one of my most effective love lyrics was called To Maud's Pencil Box. It went like this:

"To Maud's Pencil Box" It went like this:

*In your dear little leatherette pencil box
Are pencils of yellow and red,
And if you don't tell me you love me soon,
I'll hit you on top of the head.*

Honesty compels me to admit that this poem fell short of success. Nothing daunted, I wrote another one. This time I pulled a switch; I threatened myself instead of Maud.

*Oh, Maud, pray stop this drivell
And tell me you'll be mine,
For my sweetbreads they do shrivel
And wind around my spine.*

*My heart doth cease its beating,
My spleen uncoils and warps,
My liver stops secreting
Soon I needs be a corpse.*

When this heart-rending ballad failed to win Maud, I could only conclude that she was cruel and heartless and I was better off without her. Accordingly I took back my Hi-Y pin, bade her adieu, and have not clapped eyes on her since. Last I heard, she was working in Galveston as a Plimsoll line.

But I did not mourn Maud long, for after Maud came Doris—Doris of the laughing eyes, Doris of the shimmering hair, Doris of the golden tibiae! Within moments of meeting her, I whipped up a torrent of trochaic tetrameter:

*Oh, my sweet and dulcet Doris!
I love you like a Philip Morris
With its mild and rich tobacco
In its white and scarlet pack-o.
I'd swim from Louisville to Natchez
For Philip Morris and you and matches.*

Well, of course, the dear girl couldn't resist a poem like that—what girl could?—and she instantly became my slave. For the rest of the semester she carried my books, washed my car, and cored my apples. There is no telling where it all would have ended if she hadn't been drafted.

So, men, you can see the power of poetry. Try it yourself. All you need is a rhyming dictionary, a quill pen, and a second-hand muse.

Devils Up BC Slate To 7-1

By RICHARD STEHR

Thanks to 5-10 guard Paul Howard, the Sun Devils can breathe easier in their battle for the Border Conference basketball crown.

It was Howard's brilliant shooting that led to Saturday night's 74-70 trimming of West Texas State and Monday night's 86-74 trouncing of Hardin-Simmons.

In the Buffalo game, Howard led Devil scorers, accounting for 24 points and completing 11 out of 28 field goal attempts. Against Hardin-Simmons, the diminutive junior was good for 20 points.

Saturday's game had a see-saw first half, with each team taking turns at leading.

The second period saw the Demons pull ahead with some dazzling lay-ups by Nealey and accurate jump shots by Howard. Ed Olson, idle the first half, came off the bench to help the home cause with some fancy offensive and defensive play.

Nealey, sporadic on offense, managed to pile up 16 points, while Gary Norton and Bill

Pryor contributed 13 and 11 points, respectively.

In the Hardin-Simmons hassle, the Cowboys were off to a 2-0 lead in the first minute, but the Sun Devils came back with a free shot and a jump shot to make it 3-2. From then on the Demons were on their way as they built a comfortable half-time lead, 46-33.

The Devils did most of their scoring in the second half from the free throw line, as a result of 19 Cowboy fouls.

Later in the game, coach Ned Wulk yanked most of his starting quintet and put in second and third stringers. Even then the Devils pushed ahead, winning 86-74.

Next to high man Howard was Gary Norton with 15 points, Bill Pryor with 14 and Al Nealey with 13. Paul Denham and Tom Hughes each hit 10.

H-SU's Milt Martin was the night's high scorer with 22, while 6-7 Doyle Edmiston scored 19 points and picked off 26 rebounds. Nealey led ASU with 15 rebounds.

Devil Golf Team Season Opener Versus Arizona

Arizona State's 1959 golf team swings into action March 6 in a dual match with the University of Arizona.

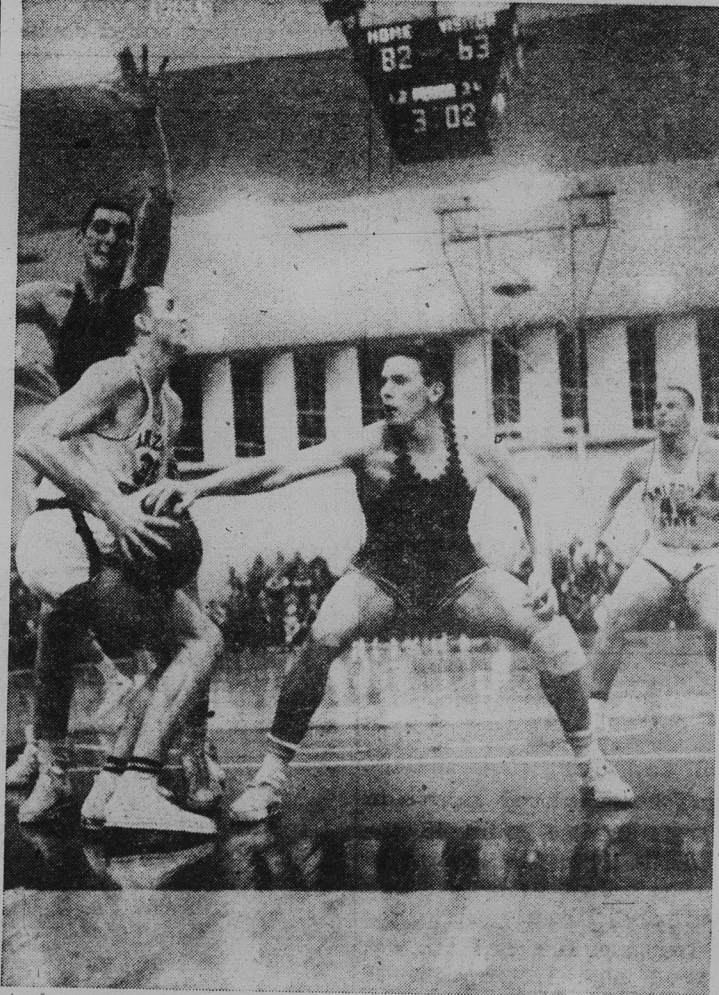

In all, the ASU links squad will participate in 14 dual matches, one triangular affair and two tournaments.

The Sun Devil team has been ranked in the top ten nationally and has won the Border Conference championship the past two years.

Coaching the linksters will be Francis "Fanny" Markham, who is also assistant basketball coach. He replaces John Zuchowski, a member of ASU's physical education staff, who coached the linksters in 1958.

On the '59 schedule are home meetings against New Mexico, Colorado State, Wyoming and Phoenix College. Road matches are slated against Fresno State, UCLA, USC and Arizona.

The two tournaments are the Houston Invitational, starting March 26, and the Border Conference championships in Tucson, beginning May 7. The single triangular meet will involve ASU, Phoenix College and Arizona.

GIMME DAT BALL . . . Hardin-Simmons' Sam Condo throws a paw at the ball, held tightly by AS center Tom Hughes. H-SU's Doyle Edmiston appears set to pound Hughes into the ground. Casual observer at right is Jerry Matthews. Devils built an 82-59 lead, then coasted home Monday night with their seventh Border Conference victory in eight tries, 86-74.

COACH IEHL'S CORNER

The Sun Devil nine and their ambitious young mentor, Bob Winkles, face the largest collegiate baseball schedule in the country this season.

The Devils open their 47-game campaign March 9 against Grand Canyon College in Phoenix and play their first home game on the new field March 11 against Pepperdine.

Next on the schedule come Los Angeles State, Colorado State, Wyoming, Wisconsin, ASC at Flagstaff, Arizona, Sul Ross State of Texas, the Casa Grande Cotton Kings, Williams Air Force Base and the San Diego Marines.

Winkles, at present, is happy with the steady improvement of his hitters but is somewhat disappointed with his pitchers. Last week the freshman squad bombarded the varsity twirlers in an intra-squad game. The damp weather of the last several days, however, could be a factor in the moundsmen's failure to round into shape.

Coach Ned Wulk's cagers, leading the Border Conference pack with a 7-1 record, need but one win in their two games this weekend to clinch the BC crown and a berth in the NCAA tourney in San Francisco next month. The Devils take on Texas Western in El Paso Saturday and New Mexico State at Las Cruces Monday. ASU defeated Texas Western 75-62 and the New Mexico Aggies 86-80 here, but both teams are almost unbeatable on their home courts. New Mexico State has won 27 home games in a row.

The Demons' recent success can be attributed to the scoring of Gary Norton, Billy Pryor, and the "little darling" of AS fans, Paul Howard. Norton and Pryor had been averaging around 7-points, but when Al Nealey and Paul Denham hit their recent slumps, Norton and Pryor burst into the scoring column. Howard continued his scoring spree with 24 against West Texas and 20 against Hardin-Simmons.

HELP! . . . Devils' Paul Denham gets that lonesome feeling here, surrounded entirely by West Texas players. Denham, in a scoring slump, hit on two of 13 field goal attempts and managed only five points for the evening. Devils staved off the Texans to win, 74-70 Saturday night.

Air Force Gymnasts Rip Devils

The ASU gym team lost its first meet of the year Saturday afternoon against the 18 man Air Force Academy team. The Falcons won the meet, 81-63, overpowering the Sun Devils' six-man team.

High point man for the meet was ASU's Chuck McMahon with 31 points. He won the Eight Hopefuls Competing For Racquet Squad

Eight tennis team hopefuls are battling in round - robin competition for five openings on the '59 men's racquet squad.

Competing for positions, to be determined later this week, are Myron Speaker, Frank Paddock, Chuck Mardough and Donald Daniels.

Also, Frank Galves, Harry Guthrie, Bob McDonald and Harry Maxwell.

Starting his fourth season of Border Conference competition, Doug Harrington, the team's only returning letterman, will lead the six-man travel squad to their first match with the Phoenix Tennis Club at Encanto Park Saturday.

Coach Marlow Keith figures the strongest competition should come from Hardin-Simmons and the U of A, and he considers his ASU team to be one of the top three in the Border Conference.

still and flying rings and the long horse, placed second in the trampoline, third in the horizontal bars and fourth in the side horse, free exercise and parallel bars.

Freshman Harvey Plant was second high scorer with 19 points. He won the trampoline and tumbling events. Plant uses the backward flip with a triple twist in his routine and can perform the backflip with a quadruple twist, one of the most difficult routines on the trampoline.

The ASU team was handicapped without the services of star performer Dick LeBeau on the still and flying rings. LeBeau was sidelined with a shoulder injury but is expected back for the next meet.

Other Devils who placed were Dave Bonham, third in free exercise; Ivan Jennings, fourth in horizontal bars and long horse; Sidney Munger, fourth in tumbling, and Don Manville fifth in flying and still rings.

Coach Norris Stevenson said his team is small this year and is especially in need of rope climbers and others interested in other gymnastics events.

The next scheduled meet for the gymnastics team will be at the University of Arizona Feb. 28, and the 15-man Wildcat team travels here March 7. A triangular meet at the UofA is scheduled April 17. The AAU meet will be held in the ASU gym April 24.

IMPS ROMP

Vincent AFB, EAJC Fall

By BOB LAIRSON

The ASU freshman basketball quintet snapped a two-game losing streak by defeating Vincent Air Force Base and Eastern Arizona JC last weekend.

Saturday night's victory over Vincent left the frosh with an unblemished record against service teams this season. Olie Payne was top man with 21 points as the Imps won 87-68. Four starters tallied double-figure scores in the Monday night battle against Eastern Arizona, and the Imps stretched their season record to 12 wins - 3 losses with a 70-60 victory.

EAJC, Saturday night victor over Phoenix JC, couldn't find the range in either half as the Sun Imps grabbed a halftime lead of 40-34 and refused to relinquish the margin in the second period.

Chico Morrison paced the scorers with 17 points, followed by Mike McConnell with 16, Harvey Darche with 15, and Payne with 14.

EAJC found the free throw line more conducive to point-making than the field goal route, dumping 16 free throws to the Sun Imps' 8.

But the Devil frosh more than made up the difference in field goals, out-shooting the Monsters, 31-23.
