Members of the '59 Club at ASU will be inducted at a breakfast Saturday, May 9, at 8 a.m. in the Memorial Union.

Selected by a student-faculty committee on the basis of scholarship, leadership, service and character, this nucleus will act as agent and representative of the entire class of '59, assisting with future projects, including homecoming and other alumni activities.

While these people have been selected for membership in the '59 Club, all '59 graduates are automatically members of the Alumni Association.

James Creasman, alumni secretary, will introduce the '59 Club members at the breakfast; Dr. Grady Gammage, ASU president, will greet them; and Marvin Palmer, alumni president, will induct them into the club.

Those invited to membership include Sue Culley, Stephanie Eldridge, Dianne Eldridge, Shirley Hall, Sharon Neff, Rita

Dr. Gammage: 'ASU Leads'

Speaking as "an officer of a corporation reporting to the shareholders," Dr. Grady Gammage, president of ASU, last night described to the people of Arizona the academic and physical growth of Arizona State University.

"Arizona State has taken the lead in this state in raising standards," Dr. Gammage told his audience at the ASU Foundation dinner in Phoenix and listeners of 18 radio stations which carried the talk throughout the state.

"ASU pioneered two steps," he said. "And both were aimed at improving the quality of work after students were admitted. We feel that selective retention in a public institution goes along with admission policies."

After describing the recently increased standards for graduation, Dr. Gammage said, "... also, a student must meet progressively higher standards before he can move from one class to the next."

Characterizing the citizens of Arizona as shareholders of Arizona State University, the President enumerated the four hallmarks of a university's quality as: the standards of scholastic achievement it sets for its students; the professional competence of its faculty; the variety and scope of its course offerings; and the achievements of its graduates in their chosen fields.

In regard to the faculty, Dr. Gammage pointed out that Arizona State meets the national average with 49 per cent of its teachers having a Ph.D degree.

Concerning ASU's progress in course offerings, Dr. Gammage reminded his listeners that this month the Board of Regents authorized two new schools, three new professional degrees, an engineering research center, a Bureau of Governmental Research, masters degrees in eight new fields, nine new departments, 230 new courses and an honors program for gifted students.

ASU graduates are "some of the best-trained young men and women in America," Dr. Gammage said in reference to the fourth hallmark of a university's quality. "This year, when the University of Arizona announced the beginning of its 'Law Review,' the editor (Steve Duke), the managing editor (Ted Warner), assistant editor (Jerry Angle) and a

Larry Borden Wins Contest

Larry P. Borden, ASU engineering major, will travel to the California Institute of Technology tomorrow to present his prize-winning paper on Radio Navigation Systems in a tri-state contest sponsored by the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Arizona, Nevada and California schools will be represented in the contest.

Placing second and third behind Borden in the local contest were Milton Pope and Robert Vance. The ASU chapter of AIEE sponsored the contest.

Registration Breakdown Released By Comptroller's Office This Week

Breakdown of the $91 registration fee per student for next semester was released by the Comptroller's office this week.

Sixty dollars of each fee will go toward running the school. This is an increase of $12.50 over this year's amount for the same purpose. Other increases include a dollar increase over a $4 health appropriation; a seventy-five cent increase over a $1.25 alumni appropriation; dean of the College of Education was selected Honors Day speaker by his colleagues. It is one of the highest honors which can be bestowed upon a faculty member, stated Dr. H. D. Richardson, academic vice president, who announced the selection yesterday.

Dr. McGrath, who came to ASU in 1950 as head of the then Education department and became dean of the College of Education in 1953, has selected as his topic, "Harbingers of the Twentieth Century," for the May 22 address in the Memorial Union ballroom.

The speaker earned his doctorate at the University of Colorado in 1946 and has taught in elementary, junior high and high schools, and at the junior college, state college and university level. Prior to coming to Arizona, he was director of Teacher Education at the University of Illinois.

During the time that Dean McGrath has been at ASU, the Teacher Education program has been expanded into one of the largest Colleges of Education in the entire Southwest. Its requirement for number of classes in the student's major teaching field exceeds those of many of the nation's schools.

Dean McGrath is credited with having assembled a distinguished and productive faculty and a complete program of training for school personnel, including kindergarten-primary, elementary and secondary teacher training, the master's, education specialist and doctor of education degrees. The ASU College of Education has become a state center for special education training, and Dean McGrath directs several vital research projects and an extensive series of field service projects for schools of Arizona annually.

PKP To Honor More Than 1,000

About 1,000 students, with a grade average of 3.0 or better, will be honored by Phi Kappa Phi, scholastic honorary, at a 4 p.m. tea Sunday in the MU ballroom.

"To the Victor, the Spoils," is the topic of guest speaker Jack L. McDonald, manager of special services at Arizona Public Service.

Mrs. Patricia Keating, assistant professor of Music, will present two piano selections: "Nocturne" by Faure, and "Reflections in the Water" by Debussy.

Dr. Paul G. Hubbard, associate professor of History, is president of the ASU chapter. Dr. Paul Huber, assistant professor of Speech, is in charge of arrangements for the tea.

Registrants Must Obtain 'Blue Slips'

Students planning to register for classes in September must have an approved program of studies signed by their advisors next week.

Advisors will hold special office hours Monday through Saturday noon of next week.

Students who do not obtain their "blue slips" at this time must wait for fall counseling at the time reserved for transfer students.

Fall courses will be scheduled and sections set up, in accordance with demand shown by the "blue slips". New forms have been designed so that the student may work out his hourly schedule.

Brothers, Sisters Can Sign Now

Big Brothers and big sisters are needed for the incoming freshmen.

Those interested must sign up next week, Harry Hallickson, Big Brother chairman, said. Sign-up sheets will be sent to fraternities, sororities and dorms today.

DIANA AND APOLLO... elected Wednesday to reign over Greek Week are Beverly Percival and Garth Bellamy. They were crowned at the IFC Sing by Dr. Catherine Nichols, associate dean of students, and Dr. Weldon P. Shofstall, dean of students. (Story on page 3.)

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING —

Anticlimactic Honors

We enjoy getting a break on a story as much as any other newspaper. Indeed, frequently we make ourselves unpopular with the various news sources on campus by begging, badgering and scheming to get a release before the dailies.

So it may seem a little incongruous for us to decry a campus custom that allows us to print the news before it actually happens. Yet we feel in this instance the good of the institution would be served by changing the situation, and the State Press might gain a bit, too.

Annually, toward the end of the academic year in the spring, the Honors Day program is a highlight of graduation season. One of the highest honors members of the faculty can bestow on a colleague is his selection as Honors Day speaker. Each department studies the work and accomplishments of its students during the year and chooses those deserving of accolades, of being singled out and honored before the entire campus community.

Yet the way it works in practice is that the honors are presented principally in front of honorees, while the rest of the campus population goes off on a gigantic coffee break.

The State Press published early on the morning of Honors Day carries all the names of recipients of awards, as does the Arizona Republic. By 10:40, when the Honors Day program begins, everyone on campus knows who is to get what. Those getting awards gather in the ballroom; the rest stay away.

In future years we would like to suggest that the names of honorees be kept strictly secret until the actual presentation. That will encourage at least everyone who feels he or she has even a vague chance of receiving an award to attend. The crowd would be large enough to fill one side of Goodwin Stadium. And withholding names until the actual program would not only add drama and suspense to the program; it would beget the spontaneous applause and congratulations the honorees don't get under the present anticlimactic system.

The State Press would be very happy to withhold circulation of its edition of Friday, May 22 — Honors Day this year — until after the Honors Day assembly if the various departments making awards would keep the names strictly secret until the actual program, and providing the dailies do not carry the story that day.

And we strongly urge that the program be held in Goodwin Stadium rather than the ballroom to accommodate a larger crowd and to allow spectators actually to see recipients as they are presented their awards.

The other alternative in future years would be to hold the Honors Day program on the last Thursday instead of the last Friday of the last week of the semester. In this way, both the State Press and the morning dailies could break the story together on Friday morning.

Let's add some punch and excitement to Honors Day!

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"HE'S TH' MOST EVEN TEMPERED MEMBER OF TH' WHOLE FACULTY — HE'S ALWAYS IN A BAD MOOD."

By ROCHELLE MACKEY

Greek Week, with its many activities, nears its close for this year with the grand finale, the Grecian Ball, tomorrow night. From our vantage point it appears the week has been a success.

Those who attended the IFC Sing Wednesday night can vouch for the hours of rehearsal each group put forth. We sympathize with the judges — their decisions must have been extremely difficult.

One very impressive change in Greek Week this year was elimination of campaign posters for Diana and Apollo candidates. How much better the campus looked . . . And how much more time Greek chapters had to devote to other activities of the week, without the burden of sign painting.

Crowning of royalty for the week brought to mind one noteology, Diana is a Roman Goddess. The Greek mate of Apollo is Artemis.

Our heartiest congratulations to Sue Nichols and her committee for a job well done.

Interested in good, but expensive, entertainment? The Sombrero Playhouse recently announced a special rate of $1 for ASU students and faculty. To utilize the rate, students and faculty members must present ASU identification.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

—BECAUSE I'M SKIPPING CLASSES TODAY AN I DON'T WANT ANY OF THESE PROFS TO RECOGNIZE ME.

By PETEY OLMSTED

Secret nooks and crannies are great, especially when they're filled with surprises and unexpected delights. I was wandering around looking for something to cover on College Avenue the other afternoon (really just procrastinating) when I came upon the Memorial Union.

Actually, I entered it purposely to get out of the sun and to see the art exhibit in the lower lounge, which I did. And it was very enjoyable.

I commented to this effect to the girl at the information desk, whereupon she directed me up the stairs at the immediate right of the desk to a little-known room. Commonly called the mezzanine, the room at the top of the stairs was full of photographic art, water colors and the like.

This student art show could be thought-provoking, entertaining, or both — depending on your frame of mind. Anyway, it's well worth a few minutes of your time. Since the show closes Monday, better hurry if you're interested.

Wednesday, I promised we'd print some of the answers given by people who have taken that little quiz on current events.

Just a sample: Where was a blizzard last week? One thinking man answered "Florida." Who is Paul Fannin? "Goldwater's opposition," answered another.

State Press sports editor Vic Figarelli is still looking for the students who identified him as a gangster. But the guy who thinks Vic is a baseball player has nothing to worry about.

Then there's the person who thinks Dr. Zhivago is a "well-known hay fever specialist." What great news story broke in the 1930s? "The sinking of the Titanic," wrote someone. Max Ernst, famous surrealist artist, was called a "United Press International writer."

Addison and Steele, eighteenth century essayists and pamphleteers, were identified as partners in a Madison Avenue advertising agency, as well as prominent industrialists.

Warren Sumners, ASASU president, might be happy to know someone thinks he is a member of the US economic commission to South America. Enough?

Remember the Tibetan Brigade at San Jose State College (last Friday's column)? The four students heading the movement have received enthusiastic support from the SJS student council, as well as from various campus groups there.

They have received 25 pledges of money and are "cheered by the favorable comments." Persons wishing to donate to the fund may send money to the "Free Tibet," in care of the First National Bank of San Jose, Box 1000, San Jose, Calif.

Current attraction at the Sombrero is "The Horse's Mouth," starring Alec Guinness. It is from a comedy based upon the Joyce Carey novel about the life of an "off-beat" artist.

Next Wednesday at the Sombrero, one of the season's most talked-about films, "Compulsion," opens.

member of the editorial board (Bob Petrie) were all graduates of Arizona State!"

Last year, an Arizona State graduate (Richard Wenek) was the only student from an Arizona institution to win the noted Woodrow Wilson Fellowship — $1,500 stipend for graduate study. He has now finished his year at Columbia University and is accepting a new grant for study.

"This year, four of our graduates received Woodrow Wilson Fellowships from the Ford Foundation," stated the president.

Among other "... additional characteristics toward which any university aspires if it is to be great, is research," said Dr. Gammage. He listed Arizona State's research facilities as a large computer, a solar furnace, the well-known Poisonous Animals Research Laboratory, a complete spectrographic laboratory and a nuclear laboratory, among others.

Another characteristic of a great university is its gifts, bequests and grants. Arizona State has received considerable amounts of money, particularly for the Memorial Union and numerous art collections.

In conclusion Dr. Gammage stated, "We face a future of hard work, problems and a challenge: to provide this great state with a university in its population center which will meet the test of time as it ever renews the well-springs of its own life and of our civilization.

"We pledge that our predecessors and successors will not be disappointed.

"We shall have done our part."

Valley High School Students Named Scholarship Winners

Two valley high school students have been named winners of top ASU scholarships, the ASU scholarship committee announced.

George A. Roegler, valedictorian of Carl Hayden High School, won a Phelps Dodge freshman scholarship, which pays $1,000 per year for four years upon completion of outstanding work during each college year.

Roegler plans to enter the School of Engineering, and specialize in aeronautical engineering.

Antonia (Toni) Joe Merrill, honor student at Scottsdale High School, was named recipient of the $400 Standard Oil Co. of California leadership scholarship, based on high scholastic attainment, high promise and ability, personality, character and leadership.

Merrill plans to study computer engineering or physics in engineering.

"LOVE IS BLIND"

Next to the Bible, Shakespeare is the richest source of common quotes. He's responsible for this one, too. See his "Merchant of Venice," Act II, Scene 6:

"But love is blind, and lovers cannot see
The petty follies that themselves commit."

"THIRTY DAYS HATH SEPTEMBER," ETC.

No need to recite further from this bit of doggerel which has served us all as a pony ever since grade school. For this universal handy reference we are indebted to a man named Richard Grafton who was nice enough to compose the rhyme way back in 1570.

"PUT IT IN YOUR PIPE"

No, Sir Walter Raleigh didn't originate this smoker's challenge. It was R. H. Barham, in "The Lay of St. Odille":

"For this you've my word,
and I never yet broke it,
So put that in your pipe,
My Lord Otto, and smoke it."

Cornelius Gymnastic Champion

Bill Cornelius, an ASU freshman, won all-round gymnastic honors with 495 points in the seventh annual AAU gym meet held Friday in the ASU gym.

Runners-up in the all-round events were Ivan Jennings, ASU, 468; Mal Andrews, UofA graduate assistant, 462; Dick LeBeau, ASU, 458; and Chuck McMahon, ASU, 334.5.

Chuck McMahon, ASU's all-round gymnast, favored in the six all-round events, broke a bone in his foot while competing in free exercise and will be laid up indefinitely. He continued performing in the side horse, placing third, before he received medical attention.

Cornelius won the parallel bars, tied for first in free exercise, tied for second with McMahon in still rings and tied for sixth in side horse with Ivan Jennings, also of ASU.

Tankers Lose To 'Cats, 66-18

The UofA's undefeated swimming team defeated Arizona State's, 66-18, in a dual meet here Saturday.

Of nine events, the Sun Devils could win only one, the 200-yard breaststroke, the victory going to Bob Draper in 2:40.4.

For Arizona's Wildcats, it was their thirteenth consecutive dual meet triumph.

READY FOR 'CATS . . . Always prepared to offer his 10 points worth is Devil distance star Alex Henderson. The Australian, who was nominated into the Drake Relays Hall of Fame earlier this week, will enter the one- and two-mile races in Tucson tomorrow.

ASU Spikers Visit Tucson

By BOB LAIRSON
Coach Baldy Castillo takes his spectacular track and field team to Tucson tomorrow for a dual meet with the UofA Wildcats.

The meet will be the second between the two teams. The first was an exhibition meet in Goodwin Stadium before the regular season started. The Sun Devils scored victories in 12 of the fifteen exhibition events, but no official team score was kept.

Coach Castillo announced in a personal interview that "the meet should be close all the way, with the winning team decided by the final event, the mile relay. We should win at least 11 of the fifteen events,

FOR NCAA BASEBALL BERTH

Devils, 'Cats Mix

By VIC FIGARELLI

Only Arizona State stands in the way of the UofA's tenth consecutive visit to the NCAA District Six baseball playoffs; and the Sun Devils need a pair of impressive victories tomorrow to garble Wildcat plans.

The Devils and the Wildcats square off at 3 p.m. on campus tomorrow, and the night game is slated for 8 at Rendezvous Park in Mesa.

The 'Cats, sporting a 32-5 record compared to ASU's 25-16 slate, are a virtual cinch to be nominated the "at-large" District Six entry, since the Border Conference has no baseball league. With a double win tomorrow, the Sun Devils can raise question as to who should go to the playoffs, and a fifth game between the teams would probably be the decider.

Frank Sancet's nine, loaded with pitching and power, features an offensive attack led by catcher Alan Hall (who wrecked the Devils in Tucson with a couple of home runs) and center fielder Matt Encinas (.394). Others prominent in the UofA offensive are Chuck Shoemaker (.402), Luis Bachelier (.390) and Jesus Ruiz (.290).

Sancet has any number of pitchers to throw tomorrow, and will probably go with Norm Popkin (8-0) or Burdette Morago (6-2) in the day game and Dave Baldwin (8-0) in the nightcap.

AS Coach Bobby Winkles will counter with Jim Sims (day) and probably Joe Kos-tyk, but will use his whole staff if he has to.

Freshmen Beat PC

Arizona State's freshman baseball battery of pitcher Bob Kavagian and catcher Gary Linthicum combined to throttle the Phoenix College Bears in a game played under the lights in Phoenix Tuesday night.

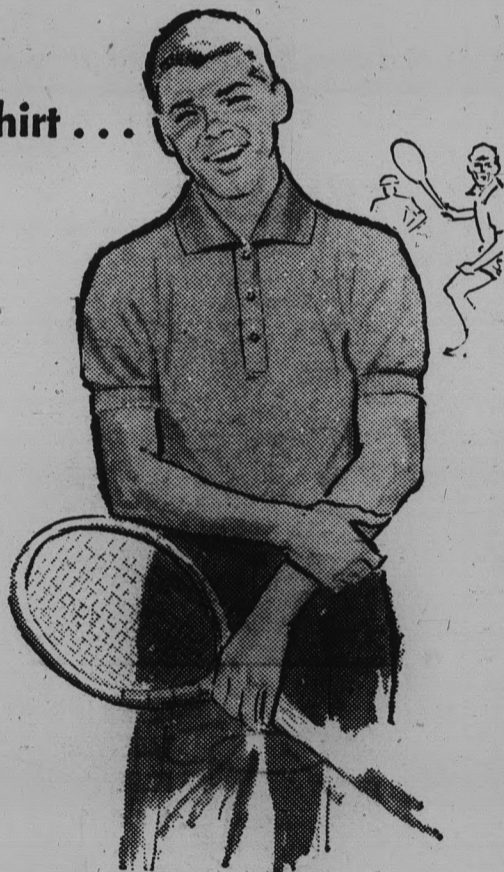

Kavagian limited the Bears to only three hits as Linthicum homered and singled to lead the Imp hitting attack which netted 10 hits in all.

Diamond Crew Trips Luke

Arizona State trounced the Luke Air Force Base Raiders, He also singled in the Sun Devils' big four-run first inning and scored one of the runs. Coach Bobby Winkles, saving his pitchers for the upcoming series with the UofA, used three hurlers against the Raiders. Joe Kostyk, who allowed but one hit in four innings, got credit for the win.

It was decided before the game that if one team led by seven runs at the end of seven innings, the other team would concede defeat.

Highlight of the contest was left fielder Dick Saunders' inside-the-park home run in the final frame. It was his third such homer in as many games. He also singled in the Sun Devils' big four-run first inning and scored one of the runs.
