Protestors Charged

Campus Police escorted three university students from the military ball Friday night.

One student wore a German Luftwaffe uniform, one a simulated German Schutzstaffel uniform, and the third wore fatigues similar to Fidel Castro and carried a sign, "Even I don't hold compulsory dances." They appeared to protest the compulsory dance.

The students entered the lobby of the gym, but were refused admission to the dance floor. One of the students presented his ticket and asked either admission or a refund. An Air Force captain replied, "You just invested $9 in a good cause."

Campus police escorted the students to Campus Police headquarters and instructed them to leave campus and "not come back on campus in those uniforms." Police told the students, "You are not under arrest. We received orders, which originated at the dean's office, to bring in anyone who might do something like this."

Shouts of "Give me liberty . . ." "End compulsion," "Viva Castro" followed the squad car through the streets.

A small group of students gathered outside campus police headquarters to await the return of the three.

Inside, the three students had been asked to sign statements that they would appear in the office of Herman Schmidt, dean of men, Monday morning. Police then drove the students to their car.

The students, Larry Smith III, Mike Reilly and Gordon Peterson, will appear before the disciplinary committee today at 4 p.m. in MU 213.

Smith is a U.S. Air Force veteran, where he served in Security Service, former president of the German club and a former ASASU senator; Reilly was in the U.S. Army Security Agency, is an ASASU senator and president of the Foreign Language Council; Peterson is managing editor of the State Press and vice president of Pi Delta Epsilon, journalism honorary.

Weldon P. Shofstall, dean of students, Monday presented the students with his original charges against them. Tuesday, he changed the charges, but did not notify the students involved.

The revised charges are:

"It is charged that you seem to have shown a serious lack of consideration for others by your actions at the Military Ball Friday evening, March 25, 1960. It is also charged that you endangered the physical safety of all those in attendance at the Ball at the time.

"Specifically you:

"(1) It is charged that your actions were an effort to force the faculty and the administration to bow to pressure from a small group of students who do not seem to agree with either the methods or the content of teaching in ROTC. It seems that you and these students wanted to dictate your own personal ideas to the ROTC faculty.

"(2) It is also charged that your actions seriously threatened the physical safety of all those present. The reasons your actions were dangerous are: A crowd of a thousand or more were assembled. Most of these

Elections Today

By JACK LEVINE

ASASU primary elections are to be held in the MU lower lounge today.

Tony West, senior in the College of Business Administration has a cumulative average of 3.16. Majoring in finance he belongs to the Knights of Columbus and Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

"I would like to see a more progressive and dynamic student government here — through better qualified and tactful student government," West said.

Mike Kreutz, junior in the College of Business Administration, with a cumulative average of 2.79, now holds a General Electric Scholarship. He is majoring in marketing and belongs to Blue Key, Alpha Tau Omega, and Arnold Air Society.

"I believe that we need better communication for students to become more interested in student government . . . through this we can create more interest in student government. I also feel that the student advisement procedure can be improved," Kreutz said.

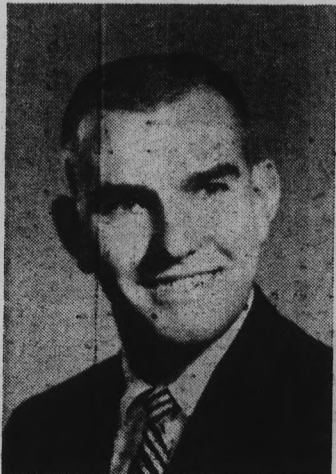

Karl Dennison is a junior in the College of Liberal Arts with a cumulative average of 2.82. He is a business and foreign languages major and belongs to Blue Key. Dennison was a winner in the inter-collegiate talent competition among western states.

"I definitely feel that student government is not reaching the students. Without the complete interest and motivation from the student govern-

Susselman To Star In Byers' Play

"Six Impossible Things Before Breakfast," an original play by Dr. Frank Byers, professor of Drama, will be presented tonight through Saturday at 8:30 in Payne auditorium.

The three act play is concerned with the 100th birthday of the Dowager Marchioness of Dare who undertakes to solve certain problems of her family by doing what she calls "Six Impossible Things Before Breakfast."

Rolene Susselman who will take the difficult role of the Centenarian Marchioness has been working on the little mannerisms of the aged-stooped shoulders, halting walk, and stiffly moving hands.

Amission to the play is by activity ticket or 75c and there are a limited number of seats available.

ROSES FOR FAIR LADY . . . Diane Huber, crowned 1960 Military Ball Queen Friday evening, accepts a spray of red roses from Dr. H. D. Richardson, ASU acting president. Miss Huber, representing Angel Flight, Air Force ROTC auxiliary, is a member of Chi Omega sorority. MILBA Queen attendants were Barbara Bulla and Dee Davis.

Impeachment, Elections, Aid Top Senate Agenda Today

A busy session awaits student senators today at their 4 p.m. meeting in the Senate Chambers. At least two bills will be debated on the floor and others may be given final passage.

Scheduled for debate are SB 138, which provides for the election of cheerleaders, and SB 140, which sets up a Gammage Memorial Financial Aid board to channel and seek student loans and scholarships. The cheerleading bill was drastically amended in the Membership and Election Committee since its introduction three weeks ago.

Up for final passage today are bills providing for a new election code (SB 137), and impeachment of ASASU appointive officials by the ASASU president, if three-fourths of the Executive Council concur (SB 139). The bills were given do-pass approval on the floor last week.

At least one bill and a memorial are scheduled to be introduced today. SB 142 provides for the impeachment of ASASU officers by the senate. The memorial, SM 2, introduced by Tod Walker, Off-Campus Men, petitions the Board of Regents to make ROTC voluntary at Arizona's public universities.

ASASU President Tom Hulén signed the Board of Publications Act (SB 136) last week. It now must be signed by Acting President H. D. Richardson to become law. Dr. Richardson is expected to take action soon on four other senate bills previously signed by Hulén.

During last week's final debate on the revised election code, one new amendment was added to the 30 changes previously made. Approved by voice vote, it provides that should a person's name be printed on the ballot, he cannot also receive write-in votes. The code was then do-passed by unanimous vote.

One amendment was approved and another rejected last week in debate on the bill providing for removal of appointive officers by the ASASU president. The senate defeated a move to lower from three-quarters to two-thirds the percentage of the Executive Council that must confirm the removal. The approved amendment sets July 1 as the effective date of the bill.

Committee Seeks Faculty Opinions On ROTC Issue

A faculty poll on compulsory vs non-compulsory ROTC was set up by the Student-Faculty Study Committee on ROTC in their Monday meeting.

The questionnaires, similar to those passed among the student body, will be circulated within the next two weeks. Replies will be voluntary.

Student questionnaires on the ROTC issue have been gathered and final tabulations and results are expected this week.

Proposed changes in the present Army ROTC program were discussed and the need for comparable systems, Army and Air Force, was stressed. The committee felt changes were needed whether the institution has compulsory or non-compulsory ROTC.

Committee members thought voluntary ROTC would probably come about if the Army did not come up with a plan similar to that of the Air Force.

students still believe the uniform should be respected and since you had previously made your views clear someone would undoubtedly have shown their feeling against you. Patriotic students also feel the soldier is placing his life on the block for his countrymen and consider those who undermine his training or reputation as cowards or traitors or both. There could have been a violent reaction to your demonstration. Also, in every crowd there are emotionally immature people who resent police or authority of any kind. For these reasons and others you could quite easily have provoked an uncontrollable and irresponsible mob had the police not removed you at once. Once a riot starts it is too late to stop it.

"You have the right to object to compulsion in education so long as you use the established and accepted procedures and so long as you do not assume that you have either the authority or the training to impose your views on the faculty. You have the right to be against things military and against patriotism but you have no right to do things which tend to destroy the very system which gives you this right. Demonstrations, sit-down strikes, hunger strikes and other publicity stunts are justified when democratic means have broken down or are ineffective. You also have a right to feel that a military ball should not be considered an educational laboratory.

"But, you have no right to try to force any faculty member or department to submit to your views by means of demonstration and ridicule. This is neither an accepted nor established procedure that would destroy the University. Since you as students used the poor judgment to choose these tactics you must now take the logical consequences.

"In addition to the fact the taxpayers of Arizona still expect the faculty to decide what is to be taught as well as how it is to be taught, your irresponsibility and poor judgment in this incident could have resulted in dangerous and uncontrollable mob action. You must also take the logical consequences.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING —

Good Work

Current news revolves around student government, the Military Ball, and the MU birthday party. Each has its less laudable aspects, but we find compliments are deserved, too.

The student senate, cognizant of some of the students they represent, has initiated a memorial protesting the compulsory aspect of the Military Ball, despite being snowed under with the usual revisions of various student boards and committees. While this measure may not affect the status quo, at least the senate has showed interest in officially voicing the existing student opinion.

Student elections are accompanied by the usual bevy of bedazzling billboards — but we've actually heard some candidates stating platforms, along with the respected lists of past honors and semi-official government posts.

More than 200 students worked to turn the MU into a "wonderland" for the fourth MU birthday party. We hear that approximately 1,500 ASU'ers attended; evidence in-itself of success.

Probably the strangest spectacle to appear on campus in a long time was the "uniformed" trio who attracted quite a crowd in the foyer of the Men's Gym during the Military Ball Friday evening. (see story page 1). Compliments are due the campus police, who did an excellent job in handling the situation, the cadets who composed the crowd and the trio who conducted itself with utmost consideration for the police, cadets, and Army and Air Force officers who greeted it at the door.

The only unmannerly action was that of an Air Force captain who grabbed one of the trio by the arm and jerked him. While this caused a slight stir throughout the observers, they remained orderly. All in all, it was a peaceful protest of compulsory attendance at the dance.

This causes us to have serious doubt about the charges leveled at the three protestors by the dean of students.

Again, compliments to participants in the aforementioned events, and best wishes in future endeavors.

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:

Recent developments with respect to the peaceful demonstration Friday evening against compulsory ROTC military ball have sickened me beyond description. I am referring specifically to the charges made against the six students by Mr. Shofstall.

Terminology such as "revolutionary methods, using force and provoking an irresponsible mob," which was used in the charges, is as far from reality as some of the visions of the inhabitants down at 24th St. and Van Buren. It is inconceivable that a responsible university official could level wild charges that would be thrown out of court in two minutes.

All this would be extremely funny except that this individual, if allowed to continue, could seriously damage these students' records and reputation. Mr. Shofstall, with these malicious charges, has cast a shadow on the reputation of the university. It could be remembered that students, too, are citizens and have every right to demonstrate in a peaceful way.

I would like to feel proud of the school I have attended and for that reason I feel that Mr. Shofstall should make a public apology to these students and offer his resignation.

Anthony Spachtholz

To the Editor:

I would like to make a public apology to the librarian who turned on the air conditioner last week.

I would like, at this time, to express my gratitude to the health center for the penicillin treatment I received in fighting the cold I caught in the library.

To the other students, I would like to share my secret in dressing for library study. I wear a pair of swimming trunks under my normal attire and carry a fur lined parka so I will be prepared for any climatic condition I may run up against in the Matthews Library.

LETTERS to the Editor

Contemplation

To the Editor:

Beatniks and nonconformists are not synonymous. A beatnik is a member of one of the most conforming groups in our society—he must wear the dirty sweatshirt, sandals and scraggly beard that mark him a member of his "society." He presents a disgusting picture; but doesn't the average conforming Mr. America, as he works at the same job as his neighbor, lives in a neighborhood where every house looks exactly alike and bowls with his friends just because "everyone else does it," present just as disgusting a picture?

College students are the most individualistic people in our society. Many of them refuse to accept a fact just because a professor mentions it; but try to find the truth for themselves. ASU presents a variety of activities to meet the needs of individual students. No one feels he must unhappily conform to what others are doing. If he wants to see a French movie, and his friends want to see "Alice in Wonderland," each does exactly that!

But will these nonconforming individuals be allowed to think for themselves when college days are over? Will a teacher, enthused over progressive methods, be forced to teach traditionally because of a conforming school board, administration and general public? Will an architect design his "dream home," or will conforming house buyers force him to build tract houses? Will a writer's talents be stifled by being allowed to write only TV scripts? Is college life one of individuality and the world outside a place where creativity is stifled?

Sincerely,

Contemplating Coed

(Editor's note: We'd say the answer is up to the individual.)

To the Editor:

Thank you "Castro" and party for thinking of the basic ROTC cadets who refused to think of themselves.

It was interesting for on-lookers to note the typical military dictatorial manner in which you were refused admission to Milba.

A grateful Cadet
 P.S. Please don't use my name. I need the grade.

To the Editor:

A salute to the workers of the birthday party! It was a creative job exercised with much skill and patience by many. And a tribute to Tom Meredith, who showed real leadership in the big job of coordination.

Cecelia Scoular
 MU Director

To the Editor:

In regard to the letter written in the March 25 issue by "The Son of Liberty," all he has to do is open his eyes to find several pencil sharpeners. Not only is there one in the department offices, but also in the laboratories. The reason for the pencil sharpener being "bolted on the inside of a cabinet inside the office" is that we like our pencil sharpener and don't want it to disappear. Also, it is out of the way, and being in a cabinet, it helps to keep the walls clean.

So, the Son of Liberty ought to be thankful that he at least got to use a pencil sharpener (maybe he should carry around a portable one — the type you hold over a wastebasket; they're available at the bookstore.)

Well, we have to.

What could be worse than to have to write about oneself? But, since we cover College Avenue, and the big talk on our favorite street is about three students who were escorted from the military ball (see story page 1), we have no choice.

Friday night we were not in the role of managing editor, and we temporarily dissolved all connections with the State Press to become just another of the many students who object to a compulsory dance.

Now we have the task of disengaging ourselves from that role and returning to this one. Okay?

First thing, we'd like to commend the Campus Police. We've never seen anyone do a smoother job of carrying out orders in a touchy situation without causing trouble. They were nothing but nice the whole time and did a very quiet job, carefully avoiding arousing the student body. Our thanks and congratulations.

Perhaps congrats are also in order to cadets and their dates at the dance. We never heard a comment from any of them during the questioning in the lobby of the gym. They all stood there, listening politely. As the three students were escorted out by Campus Police, some of the cadets cheered. That's all Since Friday, dozens of letters, phone calls and visitors have come to the State Press — all of them commending the three for "doing what I wanted to but couldn't," or something very similar.

While we've got our congratulations handy, let's give a few of the very special ones to all of the people responsible for the MU Birthday Party Saturday night. We went, and thought it was really great. A lot of work must have gone into it, but we believe the results were worth it. Sure hope the people who did the work think so too. We bet they do. So, again, (and this time we think we're speaking for everyone who attended) congratulations and thanks.

Who says students and faculty members can't have fun together? There are several teams composed of a student and a faculty member entered in the ASU closed mixed doubles tennis invitational Monday - Wednesday. So, if you know a faculty member or just want to become friends 'cause it might help the index, grab him or her and sign up in WPE B15 today or tomorrow.

Sounds like fun, and you might even win one of the awards.

We have received a number of unsigned letters about current campus situations. We would like to print all the letters we receive; however, unless they are signed we are unable to. If these people would stop in the State Press and sign their letters, we would be happy to print them. Names are withheld upon request.

1960 Greek Week Events Successful

By LINDA RANKIN
 Greek Week, which ended last Wednesday, was "better attended with better spirit" this year than in the past, said Dick Tarrant, chairman. "The elections of Diana and Apollo, the convocation and philanthropic project tended toward a more cultural Greek Week than ever before," he added.

 Royalty elections Wednesday, March 16, started the activities. Results were announced at the Grecian Ball, held Saturday.

Approximately 500 fraternity and sorority members watched the coronation of Patty Lowe, Chi Omega; and Jon Flach, Phi Alpha.

After the coronation, Diana and Apollo lit torches to officially launch Greek Week.

The philanthropic project, "Operation Tempe," took place Saturday morning. Representatives from each Greek organization knocked on doors of Tempe citizens to do odd jobs; $479.30 was raised for Sunshine Acres children's home.

The convocation was held Monday the 21st. Dr. Selbert Secrist, a Beta Theta Pi, spoke to a full house, relating his experiences as a Greek. He warned ASU Greeks of their standards.

Tuesday night, each house on fraternity row was decorated, with countries as themes for the progressive parties. Motifs were centered around Russia, Japan, South Sea Islands and China.

TV cameras filmed the Lambda Chi Alpha Toad Hop Wednesday afternoon at the Quadrangle. Delta Gamma and Sigma Chi won the sorority and fraternity divisions and Palo Verde Hall won the hall division and sweepstakes.

Greek Games were held that evening at Goodwin Stadium, ending 1960 Greek Week. Sorority-fraternity teams competed.

Greek Games sweepstakes trophy went to Kappa Kappa Gamma-Delta Sigma Phi; second place was won by Delta Gamma-Sigma Nu; and third place, Alpha Epsilon Phi, Alpha Sigma Alpha-Phi Sigma Kappa.

Delta Sigs also had the Most Beautiful Chariot and won the chariot race.

AS Nine Regains Win Style

A combination of heavy hitting and steady pitching gave ASU's baseballers an 11-3 victory over the University of Wyoming and a 7-2 conquest of Michigan's Wolverines Monday. The wins were the ninth and tenth of the season for the Devils against four losses.

After losing to Utah Friday and splitting with the same club in a Saturday twin-bill, the Devils bounced back to start their winning ways again.

In the Monday afternoon tilt, played on the ASU diamond, the Demons got five-hit pitching from John Miller, Wyoming, and rapped eleven safes to win easily. Roger Tomlinson and Alan Benedict hit home runs to spark the Devil's attack.

Against the Wolverines, Mike Tatum was in control all the way as he scattered seven hits for his second triumph of the season against one loss. The game was played Monday night at Phoenix Municipal Stadium.

Friday, Utah came from behind to top the Devils 12-11. Miller was the losing pitcher for ASU.

The Devils won Saturday's opening game with a smashing 18-1 win behind Roger Barnson's hurling. In the second game Utah came from behind to beat the Devils and Bob Kavagian, 6-5.

Trackmen Face Cal Striders After Loss To Oregon State

Arizona State's track team defeated Brigham Young University Thursday but lost to Oregon State College Saturday, bringing the season's record to 2-2 in dual competition.

On April 2, Coach Senon "Baldy" Castillo's trackmen will face the ever powerful Southern California Striders at Goodwin Stadium.

In falling to the potent Oregon Beaver's 80-51, one stadium record and a school record were set by ASU thinlies.

Mal Spence broke his own stadium record in the 440 yard dash with a time of 47.2. His old record was 47.3.

Pete Anselmo, a product of North Phoenix High, heaved the shot 52'-2 1/4", beating the old school record of 52'-1/2" set in 1952 by Earl Putnam. The ASU relay quartet ran a 3:14.4 mile, bettering their 3:15.7 clocking against BYU. This was a new dual meet record.

Carol Lindroos nad Anselmo set new dual meet records against BYU, as the Devils defeated the visiting Cougars 82 1/2-48 1/2. ASU won 12 frists in 15 events. Lindroos tossed the discus 165'-5" beating the old record by nine inches. Anselmo's throw of 51'-2" was bettered in the OSC meet.

Mal Spence and Alex Henderson were double winners in the BYU meet. Mal won the 220 yard dash in 21.7 and the broad jump with a leap of 22'-4 3/4".

Henderson won both the mile and two-mile events but didn't compete in the OCS meet.

Bob Irwin Wins Olympics Tryout

Bob Irwin, ASU student, is among 16 qualifying for olympic wrestling trials.

The 125-pounder won the 1959 Southern Pacific Senior AAU wrestling title. An outstanding wrestler in Arizona, Irwin won the Arizona olympic style wrestling match.

He is now grappling for the Phoenix YMCA Wristlock club. He has won 28 matches without a defeat.

Irwin qualified for the Olympic trials at the University of Iowa, matched with other nationally-rated performers.

BARNE STORMING

By DAVE BARNES

SPORTS EDITOR

Leg-room amidst the bleachers in Sun Devil Gymnasium is cramped.

The view from sections near the end zones in the new stadium is sometimes obstructed by flying football helmets.

Seats at baseball games are too hard and ruin the pleats in dresses worn by coed fans.

Light poles in Goodwin stadium hide track and field action from spectators.

Refreshments at various sporting events are not easily obtained.

Too much dust is raised by fans parking in unpaved lots.

Chlorets should be provided for screaming fans who have halitosis.

The pom pon girls should perform during four, fifteen-minute quarters, with the football team providing half-time entertainment.

Believe it or not, these are among the common complaints and suggestions made to the sports desk by ASU fans. And some people expect an entire column to be devoted to each of the above listed tidbits.

Notable Notes

Senior Al Nealey has been selected as "honorary captain" and "most valuable player" of this year's basketball squad.

BULLETIN

ASU's diamonds topped the University of Wyoming, 15-2, yesterday afternoon on the Sun Devil field, boosting their season won-loss record to 11-4.

Roger Kudron hurled the win for ASU, his second against no setbacks.

ASU and the University of Michigan met in an 8 p.m. encounter at Phoenix Municipal Stadium last night, however, results were not available at press time.

Spence Twins Asset To ASU

Mal and Mel Spence, ASU's twin flashes from Jamaica, have been sparking the Devil track and field team with numerous victories in their individual events and with their standout performances on the Devil mile relay team.

The 24-year-old juniors from Kingston, Jamaica, have been pacing the relay team to outstanding times, including a 3:11.6 clocking, best in the nation this year.

Mal has also claimed victories in the 220 and 440 yard dashes and the broad jump and Mel has turned in several good times while winning his specialty, the 880 yard run.

Mal and Mel left Kingston for the first time in 1955 and since then have been competing against some of the best athletes in the world.

Included among their track performances have been appearances in the Southern Games in Trinidad, the Pan American Games in Mexico City, the Australian Games and the British Empire Games.

Last summer Mal and Mel ran on the West Indies' mile relay team which won the Pan American games in Chicago.

This summer they will be trying for berths on the West Indies team which will compete in the Rome Olympics.

Both Mal and Mel are currently running slightly slower than their best efforts of the past. Mel has an explanation for this. "We have a whole summer of competition ahead of us after the collegiate season is over," he said, "and if we hit our peak now we will not be at our very best this summer when we must face the really tough competition."

Two of the most popular students on campus, Mal and Mel entertain at social functions with their well-presented calypso songs. "We don't have time to do as many shows as we would like to," says Mal. "Our studies and track activities take up most of our time."

Mal is majoring in Botany and Mel's major is accounting. Both are outstanding students.

Keep your eye on Mal and Mel in future collegiate competition and in amateur competition this summer—they are going places, fast.
