

Auditorium Plan Okayed

The Board of Regents tentatively approved the late Frank Lloyd Wright's design for an auditorium for ASU, and authorized ASU to hire architects from the Wright Foundation to complete plans for the $2½-million structure.

The Regents passed the measure, with only one dissenting vote. The dissenter, Regent Alex Jacome, called the kidney-shaped structure "incongruous and monstrous," and called the cost "out of line." The entire UofA art center cost a million dollars less, he said.

The 3,000-seat auditorium which Wright was planning when he died a year ago, would be constructed near the curve of Mill Ave. and Apache Blvd., as a part of a Fine Arts Center. "The auditorium would grace a new main entrance to the campus, Regent Elwood Bradford said. "I'm a little embarrassed everytime I visit the ASU campus. I have to wind through alleys to get to the administration building. The place looks like a Chinatown," he added.

"The state of Arizona shouldn't be taxed . . . for a monument to Mr. Frank Lloyd Wright," Regent Jacome said.

Regent President William R. Mathews said the Wright-inspired auditorium would afford "an impressive entrance to the campus . . . one the state would be proud of." His endorsement of the auditorium was considered the clinching action leading to the decision.

Gilbert Cady, ASU vice president for business affairs, said the school hopes architects can complete their design work within six months. The Regents, as usual, reserved the right of approval or disapproval of the final plans.

ASU will have a $1,170,000 legislated appropriation after July 1 for the first stages of the 121,000-square-foot structure.

If the final Wright Foundation plans are approved, ASU will ask for the rest of the estimated $2½-million from the 1961 legislature, Mr. Cady said. If the legislature then grants the additional funds, the auditorium could be completed by the end of 1962.

The revolving stage planned for the auditorium was especially criticized by Regent Jacome. He said he heartily agrees that ASU needs an auditorium but that "a suitable auditorium could be built for half the price. . ."

Honors Assembly Friday

All 10:40 and 11:40 classes will be dismissed Friday so students may attend the ASU Honors Convocation. The annual event will feature Aldous Huxley, eminent philosophical essayist and novelist, as guest speaker.

A major event of the ASU Diamond Jubilee year, the honors convocation will credit over 720 student recipients of fellowships, scholarships, honors and awards.

The program will include music by the ASU Band Ensemble, led by Eugene Chausow, assistant professor of music, and the Collegium Musicum, led by Dr. Phillip Nelson, assistant professor of music.

Presiding at the convocation will be Dr. Karl Dannenfeldt, chairman of the Faculty Senate committee on academic affairs, who will introduce Mr. Huxley, noted author of "Brave New World."

AUDITORIUM . . . This drawing represents a concept of an auditorium for ASU as developed by the late Frank Lloyd Wright.

Devils Top Wildcats, Eye Higher Ranking

By BOB EGER

Arizona State University's baseball team accomplished what may be the greatest single athletic feat in the school's history as it swept both ends of a double-header from the University of Arizona, 7-3 and 3-0 here Saturday. Ranked seventh nationally, the highest ever for any ASU athletic team, the Sun Devils may well move into the top five after their wins over the third-ranked Wildcats.

Saturday's victories marked the first time the Devils have beaten the Cats in both games of a twin bill.

The UofA, which brought a 36-5 record and a six-game winning streak to ASU, had not previously lost two consecutive games this season.

Coach Bobby Winkles, in his second year as head football coach, has engineered a season far beyond the most optimistic predictions.

Last year Winkles' charges compiled a 27-18 record — best in the school's history. This season the Devils have surpassed that mark and are 30-11, although playing one of the toughest schedules in the country.

Three games remain on the 1960 ASU slate. The Sun Devils host the Los Angeles Police, a team of ex-professional players, today at 3:30 p.m. and play the Wildcats twice in Tucson Saturday.

One win against the Cats Saturday would assure the ASU nine of its first Border Conference crown.

Group Votes For Retaining Required ROTC

The Student-Faculty ROTC Study Committee voted Monday 7-4 to recommend that ROTC remain compulsory at ASU for the next year.

If the Army ROTC program is not modified to match one approved by the Air Force next school year, the committee suggests that ROTC become voluntary for the 1961-62 school year.

If, as expected, the Army comes up with a compatible program, the committee recommends that ROTC remain compulsory thereafter.

The recommendation was based on correspondence with Armed Services leaders, other colleges and universities, and two polls conducted at ASU.

The polls had shown 71 per cent of the students and 70 per cent of the faculty opposed to requiring ROTC.

Tom Hulén, ASASU president, indicated his disapproval of the committee report. He said he would have a definite statement when the final report, now being drafted, is available. Hulén may meet later this week with state educational authorities to investigate the possibility of student action against the requirement.

The tentative report says, "It

Trophies Awarded To Sing Winners

Kappa Delta, Gamma Phi Beta, Phi Sigma Kappa and Delta Gamma-Phi Delta Theta won first places Monday in the annual Inter-Fraternity Council Sing.

Darleen Arthurs directed the Kappa Deltas in their presentation of "Imagination." They won the first place award in the Women's Division and the traveling trophy for overall singing in both women's divisions.

Gamma Phi Beta took first place in the Women's Theme Division with their arrangement of "Sayonara." The Gamis not yet clear whether, on a national scale and for all services, compulsory ROTC is needed to meet officer procurement requirements. The . . . figures . . . are incomplete and contradictory. The reasons for requiring compulsory ROTC after next year are somewhat less compelling."

The report says, "We find it hard to understand the attitude that a 'military atmosphere' tends to pollute the air of a 'true' university. Any mirror in the present generation which does not reflect the armed services as an important element in society is pretty badly spotted. This is not militarism. We feel it would be a dereliction of duty to go over to a voluntary program."

All six faculty members supported the motion to retain the requirement, as did one student member — Frank D. Schaumburg, Army ROTC Brigade Commander. Faculty supporters were committee chairmen Dr. L. M. Myers, Dr. Merwin Deever, Harold Demarest, Dr. George Sutton, Major Warren Hanson of the Army, and Major Hollis Moomaw of the Air Force.

The four students opposing the motion were Dave Matthews, Bill Druke, Dick Tarrant and Jerry Hassett.

If the Army does not approve a revised program for next year, Air Force ROTC will retain its present program.

The committee disregarded suggestions by Matthews that a comprehensive report be issued detailing the committee answer to all the arguments against compulsory ROTC. Matthews said that the report should discuss the facts, instead of just representing members' opinions.

Mathews said, "I voted against the report because after consideration of the information I've been provided, I feel that while defense education is an extremely vital and important part of education today, the present program and proposed future ROTC program fall short of meeting the need that defense education in a university can fulfill. Until a complete revamping brings the program up to date, no student should be forced to take it against his will."

ma Phis in pink and red Japanese kimonos and black wigs, were directed by Jean Gabbard.

Phi Sigma Kappa sang, "Exsultate Justi" in Latin to win first place in the Men's Division. Charles Parker was their director.

In the Mixed Division, Phil Griffith directed the Delta Gammas and Phi Delta Thetas. Their winning presentation was a Gay 90's Medley.

Second place winners were Alpha Phi in the Women's Theme Division and Alpha Tau Omega in the Men's Division.

Placing third were Kappa Kappa Gamma in the Women's Theme Division and Sigma Phi Epsilon in the Men's Division.

Creative Writers To Be Recognized At Banquet Tomorrow Night In MU

Prizes for creative writing established by Glendon Swarthout, ASU professor of English, will be awarded tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Memorial Union upper lounge.

Swarthout, whose latest novel, "Where the Boys Are," was recently published by Random House, is author of the best-selling novel, "They Came to Cordura." Also another of his works titled, "A Glass of Blessings," will be included in the O. Henry Memorial Collection of Prize Stories for 1960.

Speaker at the gathering will be Roger Meiners, ASU instructor in English, whose subject will be Allen Tate, contemporary American poet. Meiners has published poetry in "Foothills" and "Poems and Stories" and will have an article on Tate in a forthcoming issue of the "Kansas City Review."

The Swarthout awards include two first prizes of $50 and two second prizes of $25 for prose and for poetry. The annual awards will be presented by Mrs. Grady Gammage, chairman of the Arizona State University Foundation's division through which the creative writing-prize fund was set up.

The English department will also award two prizes for the best work appearing in "The Prospector," a magazine of student writing published by the ASU English department.

Dr. John Ratliff, associate professor of English, is in charge of the program.

ASU Government Needs Clarification

"Student government needs clarification and the organization of the Payson Leadership Workshop needs improvement."

This conclusion was reached by some 70 student leaders at the Payson Leadership Workshop last weekend.

The students and administrators travelled to ASU's Camp Tontoza near Payson Friday evening for the semi-annual conclave to discuss student government problems, allow officers-elect to become more familiar with student government and their fellow leaders, and plan for the coming year.

The study of student government problems was aided by a tape recording of seven faculty and administration members relaying their sentiments regarding student government.

"Student government is not merely a sounding board . . . Student government is to the administration as state government is to the federal," said Gayle Shuman, director of Campus Security. "A subordinate government's purpose is to legislate and control certain rights given them by the higher government," he continued.

"I agree with the purpose of student government, but many students do not," stated Ed Hickox, housing director. "Many students think they have political powers — they do not. The real value of student government is that students may express themselves."

Doctor Merle C. Nutt, associate professor of Engineering, said ". . . If it were not for student government, students might try to take all their problems to administrators — it would be chaotic."

Dr. Paul G. Hubbard, professor of History, "The purpose is good democratic doctrine and . . . not to be disdained, but there are dangers in it. Is the student prepared to say what he needs or what is good for him in learning?" Dr. Hubbard continued. "If a student is to investigate what happens in classes, what would be his standard of judgment?"

"Student government is the wrong term. Perhaps a more accurate term would be student participation in campus government," said Catherine G. Nichols, associate dean of students.

The first college to establish co-education was Oberlin (Ohio) College, 1833.

Richardson, Hulen Decide On Three Senate-Passed Measures

ASU Acting President H. D. Richardson and ASASU President Tom Hulen have acted on three senate-passed bills in the last two weeks.

Hulen signed one bill and vetoed another. He signed SB 139, which provides for the ASASU president, starting next year, to remove appointive ASASU officials. A 3 to 4 vote of Executive Council must confirm the removal. It now goes to Richardson for action.

The vetoed measure was SB 137, the newly-revised Election Code. The senate could have overridden the veto by a 2 to 3 vote, but did not attempt to do so. Hulen said he vetoed the bill upon recommendation of the Elections Board, since the bill was poorly constructed and needed further revision from the present code. A new election code may be considered early this Fall.

Richardson vetoed the senate-passed and Hulen-signed bill to set up a new Board of Publications, SB 136. The acting President said that he objected to the provision making a student instead of a faculty member the chairman of the board.

'The Egyptian' To Be Shown For Students

"The Egyptian," a film starring Jean Simmons, Victor Mature and Peter Ustinov, will be presented at Cosner Auditorium Thursday and Friday evenings at 7:30.

The story, set in ancient Egypt, concerns a young physician who seeks a philosophy to guide his life.

The film is based upon the best-selling novel of the same name.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING —

Final Decision?

Out of committee: the first draft of one ROTC Study Committee report.

Directed by the ASU President four months ago to determine if compulsory ROTC was "essential and necessary," the committee has conducted polls, corresponded with national defense officials, and conversed to arrive at a decision.

The committee recommendation is contrary to polls conducted among ROTC students, faculty members, and students in general. It is also incongruous with statements from the office of the Secretary of Defense, to the effect that required ROTC is unnecessary in the national defense picture.

All of which leaves us with the question: upon what was the committee's recommendation based?

One section of the report summarizes the thinking behind the members unanimous vote at their first meeting to retain compulsion in ROTC:

"A University, if we may coin a phrase, must somehow reflect the society in which it exists; and any mirror in the present generation which does not reflect the armed services as an important element in society is pretty badly spotted."

Part of the discussion at the last several study committee meetings has centered around "how to sell the rest of the faculty" on the recommendation.

Even a good sales campaign won't sell an unsatisfactory product to intelligent people.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"I AGREE WITH YOU THAT SHE ISN'T VERY BRIGHT AND I GAVE HER AN 'A', TOO."

LETTERS to the Editor

Open letter to Dean Shofstall To the Editor:

Students all over the world are leaders in overthrowing oppressors, striving for civil and economic rights, and demonstrating against the utter depravity of H-bomb war preparations. White students in the United States constitute a glaring exception.

More they have been so conditioned and so intimidated that their intellectual and physical energies can easily be directed toward and exhausted in such innocuous frivolities as changing the name of the school or shouting at ball games. Eddie Hoover, leader of the FBI secret police, not long ago explicitly warned students to beware of what organizations they join and what actions they take lest this go on record and be used against them later when job seeking. If any group of importance shows the slightest degree of tendency toward non-conformity to the status quo the Un-American Activities Committee immediately hauls the leaders up for a smear mock trial.

This process of indoctrination has been so successful that often student organizations and editors will rigidly pre-censor their own activities and publications into conformity then proudly announce to the world that the enjoy freedom from censorship. In fact, the publication of this letter could almost be labeled a non-theological miracle.

Dean Shofstall, in view of your contention that the three non-conforming students at the military dance had not exhausted their democratic remedies, I would like to ask you these questions:

What effort have you made to give the students an opportunity to express, in a democratic way, their feeling toward compulsory military training? Even though sampling has indicated that nearly three-quarters of the students and teachers are opposed to this program are you determined to force it down their throats whether they like it or not? This is an especially important matter since there is a serious question as to whether military preparation has any defense values whatsoever in this atomic age.

One point I would like to make very clear to you, Dean Shofstall, is this. As a property owner, a taxpayer, a long-time resident, an alumnus, and as one of your employers I certainly am not among those you seem to think have given you a mandate to maintain the present ASU posture at the expense of intimidating the students.

To the Editor: I am congratulating "the Spectator" for his proscenium stand against the fraternity system. The charges that fraternities are undemocratic and highly prejudiced certainly has a sound basis. Why should these pin-carrying groups receive sanction from a public-supported institution? Indeed, a movement toward the emasculation of the fraternities is needed.

Name Withheld

To the Editor: In reference to the letter in your paper April 29, signed the Spectator, I would like to say that there is certainly a sound basis for his charge that fraternities are undemocratic. Isn't the practice of fraternal organizations limiting their membership on grounds of race and color contrary to the 1954 Supreme Court Anti-segregation decision? Since fraternities receive official approval and sanction from a public institution they would most certainly fall under this ruling.

Could it possibly be that our public officials lack the courage to enforce this ruling? It may be that they are not aware of this fact.

"My story didn't get in your paper."

Oh, SO often we hear that phrase. And, 99 times out of 100, our answer has to be the same — "I'm sorry, but we just didn't have the space."

For years now, the same statement and reply have reverberated through the State Press offices. But, at long last, someone has thought of a solution — cut the State Press budget.

This obviously will result in fewer pages, possibly less personnel, probably more people saying "My story didn't get in your paper," and more replies of "I'm sorry, but we just didn't have the space." We're not sure just how this is supposed to help, but obviously whoever figured out the appropriations must have had a reason.

Or, more likely, he (or they) were just sleepy, had a headache, or something similar.

Most likely, we are jumping the gun with our worry. Actually, we have every confidence that the appropriations will be raised, rather than going through with the proposed cut.

Action in other senate meetings this year has shown that the ASASU senate isn't about to let any bill go through without careful study, discussion, and revision where necessary.

But we still can't help but wonder the reasoning of whoever drew up the original appropriation suggestion. We can only once again be thankful that our student government is founded on the "check and balance" system, where the results of one man's headache can be corrected.

Our illustrious editor picked up a couple of extra honors at the Arizona Press Women's shindig last week. She took second places in "Best Feature Story in a Daily Paper" and in "Special Series of Articles — Food," for her efforts in the Phoenix Gazette. Congratulations.

As we wander down our favorite street, we find the strip between the curb and sidewalk is full of holes.

Seems our landscapers have decided to beautify the campus with a couple of dozen new orange trees. (Really, the trees are green and brown.)

Now, we're all for anything to beautify our campus, but one thing bothers us. These nice little orange trees fit neatly between other trees on each side of them. However, what happens when these nice little trees grow up to be nice big trees? Seems like they will hardly have room to breathe.

And aqua-lungs are, soooo expensive.

'Prospector' On Sale

Student Writings Are Featured

The "Prospector," a magazine of student writings, was published by the ASU English department last week.

The writings in the publication were chosen from over 250 entries by an editorial board of the English faculty.

Members of the editorial board were chairman, Richard Snodgrass, instructor; John Beecher, lecturer; Richard Erno and Dick Welsh, assistant professor; George Herman, instructor; and Professor Katherine Turner.

The cover of the magazine was designed and executed by Tom Warnken, ASU publications assistant and between the covers are selections of poetry, short stories, essays, and part of a novel.

This is a first for "The Prospector" and, according to Dr. Collice Portnoff, English department chairman, it will continue to be published once a semester in the future.

The magazine is available for 25c in the English office and at the Varsity Bookstore, 8th St., Tempe.

EUROPE MADE SIMPLE: No. 1

Summer vacation is just around the corner, and naturally all of you are going to Europe. Perhaps I can offer a handy tip or two. (I must confess I have never been to Europe myself, but I eat a lot of Scotch broth and French dressing, so I am not entirely without qualification.)

First let me say that no trip to Europe is complete without a visit to England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, France, Germany, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Lichtenstein, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Luxembourg, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia, Russia, Greece, Yugoslavia, Albania, Crete, Sardinia, Sicily, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Lapland, and Andorra.

Let us take up these countries in order. First, England.

The capital of England is London—or Liverpool, as it is sometimes called. There are many interesting things to see in London—chiefly, the changing of the guards. The guards are changed daily. The old ones are thrown away.

Perhaps I can offer a handy tip or two

Another "must" while in London is a visit to Buckingham Palace. Frequently in the afternoons Her Majesty the Queen comes out on the balcony of the palace and waves to her loyal subjects below. The loyal subjects wave back at the Queen. However, they only continue to wave as long as Her Majesty is waving. This of course is the origin of wave lengths from which we have derived numerous benefits including radio, television and the A&P Gypsies.

Be sure also when you are in London to visit the palace of the Duke of Marlborough. Marlborough is spelled Marlborough, but pronounced Marlboro. English spelling is very quaint but terribly disorganized. The late George Bernard Shaw, author of Jo's Boys, fought all his life to simplify English spelling. He once asked a friend, "What does g-h-o-t-i spell?" The friend pondered a bit and replied, "Goatee." Shaw sniggered. "Pshaw," said Shaw. "G-h-o-t-i does not spell goatee. It spells fish. Gh as in enough, o as in women, ti as in motion."

It must be remembered, however, that Shaw was a vegetarian—which, all in all, was probably a good thing. As Disraeli once remarked to Guy Fawkes, "If Shaw were not a vegetarian, no lamb chop in London would be safe."

But I digress. We were speaking of the palace of the Duke of Marlborough—or Marlboro, as it is called in the United States. It is called Marlboro by every smoker who knows flavor did not go out when filters came in. Be sure you are well supplied with Marlboros when you make your trip abroad. After a long, tiring day of sightseeing, there is nothing so welcome as a fine, flavorful Marlboro and a foot bath with hot Epsom salts.

Epsom salts can be obtained in England at Epsom Downs. Kensington salts can be obtained at Kensington Gardens, Albert salts can be obtained at Albert Hall, Hyde salts can be obtained at Hyde Park, and the crown jewels can be obtained at the Tower of London.

Well sir, now you know all you need to know about England. Next week we will visit the Land of the Midnight Sun—France.

And you also know all you need to know about smoking: Marlboro, if you want the best of the filter cigarettes—Philip Morris if you want the best of the unfiltered cigarettes.

Man has always sought peace with his fellows.

In 1215 the Magna Carta proposed feudal rights and privileges that guaranteed protection to barons from encroachment by tyrannical leaders.

The League of Nations, predecessor of the United Nations, promised the maintenance of peace and the promotion of international cooperation. It failed because "powerful" nations of the day could not, and would not, abide by its decisions. International compromise on important issues did not evolve.

Today, the people of the United States, under its Constitution, are the privileged elite of those seeking peace.

Apparently the world "is waiting for the sunrise." Until then, it puts its faith in an organization that is geared to peace—the United Nations.

In Articles 55 and 56 of the United Nations Charter, all members pledge themselves to observe "human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion."

Apartheid, i.e., white supremacy laws in the Union of South Africa, political discrimination in South Korea, and racial political disturbances in the United States have prompted the question of whether the United Nations is adhering to and enforcing Articles 55 and 56 and the principles on which it was founded.

Mr. Thomas Herrick, assistant professor of Political Science—"First of all the United Nations itself cannot enforce anything because it is a collection of sovereign nations If there is going to be anything enforced in the area of human rights it has to be enforced by the individual nations. The enforcement of human rights by individual nations has been, at best, token.

"I don't see how the U.N. could be strengthened substantially unless it was scraped and a world government was created to take its place.

"The U.N. as an organization has done, and is doing, a good job. The individual member states have fallen down in many areas of human rights."

Dr. Thomas J. Leonard, assistant professor of Political Science—"Human rights need to be enforced and the governments along with public opinion are the logical means of enforcing them.

"Critics of democracy, especially in the communist countries, seize upon every violation of minority rights which occurs and make political hay out of it.

"The pressure of the new countries which joined the U.N. since 1945 has put new life in Articles 55 and 56 of the U.N. Charter.

"The U.N. is an unrivaled form for airing grievances and aspirations for reform and so it is much better than nothing."

Miss K. Janaki, graduate student in Education—"I would say that the U.N. is rendering great services in the field of humanitarianism. They are also trying to preserve peace, eradicate backwardness and promote international understanding."

Religious Center, Housing, Part Of Regents' Agenda

Regents' business, other than the auditorium approval, included the issue of excluding religious centers from state campuses.

The issue was brought to a head last month by the Catholic Newman Foundation, which owns a $250,000 student center near the UofA campus and plans a $843,000 addition.

The 21-member University Pastors' Fellowship asked the Regents for a policy statement after learning the university might buy land surrounding the Newman Center.

The Newmanites seek to remain at their present location, while other groups would remove what they say will become "an island of religion in the campus."

Regent W. R. Mathews promised a "satisfactory solution" but said it is "going to take some time."

Another discussion subject was racial discrimination by fraternities and sororities.

Regent Mathews revealed that a $2,500,000 government Housing Home Finance Agency loan "has definitely been allocated" the UofA to build 11 fraternity and sorority houses, but that the federal government stipulates "only those fraternities and sororities that have no anti-integration . . ." He said three of the Greek groups have discriminatory clauses in their charters, but that at least two of the three groups hope to have the clauses removed "this summer."

The Regents also approved pay increases for faculty members, subject to approval by the state legislature. The raises, costing a total of $1.5 million, would not go into effect until 1961-62 fiscal and school years.

ASU salaries will continue to be $200 below UofA salaries, but $300 above ASC figures. Old and new figures are: Professor — $7,600-$8,800, assistant professor — $6,600-$7,300; associate professor — $5,500-$6,000.

Student fees and out-of-state tuition will be increased to pay $831,000 of the extra cost. The remainder would be voted by the legislature. Annual fees would be increased from $125 to $150 at ASU, and out-of-state tuition from $500 to $600 annually.

The Board also granted leaves of absence to five ASU faculty members for 1960-61. Dr. Herbert Stahnke, Zoology professor will get a sabbatical leave from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1961. Others on leave will be James Beck, assistant professor of Art; Max Fieser, assistant professor of Economics; James Johnson, English instructor; and Philip Atkins, assistant professor of Office Administration and Business Education.

The Board of Regents delayed action at the meeting on the compulsory ROTC question until the next meeting in Flagstaff June 11. The delay came after Acting ASU President H. D. Richardson urged the Regents to wait for the student-faculty report then under study.

Listing Presented Of Appropriations

As a public service State Press is publishing the Associated Students' appropriations for 1959-60, and recommended appropriations for 1960-61 — Senate Bill 146.

Allocations are based on an enrollment of 7,000 full-time students who are assessed $11.50 per semested activity fee.

Intercollegiate Athletics, a separate department, will receive its allotment, $10 on all enrolled full-time students.

Delta Sig Follies To Aid Boys' Ranch

Actress Shirley MacLaine will see steps of her popular dance, featured in "Can-Can," done in a "hairier manner" at the 20th annual Delta Sig Follies Friday and Saturday.

The dance will be among acts in the variety show, sponsored by Delta Sigma Phi fraternity to benefit Boys' Ranch, home for homeless young men. Residents of the Ranch will be special guests at the opening night performance. They will each be guests of a member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

Delta Sigs have been working on the Follies since late March; costumes were made by The Deltas, fraternity mothers' club, Monday. Ralph Havens and Tom Dugan are co-directors; Len Cereghino is publicity chairman; Bob Sloncen, Kent Brown and Earl Sullivan are lighting technicians; and Ted Miller is stage director.

Others in charge of the program are Dave Duncan and Roland Eidam, advertising; Dennis Christy and Ron Brock, set directors; Dick Thomas and Bill Druke, assisted by Shirley Kummer and Fran Breslin, choreographers; Joe Raineri and Bob Isbell, sound technicians; Dennis Christy, tickets; and Conrad Murphy and Bob Hansson, programs.

Tickets for the show are being sold by Delta Sigs and will be available at the door.

The shows will be at 8 p.m. in the Tempe Union High school auditorium.

Among the acts scheduled are the can-can, a hula dance, a beatnik reading, "College Registration and ROTC"; an African dance, a soft shoe routine and a fashion show.

There will be take-offs on the "Arthur Murray Dance Party," including a tango and cha-cha-cha; "Rifleman" and "This is Your Life."

Tracksters Prepare For U of A Meet Here Friday

Powerful University of Arizona, defending Border Conference track champ, invades Goodwin Stadium Saturday night.

The Wildcats, rated stronger this year, are favored because the Demons lack depth and performers in many events.

The dual meet will close the 1960 home track schedule. Border Conference finals will be in Las Cruces, N. M., next week.

Several ASU performers will be appearing for the last time in Goodwin Stadium, most notable being Alex Henderson, mile and two-mile star.

Henderson, ASU's lone entry in the Drake Relays last week, placed third in the special 5,000 meter run. His clocking was 14:49.9.

Bud Edelen of Minneapolis won the race with a 14:35.7 clocking and Phil Coleman, running for the Chicago Track Club, was second with 14:39.9.

Devils Top Wildcats

An overflow crowd watched ASU deflate the high-flying Wildcats, 7-3, Saturday afternoon on the Sun Devil diamond. The locals, considered by many the best defensive team in college baseball, added strength to such claims with an errorless game, including several fielding gems.

The Devils got steady pitching from sophomore Mike Tatum, who scattered seven hits, struck out seven and walked three in gaining his eighth win against two losses.

Left fielder Bob Lefebre slammed a three-run homer in the fourth inning to break a 1-1 deadlock and give Tatum the margin he needed to win.

ASU scored four runs in the fourth frame and had single tallies in the fifth, seventh and eighth innings. The Wildcats scored single runs in the first, sixth and eighth.

More than 2,000 people, the largest crowd ever to watch an ASU baseball game in the Phoenix area, saw the Demons put on another sparkling errorless defensive show and top the Cats, 3-0, Saturday night at Phoenix Municipal Stadium.

Roger Barnson shut out the Wildcats on five hits while winning his eighth game, and shortstop Roger Tomlinson blasted a two-run third inning homer to give the Devils all the margin they needed to win.

Second baseman Mario Ramirez and Tomlinson were all over the diamond, grabbing potential base hits. Ramirez start-

ASU Golfers Place Second

University of Arizona won the 2nd Annual Phoenix College Invitational golf tournament Friday at Thunderbird Country Club. The UofA had a four man total of 580. ASU finished second with 591.

Wayne Breck, ASU, tied for third with Payne Palmer, UofA, and Bill Farkas, PC, one stroke behind the leaders at 144.

Other ASU scores were Rex Wilsen, 147; Paul Spengler, 147; Ray Stawiski, 153; and Cal Cooke, 153.
