Inter-Council Plan Unveiled

A plan to promote the importance of student government was unveiled Monday by student President Karl Dennison.

Newmen Center Readied

A $250,000 Catholic student center will be finished by the end of January, according to the Rev. William R. Lynch, director of the Newman Club foundation.

"The building will be as attractive and as inviting as we can make it," stated Rev. Lynch. "We have tried to avoid the institutional type building. We want it (the center) to be used, not avoided."

Facilities for the center include a chapel, coffee shop, cafeteria, lounge, conference rooms, classrooms and an auditorium. More than 2,000 ASU students are of the Catholic faith.

Newman Club members are presently raising $10,000 to furnish the building. $7,000 has been raised so far.

"The center will have a three point program — spiritual, educational and social," commented Rev. Lynch.

"A full time chaplain will be on hand for the spiritual part, classrooms for religious courses and study rooms for education, and the cafeteria and auditorium for socials — parties and dances."

The building, under construction since August 20, will be located at 8th and College Ave.

Card Ante $250

The ASASU Board of Financial Control has allocated $252 to replace 1700 damaged cards used in the card section at football games.

Acting on a request from the Rally and Traditions board on Monday, the control board approved the funds to order 600 green and white, 800 maroon and gold, and 300 red and blue cards. The cards had been stored in a stadium maintenance building for the summer and were ruined by rain leaking into the building.

The order is expected to arrive in time for the next game at Sun Devil stadium.

Applications for lighting the "A" will be accepted from men's student groups today and tomorrow in the AMS office, MU 204. A drawing at 4 p.m. tomorrow will determine the order for lighting of the "A". The "A" is lighted for both home and away games.

Newsman Says —

'Fidel Can't Go Communist'

"Fidel Castro, strong-minded individual that he is, will have a hard time following the international Communist mandates," stated newsman Martin Housman, currently vacationing in Arizona after a year's assignment in the "revolutionized" republic.

More than fifty ASU students received first-hand information about Cuba when the United Press International correspondent spoke to two classes Monday morning.

Counter-revolutionary action in outlying mountain areas rates small importance from U.S. newsmen covering Cuba, he reports — but adds "that's the one optimistic light in the country."

Housman feels that our troubles in Cuba started as a result of the United States' refusal of Castro's request for an $80 billion loan. "The incident left Castro open to a lot of ridicule in Latin America and may have prompted his hate campaign against the U.S.," he added.

"The much-heralded Agrar-

Arizona Violin Donated to ASU

A violin made entirely from Arizona-grown woods has been donated to ASU.

The instrument, which won first place in a recent judging of more than 20 violins, was made by Irvin Lundy of Mesa, a member of the Arizona Guild of Violin Makers.

The back, sides and neck of the violin are of black walnut from near Flagstaff; the top of spruce from eastern Arizona; the pegs, fingerboard, tail piece, chin-rest and end pin of iron wood from the desert near Lost Valley.

ian Reform plan sponsored by Luis Antonio Jimenez doesn't seem to be going as well as prophesied," stated Housman. The general well-being of the labor populace compares favorably to that of the Batista regime, he observes; but adds that "education and housing are on the upgrade."

Commenting on the communications picture, he reports that there is only one independent newspaper still operating. That one, "Informacion," carries no overt editorial policy. It does, however print many U.S. news service stories.

"Hoy", the government-controlled sheet, adheres strictly to the Castro line.

Housman stated that he doesn't think the dictator will ever fully carry out the "revolutionary phase" he deems essential before holding elections. He observes this to be exemplified by Castro's disregarding his promise of election within 18 months after the revolution.

"I do not feel that the revolution will continue in its present form after Castro is gone. Castro is the revolution, and without him some other form of government must arise. A coalition government will probably take over, but the exiled government will not be asked back again by the new leaders," the vacationing newsman concluded.

ASU Gets Thousands In Grants

Four grants to support research and scholarships for the 1960-61 academic year have been presented to ASU.

The Goodyear Foundation, Inc., has awarded a $1,375 scholarship grant to ASU, Karl L. Kicke, plant manager of the Arizona Division of Goodyear Aircraft Corp., announced Saturday.

The award provides $1,000 to cover the costs of tuition, books, expenses, etc., for a student selected by the ASU scholarship committee, while the balance of the amount will be an unrestricted grant-in-aid to underwrite administration costs.

A two-year research grant has been awarded to ASU by the National Science Foundation to support the "Taxonomic and Evolutionary Study of the Violets of North America."

Objectives of the investigation are to discover the relationships of the violets to each other and to determine their evolutionary history.

The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases of Dennison told the Executive council he wants to organize a Council of Presidents of the various scholastic and extra-curricular councils on campus. These councils include Inter-Fraternity, Panhellenic, Inter-Hall, Engineers, Religious, Foreign Language, and Education.

The student president said he would meet with the council presidents monthly to find out their ideas on student government and to determine what services the students want from the Associated Students. Dennison said, however, that "no concrete steps" have been taken yet to form the council.

First Vice-President Les Miller repeated one of his campaign pledges stating he will meet each semester with each of the constituencies represented in the student senate.

The plans came during an overtime Executive council meeting devoted to hearing student agency reports on their plans for this year. Reports included:

Associated Women Students President Nancy Weigle reported that AWS conducted panels in the women's dormitories during freshman week to acquaint new students with AWS and student government.

Future plans include more panels, the AWS Star Formal on Nov. 19, and the annual blood drive.

Associated Men Students — President John Sampson noted that AMS sponsored the usual list of freshman activities, and the lighting of the "A" before the football game. This year's plans include study of an AMS court system similar to the AWS system. The AMS Civil Defense committee is now sponsoring a display in the MU.

Sahuaro's Future Still Uncertain

Plans for publication of the 1961 Sahuaro are uncertain despite the fact that subscriptions have been sold for two weeks.

Executive Manager Dick Finley reported that ASU Vice-President Gilbert Cady said the university does not want to publish the book. Thus, the annual would remain under the Associated Students if it is published.

Finley reported that 2000 yearbooks were sold this past year, and a $2000 loss resulted. So far this year, 1500 Sahuaros have been sold, as compared to only 1300 at this time last year.

The executive manager said that the pre-sale of Sahuaros this year was to determine if the students were still interested in the yearbook. "The heavy early sales show they do want the Sahuaro continued," Finley said.

Finley said that the Audio-Visual department will edit and produce the Sahuaro this year if it is published. If it is decided not to publish the yearbook, advance payments will be refunded.

With the new flag on the front page, the State Press presents a new feature in this issue intended to stimulate reader participation.

"IMPLICATIONS" will be patterned after the Phoenix Gazette's "Spooky Sez."

Readers noticing items or incidents on campus, not worthy of an involved letter to the editor, are encouraged to drop a note to "IMPLICATIONS," c/o State Press.

Since the beginning of the semester, the southeast corner of College & Orange has been decorated with one member of Campus Security. He stands there hour after hour, with gun, Sam Browne belt and citation pad — guarding what?

Frosh Gals Play Host

Approximately 100 girls attended the first Freshmen Hostess Committee meeting held Monday in the MU upper lounge.

The first activity to be undertaken by the committee will be information desk work, according to Mrs. Ellen Bell, sponsor and assistant director of the MU.

A tour of the MU is planned for the next meeting, Sept. 26, at 3:45 p.m.

Nurses Sworn Into Army

Three ASU student nurses were sworn into the Army Nurse's Training program Thursday by Col. Palmore A. Ferrell, professor of Military Science at ASU.

The three women, now in their junior year at ASU, are Sally M. Miklos, Barbara Gnau and Karen Larson.

Asked why they wanted to become army nurses, all three said they preferred traveling and working in different hospitals rather than remaining in one location. "Also," one of the girls declared, "the army has the best equipped hospitals in the world."

Commenting on her enlistment, Miss Gnau stated, "I have heard from many sources that this is the best experience a nurse can get." She also said she plans to write her masters thesis on "the army nurse."

Under the terms of the army training program, the students will receive $200 per month and will hold the rank of private until they graduate.

After receiving their diplomas and passing the state board examination, the three will be commissioned as 2nd lieutenants in the Nurse's Corps.

Within three years army nurses usually hold the rank of captain with a salary of $495 per month.

Cheerleader Tryouts Open

Cheerleader tryouts will be in Goodwin stadium Sept. 28, at 4 p.m. One man and one woman will be selected.

Applications may be obtained at the MU information desk.

Council To Set Dates

Senate speaker Les Miller said that he expects permanent committee meeting times and places to be decided at a meeting of the Legislative Council today. The council is composed of the chairmen of the 10 standing committees.

The Speaker announced that the Membership and Elections committee will carefully consider all of President Dennison's appointments before recommending confirmation by the senate. Three additional appointments, not reported last week, are Les Miller and David Adamy to the Board of Publications, and Bobbie Taylor to the rules committee.

Miller named Jim Chilton to serve as Speaker protem in Miller's absence. Chilton, who also served in the senate last year, represents the Student Religious council.

Exec Council

(Continued from Page 1) announced that the Payson Leadership Workshop will be held Oct. 7-9. Walker said a screening program is now underway to send potential freshman and sophomore leaders to the conference.

Dennison commented that "the goal of leadership was far from reached in previous workshops." Walker will also investigate selecting a student "Personality of the Week".

Education board — Chairman Larry Ellis reported his board will attempt to operate the 3-subcommittee system set up by statute. Education board leaders, last year, attempted to merge the sub-groups into a unified board. Ellis said an organizational meeting will be held tomorrow. All interested students may attend.

Memorial Union board — Chairman Laird Simpson said that the MU board-sponsored freshman party was a success. Plans this year include investigation of possible expansion of the MU and publication of a MU policy booklet.

President Dennison asked about reports that MU board materials were missing "again." Simpson said that someone "put them back in the file Friday night."

Activities Co-ordination board — Activities VP John Summers said his group would co-operate with the MU board this year in furthering use of the MU. Other plans include Homecoming, with Mike Kreutz as chairman; Parent's Day in October, and Senior Day. Summers said that Registrar Alfred Thomas asked for student help on Senior Day this year.

Executive Manager — Dick Finley reported that graduate manager Frank Rispoli wants to move the student president's box closer to the 50-yard-line in order to relieve congestion in the area.

He also reported the ASASU marquee at the Sun Devil Hop Inn has been blank all summer and that only 160 copies are left to advertise student projects; that only 160 copies are left of the 6,000 handbooks printed.

EDITOR'S Scratchpad

"Tres chic!" "beautiful monstrosity!" "dissonance!" The above comments appeared in last Friday's edition of the State Press, as three columnists gave their opinions of the new Liberal Arts building.

Disagreement? Sure. But the State Press seeks to represent the views of the university, and when views diverge as greatly as do those on the L. A. building, columns are apt to follow suit. We hope that they consequently will represent your view as well as ours.

We've started receiving "Letters to the Editor" already, and are glad to see students have recovered sufficiently from the ordeal of registration to take an active interest in university life. In hopes that YOU will write to us, a reminder: Letters MUST bear a signature as well as the typewritten name, (names will be withheld upon request) and should be kept to one typed page or less (double spaced). The State Press will print letters as soon as space permits. Those from students, faculty and staff will be given space preference, although letters from "outsiders" are welcomed. In years past, letters have expressed only student views, almost without exception. We're looking forward to a year in which all factions of our "community" will take an active interest in, and exchange ideas, on all phases of campus life.

A few people have asked us why there was no editorial as such in last Friday's edition.

We feel that some subjects can more easily be handled in column form. So, we will continue to use either columns or editorials (or both), to present, praise or criticize anything and/or anybody, in the way we feel will do the most good for the university.

The International Communications of Journalism and Intellectual and Cultural History of Latin America classes shared an interesting hour Monday when Martin Houseman, UPI correspondent of Cuba, presented his version of events there.

How to win friends and influence people: Give parking tickets to visitors who park in the visitors' parking lot. The Campus police do it daily.

We're hoping to soon see a check-cashing service on campus. With the new activity cards, it should be a fairly safe venture — and it certainly would be a service to the students.

The new front-page flag was drawn by ASU artist Jack Haehl, who swears the building on the left is not the House of Usher, but Old Main. We're only sorry that beautiful old building had to be "modernized."

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:

In answer to he (or she) who so courageously left his letter unsigned when he complained about students complaining, I simply say, "Look about you." You will notice the greatly improved campus and facilities found here.

Suggestions are often voiced in form of complaint. Here you may refer to the Bill of Rights. After our nation's constitution was written, many of the states refused to sign and gave the reasons for this refusal quite bitterly. After their complaints, the first ten amendments were adopted. It is part of the American heritage to have freedom of speech and to recognize a failing of something.

To have the interest to speak out is good and healthy. Perhaps too, negative psychology is required that results may be obtained. I personally say "congratulations to those who voice disapproval," for most of the students do understand their privileges and are thankful for them. I think, like so many of the faculty and students, those who complain are trying to improve ASU even more.

To those who recognize many of the things we need, keep fighting for them even if you need to complain to get them.

LETTERS to the Editor

To the Editor:

"I will vote, will you?" This is the message on a small red, white, and blue tag worn by some who care about the privilege and responsibility of obtaining and maintaining sound government. I wonder how many of us feel this responsibility. We say: "But I am not yet old enough to vote" or, "I have too much school work to do to get involved in politics," or, "Politics is a nasty business. I don't want any part of it." But reflect a moment on this question: Who is going to lead our government if educated people are not interested in it? We can be certain that someone will. Can we students really afford to be so aloof? The answer seems obvious doesn't it?

But how can we find out about the intricacies of politics and what can we possibly do to help? Is there any hope of understanding politics?

The League of Women Voters, with offices in Phoenix, Scottsdale, and Mesa, is one group providing such valuable information to the voting citizen. This volunteer, non-partisan, national organization has as its main goal, encouraging "informed and active participation in government." Here is a source we can turn to in our plight.

The LWV has many inexpensive or free pamphlets which are both brief and informative. Among them are: "For the Voting Citizen" which gives the where, when, and why of voting along with some information on political party organization; "The Role of Political Parties U.S.A." — an enlightening essay containing an interesting message for we pseudo-intellectual voters; an informative article titled "New Directions in U.S. Foreign Economic Policy" from the Headline Series (a subject we might well be better informed about these days); and, two small pamphlets titled "The State of Arizona" and "Know Your County" in which are listed the duties, salaries, etc. of the various political offices and other facts about local government.

There are other ways of getting information about these questions, e.g. by attending the meeting of the Young Democrats or Young Republicans right here on campus. In fact, the latter will meet Thursday at 2:30 in the upper lounge of the MU. Supporters of both sides should be informed about all the candidates. This might be a good way to get started.

As students we have a special opportunity to acquire the knowledge and skills so important to government. With this opportunity comes increased responsibility to use this knowledge wisely. The LWV sums up our task like this: "While few people would call themselves 'professional' politicians, every citizen is inescapably involved in politics. As a citizen, you can do something about your government, either to keep it good or make it good. When you do this, you're a politician . . . and you can be proud of it."

Larry P. Nims

To the Editor:

Apparently the Army does not believe in reading the manuals that they issue to their cadets. If these Brass Hats will trouble themselves to clean the cobwebs off of these manuals, and then do the amazing feat of opening it to page 74, paragraph 77, (a,1), they will read, ". . . The flag is attached to the halyards and at the proper time raised rapidly to the top of the staff. (AR 600-25) . . ."

Now will someone explain, why, at the football games, it requires the full length of the national anthem to have the flag ". . . raised rapidly to the top of the staff. . . ?"

LETTERS to the Editor

Good Question!

To the Editor:

What is wrong with this school anyway? In the State Press it was stated that students wear burmuda shorts, blouses, and tennis shoes. Well, I, for one was all for it. Saturday night my date arrived to pick me up. I was attired in the above mentioned clothes. But I was not allowed to wear them out of the dorm to the game. That is to say that I had to go back to my room and change clothes before I could leave the premises. The head resident informed me that only the men on campus could wear the burmudas, etc.

Now, all I want to know is how come?

I will say that I did manage to dress casually for the game but not as casually as I would have. And I may add that it was the first game that I had attended here in casual dress since I have gone to this institution. I have gone to ASU for three years and the football games that I have attended have been, more or less, (mostly more) one big fashion show. All the girls dressed in heels, hose, and cocktail attire. Who are they trying to impress? Everyone is more interested in what Suzie is wearing than in the game.

It is not biased opinion that if more casual dress was introduced to our football games there would be more spirit (And I dare say that a display of healthy college-school spirit would be more appropriate at the games than having to listen to wardrobe criticism).

We have a football team, a good one, and I think that they should be supported. So let's get rid of ASU's fashion show and instigate some spirit.

How 'bout it?

Name Withheld

(Editor's note. Maybe they would rather the girls change clothes on the football field.)

To the Editor:

The opening of the new Liberal Arts building on the ASU campus was to many a great boon. It contains approximately 40 classrooms, and assuming that each classroom has somewhere near 30 students we can come to the crux of the problem.

At the peak hours there are around 1,000 students trying to enter and leave the building at the same time. This would not cause too much of a commotion except that they are all trying to do this by the same staircase.

In designing the building two staircases were planned, one at either end of the lobby. However, when the building was opened for general use, only one of the staircases was in functional condition. Thus one asks, "why?"

Also, since the building is not yet complete, why must teachers and students be tormented by the low noise level in various classes. Could not the students have suffered without the building for a little while and have had the wonderful pleasure of entering a completely finished building.

Drama Workshop Tryouts Open With "The Rivalry"

Tryouts for the ASU Drama Workshop will be at Payne auditorium, Sept. 21 and 22 from 2:30-5 p.m. and from 7-9 p.m. Payne auditorium is located at 10th Street and Myrtle Ave. behind Cosner auditorium. Anyone interested in working on any phase of the productions may attend.

The Drama department will open the season Oct. 4, with "The Rivalry," a play based on the historic Lincoln-Douglas debates. Other productions are scheduled for November and December.

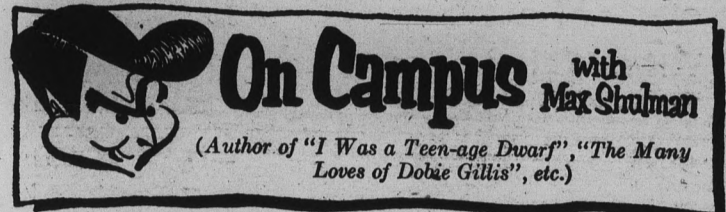

CROWDED . . . conditions at the Liberal Arts building will be alleviated when a second staircase is completed. Meanwhile, entering and exiting students crash head-on.

New Justices Announced

Student Body President Karl Dennison announced the appointment of Dave Emerson and Larry Miller as Associate Justices of the Student Court this week.

The new members join Chief Justice Fred Koory and Associate Justices Pete Koelsch and Margaret Williams on the five-member court.

All of the appointments must be confirmed by the student senate.

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH, DEAR FRIENDS

Today, if I am a little misty, who can blame me? For today I begin my seventh year of writing columns for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes.

Seven years! Can it be possible? It seems only yesterday I walked into the Marlboro offices, my knickers freshly pressed, my cowlick wetted down, my oilcloth pencil box clutched in my tiny hand. "Sirs," I said to the makers of Marlboro—as handsome an aggregation of men as you will find in a month of Sundays, as agreeable as the cigarettes they make—mild yet hearty, robust yet gentle, flip-top yet soft pack—"Sirs," I said to this assemblage of honest tobaccoists, "I have come to write a column for Marlboro Cigarettes in college newspapers across the length and breadth of this great free land of America."

We shook hands then—silently, not trusting ourselves to speak—and one of the makers whipped out a harmonica and we sang sea chanties and bobbed for apples and played "Run, Sheep, Run," and smoked good Marlboro Cigarettes until the campfire had turned to embers.

"What will you write about in your column?" asked one of the makers whose name is Trueblood Strongheart.

"About the burning issues that occupy the lively minds of college America," I replied. "About such vital questions as: Should the Student Council have the power to levy taxes? Should proctors be armed? Should coeds go out for football?"

"And will you say a kind word from time to time about Marlboro Cigarettes," asked one of the makers whose name is Honor Bright.

"Why, bless you, sirs," I replied, chuckling silverly, "there is no other kind of word except a kind word to say about Marlboro Cigarettes—the filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste—that happy combination of delicious tobacco and exclusive selectrate filter—that loyal companion in fair weather or foul—that joy of the purest ray serene."

There was another round of handshakes then and the makers squeezed my shoulders and I squeezed theirs and then we each squeezed our own. And then I hid me to my typewriter and began the first of seven years of columning for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes.

And today as I find myself once more at my typewriter, once more ready to begin a new series of columns, perhaps it would be well to explain my writing methods. I use the term "writing methods" advisedly because I am, above all things a methodical writer. I do not wait for the muse; I work every single day of the year, Sundays and holidays included. I set myself a daily quota and I don't let anything prevent me from achieving it. My quota, to be sure, is not terribly difficult to attain (it is, in fact, one word per day) but the important thing is that I do it every single day. This may seem to you a grueling schedule but you must remember that some days are relatively easy—for example, the days on which I write "the" or "a". On these days I can usually finish my work by noon and can devote the rest of the day to happy pursuits like bird-walking, monopoly, and smoking Marlboro Cigarettes.

The makers of Marlboro are happy to bring you another year of Max Shulman's free-wheeling, uncensored column—and are also happy to bring Marlboro Cigarettes, and for non-After smokers—mild, flavorful Philip Morris.

ASU Gets Grants

(Continued from Page 1) The U.S. Health Service, has awarded ASU a one-year research grant for an investigation into the effect of salicylates (such as aspirin) on immunity against an animal microbe that lives in the bloodstream of rats.

Dr. Elery R. Becker, chief investigator for the project and professor of parasitology at ASU, said, "The ultimate goal of such an investigation is to learn more about which influences will favor multiplication

The General Electric Computer Department has presented a $2500 honors program in engineering to ASU to assist computer engineering students during the 1960-61 school year.

This year's grant brings to $9,000 the total amount presented to ASU by the computer department for this purpose since the honors program in engineering was started in 1957.

Student Government 'Best' In Country

By GARY PETER KLAHR

Student government at ASU is like an iceberg — you know it is there, but only a little bit shows above the surface.

In an effort to acquaint ASU students with the importance and everyday functions of their student government, the State Press is expanding its coverage of the Associated Students this year. We will make an effort to report on every significant development occurring in your student government.

The ASU student government is believed to be the only one of its kind in the U.S. In any event, there are few other universities where student government is developed to such a high degree. Under the three branches of the Associated Students — executive, legislative, and judicial — there are at least 21 separate offices, boards, committees, and agencies.

Student government, however, is not just a collection of constitutions, boards, and procedures. More important, student government tries to express the views of ASU students to the faculty, administration, and public. Student government tries to resolve those problems in which student are interested.

in the solution of two problems that have dominated the ASU scene since last year. One is student seating and possible gate fees at football games. Through the efforts of the student senate and student executive officers, the Board of Athletic Control decided this summer to give students preferred seating at football games and agreed not to charge a gate fee. On ROTC, student president Dennison is forming a committee and otherwise using his influence to persuade state officials that voluntary ROTC will result in a better ROTC.

Through this column and our regular reports, we will endeavor to report both highlights and the sidelights of our student government. We are planning a "personality-of-the-week" series, in which the student body can become acquainted with the background and goals of their student leaders. We welcome suggestions for possible personality profile selections.

Another feature of this column will depend upon student interest. Any student who has a question or complaint about the activities of student government is invited to send a letter to me at the State Press. Drop the note in the campus mail, or bring it down to our office in the MU basement. You do not have to sign your name. All complaints will be investigated by our staff, and all questions will be answered by the proper student officials. Thus, students can use our columns to improve the effectiveness of their student government.

Soph Men's Honorary Seeks New Pledges

Applications are being taken for membership into Alpha Mu Sigma, sophomore men's honorary fraternity.

Selection is based on scholarship, character, courtesy, personal appearance, dependability, service to the school and leadership.

A cumulative scholarship index of 2.25 is required of applying sophomores, Jim Crosby, president, said. Eleven men will be added to the service honorary this year.

Applications are available at the Associated Men Students office, MU 204; or from Jack Ong, one of five juniors now serving as advisors to the group, in MU 8.

Present members of Alpha Mu Sigma will meet in MU 210 Monday at 6 p.m.

Communism Topic on TV

"You can't start early enough in teaching students about the theories and dangers of Communism," commented Dr. Heinz Hink, ASU assistant professor of Political Science, last week.

Hink appeared with Dr. James Leonard, assistant professor of Political Science, on the "Arizona Roundtable" television show Sunday night. The two professors, along with Col. Francis O'Keefe, discussed the dangers of Communist subversion and infiltration.

"The U.S. is basically committed to the truth, and the truth can't hurt," Hink said. "I have had extensive experience talking about Communism to the graduates of the Marx-Lenin Institute in Moscow. Compared to these Communists, westerners are poorly equipped to debate their beliefs."

Leonard warned about possible danger to civil liberties from some of the anti-Communist measures advocated by Col. O'Keefe. "This anti-Communist movement will weaken the country by making people suspect each other," Leonard charged.

It was sad...

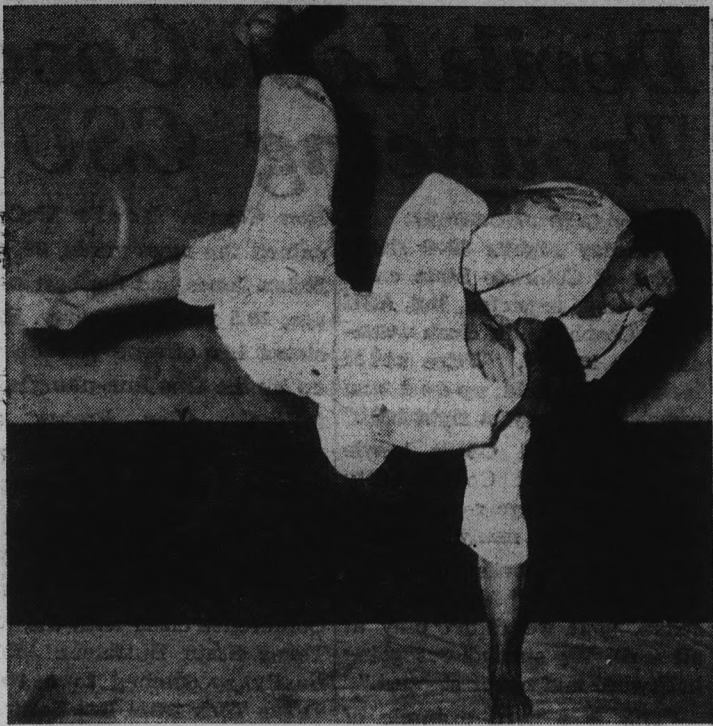

when that great ship went down and the last thing to leave the sinking ship was a bottle of Coca-Cola. That's because all hands stuck to Coke to the end. Now there's popularity! That's the kind of loyalty the sparkling lift, the good taste of Coke engenders. Man the lifeboats, have a Coke!

PICKING UP YARDAGE . . . ASU's Ron Cosner scoots for a gain against Colorado State Saturday night. Cosner carried four times for 23 yards and completed three of seven passes for 58 yards and two touchdowns. Number 78 is Ram tackle Leo Reed.

Devils Look Good Trouncing CSU

By BOB JACOBSEN

Saturday night's 39-0 shellacking of Colorado State came easier than expected, but ASU Head Coach Frank Kush warned fans hastily, "We're still lacking backfield speed and punch, especially at right half."

Kush praised CSU's hustle and spirit, but Coach Tuffy Mullison's largely-sophomore team made too many mistakes.

"The Sun Devils moved us well in the line," Mullison conceded, "but we didn't play at all well. We started out going backward and never stopped."

"This is a good example of what experience can do, and the Sun Devils used it. We made a lot of sophomore mistakes. It'll take us a while to get going as a team."

Kush also lauded the Sun Devil line play and was particularly high on guard Dick Locke, tackle George Flint, and center John Vucichevich, who injured his back and was carried off on a stretcher after tackling a ball carrier head-on.

The victory was strictly a team effort with five Devils scoring, three on passes from quarterbacks Joe Zuger and Ron Cosner. Ossie McCarty gained the most yards, 99, and Nolan Jones had the best average, 10.5 yards per carry. Kush stated his offense was opened up by the fine line-plunging of fullbacks Clay Freney and Dornel Nelson. He was also pleased over the showing of his ends.

The Devils travel to Canyon, Texas Saturday for a Border Conference clash with the West Texas State Buffaloes. WTSC finally succumbed to a tough Texas Tech team last Saturday night after holding them to only a two touchdown lead most of the game.

After two straight 1-9 seasons, the Buffs are rebuilding with 16 returning lettermen, including 26 juniors, 13 sophomores, and only nine seniors. New Head Coach Joe Kerbel, outstanding in Texas prep circles, brings along a new pro type offense with him. Men to watch are Jones Hedrick, second leading rusher in 1959; Jerry Logan, spring drill sensation at halfback, and linemen Bill Bradley and Gary Ward.

Vucichevich, Jones Named Top Players

Halfback Nolan Jones and center John Vucichevich, ASU's 1960 football co-captains, were selected Players of the Week by the Sun Devil coaching staff for their performances in the Colorado State game.

Jones, second among major college scorers last year, scored a touchdown, booted a field goal and made four out of four conversion attempts to pick up 13 points. He also topped both teams in average yards per carry with 84 yards in eight tries for a 10.5 mark.

Vucichevich played his usual standout game, picking up seven defensive points and continually opening holes in the center of the Colorado State line. He was injured in the second half of the contest although not seriously.
