MORE JAZZ AT ASU — The Mitchell-Ruff Trio, jazz artists who have been acclaimed abroad and in America as "most deft," "masters of their art" and "jazz experts," appear in their first Southwest concert here next Friday. The trio plays in the MU Ballroom Nov. 17 at 8:15 p.m., as part of the Concert and Lecture Series.

Students Polled -

There Won't Be A World War III

Approximately half the students at ASU believe the United States will not get into another world war within the next five years, a recent student opinion poll revealed.

More than one-third of the students felt the United States will get into a world war within five years, and almost one student in ten has no opinion, according to the poll.

The poll was taken by senior Journalism and Radio-TV majors in a news problems course at ASU. In preparation, they calculated the percentage of freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors, the ratio of men to women and other basic criteria, then constructed a sample so that approximately 500 interviews would reflect the same student enrollment profile.

The time period for the survey was 24-hours, from Wednesday noon to Thursday noon, Oct. 25 and 26.

The survey further showed that almost two-thirds of the students read world news in newspapers daily, better than half received world news from magazines weekly, almost one-third received the news from television and almost three-fourths of the students followed world news on the radio every day.

United States would be in a world war within five years gave as reasons the Berlin and Laos crises. During the 24-hour period in which the survey was taken, the Berlin crisis had not yet eased, and the reports from Laos were top headline news.

Those students who thought that we wouldn't be at war within five years, felt that a world war would eventually come. They thought the United States would get into a world war in twenty years, twenty-five years or some time in the future.

Freshman and juniors, sophomores and seniors, men and women, varied enough in their answers to cancel any pattern based on class or sex.

However, the poll revealed one trend: the more advanced the student, the less likely he was to say "yes" to the question: "Do you think we are likely to get into another world war in the next five years?"

Students who thought the

A kangaroo court will be on hand to sentence any student not in western attire, during Arizona State's annual Western Week, scheduled Nov. 27-Dec. 3, according to Gary Nichols, Western Week committee chairman.

Events for the week will include a rodeo, fashion show, queen contest, barbeque, western dance and beard contest.

The queen will be crowned at the barbeque and will reign with her attendants over the week's activities as well as over the ASU Inter-collegiate Rodeo Dec. 2 and 3.

Queen applicants will be judged 50 percent on horsemanship and 50 percent on poise, personality and appearance.

Judging for horsemanship is planned for Nov. 17; remaining judging will follow Saturday morning. Horses will be available at tryouts.

Interested coeds can register at dormitories, the Memorial Union or at Ag 202.

Entrants in the beard contest can start signing up Monday on the patio adjacent to the Devils Den and University Bookstore, Nichols stated.

The judging date has not been decided. There will be three categories in the judging.

The Western Week dance will be Dec. 1 in the MU ballroom at 8 p.m.

Ray Sander's band, recording artists, will provide music.

Deadline Reminder

Alfred Thomas, Jr., registrar and director of admissions, reminds students planning to graduate in June, 1962, of the filing application deadline, Wednesday.

Each student, to obtain application for graduation, must pay a $5 fee to the cashier in the ASU Business Office. Those filing after the deadline will be charged an additional $5.

Peace Corps Interest High

"Students have shown a keen interest in the United States Peace Corps," said Dr. Dale D. Clark, field representative for the corps.

Dr. Clark visited the ASU campus Monday and Tuesday to answer student inquiries concerning the Peace Corps.

Dr. Clark, who received his Ph.D. in Political Science at Harvard, previously worked with the International Volunteer Service.

IVS was a private agency of 200 volunteers stationed in nine countries which offered educational aid to underprivileged countries. It finally incorporated into the Peace Corps.

"The corps is experiencing a 'rapid build-up,'" said Dr. Clark. "It now numbers 750, and by June there will be over 2000 in foreign duty or in training," Dr. Clark added.

The minimum age for joining the corps is 18, but there is no maximum. The average age is 23.

The corps places an emphasis on "skill," and not degrees, according to Dr. Clark. Students interested in joining must fill out a questionnaire and send it to the Peace Corps. A written exam can be taken Nov. 28-29 at the Federal building in Phoenix.

Pay Lockers Discussed By President's Cabinet

Installation of pay lockers in the MU for student use was discussed Wednesday at the third meeting of the ASASU President's Cabinet.

"This plan," said Jim Chilton, ASASU vice-president, "would remedy the inconvenience to students who must carry an excess of textbooks to every class. The lockers will also insure the safety of student valuables."

This plan was prompted by the increased number of reported thefts of student materials.

ASASU President Gary Walker announced a $195 gift from the Athletic department to send students to El Paso for the ASU-Texas Western football game. The gift will permit 17 bandmen, 8 pom-pom girls, 6 cheerleaders and 2 sponsors to attend the game.

In evaluating the recent Payson workshop, cabinet member Linda Warren said, "Speakers invited to Payson should emphasize suggestions for leadership to the students. They should be selected only on this basis."

A plan allowing students to pay tuition on a monthly basis

R & T Members Making Plans For UofA Game

The Rally and Traditions Board met this week to discuss plans for events preceding the ASU-UofA football game on Nov. 25.

Events scheduled include a streetwalk, pep rally, bonfire and dance at the Tempe Center on Nov. 21.

A car parade will be organized on campus during the afternoon of Nov. 25. After leaving the ASU grounds, it will make its way through Phoenix, with stops for rallies planned at various spots along the way and at the UofA headquarters.

Bob Frend, chairman of the board, stated that free confetti and megaphones will be distributed immediately before game

'Sagebrush Surgeon' Helps Health Center

Dr. Clarence Grant Salsbury, nationally known as "The Sagebrush Surgeon," is currently serving on the staff of the ASU Health Center.

Born in Ontario, Canada, Dr. Salsbury graduated from Boston

College for Physicians and Surgeons in 1913. In 1914, he went to Hainan, China, where he served as a medical missionary until 1927. He then began work among the Navajo Indians in Ganado, Arizona, and established the Sage Memorial Hospital, which at that time was the best equipped Indian hospital in the United States. Under his influence, the first nursing school for American Indians was also built.

Before coming to ASU, Dr. Salsbury was State Commissioner of Health.

Are We Worth It?

By LENNIE YOLDI

Would you rather be red than dead?

Such a question sounds fantastic. There are many more pleasant concerns to occupy the mind. Will the fall styles look good on me? Will the 1962 cars resemble prehistoric dinosaurs as they have in the past? Will the Sun Devils defeat the Wildcats? These preoccupations are, indeed, nicer than the alternatives between death and slavery.

But this question eventually must be answered. No one need be a history expert to know that wars and revolutions are frequent destroyers of nations. Ever since the caveman realized that the club in his hand gave him power over his fellows, countries have tried to conquer other countries. The only difference is that the club has grown larger.

Hence, throughout history, people have been forced to defend their cultures or surrender them. From early Babylonia to present-day Tibet, societies have withstood or have succumbed to imperialism.

Communism is the leading imperialistic power in the 20th century. Through military agreements concluded after the last war and by political subversion, Marxists have advanced to their objective of world domination. Berlin, as President Kennedy said last July, is only another step in this march. The trouble did not originate in Berlin, it originated in Moscow.

Some persons, well meaning to be sure, have criticized our official affirmation about remaining in Berlin, no matter what the cost. They question the sense of risking war merely because of one city. Surely some sort of accommodation is possible, they reasoned, on this issue.

But the Communist movement never has shown any accommodating attitude. Therefore, we sooner or later will reach the moment when a decision must be made — whether our culture is worth another war or whether enslavement is preferable. It will be a terrible decision, but it will be unique in the story of civilization.

By DR. G. R. ANDERSON
Dean of Men

Never let it be said that the job of dean of men is dull and uninteresting. No two days are alike and the word "routine" is not a part of our vocabulary. Many personnel deans could easily write a book about some of the students they've met and some of the experiences they have had.

If such a book were to be written, we would definitely have to mention the student-type which we call the "legalist." This person is always very precise in his words and actions and he knows the LAVS of the country, county and college better than most of the staff.

For example, if the "legalist" is given a traffic ticket, he is apt to quote the case of John Smith vs. the State of Nebraska as his defense. This requires the dean to hastily consult a Law book to see just exactly what he means. I am not trying to be critical of the approach since it does keep us all on our toes.

I encountered one such legalist while assistant dean of men at Northwestern University. This young man was found studying by flashlight while sitting on the roof of a dormitory elevator. How he managed to get up there, I'll never really understand. Since there was no University regulation against sitting on roofs of elevators, we had a difficult time persuading him to come down.

Only when we appealed to his sense of safety, did he relinquish his post. (He finally realized that if the car were to move up to the top floor — he would be in a tight squeeze.)

Still another type of student that keeps our work interesting and alive, is the person whom we refer to as the "idea man." He is always full of pep and enthusiasm! Again, Northwestern gives us another example.

Since the local restaurants close their doors relatively early in Evanston, one student contracted to buy a large barge-like boat and convert it into a floating food and beverage service.

This cruiser was to be moored far out in Lake Michigan and serviced by row boats from the shore. Though the administration questioned this venture on educational grounds, it seemed to be a basic question of Maritime Law. The problem, however, solved itself nicely when the young man lost his option on the barge.

There seems to be a problem that is far too common among college students. And this is a sense of general disorganization among many students concerning their academic work.

Much of my time as dean of men is spent advising students as to their study schedule and general work habits. If more students were able to plan each day in an orderly fashion and resist the temptation to put off until tomorrow what should be done immediately, there would certainly be less distress and confusion at mid-term and final examination time.

Intramural Intellectualism

Groundwork is being plotted for an extremely worthwhile project: the "College Quiz Bowl"-type program under ASASU President Gary Walker's Intramural Intellectualism plan.

Meetings are being conducted each Tuesday by a group of eight students and their advisor, a segment of the Student-Faculty Relations board.

Purpose of the panels is to encourage scholastic competition between campus organizations in an effort to stimulate serious thinking, intelligent conversation and reasoning.

If successful, Intramural Intellectualism will definitely have a part in raising the academic standard of Arizona State. Designed after the General Electric television program (Sunday, 3:30 p.m., CBS Channel 10), plans are being formulated to start the question-answer sessions as soon as possible, Barbara Sprinkle, chairman, noted.

A suggestion from Bob Reed, student body president at the University of Arizona, to Walker entertained the idea of having a "battle of the brains" at the end of the year, with competition between outstanding contestants of each campus.

But first things first. Let's start these panels as soon as we are able. They're what this campus has needed and lacked for many years.

Congratulations and good luck.

On To El Paso

Our cheerleaders, pep band and pom-pom girls will bring ASU spirit to El Paso this weekend at the Texas Western game.

Their trip is being made possible by the Board of Financial Control, which put forth money from the contingent fund, and the Athletic Department, which donated $195.

The money for their trip is being well spent: there are two or three thousand Sun Devil fans in that part of Texas. The good will and publicity resulting from our representation certainly won't be worthless.

Tomorrow night's conference match will probably draw many of you from campus. We take this opportunity to urge you all: Drive with caution.

Letters To The Editor

Three Comments

To the Editor:

Three comments on the contents of the Nov. 8 State Press.

1. Tom Harter, shown on Page 5, was not admiring his "first prize winning painting." Professor Harter has taken prizes on and off in the Valley for years. It should have read his "First Prize winning painting."

2. Apropos of the "Staunch Supporter" letter from Mr. James, we knew that it was an ill wind that blew nobody good.

3. Apropos of Mr. Svob's "Fertilizer" letter, we know that periodic layers of this noxious manure are necessary. However, they would not be, if grass cuttings and shed leaves were just allowed to lie on the soil and re-enrich it. This would not only cut out the stink but would save fertilizer money, the labor of spreading the manure, and the labor of raking up leaves and grass cuttings.

In addition, the soil would be appreciably lightened by the addition of this steady laying down — at no cost — of odorless vegetable humus.

The periodic raking out of the "dead" roots of Bermuda and other grasses also de-enriches our clay soil.

Southwestern lawn care calls for the above practices, if a good lawn, especially at a minimum cost of money and odor, is desired.

How To Get Something Done

To the Editor:

For the Table Soccer Players, I hope the table is repaired soon. However, there are several reasons why it has not been fixed yet.

1. The petition was not addressed to me; it has not crossed my desk.

2. Mr. Oliver White, program director of the MU, is the person who would handle matters to do with property belonging to the Games Room.

3. Repair of tables is not, under any circumstances, classified as business of Associated Students or the Social committee.

4. ASASU offices do not have a circular file.

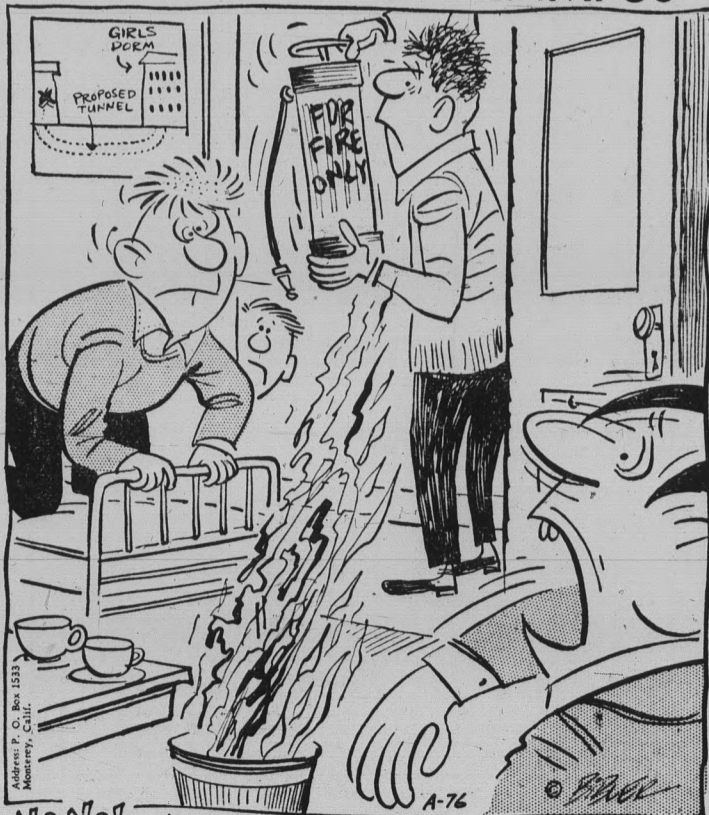

5. Any business falling under the Associated Students' jurisdiction is done promptly.

If you had come to me with your grievance instead of going to the State Press, I could have referred you to the right channels.

Do drop by.

Foreign Students, Teachers To Visit ASU Next Week

Nine youth leaders from Senegal, West Africa, and three secondary school educators from Afghanistan, South Asia, will visit ASU during next week.

Those leaders from Senegal will arrive Monday, accompanied by two French speaking interpreters from the U.S. State Department. Most of these youths are in the ministries of their government: justice, defense or student exchange.

This group plans to view American life, but mainly the agricultural aspect. They will leave Nov. 18 for San Francisco.

The Afghans are sponsored by the U.S. Government. They wish to spend most of their visit observing the educational and agricultural environments.

One member of this company will speak before the International Affairs Club, Nov. 16 in the MU. Any one of the delegates may speak before a class organization, upon request.

Debate To Hinge On Disarmament

ASU's William Penn Fellowship will sponsor a debate, "Is Unilateral Disarmament Possible?" Monday at 8 p.m., in MU 218A.

Debaters are Ross Flanagan, who served as director of the World Affairs Institute and as national vice-president of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations and Dr. Bruce Mason, ASU professor of Political Science and director of the Bureau of Government Research.

Dr. Thornton Price, professor of Mechanical Engineering, will serve as moderator.

Ceramic Works Now On Display

Ceramic works valued at approximately $900 by their creator, Thomas Ferreira, are being displayed this week at ASU.

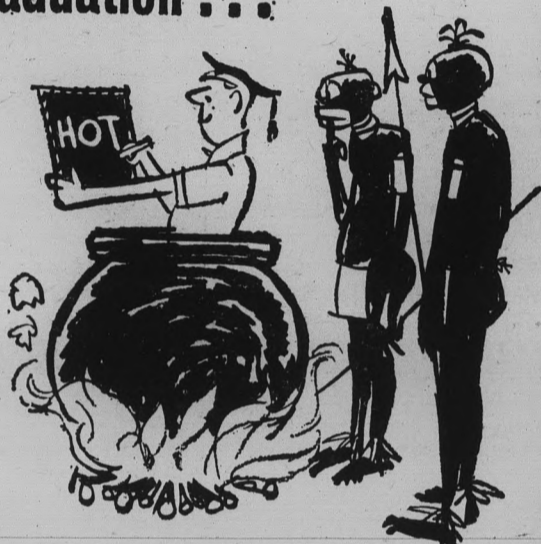

The collection of 48 pieces, ranging in price from $125 to $1,500, can be seen in the MU and in the Art department. Most valuable is a $125 spherical pot, with an unglazed thorny texture, which stands 22½ inches high. It is in the trophy case near the MU information desk.

Three Join New ASU Grid Club

A new system of singling out players who have made key contributions to the Sun Devils' football success, has been devised by the ASU coaching staff.

Coach Frank Kush and his staff have originated what they call the D-E-V-I-L Club and ASU players can become members in several different ways.

A letter is earned by such means as intercepting a pass, recovering a fumble, causing an opposition fumble resulting in an ASU recovery, blocked kicks, tackles inside the 20 on a kick-off, two or more blocks on one play and several other similar ways.

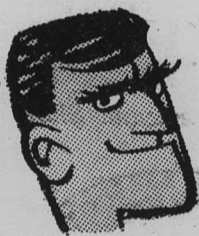

Three ASU players are members of the club following the Sun Devils' game with San Jose State last Saturday. They are quarterback Joe Zuger and ends Roger Locke and Dale Keller.

Zuger became a member with five interceptions. Locke joined the club with two blocked extra points, a blocked punt and two tackles inside the 20 on kickoffs. Keller earned his spot with three blocked extra points, an interception and a fumble recovery.

Senior halfback Nolan Jones needs only an "L" to become a member of the elite club. Two other halfbacks, sophomore Charlie Taylor and senior Ossie McCarty, need two more letters before they join the group.

Zuger, in addition to being a charter member in the D-E-V-I-L Club, has booted Arizona State to the top spot in the nation in punting.

The ASU eleven has averaged 42.4 yards per punt, all of them by Zuger.

BOB VIEWS SPORTS NEWS

Arizona Boys Are Noticed

By BOB EGER
Sports Editor

Arizona's college athletes are starting to get a little more of the recognition they deserve.

This past week center Bob Garis of the University of Arizona received honorable mention for Associated Press national lineman of the week following his spirited play against Wyoming last Saturday.

And Wildcat quarterback Eddie Wilson was named in the balloting for AP back of the week because of his fine showing in the Wyoming game. It was the third time this fall that Wilson has been mentioned.

ASU has been getting its share of the glory too. We were pleasantly surprised a couple of days ago to open one of the pre-season national basketball magazines and find it liberally sprinkled with pictures of Sun Devils.

Larry Armstrong is there, in a full page action shot, and so is Ollie Payne occupying a full page. There are also pictures of Tony Cerkvenik, Dennis Dairman and Joe Caldwell.

Varsity cage coach Ned Wulk has been busily preparing his charges to take over the ASU athletic limelight as soon as the din from the ASU-UofA football contest has subsided. That classic grid battle is only two weeks away and only three weeks in the future is the opening of the cage season.

Even though Wulk's cup of cage material runneth over, so does the caliber of his opposition. The Devils open at home on Dec. 1 against St. Michael's College in a "warmup" game for one of the biggest battles of the year the next night — Utah.

The rugged Redskins, featuring a guy named Bill "The Hill" McGill, eliminated the Sun Devils from the NCAA championship tourney in the Western Regional finals last year.

The next weekend brings two more national powers into Sun Devil Gym. Oregon, who the Devils split two games with last year, plays here Saturday, Dec. 9 and Kansas invades the Valley of the Sun on Monday, Dec. 11.

Sounds like a pretty tough early-season schedule huh? Well get this — the Devils then take to the road and within a week's time play New Mexico, Indiana, Minnesota and Utah again.

That, fans, is a lot of roundball.

AN UNPAID TESTIMONIAL

Richard the Lion-Hearted says:

I would never have surrendered England ...if I'd had Jockey support

C'mon, Dick! You're rationalizing. Jockey support might never have secured you against the Emperor. But it certainly would have provided snug protection against the physical stresses and strains of your active life. Your armorer never tailored a coat of mail more knowingly than Jockey tailors a brief — from 13 separate, body-conforming pieces.

1. Other "imitation" briefs (copies of the original Jockey brand) have no more Jockey support than a limp loin cloth.
2. Richard the Lion-Hearted, 1157-99, surrendered England and a huge ransom to secure his release from Henry VI.

Devils Face Furman

Miners' Quarterback One Of Best In College Ranks

By BOB JACOBSEN

"I'll put it this way, he would be an All-American for sure if he played in the Southwest Conference."

These were the words of Head Football Coach Frank Kush after being asked his opinion of Texas Western's great quarterback John Furman, whom his Sun Devils face Saturday night in El Paso, Texas.

"He's a better passer than Terry Baker of Oregon State and also a better all around player," Kush went on to say.

Furman, who in 1959 as a sophomore was rated the Border Conference's Most Valuable Player, has played outstanding ball this campaign and has been almost singlehandedly responsible for the Miners' three victories to date.

He currently ranks in the top five in the country in total offense, having completed 64 of 139 passes for 734 yards (first in the BC), and rushed for 268 yards in 61 carries, a 4.4 yard per carry average which ranks him seventh in the loop. His punting is good enough for third place in the conference behind ASU's leading Joe Zuger.

His chief receivers are end Ralph Kennedy with 13 grabs for 211 yards and one TD, halfback Del Williams, who ranked third in the country last year in pass receiving, and has 10 catches for 56 yards and three TD's, and halfback Andy Springer with nine snares for 102 yards.

Fullback Don Boyce leads the Miners in rushing with 428 yards in 106 tries for a 4.0 yard per carry average and also paces TWC in scoring with 24 points.

Sophomore fullback Mitch Siskowski of the Devils is expected to see a considerable amount of action Saturday night as Dornel Nelson and Clay Freney, Kush's two first-string fullbacks, both are ailing. Nelson will probably be out with a wrenched knee along with end Roger Locke, who has a slight shoulder separation.

NINTH NATIONALLY
ASU is ninth nationally in football scoring.
