Myers Outlines Grammar Need

By BILL DEWHURST

A necessity for an entirely different kind of grammar has been obvious for some time.

Emphasizing these words as an essential background to the significance and meaning of his talk, Dr. Louis M. Myers, ASU professor of English, discussed the serious flaws in traditional English grammar in his lecture on "The Revolution in Grammar" Wednesday.

DR. MYERS spoke before a group of students and adults assembled in the MU ballroom for the third lecture in the series being presented by the ASU Center for American Studies this semester.

"It is often assumed that the laws of grammar are eternal truths," he jokingly commented, "probably laid down on Mt. Sinai. Actually, though, the traditional framework of English grammar was not developed until the middle of the 18th century.

"Anthropological studies of the last 80 years have provided the necessary foundation for a more scientific approach," he continued. "The modern analysis is based on speech rather than writing . . . taking in account some important features neglected in earlier treatments."

THE PROFESSOR also pointed out that worthwhile attempts to study the structure of the basic spoken language on linguistic theories have been slow in developing, particularly during the last 15 years.

Marcus Whiffen, associate professor of architecture, will discuss "What is American About Frank Lloyd Wright's Architecture" in next week's Center for American Studies lecture.

Motorola VP To Talk Here

Dr. Daniel E. Noble, executive vice president of Motorola Inc., will be the featured speaker at the ASU Foundation's annual dinner March 21, according to J. C. Wetzler, president of the organization.

Noble will discuss "The Things I Don't Know About Anything" at the first Foundation dinner on the ASU campus.

A graduate of the University of Connecticut and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Noble has been a leader in committee activities of the Federal Communications Commission, the Radio Electronics Television Manufacturers Association and a fellow and director of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

He developed the battle-famous SCR-300 walkie-talkie unit, the major portable communication system of the Pacific campaign in World War II.

Basketball Team To Receive Wire

A drive is on to get 30,000 signatures for the good luck telegram to be dispatched to the Sun Devil basketball team in Eugene, Oregon, Monday.

The Rally and Traditions Board will meet in the MU lower lounge at 3 p.m. today to launch a contest for the most signatures.

The group or individual obtaining the most signatures, which sell for 10 cents each will receive a trophy on Basketball Appreciation Night. The date will be announced later.

So far, students have contributed 2,000 signatures and the Sun Angels have gathered 1,100 more.

Several Valley business groups, including the First National Bank, Tempe Daily News, Arizona Public Service and Valley National Bank are encouraging their employees and customers to participate in the campaign.

Students may sign the telegram at the MU information desk.

NCAA Tourney To Be Televised

Sun Devil fans will be able to follow their third-ranked, classy Devils as far as they go in the NCAA tournament beginning Monday evening.

The Devils' tourney games will be televised as long as they are in the tourney by KTAR, channel 12, according to the station's newscaster, Bob Vashay.

Kentucky Senator To Speak Here

U. S. Senator Thruston Morton (R-Ky) will address ASU students Monday morning at 9:40 in the MU upper lounge.

The ASU Forum will sponsor the Republican National Committee chairman's appearance, according to Marilyn Fullerton, forum publicity chairman.

The Kentucky senator will present a 15-20 minute address followed by a lengthy period of questions from the floor.

Senator Morton, serving his second term in the senate, is on the Finance Committee and Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. Besides serving as Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee chairman, he is on the party Policy Committee.

A native of Kentucky, Sen. Morton served in the national House of Representatives from 1947-52. He then served as Assistant Secretary of State under President Eisenhower from January, 1953 to March, 1956.

Senator Morton received the bachelor of arts degree from Yale University.

The ASU Forum series is not

Senate Protests Decision

The Student Senate has passed a resolution "to express its opposition" to the forthcoming fees increase, it has been announced.

The resolution, numbered S.R. 1, carries no legislative power but shows the dissatisfaction of the ASASU senate with the increase.

Starting in September, fees will be $115 per semester, rather than the $103.50 currently charge.

"The ASASU Student Senate," says the resolution, "wishes to express its opposition to this action . . . because any increase in this manner tends to discriminate against students who still must pay special fees in addition to the increased registration fee."

Progress Marks Founder's Day

Construction, grants, winning the Western Athletic Conference basketball championship and a raise in faculty salaries are a few of the events which have marked the progress of Arizona State University in the last year.

ASU President G. Homer Durham brought these points out in a statement in observance of Founder's Day next Tuesday.

Founder's Day will be observed in a convocation Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. in the MU ballroom.

This is President Durham's statement as released yesterday:

"Many things happen in the course of a year. Time and perspective are needed to judge the more significant events. At Arizona State University, situated as it is in the heart of the dynamic Phoenix metropolitan area, in the fastest growing state of the nation, it is especially difficult.

Since Founder's Day, March 12, 1962, one year ago, we may point to a number of events which may have eventual historic significance. Were I to attempt such a list, it could include the following:

"1. Groundbreaking of the Grady Gammage Memorial Auditorium on Wednesday, May 23, 1962.

"2. Approval by the Board of Regents at their meeting in Tucson, Friday, Nov. 23, 1962, of a $3.7 million library for the University.

"3. Establishment on Sept. 21, 1962, of the University Research Committee to consider awards of graduate research fellowships made available from the Arizona State University Foundation, to receive research proposals from the faculty members have subsequently been made this year.

"4. Establishment of modest financial support for the new Center for American Studies.

"5. Securing favorable action by the Board of Regents, Friday, May 18, 1962, to establish the faculty salary floors at Arizona State University equivalent to those at the University of Arizona.

"6. The addition to the University of outstanding scholars.

"7. Careful and thoughtful consideration by the Board of Regents of the objective of eventually securing for Arizona State University, the University of Arizona and Arizona State College at Flagstaff, parity with the salaries maintained by the Regents at the University of California — a long-range but highly significant objective in terms of Arizona's future.

"8. Effective cooperation with Governor Fannin's Industrial Development Committee, the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce and other groups in securing new industries for Arizona, with special credits due to the College of Engineering Sciences and the College of Business Administration.

"9. The successful passing on Monday, June 25, by Montrose Madison Wolf, candidate for the Ph.D. in the Department of Psychology, of the first final exam for the Ph.D. to be administered at Arizona State University (the degree to be conferred Tuesday, June 4, 1963, at Commencement).

"10. Gift of $5,000 received from the Arizona Republic and Phoenix Gazette in August of 1962 through Mr. Eugene C. Pulliam to activate a new dimension in our student loan program under the plan offered by the United Student Aid Funds, Inc.

"11. Completion of the first year's Alumni Fund Drive on March 12, 1962, with contributions from 1,608 alumni to the Grady Gammage Memorial Scholarship Fund.

"12. Participation in the newly formed Western Athletic Conference, climaxed by winning the WAC basketball championship and proudly sending our nationally ranked team into the NCAA play-offs.

"13. Completion of the construction and occupancy by eleven men's groups of the small-group housing accommodations on a self-sustaining basis for approximately 600 men.

" — And a hundred other events, including fulfillment of all requirements for nearly 2,000 undergraduate and graduate degrees by the largest graduating class in history, June, 1962.

"For all these achievements and the countless hours of devoted work on the part of the Board of Regents, the legislature, the faculty, staff and students, go my sincere thanks; and to the people of Arizona for supporting us, whether in taxes, gifts or other means, our united pledge to be worthy of the trust committed to us by our founders."

Peace Corpsman Addresses Groups

"Young Americans who have lived with the bomb as a fact of existence and who have searched in vain for a foothold of hope, a positive means of service, find in the Peace Corps a focal point," said Richard S. Stitt in a speech in the MU Wednesday evening.

Stitt, associate director of the corps' university division, also credited the Peace Corps with building a new natural resource of highly qualified personnel which is much in demand by government agencies, businesses with international outlets and higher education.

Stitt addressed the Agrarian Club while visiting ASU as part of a quick information tour of the state's institutions of higher learning.

The corps' increasing and diverse support, which will boost its membership to about 9,000 volunteers this year, is for two basic reasons, Stitt said.

"First, the program is concrete action in an area of uncertainty and continual frustration, and secondly, this action is formed by a philosophy deeply tied to the roots of our culture, therefore giving maximum motivation to the action we take."

"We have received more job offers than there are volunteers," Stitt noted.

Presently 21 Arizonans are training for service in 14 countries.

998-Foot Clue Leads Police To Scoundrels

An IBM paper roll will stretch from the east entrance of the third floor of the Engineering Center 998 feet to Campus Security. But not as a crow flies.

Campus Security officials discovered the preceding fact upon discovery of the unique trail early Tuesday morning.

Bloodhound noses to the trail, they retraced the culprit's steps.

From the Campus Security building the trail leaped over the tennis court fences, jogged across the four courts, jumped through a garbage can and scaled the three story Engineering building.

Hot on the trail, the pursuers followed the paper path through the glass door, around a pillar, into the jury room, through the library and down the hallway to the east exit.

Here, the curious searchers besieged the conspirators who were busily calculating the length of their mischief.

Looking for something to break the tension of their projects, the thirty inquisitive architect students decided to measure the IBM paper roll.

They pleaded temporary spring fever and were sentenced to immediate clean-up duty. Case closed.

Red Cross Asks Help

Members of the faculty and staff of ASU are being asked to contribute to the 1963 American Red Cross Fund Drive launched last Tuesday. The drive will continue through March. The goal for the Tempe area is $4,323.

Faculty and staff member recently received pledge cards from P. A. Ferrell, ARC campus chairman. These cards and donations should be returned through campus mail to BA 110.

The Red Cross spent $4,323 in the Tempe area in 1962 for first aid and water safety classes, nursing services, Gray Lady services to the Arizona Tuberculosis Sanitarium and financial assistance for needy families, according to Ferrell.

Number, Please Fall Telephone Changes Slated

By LINDA JONES

Busy signal? Students can expect the busy telephone situation to be relieved in the future.

A new telephone system called Centrex will be installed on campus, according to Edward M. Nantz, communications consultant for Mountain States Telephone Co.

Centrex is the first of its kind on a campus in this state.

ASU's growth exceeded the capacity of present communication facilities.

Centrex will begin campus service in August, 1963.

The university has felt its growing pains through the lack of outside lines. The system will provide improvement and efficiency in communications.

The new system will change all campus extension numbers to four digits.

A three-number prefix plus the four digits will call any campus number from outside.

To dial from a dorm, the number nine, plus the telephone number will get a direct connection.

On-campus calls will go through the main switchboard.

The switchboard will be changed from the large cumbersome type to a small console model.

The telephone office will be changed from the maintenance department to the lower level of Old Main. It will cover 1,050 square feet of floor space.

The UofA plans to install a similar system in the 1964-65 school year.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"TH' SPRING IS TH' MOST DISGUSTING TIME OF TH' YEAR ON THIS CAMPUS."

Spring—When Fancies Turn

"In the spring when a young man's fancy turns to love"—you can be sure it's away from his books.

Well spring has sprung here very early this year and already this turning has begun. But do you blame them?

Who can turn his back on this invigorating weather? Who can shun a picnic or a swim? Who has got the audacity to lock himself up in a stuffy library?

Not many, I'm sure. That is, not many red-blooded humans.

It's a tough choice to make but one that must be made!

It's a blast to sit and sip cider beneath a cool, shady tree. But the biggest blast is when finals burst upon the scene!

This "jumpy" season has a sly way of seeping into your veins when you least expect it.

So, friend, BEWARE!

Letter To The Editor--

SINA—Out Of Sight, Out Of Mind?

TO THE EDITOR:

Moral Issues Uncovered?!?!? Dogs, horses and cows are running around naked. Tut, tut. This is immoral? Oh, we should cover them up. Hm. Something like out of sight out of mind, eh? Hmmm.

Man's inhumanity to man has descended to the animals for want of a better target. It is truly a problem. The fine hunting dog, the canine guard and herding companion along with his four-footed brother, the horse, are certainly headed for difficulties if forced to don human drapery.

To all you horse, cattle and dog show enthusiasts, we extend our heart-felt concern.

The cost of suitable wearing apparel will take all the joy and purpose out of competition (though we might substitute style shows).

And pity the poor judges. Bound by the rule book to check whether an entry is fully equipped and suitable for breeding, he would stand in fear of being booked on a morals charge for undue familiarity and suggestive immoral behavior contributing to the delinquency of the spectators.

FAY CORNISH
JOAN B. GUERTIN

P.S. Being poor struggling college students with children to support, we cannot afford to clothe our four German Shepherd dogs properly. Wanting to give this proposal a fair chance, we have decided to meet at the fountain in front of the English building on Wednesday afternoon from 1 to 3 with our "naked children." Two boxes will be waiting for clothing donations. Any we cannot use will be donated to the Indian Bureau. We know that all of you who read this will search your closets for items you cannot wear and donate them to such a worthy and dual cause.

Editor's Note:

Due to the excessive length of this letter, portions had to be cut. To make it easier on yourselves and us, try to keep letters within 100 words.

Brawn-Brains Combo Wins

"All brawn and no brains," remarked someone recently when referring to an athlete.

Well, three ASU basketball players obviously didn't hear this remark.

THIS PAST week Sun Devil hoopsters Art Becker, Tony Cerkvenik and Dennis Dairman were named to the Western Athletic Conference academic team.

They were not named because ASU won the Western Athletic Conference, rather they were honored for work in the classroom, and not on the gym floor.

Athletes have never been known for possessing above average grade indexes, and the academic team idea recognizes a player's ability to "hit the books."

The honoring of athletes for grades does more than just show that athletes do have intelligence.

IT SHOWS that the school is interested in the academic standing of its players, instead of concentrating on playing alone.

It also emphasizes that the athlete knows what comes first in school, and what really counts when he graduates.

The quotation "all brawn and no brains" is no longer true with the majority of good athletes, as these three Sun Devils have shown. It is a combination of the two, one complementing the other.

'Monsters, Animals' - We Still Need 'Em

By JERRY REILLY

America was, is and always will be a nation of fads. Our economy enables us to participate in silly little status games with no great physical or mental harm done.

With this point in mind, I'd like to comment on the two critiques on womanhood in Wednesday's State Press.

First, let's take a look at Ed Gasser's alleged "monster." A woman fixes her hair and plans her wardrobe with one thought in mind—to interest the opposite sex. The moment she thinks she is no longer interesting she changes her style—fad or no fad.

IF THE MEN were really fed up with the way women looked and dressed, women would have change their styles a long time ago.

Every decade has its "monsters." Twenty years ago women put artificial "rats" in their hair and ran around in jodhpurs (riding breeches with baggy sides) and long, black riding boots. Today females "backcomb" their "own" hair and wear short skirts—and I don't think you could find eleven complaints on the skirt part—so what's the big deal.

Now a guy can wear his hair any way he wants; Mohawk, crewcut, flatop, baldy etc . . . and still the gal goes out with him. And in knee competition, I think the guys will gladly concede the contest to the knobby blobs of the females.

MISS GORMAN's animals are something else. If a coed breaks the staid old traditions of college womanhood to run around giggling and snickering and snatching a few derbies, so what—it's all in good fun (isn't it)?

Besides, everyone got a kick out of watching the girls chase the boys for a change.

Some even grew nostalgic as they watched the merriment of the "derbysnatchers." They realized how they would like to take time out from school for a little good natured fun and exercise.

No girls you are not "monsters" or "animals" because you participate in fads and frolic. It's just that a few immoderate cases blew the whole thing for you.

OKAY, pardners break out those western duds. The Phoenix Rodeo of Rodeos starts March 14 with a big parade and runs through the 17th. Go all the way—dress Western, talk Western (well, not too Western), be Western. This is what you've all been waiting to write home about.

Go to the rodeo and watch them rope the saddle broncs and ride the roping calves and before you know it, you'll know all about the old West—just like me.

INCIDENTALLY, the good luck telegram for the basketball team sounds like a winner. It will be sent to the team in Eugene, Oregon, March 11.

So hurry on down to the MU information desk and be among the first of thirty thousand to sign the telegram. Then you can always say you were part of a mile-long telegram.

Thirty thousand signatures at ten cents apiece (that's what it costs, by the way) comes to $3,000.

Divide this by the first and second team and you get $300. Then . . . forget it. This all most amounts to payola.

Dude Duds Dominate

About this time each semester, one segment of our student population quietly disappears.

No, we aren't referring to those students who academically give up. We're referring to Arizona's vanishing American—the western dressed student.

The first weeks of each semester we see plenty of Stetsons. To borrow a phrase, they are head-high above the horde of in-between classes, but they soon disappear.

SHORTLY after, the impeccably tailored shirts are replaced by sweatshirts with sleeves nonchalantly hacked off. Next, the trim-fitting trousers are replaced by shorts or faded slacks.

Lastly, the high heeled boots are gone and our students are soft-footing it down concrete paths in low cut sneakers.

The transfiguration is complete—our cowboys and girls have ridden away into the sunset.

We think it's unfortunate that ASU has forsaken its regional dress, but that traditional frontier heritage has always faced a losing battle on our campus. A glance at any of our ancestral pictures depicting Tempe Normal School days will show that even back in those times hoss-back clothing was frowned upon by the then future Arizona teachers.

TODAY'S students have a variety of dress to choose from. Whether our western refugees turn to beatnik, status-seeking Greek or somewhere in between the "Way Ins" and the "Way Outs" dress, seems to be a question of what social brand they're seeking.

However, we feel we must raise a voice of caution to our back-sliding friends. Don't ditch that cowboy suit. Keep your western clothes on campus. We're in the midst of the rodeo season. But most important, when school is over this spring and it's time to head back over that yonder desert ridge to the ranch, it will be mighty nice for those who are paying your way to be able to recognize and greet you, western style.

THE CURSE OF THE CAMPUS: NO. 2

As was pointed out last week, one would think that with all the progress we have made in the education game, something might have been done by now about roommates. But no. The roommate picture has not brightened one bit since Ethan Goodpimple founded the first American college.

Contrary to popular belief, Harvard was not the first. Mr. Goodpimple started his institution some 75 years earlier. And quite an institution it was, let me tell you! Mr. Goodpimple built schools of liberal arts, fine arts, dentistry, and tanning. He built a lacrosse stadium that seated 102,000. Everywhere on campus was emblazoned the stirring Latin motto CAVE MUSSI—"Watch out for moose." The student union contained a bowling alley, a clock, and a 16-chair barber shop.

(It was this last feature—the barber shop—that, alas, brought Mr. Goodpimple's college to an early end. The student body, being drawn from the nearby countryside, was composed chiefly of Pequots and Iroquois who, alas, had no need of a barber shop. They braid their hair instead of cutting it, and as for shaving, they don't. The barber, Tremblatt Follicle by name, grew so depressed staring all the time at 16 empty chairs that one day his mind finally gave way. Seizing his vibrator, he ran outside and shook the entire campus till it crumbled to dust. This later became known as Pickett's Charge.)

But I digress. We were discussing ways for you and your roommate to stop hating each other. This is admittedly difficult but not impossible if you will both bend a bit, give a little.

I remember, for example, my own college days (Berlitz, '08). My roommate was, I think you will allow, even less agreeable than most. He was a Tibetan named Ringading whose native customs, while indisputably colorful, were not entirely endearing. Mark you, I didn't mind so much the gong he struck on the hour or the string of firecrackers he set off on the half-hour. I didn't even mind his singeing chicken feathers every dusk and daybreak. What I did mind was that he singed them in my hat.

To be fair, he was not totally taken with some of my habits either—especially my hobby of collecting water. I had no jars at the time and just had to stack the water any-old-where.

Well sir, things grew steadily cooler between Ringading and me, and they might have gotten actually ugly had we not each happened to receive a package from home one day. Ringading opened his package, paused, smiled shyly at me, and offered me a gift.

"Thank you," I said. "What is it?"

"Yak butter," he said. "You put it in your hair. In Tibetan we call it gree see kidstuff."

"Well now, that's mighty friendly," I said and offered him a gift from my package. "Now you must have one of mine."

"Thank you," he said. "What is this called?"

"Marlboro Cigarettes," I said and held a match for him.

He puffed. "Wow!" he said. "This sure beats chicken feathers!"

"Or anything else you could name," I said, lighting my own Marlboro.

And as we sat together and enjoyed that fine flavorful Marlboro tobacco, that pure white Marlboro filter, a glow of good fellowship came over us—a serene conviction that no quarrels exist between men that will not yield to the warmth of honest good will. I am proud to say that Ringading and I remain friends to this day, and we exchange cards each Christmas and each Fourth of July, firecrackers.

© 1963 Max Shulman

Wherever you or your roommate may be—on any campus in any city, town, or hamlet in any state of the Union—you will find Marlboros at your favorite tobacco counter—soft pack or flip top box.

A new student Campus Center, sponsored by the Lutheran Church was dedicated in ceremonies recently.

Dr. G. Homer Durham, ASU president, welcomed the chapter on behalf of the university.

The recently finished building, located at 15th and McAllister, (across from Sahuaro Hall) will offer university students the opportunity for religious activities and group meetings for study and discussion.

The 3,400-square foot structure was designed by George Myers and was contracted to the Herman Goldman construction firm.

Included in the building are administrative offices of the Lutheran Student Association, a seminar room and discussion rooms.

The Rev. B. R. Johnson, campus pastor, directs the center's activities.

Funds for the $35,000 building were provided by the National Lutheran Council.

Book Review—

ASU's Renner Analyzes 'The Great Gatsby' Study

The Great Gatsby: A Study; ed. Frederick J. Hoffman. Charles Scribner's Sons, 338 pp, $2.35.

Editor's Note: Frederick Hoffman is a professor of English at the University of California at Riverside. He is a specialist in contemporary literature. Professor Renner joined the English department at ASU last September after completing his doctorate at the University of Missouri.

By D. A. RENNER

The publish-or-perish philosophy currently in effect at so many institutes of higher learning has resulted of late in a pesky swarm of books about authors on their works that aren't really books at all.

Back in the old days, the author of a book about a literary figure or an important literary work was expected to examine or re-examine extant material and then present either new data or new insights or, hopefully, both.

Now judged by these Paleozoic standards, Professor Hoffman's latest production doesn't come off at all well.

In the first place, this "study" contains almost nothing really new. Instead, it presents the reader with a potpourri of just over two dozen articles, letters, excerpts and jottings by and about Fitzgerald, Gatsby and the 1920's.

All of this material, with the exception of one essay, has been published elsewhere and much of it is at least ten years old.

As for new insights, Professor Hoffman does provide an eighteen-page introduction, but he is content simply to do the usual brief summary of the author's career and to point out the generally accepted excellences and problems in Fitzgerald's portrait of the unhappy American.

But it is, perhaps, unfair to criticize this collection by old-fashioned standards. Professor Hoffman is an excellent teacher and critic. I know because I was fortunate enough to be a student in one of his classes.

It is tempting, therefore, to suggest that what he has produced was not intended as a book at all and is better understood as a publication.

Publications for the uninitiated, are things (a narrower genus escapes me just at present) produced at least in part so that college deans will be able to convince state legislatures that faculty members don't waste all of their time pottering about laboratories and libraries, writing lectures and conferring with students. Such publications ought never to be confused with true studies or with books.

Judged relative to this new class of writing, the present work has at least three distinct merits. For faculty members so busy with their own publication that they don't have time to keep up on Fitzgerald, Professor Hoffman does bring together er some of the best standard material.

For students who haven't solved the heady puzzles of the card catalogue or the International Index, this work is bound to make term papers easier if a bit less than original.

And for the people at Scribner's, it is enough to say that this "study" ties in most delightfully with their recent paperback edition of "The Great Gatsby." After all, two books in the hand beat a whole chateful in the warehouse.

By the way, to anyone interested in doing a real study of Fitzgerald, may I recommend James E. Miller's "The Fictional Techniques of Scott Fitzgerald," Arthur Mizener's "The Far Side of Paradise" and Edmund Wilson's "The Crack-Up."

Now there are some books!

The story presents a forceful and terrible discussion of

Dorms Prepare Projects For Fund-Raising Contest

Dances, dinners and fund raising will be the main projects of the women's dormitories this month.

"Mac Bee Key Club" will be the theme for an evening of dancing, games and entertainment sponsored by the women of McClintock B in their lobby tonight from 8-12 p.m.

The purpose is to raise money for Pleiades, the senior women's honorary, scholarship fund.

Co-chairmen of the event Sharyl Moomaw and Jane Straka report that a combo will provide live music for dancing on the patio.

Key Club entertainment will include a Mac Bee Chorus line, hula by Sandra Yoshimura, folk songs by Kenny Margraf and vocal selections by Vickie Bond.

Complementing the "Bee Club" theme will be decorations of bees, flowers, hives and a beekeeper.

Soft drinks and hot rolls, with honey donated by the Superior Bee Company will be sold.

Also raising money for the scholarship fund will be the women of East Hall.

They will sell popcorn at the Cosner movie tonight.

Competition within the dorm will feature a rummage sale, popcorn sale, car smash and box lunch sale.

East Hall will sponsor a semi-formal dinner-dance April 20 at the Feed Bag in Mesa.

The Starlighters will provide the music.

The Starlighters will also play for McClintock A's St. Patrick's Day dance, March 16, at the Elm's Academy in Phoenix.

Theme for the semi-formal dance will be "Shamrocks and Shillelaghs."

In a special election at East Hall last week, three offices were filled.

Wrestlers Shoot At WAC Top Spot

Nearly five months practice come to a head today for the Arizona State University grapplers as they venture to Tucson for the two-day Western Athletic Conference championships.

The event will conclude tomorrow with the finals.

The Sun Devils, in their first intercollegiate wrestling season, finished with a 9-4-1 dual meet record plus a second place finish in the recent Phoenix College state tournament.

COACH TED Bredehoff will be welcoming back the services of Buzz Hayes to the mats today. Hayes has been sidelined since the University of New Mexico meet when he suffered a concussion and back injury.

A strong contender for a title shot is 123-pound Pete Russo. Russo has compiled 13 wins with only one loss and no draws. Five of his wins have come via the pin route.

OTHER DEVIL contenders may include Dave Greer, 137, Rick Jackson, 177, John Hagan, 130 and Manuel Aragon or Bob Cavalliere, 115.

John Davis and Bill Watt will compete in the 157 and 167 divisions, respectively.

The ASU coach feels that his team will be a "strong challenger for third place with Brigham Young and Wyoming vying for the team title."

Intramurals

The intramural basketball championships will be held at 7 p.m. Monday in the Sun's Gym.

Tracksters Run At Tucson Oval

By ALAN MICHAELS ASU's rapidly improving track and field team will be in for a stern test tomorrow when they meet the UofA and Occidental at Tucson.

"I've been very happy with progress thus far," said Sun Devil Coach Baldy Castillo Wednesday, "but we're young for the most part, and we'll have to have continued improvement to stay with the quality of competition we'll face."

ASU's mile relay foursome, the fastest in the country, will seek its 22nd consecutive victory in the meet.

COMPOSED OF Mike Barrick, Ron Freeman, Henry Carr and Uli Williams, the relay team turned in a 3:09.2 performance in last week's Long Beach Relays.

The highlight of the afternoon could be in the 440-yard dash if Oxy track coach Vic Schwenk nominates his ace quarter miler, Steve Haas.

Castillo, however, is under the impression that Haas will skip the 440 in favor of the shorter sprints. Williams, Barrick and Freeman have been tentatively entered for the Sun Devils.

CASTILLO HAS been pleased with the showings of John Rose and Frank Covelli.

Rose has a 15-8 pole vault to his credit while Covelli threw the javelin 237 feet at Long Beach.

ASU appears to be weakest in the jumps (broad, high, and triple) and the distance runs (mile and two-mile).

The Devils open conference competition on March 19 with a dual meet against the University of Utah.

Utah State Aggies To Be First Test

By JOHN NADEL

The ASU Sun Devils, third ranked nationally and holders of the Western Athletic Conference championship, move to Eugene, Oregon Monday to do battle against Utah State for a position in the Western Regionals of the NCAA.

The winner of Monday's game moves into Provo, Utah next Friday as one of four western semi-finalists.

The Aggies, playing as an independent team this season, come into the game with a 20-6 regular season mark.

Utah State has three starters from last year's outfit, a team that defeated ASU 78-73 in last season's regionals.

This year's team, however, is led by the two new additions to the lineup, 6-6 sophomore forward Wayne Estes, with a 19.6 average, and former Phoenix College star Troy Collier, who is scoring at an 18.7 average.

THE INJURY-RIDDEN Devils definitely will be handicapped. All-WAC performers Joe Caldwell and Art Becker are both hobbling, Caldwell from a charley horse and Becker on a bad ankle.

Denny Dairman has also had a bad leg, while outside man Gary Senitza, who did not play against Arizona, has missed practices because of illness.

Because of all the aches and pains, the Devils have not been able to practice in high gear.

This will also hurt the team Monday, as it may tend to be rusty because of lack of work.

At this time, it looks as though everyone will play Monday, and the light workouts should leave Caldwell and Becker in fairly good shape.

PHOENIX' FINEST — Big Art Becker, a graduate from Camelback High School in Phoenix, received all-WAC honors yesterday from UPI. Becker led the league in rebounding with a 15.1 average.

Returning starters for Utah State are guards Reid Goldsberry and Mark Hasen, along with forward Phil Johnson.

HASEN did a remarkably good defensive job on former ASU star Larry Armstrong in last year's contest, while Johnson, a tough 6-5 forward with a 14 point average this season, came through with 16 key markers against the Devils in 1962.

With a 24-2 season under its belt, ASU was led in scoring by Becker and Caldwell, each averaging 19.3 points per game.

With the tough contest coming up Monday, Coach Ned Wulk is hoping that both of his injured stars can hit their average.

Devil Nine Plays Host To Aggies

By NORDY JENSEN

ASU's pitching staff is at full strength and primed for this weekend's four-game invasion by Utah State University which got under way yesterday.

Team captain and returning hurler Gary Graham has recovered from a throat infection and Coach Bobby Winkles says he will start against the Aggies in one of tomorrow's two games.

Sterling Slaughter will pitch today's game.

Winkles was pleased not only with his pitching but also with the defensive play shown by his Devils.

"They've looked better this year defensively than at any time last season," Winkles said.

Game time is 3 p.m. with tomorrow's doubleheader starting at 1 p.m. All games will be played at Sun Devil Field.

Gymnasts Take Three

ASU's revitalized gymnastic force returned to its winning ways over the weekend, taking road victories from Brigham Young, 89½-38½, Colorado State College, 75½-36½ and New Mexico, 86½-19½.

The Sun Devils' dual meet mark is now 5-2.

The road trip saw the emergence of freshman Jim Nelson as an all-around performer and the continued fine showing by team captain Jerry Stansbury.

NELSON was high point man with 18 against UNM and 16 against CSC.

Stansbury was high with 24 in the BYU meet, taking firsts in long horse and parallel bars. He won parallel bars against both UNM and CSC in the double dual meet at Golden, Colo.

CHRIS EVANS took still rings in each meet while Dave Lambert won side horse each time.

Norm Cox took the horizontal bar twice against UNM and CSC to round out ASU's firsts.

Coach Norris Steverson's charges tangle with Arizona and San Diego State Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the ASU gym annex.

The dust has cleared from the Western Athletic Conference basketball race for the individual scoring title with Wyoming's Flynn Robinson finishing in the number one spot.

Robinson scored 50 points in his team's final two games (both being losses) to end league play with 250 points for an even 25.0 average.

IRA HARGE of New Mexico made it a fight to the wire by netting 66 points in his final two WAC tilts to end the season with 233 points.

Art Becker finished in the third position as his injured ankle helped to drop him from second. He finished with a 21.1 average.

Harge won the field goal percentage department with a fabulous .596, nosing out Tony Cerkvenik, who finished with a .538.

A TRUE AMERICAN game, played by true Americans, is taking place in Phoenix this weekend.

The twelfth annual Southwest All-Indian Basketball Tournament is being held at St. Mary's High School gymnasium today and tomorrow.

Sixteen top Indian teams from Arizona, California, and New Mexico will play for the championship with the crowning of the champion on Saturday night.

The purpose of the tournament is to provide scholarships to colleges and universities for Indian students.

An added attraction will be Miss Indian Arizona, who will be on hand to pass out the trophies.
