

One-Man Show Charms Crowd

By JERRY REILLY

"You are the public I adore you — and I hope I never, never bore you." From his opening ditty to third encore, Felix De Cola, pianist extraordinaire, was not the least bit boring.

BILLING himself as a little show in its entirety, humorist, musician, entertainer De Cola hypnotized the capacity audience in the MU ballroom.

De Cola's distinguished looks coupled with a slight, British accent enabled him to present a smooth, polished two hours of music and wit.

De Cola calls himself a humorist — a comedian that's not so funny — and proved it when he said, "I'm not as pretty as Liberace, but I am married."

THE GRAY-HAIRED De Cola sat cross-legged and jogged his music memory. His reminiscences included "All The Things You Are" by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein and his own creation "Romance In Vienna."

De Cola fluctuated back to his own brand of humor and came up with a little tidbit for the Republicans in the audience. It seems Mr. Kennedy was wandering through the White House, deep in thought, when he came across Abraham Lincoln's ghost. Mr. Kennedy suddenly blurted out, "Mr. Lincoln, I need your help?" Mr. Lincoln replied, "Why not take in the theater tonight?"

DE COLA RANGED from humor and satire to a little bit of seriousness and philosophy. He said there is no need to be original, the best themes in life are free

The "thirst frustration" in music shows up in many great composers works. "How dry I am" starts compositions in Russia, Britain and the USA. So many composers start with the four basic notes.

De Cola went on with his "Showboat" routine by playing the piano backwards — with one hand. He then took a youngsters from the audience and played a duet with him.

THE FINALE included taking any four notes from the audience and integrating them into a musical composition.

De Cola ended his musical smorgasbord with this word to future musicians. "Unless you sing abominably and play the electric guitar loudly — you may starve."

Social Studies Pamphlet Ready

"Social Studies in Arizona Secondary Schools" is the title of a 43-page pamphlet recently published by the Bureau of Educational Research and Services of ASU's College of Education.

Editors of the booklet are Dr. Del Weber, ASU assistant professor of education, and Dr. Nelson Haggerson, ASU associate professor of education.

The authors state that the purpose of the study was to survey the offerings, patterns of required and elective courses, and current trends and emphasis in the social studies programs for grades seven through twelve . . . with a special study of Arizona.

The Arizona study also includes a survey of teacher preparation, methods and materials, and evaluation techniques used.

The pamphlet may be obtained from the ASU College of Education Bureau of Educational Research and Services for 50 cents.

Cinders Fly As Carr Burns

ASU sprinter Henry Carr burned the track at Hanover, Germany, this week with a 45.4 clocking in the 400-meter dash six yards ahead of his closest competitor.

Carr's time is the fastest recorded for that distance this season and only .5 of a second off the world mark.

The blazing 400-meter dash was Carr's first for that distance since he ran the 440-yard dash once in a Detroit high school meet.

Funds Awarded

The National Science Foundation has awarded ASU an Institutional Science Grant for $20,575.

The grant will be turned over to the University Research Committee, to be awarded to six faculty members in support of scientific pro-

Visitor—

Family Relations Workshop Topic

A three week work shop in the teaching of family relationships has drawn 24 graduate home economists to ASU this summer.

The purpose of the workshop, running from July 22nd to August 9th, is to help the participants evaluate and adjust their teaching so they may teach family relationships more effectively.

KAY PAXTON, former assistant professor of Home Economics at ASU, is in charge of the workshop which includes 20 high school, junior high and junior college teachers and four "full time homemakers" who are looking forward to teaching in the future.

According to Mrs. Paxton, the need for experienced teachers in the field of Family Relations is growing rapidly. Teachers are needed in the day school programs, parent education classes and out-of-school youth education, Mrs. Paxton said.

INTER-PERSONAL relationship has a practical aspect in jobs. According to a release from the Home Economics department, 85 per cent of all working people who lose their jobs do so because they cannot get along with other people, rather than because they can not do the job.

Dr. Margaret Pipes, dean of women at Arizona State College at Flagstaff and professor of economics there, is scheduled to speak on the selection of text books and resource materials in today's meeting.

New Dean Of Men Appointed Here

Dr. George Hamm, former assistant dean of men at the University of Wyoming, has been named dean of men and assistant professor of education at ASU. President Durham announced.

Dr. Hamm, who served as a men's counselor at ASU here last year, replaces Dr. Gary Anderson, who recently resigned to accept the position of dean of students at Eastern New Mexico University in Portales.

Before coming to ASU last year, Dr. Hamm was assistant dean of men since 1958 at the University of Wyoming where he received master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees.

He was an infantry company commander in Korea from 1954 to 1956.

Dr. Durham also announced that Dr. Fred Hicks, assistant director of financial aids at the University of Michigan, has been appointed ASU director of financial aids, replacing Dr. Woodrow Nold, who has accepted a position at Orange State College in Fullerton, Calif.

DR. HICKS received bachelor of arts (with honors), master of arts and the Ph.D. degrees from Michigan.

Appointed assistant dean of students is Robert G. Bradford, who received a master of arts degree last June from Stanford University.

An honors graduate of the University of Utah, Bradford also attended the Harvard Graduate School of Business, and spent two years on a mission in Holland for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

School Given Cotton Grant

The Arizona Cotton Growers Association has awarded a $10,000 research grant to Dr. Daniel O. Robinson, head of ASU's Division of Agriculture.

Dr. Robinson will work on a theory that cotton plants will produce more cotton when there is a correct balance between nitrogen and phosphate.

Graduate Joins Foreign Program

Robert B. Hitchcock, 1961 ASU graduate, is one of nine new junior management interns who joined the Agency for International Development in July.

AID is the Department of State agency which administers the United States foreign assistance program. A total of 16 new interns have been employed by AID this year, with 16 more expected to enter the program in the fall.

The Management interns, all college graduates, are prospective permanent employees who ranked in the upper three to four percent of all candidates taking the Civil Service written and oral exams for government work at the junior executive level.

They will undergo six months of orientation, completing about three assignments on rotation in AID's Washington offices during this time.

MU Activities -

Taliesin West Trip Highlight Of Week

A visit to the architectural school of the late Frank Lloyd Wright, Taliesin West, opens the third week of the MU Activity.

The tour of Taliesin West will be conducted Monday at 3 p.m. Refreshments will be served. Tickets are available at the MU information desk for 50 cents each. The trip will be limited to 50 persons.

Office Appoints ASU Professor To Review Panel

Dr. Arthur J. Bachrach, chairman of the ASU psychology department, is one of 12 educators throughout the nation who have been appointed to a review panel of the U. S. Office of Education's new educational media program.

The panel will review all applications for grants and proposals for contracts for research and experimentation in the educational uses of new communications media.

The board will also review studies and surveys to determine the need for increased or improved use of new educational media.

Following a review of the applications and proposals, the panel will make recommendations to the advisory committee on new educational media, a program authorized by the National Defense Education Act of 1958.

Dr. Irving W. Stout, dean of ASU's Graduate College, will conduct a conference in Indian education, sponsored by the Phoenix-area office of the Bureau of Indian Affairs and ASU's College of Education, in Riverside, Calif., Monday through August 16.

Tuesday, a visit to the fascinating world of animals at Arizona-Maytag Zoo will be offered. Reservations must be made at the information desk before noon, Monday. Tickets are 25 cents per person. The tour leaves the Memorial Union at 2:45 p.m. Tuesday.

Dr. Charles Forbes Taylor, renowned author, lecturer, humorist and world traveler, will present an illustrated lecture at 8 p.m. Tuesday entitled "To The Holy Lands." The lecture, to be presented in the MU ballroom is open to the public without charge.

Dr. Robert A. Roessel, Jr., Director of the ASU Indian Education Center, will lecture on the "Future of Indian Art in our Civilization," at 12:30 p.m. Thursday.

Dr. Roessel will speak at a lecture-luncheon in the MU banquet room. Cost of the luncheon is $1. Reservations must be made by noon Wednesday.

Second Clinic Administration Course Set

The second Case Study Course in Clinic Administration, sponsored by the National Association of Clinic Managers, will be August 11-17 at the College of Business Administration.

Approximately 30 managers of medical clinics are expected to participate in the week-long course, the first of which was held last summer at the Harvard School of Business.

Sessions of the course, which will be devoted to management responsibility in medical clinics as revealed through case study work, will be conducted by Dr. Keith Davis, ASU professor of management, and Robert C. Hill, ASU assistant professor of accounting.

Current enrollment for the course includes clinic managers from the following 12 states: Arizona, California, Texas, Washington, North Carolina, Ohio, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Oregon, Indiana, Illinois and Colorado.

The managers will be housed at the Tempe Sands, attending day-long class meetings at the Business Administration building and lunch at the Memorial Union.

INDIAN COUNTRY — Mrs. Dorothy Simmons points out area where she will be beginning a new career on the Navajo Reservation in Northern Arizona. (State Press photo by Bill Dooley)

Indians Capture 'Mom' Simmons

By BOB REILLY

Mrs. Dorothy L. Simmons, affectionately called "Mom" by the men of Alpha Epsilon Phi, will shortly be leaving ASU to embark on a new career.

At the end of this session Mrs. Simmons will have completed her degree requirements in elementary education and then will head for Kaibito, Arizona, to teach the Navajo children.

WHAT INSPIRES men and women, both young and old, to specialize in teaching the Indian children? To Mrs. Simmons this question was simple to answer; she simply finds the Navajos interesting.

According to her, the Navajo's spiritual values, ability as artists and craftsmen, help create the magnetic net which captivates teachers into this important and rewarding field.

When Mr. Chapelle was recruiting on campus for Gallup headquarters, she accepted the position without hesitation.

ALTHOUGH Mrs. Simmons is finishing her degree requirements this August, she is well oriented in the teaching profession. For six years she taught retarded children in Arizona and Colorado. Nearly four of those six years were spent at the Children's Colony near Coolidge, Arizona.

It has been eleven years since she started toward her degree. The change from campus life to Indian school ways will be abrupt and challenging for Mrs. Simmons.

Nursing School Gets $29,161 From NSF

The National Institutes of Health have granted $29,161 to ASU for the School of Nursing.

The grant will be used for continuing the integration of psychiatric nursing and mental health concepts into the baccalaureate program.

Mrs. Loretta Hanner, director of the ASU School of Nursing, is training program director. Miss Rosemary Johnson, associate professor of nursing, is coordinator of the mental health program.

The grant will provide funds for the 1963-64 academic year. This is the third year of study in a five year program supported by the National Institutes of Health.

Funds enable the university to retain a staff of consultants from psychiatry and the behavioral sciences to work and consult with the ASU School of Nursing faculty.

These specialists are responsible for furthering the integration of psychiatric principles into the curriculum of the more than 230 basic and registered nurse students enrolled in the school.

The grant also provides funds for a series of five mental health workshops for personnel of the community agencies that help provide nursing experiences for students in the nursing program.

Ph.D. Degrees

Two new instructors in political science at ASU will receive doctor of philosophy degrees August 7 at the State University of Iowa, Iowa City.

They are Richard S. Wells, who holds bachelor and master of arts degrees from Texas Technological College, Lubbock, and the University of Iowa, and Don R. Kash, who received BA and MA degrees from the Iowa university.

Out-Of-State Professors Accept University Positions

Dr. Joel Greenspoon, director of the clinical psychology training program at Florida State University, Tallahassee, since 1955, has been named professor of psychology and director of the clinical training program at ASU.

Dr. Greenspoon was a research psychologist at the Navy Electronics Laboratory, San Diego, Calif., 1951-53; assistant professor of psychology, Pomona College, Claremont, Calif., 1951-55; and system analysis engineer, Aerojet-General Corporation, Azusa, Calif., in 1955.

SPACE SCIENTIST

A consulting scientist in spacecraft engineering at Lockheed Missiles and Space Company, Sunnyvale, Calif., since 1958, Dr. Obert B. Moan, has been appointed professor of engineering at ASU.

Dr. Moan was a member of the technical staff at Hughes Ground Systems Division, Fullerton, Calif., 1957-58; reliability-productivity manager at Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, Missile Systems Division, Van Nuys, Calif., 1954-57; and quality control staff engineer, Hughes Aircraft Company, Culver City, Calif., 1953-54.

NEW PROFESSOR

Dr. Clarence F. Reimer, director of planning and evaluation, American Greetings Corp., Cleveland, has been named professor of accounting at ASU.

The new ASU professor was a certified public accountant for the Jacksonville, Fla., firm of Smoak, Davis and Nixon in 1961, and vice-president, finance, for the Gibbs Corporation, Jacksonville, in 1960.

He was also controller, Reynolds Manufacturing Co. Springfield, Mo., 1957-59, and treasurer - controller, Airtex Products, Inc., Fairfield, Ill., 1954-57.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"Now, son, how's it happen you want to be a teacher?"

Channel 8 Views Stars

Actress Tallulah Bankhead and Metropolitan Opera star Jerome Hines join Peabody Award-winning drama critic Elliot Norton to discuss their lives and careers on Channel 8 at 9 p.m. the next two Wednesdays.

Mr. Hines will discuss the many interpretations of Mousorgky's Russian opera, "Boris Godunov." The first American to sing the role of Boris in the Soviet Union, he will also talk about the enthusiastic reception given him by the Russians.

Miss Bankhead will review the various roles she has played with her famous low voice. For special attention she singles out her part in "The Little Foxes."
