Coeds Raided In PV West

By LINDA HELSER

A girl just can't say no anymore with losing everything — including her lingerie.

That was the case at 7 p.m. Wednesday when approximately 50 to 400 male campus residents, according to PV West residents, invaded their dorm, in a successful (?) pantie raid.

According to Campus Security, 25 men entered the dorm.

The prank was thought to be provoked because PV West coeds had backed out on a Homecoming float project with the men of Sahuaro A and B.

ON THE TREK to PV West, Sahuaro residents gathered support from men from Hayden and Best halls.

Although hall officials and Campus Security were informed of the proposed raid, the only resistance the invaders encountered was a futile shout by the head resident, "At least you can act like gentlemen."

They complied and were very chivalrous as they walked through the lobby and ascended the stairs, all the way to the seventh floor. On their way they collected various articles of lingerie in unlocked rooms.

One coed reportedly yelled,

"Oh goodie, a pantie raid." She lost three-fourths of the underwear in her bureau drawers.

Another, who lost numerous garments, had previously stitched her name in all her lingerie.

"We knew the men were in the hall but did not condone their action," a dorm official said.

Sixth-floor girls were protected by locked doors after a resident received a warning call from her boyfriend in Sahuaro.

"WE LOVE our underwear," was the reaction a sixth-floor girl held.

An unidentified male raider said, "We have plans of raffling the lingerie through advertisements in the State Press."

Only three students were apprehended by Campus Security. They were referred to the dean of men.

Homecoming King, Queen To Reign Over Festivities

By JANICE AYERS

Homecoming King and Queen for 1964-65 are Terry Cotter, Alpha Tau Omega, and Marilyn Webb, Chi Omega. They were crowned yesterday afternoon by Vonda Kay Van Dyke, Miss America, before 2,500 people.

First runnersup were Tima Irani, Gamma Phi Beta, and Joe Sparks, Pi Kappa Alpha. Second runnersup were Earline Wilburn, the Quad, and Jack Johnson, Delta Sigma Phi.

Third runnersup were Bernie Wrightson, Phi Gamma Delta, and Julie Loper, Kappa Kappa Gamma. In fifth place were Kaye Anderson, Alpha Delta Pi, and Mike Love, Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

NUMBER OF votes cast for each candidate for King was: Terry Cotter, 954; Joe Sparks, 841; Jack Johnson, 666; Bernie Wrightson, 468; Mike Love, 272.

Votes for Queen were Marilyn Webb, 872; Tima Irani, 568; Earline Wilburn, 518; Julie Loper, 391; Kaye Anderson 382. Pam Dyer, Homecoming chairman, handed Miss America the sealed envelopes which she read to the waiting crowd.

VONDA KAY Van Dyke received the Alumni Diamond of Distinction from President Durham as she reached the level of the stage via a moving platform.

She was given a bouquet of roses on behalf of the student body by ASU President Karl Wochner. Tempe Mayor John Moeur presented the key to the City of Tempe to the girl who started a year ago as Miss Tempe.

There was live television coverage by KAET.

Seated with her on the stage were U.S. Sen. Carl Hayden, ASU dignitaries and Miss America contest officials.

Also present were the 14 queens from Arizona counties. Miss Van Dyke will crown one of them Miss Arizona at the Arizona State Fair.

WHEN ASKED by Wochner what her most memorable moment of the pageant was, she replied that receiving the "Miss Congeniality" award was "the highest point in her mind."

Miss Van Dyke's advice to those who want to be Miss America is to "be beautiful inside and with God's help and a charming personality you might make it."

Miss Van Dyke was escorted from the auditorium by a color guard of Army and Air Force cadets.

Buchanan Case Planned Nov. 12

All students planning to attend the Supreme Court case of Buchanan vs. the Election Board will have to wait until next Thursday.

Originally scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday, the hearing was postponed until next Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the request of the counsel for the defense. The problem is that Memorial Union is closed for Veteran's Day next Wednesday.

The hearing is now tentatively scheduled for 4 p.m. next Thursday in the AS Senate Chambers.

'There They Are'

Dr. and Mrs. Van Dyke were present at the ceremony during Durham presents their daughter, Miss America 1965, with the Alumni Diamond of Distinction. Miss Van Dyke will return next week to crown a new Miss Arizona at the State Fair.

Supreme Court Secretarial Post Applications Due

Applications for students interested in being secretary of the AS Supreme Court are now available at the MU desk.

A knowledge of shorthand is preferred but not required, according to AS Chief Justice Tom Thomason.

The Supreme Court will meet at 4 p.m. Monday in the Senate Chambers to make final arrangements for the Thursday hearing of Buchanan vs. the Election Board. A court stenographer is needed for Thursday's hearing.

Graduates To Show Musical Proficiency

Two free graduate recitals have been scheduled early next week by the music department.

Tom Battenberg will be featured in a trumpet recital at 8:15 p.m. Sunday in the MU Ballroom. Works include music by Mozart and Hindemith.

Judy Prochnow, Dennis Williams, Neal Fluegel, Jack Ratterree, Ralph Kimball and Gail Wilson will assist.

Gerald Whalin, clarinetist, will be featured in a recital of his own compositions at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday in the recital hall, on the third floor of Gammage Auditorium.

Pianist Margo Smith, Richmond Johnson and Ray Martinez, both clarinetists, will assist Whalin.

Vonda Receives Greetings From Governor Fannin

Arizona State's first Miss America, Vonda Kay Van Dyke, landed at Sky Harbor Airport yesterday afternoon to cheers and applause from a crowd of some 400 people.

Bands played and Indians danced as she was led to a speakers' platform where Gov. Paul Fannin greeted her.

He then officially proclaimed yesterday "Miss America Day" for Arizona.

VONDA, WHO was wearing a coral suit trimmed in a black fur with matching black hat and gloves, said she was happy to be home after two months.

"I was afraid when I left that I would be gone only two weeks," said Miss America. Two weeks would have been as long as she could have stayed if she had not won the title.

Crowds waited two hours for Miss Van Dyke's plane, which had been delayed in the Midwest, to arrive.

PHOENIX MAYOR Milton Graham presented her with the key to the city. Her sponsors, the Arizona State Fair Commission, state officials and Miss America officials also greeted her.

After the welcoming she held a press conference in the west terminal of the airport.

Miss Van Dyke said she felt the biggest blocks she overcame on her way to the title were her two losses in the Miss Phoenix contest.

Crank Calls Under Active Investigation

Coeds receiving crank phone calls may take heart. "This situation is under very active investigation," said John Duffy, director of Campus Security.

Local police departments are cooperating with Campus Security in the investigation of the crank calls. "This sort of thing is occurring all over the country. Every community with dial phones has this problem," Duffy said.

"The calls are not necessarily from male students on campus," he said. "It could well be outsiders." With the new Centrex dialing system, anyone may call into the campus.

"Tracing these calls is almost impossible, but we are working on it," Duffy said.

Double Control Promotes Chaos

The purpose of student government is to provide the student body with a mechanism for self-determination. However, the University administration reserves autocratic rights!

Ordinarily the decisions of the student body and the administration coincide; both are against sin, for motherhood and the pledge of allegiance. Occasionally, however, student government, especially Rally and Traditions Board, is not surprised to find its decisions countermanded by "big brother" where the issue is of profound importance.

It is puzzling to the student body when the school authority is exercised on matters which most students would consider inconsequential. What conceivable concern has the administration in college cheers and yells?

IS THE CONCERN FOR the implication of the yell? For the thought behind the yell? For English usage? Or is it because the yells are sometimes in a form of diction that is foreign to them? At times censorship has appeared to be capricious.

It is obvious to this writer that the big print that gives authority to the pyramided boards and advisers at ASU is followed by the hardly visible print which takes it away.

It would make everyone's task easier, and would identify the delegated authority more specifically if "big brother" would make clear the criteria by which such things as yells and cheers are judged.

Most students would agree that simple statements such as "it's in poor taste" will not suffice. It was once considered poor taste for feminine cheerleaders to wear anything but ankle-length skirts.

Some faculty members are not always in the know about the student's informal diction, and I strongly suspect that some faculty members resist being in the know. Some faculty members never put in an appearance at athletic events, and some of those who do, take the position that "it is not our nature to cheer."

THERE ARE ANSWERS to the above-raised questions, some of which follow:

—The University is responsible to the taxpayers, and it is the administration's responsibility to see that a wholesome image is portrayed. To do this, it is often necessary to clarify the position of student government.

—No one has the right to offend another student or hinder his chances for a better education, and this is what happens when the taxpayers and the legislature get the impression that the students are not taking advantage of educational opportunities offered. This is the impression they get from us by the cheers and yells we use.

—The administration also has to intercede when the students do not use sound judgment in making their decisions.

I'm sure that the administration wants to be as cooperative as they can but due to obvious pressures they take the only stand they can. The students should realize this and try to cooperate.

We Believe—

Pantie Raid Hardly Worth The Panic

Well, well, well, after five years and a few futile attempts, the men of Arizona State University finally pulled off a successful pantie raid.

This is one of the oldest intramural sports, and is practiced with a high degree of regularity on many campuses across the United States. Except at ASU, that is.

The raid Wednesday night on PV West was obviously well planned and was not kept too secret. No damage was done, except that many coeds are minus some undergarments, and the situation was kept under control. So why is everyone so upset?

OFFICIALS OF THE dormitory refused admittance to State Press female reporters and photographer, saying there would be no story and no pictures released.

The photographer's camera was confiscated, and returned only as she left the dorm.

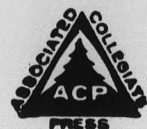

Upon returning the next day, the photographer was told the girls had been required to sign a paper stating they would not let a picture be taken of them or their room.

No one is saying the boys should be congratulated for the raid, but making a big fuss only adds to the confusion.

THE STATE PRESS is the official campus newspaper of Arizona State University. It is published each Wednesday and Friday throughout the school year, excepting holidays, and is entered as second class matter at the Tempe, Arizona, Post Office under the acts of March 3, 1879, and August 24, 1912.

THE STATE PRESS is a member of the Arizona Newspapers Association, Associated Collegiate Press and National Advertising Service, Inc. Subscription price, $3 per school year.

KASN Announcers Talk For A Ghostly Audience

If any generalization can be made about election coverage, it can be normally summed up in one word — chaos.

Normally any under-staffed college radio station would be a case in point. KASN is the epitome of this, but Tuesday night 24 enthusiastic amateurs scooped three TV networks, the major wire services and reporters from local and national newspapers.

FOR EXAMPLE, THEY were about one minute ahead of NBC-TV and five to 10 minutes ahead of NBC radio, according to Larry Augsburger, KASN program director. Being first was easy, with the ASU Computer Center being used statewide for vote projections, Augsburger said.

The trouble is, nobody knew about it.

This did not stop the staff and volunteers from doing a complete, accurate and nearly-professional job.

As is well-known, KASN has no transmitter; students work for grades, and Tuesday they worked hard.

They also worked hard the week before, and the week before that. Reams of background material were compiled and edited. Pleas were made for help in mass communications classes, signs were made, equipment was "borrowed" and late dorm hours were arranged for coed staff members.

SCHEDULES WERE mimeographed and distributed, reporters made arrangements at Democratic and Republican campaign headquarters, the Camelback Inn and The Arizona Republic. The computer center provided prediction on local issues and students monitored all the TV networks, getting figures and noting trends. Student opinions, taped minutes before, were broadcast. There was even a "stringer" from east Mesa.

Everybody worked like the proverbial dog and learned much in the process. It's a shame nobody heard it.

Sun Devil Nickname Is Third Title Used

Many students may wonder how ASU adopted the nickname Sun Devils.

The fact is this is the third nickname chosen for the school.

When Tempe Normal opened its second football season in 1899 the student body chose Owls as its nickname. When Tempe Normal became Arizona State Teachers College the nickname, Bulldogs, was adopted.

Again on Nov. 8, 1946, a special student election changed the nickname to Sun Devils.

When this symbol was chosen, students wondered what the Sun Devil would look like.

Bert Anthony, an artist for Walt Disney and the creator of Stanford's Indian symbol, designed the Sun Devil.

ASU students should be proud of their nickname since it is particular to our University.

THEY ARE sometimes called "The Lost Tribe."

The were recently busted from their house by a Peace Corps junta.

And they have been working hard the past two months to regain their position among the other fraternities, so I propose we have a "Be Nice to a Sigma Nu Week."

The Sigma Nus have been going all out in the fields of public relations and certainly deserve some consideration.

THEY HAVE far outshone the other fraternities conducting service projects from cleaning the Phoenix Zoo to guarding the Homecoming displays along Stadium Drive.

Art Buchwald put it this way when referring to the outcome of the national elections and I think it may also apply to the Sigma Nus:

"Be BIG, Take a Loser to Lunch."

I might also add that if the Sigma Nus continue the way they have so far they won't be losers long.

LAST NIGHT ASU received another entry into its list of significant quotable quotes.

To go down beside "If you don't like it, you can leave," we are proud to place:

"At least you can act like gentlemen."

Our heartfelt thanks to Miss Mary Ruth Culbert, PV West head resident.

TV Executive Praises ASU Bowl Team

The executive producer of the "GE College Bowl" expressed appreciation in a recent letter to President Durham "for the fine team" which represented the University during five recent TV contests.

Comprised of William Goletz, Catheryn Goddard, Rowe Portis, Lynda Jones and coach-adviser Dr. Nicholas Salerno, the team was described by producer John Cleary, as "intelligent, alert and determined."

"The students did a fine job and they should certainly be commended for their success," Cleary added.

In expressing appreciation for his remarks, Dr. Durham assured Cleary that "the five weekly trips to New York City represented not only a memorable 'peak' in the lives of the student participants, but in the experience of hundreds of thousands of people in this area.

"While interest in this program has always been high," said Dr. Durham, "the coverage and enthusiasm generated throughout Arizona, especially the Phoenix metropolitan area in which we are situated, amounted to a significant and unusual contribution for higher education.

Senate To Study Proposed Change

The first amendment to the revised Associated Students Constitution to provide for initiative, referendum and recall was introduced in the Senate Wednesday by Sen. Fred Reish.

If approved, the amendment would give the student body the right to remove from office, by a recall procedure, any of the elected student officers. Students also could amend or draft legislation by an initiative petition.

This is the second time Reish has introduced the amendment. It was defeated last spring because the Senate felt the amendment would delay a vote on the then-pending revised constitution.

THOSE IN favor of passing the legislation claim the amendment is necessary if the students are to be represented properly in government. At present, the only way a student can initiate legislation is through a senator.

Speaking out against the amendment, Sen. Joe Kalish said he felt that since ASU is a "commuter campus," and only a small part of the student vote, the amendment could be used

Problems Of Negro Is Topic

Members of the NAACP, CORE, the Urban League, and the Inter-racial Council will present a history of their groups and discuss the racial problem at 8 p.m. Sunday in LSC 191.

A question and answer period will follow the panel. Ray Herman, Hillel president, will moderate.

Representing the NAACP will be its local president, the Rev. George Brooks, and treasurer Calvin Goode. John Clarke will speak for CORE. The Rev. Eugene Lefebvre will represent the Inter-racial Council, and the Urban League will be represented by Arlena Senaca.

Grad Forms Deadline Set

The deadline to file applications for graduation for undergraduates planning to graduate next June is Nov. 16, according to Alfred Thomas Jr., registrar and director of admissions.

Each student must pay a $5 graduation fee to the cashier in the Administration Building. He should then take the receipt to Moer 137 for the application.

by a few students to the detriment of the whole student body.

Said Sen. Janice Ayers, a third-term senator, "I feel this is the most important legislation that has come before the Senate in three years."

Seven Appointees Named

Seven appointments to campus positions have been announced within the last week. Two of these were appointments to major administrative positions within the College of Education.

The administrative appointments of Dr. Thomas Weiss and Dr. Mack A. Ralston were announced Thursday by President Durham.

Dr. Weiss is former director of the department of educational foundations and is now the new director of student teaching. He succeeds Dr. Edmond Cross who died Sept. 14.

Dr. Ralston assumes the duties of chairman of the department of educational foundations vacated by Dr. Weiss.

Four business and community leaders have been appointed to the 16-member Dean's Advisory Committee of ASU's College of Business Administration.

New appointees include Wade Hampton of Sears Roebuck & Company; Forrest Haver, manager of Dean Witter & Company; Earnest C. Hodder, agency manager of Equitable Life Insurance Society of the United States, and Lez Rhuart, Care-free Development Corporation.

The primary purpose of the advisory committee is to aid the dean of the College of Business Administration in developing major policies of administration. It is hoped that this will insure the business program of being a maximum service to the business community.

Chairman of the 1964 Alumni

Development Fund is Wayne E. Legg, attorney from Mesa.

The new fund chairman is a 1952 graduate of ASU and former president of the Alumni Association.

Interrace Marriage Discussed

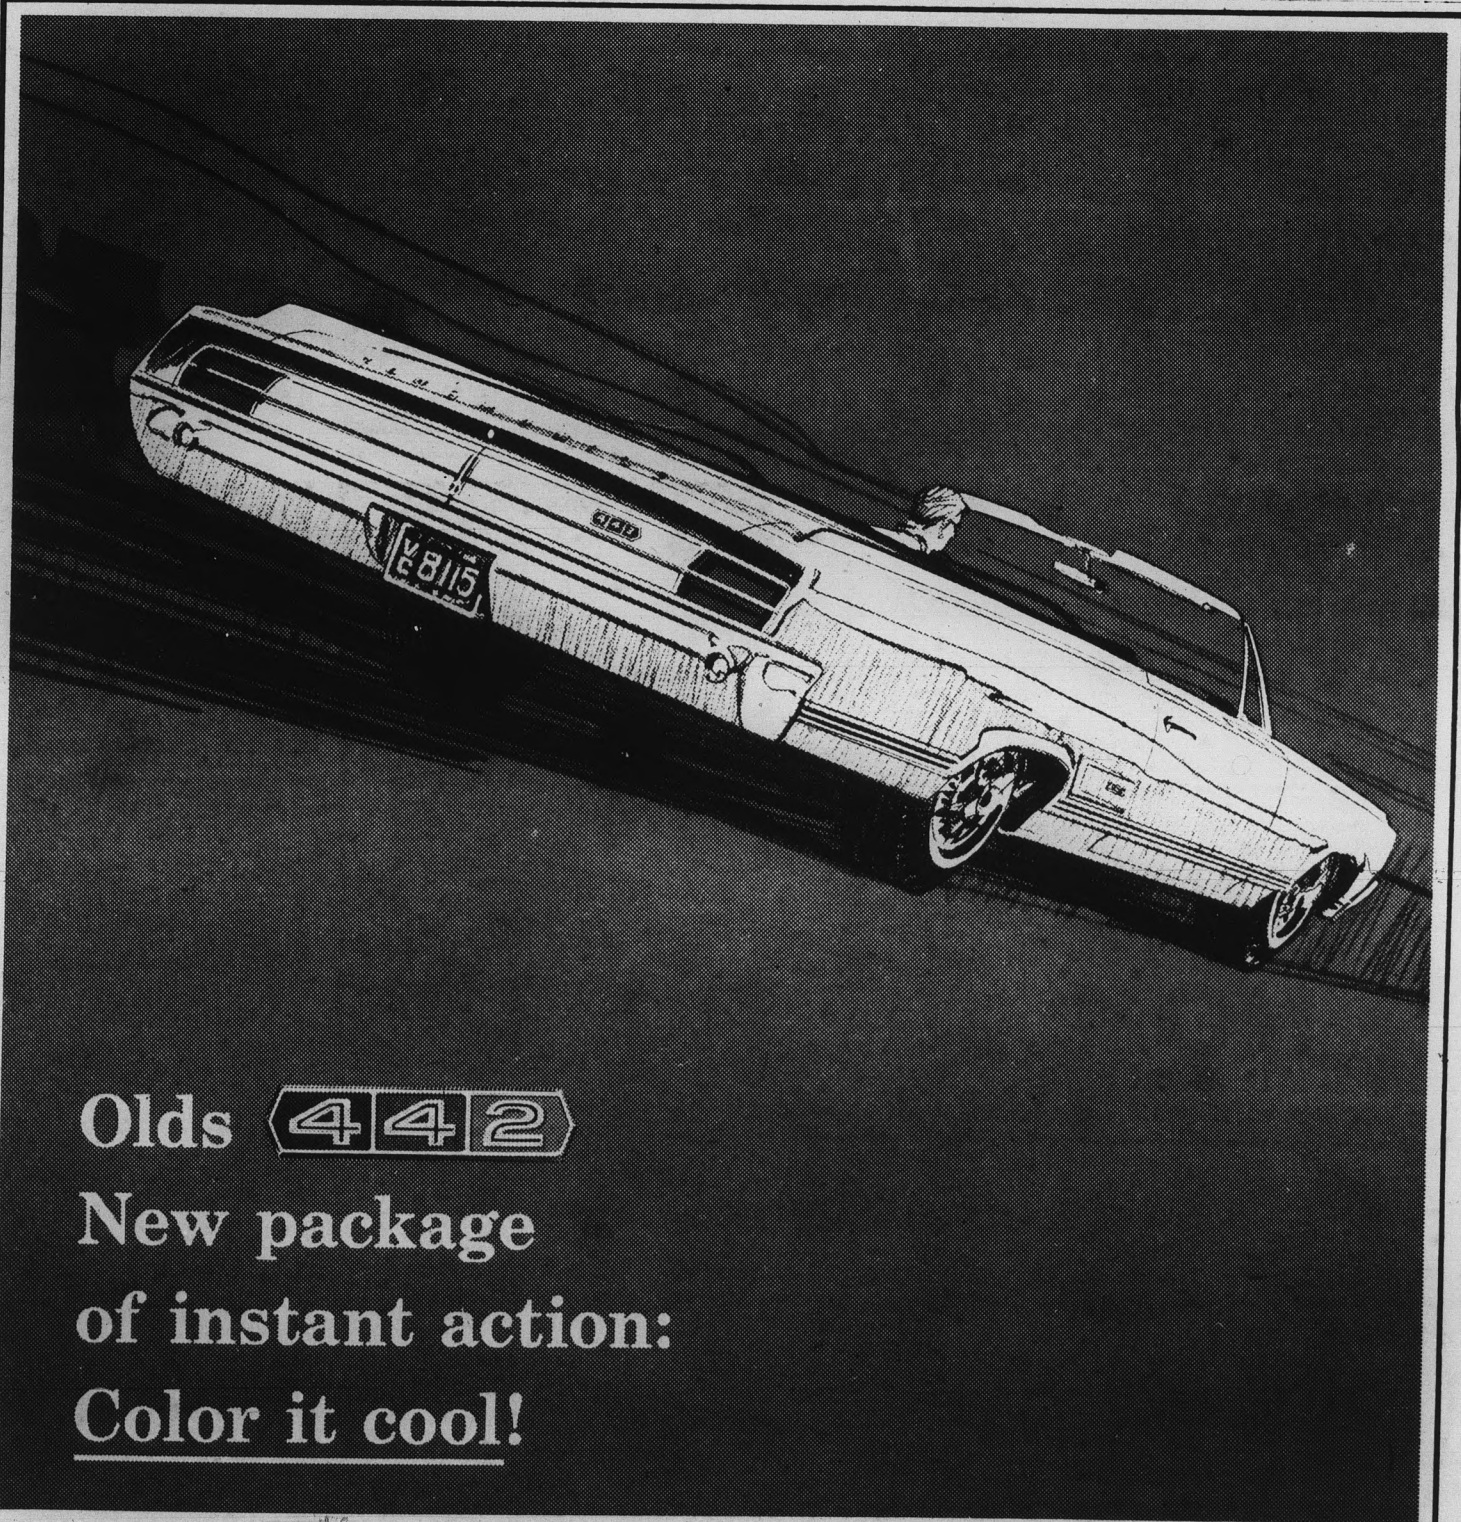

"Black Marries White," a program that looks at interracial marriages in England, will be shown on KAET, Ch. 8, at 10 p.m. today. The frank and provocative program will deal with the pressures and tensions upon those who cross the color line in marriage. Interviews with mixed marriage couples and their sons will be shown.

Following the program a documentary report on how the people of Portugal are living under the rule of their director, Dr. Antonio de Oliverra Salazar, in "Portugal Today."

Highlighting the report will be separate interviews with a youth who took part in a recent student protest against government bans upon assemblies, a young Catholic priest and a man who opposes the Salazar regime.

"River Run South" will be featured on the "Almanac: Arizona" series at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday. The program will relate the epic story of reclamation projects on the lower Colorado River, illustrated with U.S. Bureau of Reclamation photographs of Hoover, Parker, Imperial and Glen Canyon dams, and their construction.

The station will carry an exclusive report on University news on a special "Dateline: ASU" program at 6:45 p.m. Thursday. Dateline news director Bob Hudson and guest editor Dale Petty will present reports on a school personnel administration seminar, a new course in Mexican art and other campus news.

Wage Increase Endorsed By Religious Group

The Student Religious Council endorsed a proposed bill before the AS Senate calling for a minimum hourly wage for associated students employees, Wednesday evening. The bill would require a minimum wage of $1.25.

Endorsement for the bill was requested by Tom Long, SRC senator. "Increased salaries may cut down the number of jobs, leaving only the most necessary," Long said.

Tom Heywood, another SRC senator, opposed the endorsement claiming that a number of the employees affected only "do their homework at work and answer the telephone."

SRC members voted to endorse the proposed bill with only two dissenting votes. Long said he hoped the bill, if passed, would initiate similar action by the University administration.

Ribboning Planned

The Memorial Union Hostesses are planning a ribboning ceremony installation Tuesday in order to initiate freshmen hostesses. Any freshman girl is invited to attend.

Capricious Commentary

By BOB CAPRI

To begin, there's "Becket." It's playing at the Palms Theater. It stars the latest of a long line of Mr. Elizabeth Taylors — Richard Burton. Burton played Henry VIII on Broadway, a role well suited to his sonorous voice. But he apparently enjoyed playing a defrocked minister in "Night of the Iguana" so much that he decided he'd try his luck with Thomas a Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury.

It must be seen to be believed.

PETER O'TOOLE, star, receives co-billing with Mr. Taylor.

Unfortunately, Jean Seberg hasn't given up yet. After two disastrous films ("Joan of Arc" and "Breathless") which won her acclaim as one of the lesser talents of this generation, she has now teamed up with Warren "Splendor in the Grass" Beatty of the lollypop face for "Lilith."

A must for lovers of flamenco ballet is the six-day run of Jose Molina and his Bailes Espanoles, set to run November 10-15 at Sombrero. Molina has gradually overtaken and surpassed the still-great Jose Greco, long acknowledged king of flamenco.

All together too appropriate are the advertisements for Mamie Van Doren's flick "3 Nuts in Search of a Bolt," which trumpet the film as "the screwiest comedy of the year." Miss Van Doren managed to accrue some publicity for her artistic efforts through an ecdysiastical display in a well-thumbed men's magazine.

Homecoming Changeover Result: Floats

Those odd entanglements of chicken wire and two-by-sixes being put together in front of dorms and fraternity houses are not advertisements for lumber yards.

It's Homecoming and the masses of chicken wire, boards and napkins will soon be transformed into colorful floats to add extra brightness to one of the main events of the year.

Even now, the blobs that were shapeless yesterday have become forms of mountains, devils and other creations.

The goal of the builders of those floats — fraternities, sororities, dorms and clubs — is the satisfaction of having the best float in the annual contest.

For some, work will continue into the night for the judging to be done tonight and tomorrow. Winners will be announced at the Kansas State game tomorrow night.

To keep the wealthier organizations from getting the title, a minimum expenditure of $175 has been set. An expense account must be submitted to the AS secretary today.

Because of the danger of fire around decoration areas, a fire extinguisher or 10 gallons of water must be present at all times.

The life-span of the floats is usually shorter than the time it takes to build them. All decorations must be razed after Homecoming weekend and Monday is the deadline for clearing away the debris.

New Directories To Be Delivered, Some Distributed

Student directories are being distributed in limited numbers to faculty, staff and dorm residents, but will not be ready for general circulation until a second shipment is received.

Distribution to the faculty and staff has been completed by the mailroom staff. Dorm residents have received copies via the Housing Office.

Upon arrival of new shipments, fraternities will receive copies through the IFC office. Off-campus students will be able to get copies in MU 207. The date of the new shipment is still in question, but will be announced by the State Press when known.

Unlike last year, the directory is not being sponsored by any on-campus organization. The directory has been compiled through the efforts of the Bureau of Publications and printed by Plains Publications, Lubbock, Tex. It is distributed free of charge to the faculty, staff, students and advertisers.

Greek To Me Campaigns Over; Greek Life Goes On

By JANICE AYERS

Hooray for the Greeks! Keep up the spirit. ASU has not seen such wild and brilliant Homecoming campaigning in three years.

Results were nine Greek finalists for King and Queen. This enthusiasm puts our Greek system on par with all the other outstanding students ASU has had this year.

The Interfraternity Pledge Council finally goes into action this semester after two years of silence. Big projects planned this year are charity drives for Samuel Gompers Memorial Rehabilitation Center and the Easter Seal Society.

IFPC will be working with Junior Panhellenic. Officers for the reorganized group are Jim Rogers, president; Tom Walker, vice president; Tom Elmore, treasurer; Frank Kolts, secretary; Gary Patrick, service chairman, and Chet Wilke constitution chairman.

Newly-elected Sigma Nu pledge officers are Scott Mowbray, president; Tom Ebzery, vice president; George Crane, secretary, and Rex Martin, treasurer.

Non-Alumnus To Receive Alumni Appreciation Award

Alumni Appreciation Award, the highest reward presented to non-alumnus, will be presented today to Hugh W. Long, retired chairman of Anchor Corporation of Elizabeth, N. J., at the Homecoming Dinner.

Long, now residing in Reno, Nev., has made many outstanding art contributions to the University according to President Durham. "He has one of the largest and most varied collections in the country," Dr. Durham said.

"He has made gifts of priceless Stradivari and Guarneri violins and violincellos to ASU."

Long is the husband of alumna Barbara Vaughn. "Hugh Long has adopted his wife's alma mater, and with her, has shared its dreams and aspirations for Gammage Auditorium, expanded fine arts program and greater opportunities and facilities for ASU's students," Durham said.

Freshman Vicki Vaughn will receive the award on behalf of her uncle, who is unable to attend because of illness, according to Donald V. Dotts, executive secretary of the Alumni Association.

1924 Graduates Reminisce

By PAT HUNTER

The class of 1924 had a roller skating craze instead of skateboards, 16 men living on campus, 10 o'clock hours on Saturday night and the largest class in the school's history with 180 members.

Lucy Doyle and Mrs. Margaret Egner, two graduates of the 1924 class, recalled the days when ASU was Tempe Normal and students graduated in two years with a certificate to teach in elementary schools.

The social life in 1924 was limited. "In Tempe there was nothing but the movies. So you just didn't date in Tempe unless it was a movie date," said Mrs. Egner.

"Dances were held in the basement of the auditorium," Miss Doyle continued. "The dances were mostly coed. I danced with Lucy and she danced with me," explained Mrs. Egner. "With only 16 men on campus; well, that's why we danced together."

DORM HOURS were 7 p.m. on weekdays and Sunday, 9 p.m. on Fridays and 10 p.m. on Saturdays. "Once a month the dorm was fumigated. We had to leave all our drawers and the closet open, and you couldn't get into the dorm from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m.," Mrs. Egner recalled.

"We didn't have cold shots or penicillin and we had bugs so it was necessary," Miss Doyle explained.

"We were more formal then," continued Mrs. Egner. "Each fall Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Matthews gave a reception for the students. We left our calling cards and wore white gloves."

ALL THE on-campus students ate in one dining hall. "We weren't stilted, but there was no horseplay," Mrs. Egner continued. Eight students sat at a table and the food was served on platters. All the students at a table remained standing until everyone was seated. "We had to eat all our butter before we could leave the table since it was so expensive," she added.

If students weren't on time for meals, they were locked out of the dining hall. "The only other place we could eat was Dad Mann's," Mrs. Egner continued. Dad Mann's later grew into the Varsity Inn.

THE FORMALITY of the campus was belied by the roller skating craze. "I guess I brought it on," said Miss Doyle. "I loved to skate and brought my skates on campus one week."

Campus campaigns for queens did not have the informal on-the-street activities, however. Miss Doyle was elected "Our Ideal Girl" in 1924. The students voted when they bought their yearbooks and Miss Doyle was crowned at an assembly.

Literary societies, which later grew into sororities, were not mainly social groups then. "We both belonged to Zetetic, which is now Gamma Phi Beta," explained Miss Doyle. "We met once a week and studied drama and put on plays and we did have some social activities although the society did not begin as a social group."

COURSES WERE different, too. Each student had to grow his own garden for a required agriculture course. "You had to take care of your own garden. We had to hoe and water them," said Miss Doyle.

Department To Administer AF Officers Qualifying Test

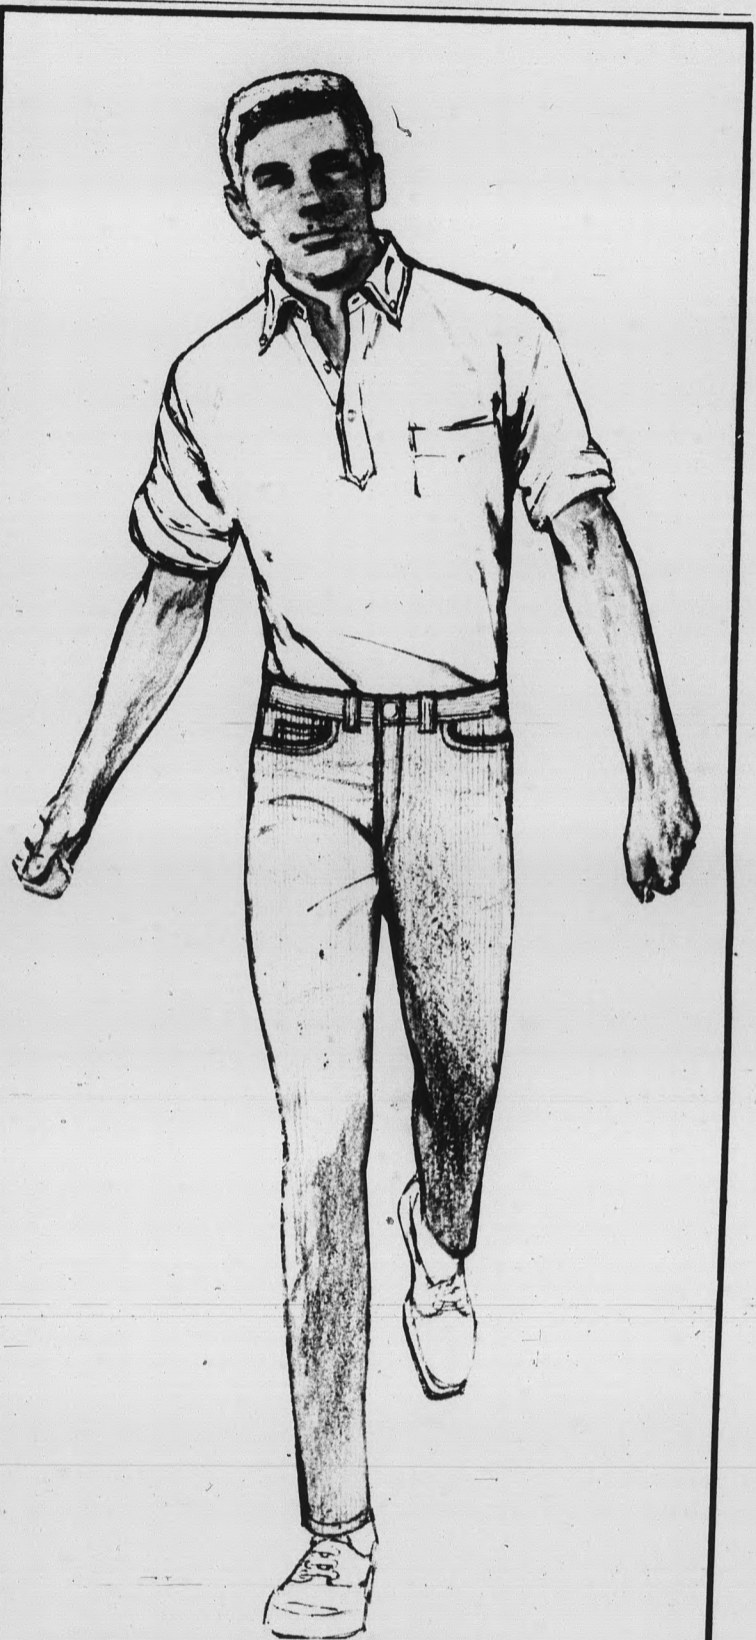

The department of air science will administer the Air Force Officers Qualifying Test at 7:15 a.m., Nov. 21 in LSC 191.

Pre-test processing will begin early. Late arrivals will not be admitted to the testing room. The examination will take approximately six hours to complete.

All qualified sophomore cadets and veterans interested in the Air Force Commissioning Program are required to take the test as a prerequisite for advanced corps consideration. Other prerequisites are a mental test, physical examination and an interview by a staff of special officers.

The department of air science points out: "Testing does not constitute application or incur obligation."

Devils Host K-State In Homecoming Tilt

By JOE HEATH

The 18th Homecoming is on tap tomorrow night when the Devils tangle with the Wildcats of Kansas State.

A-State has won 16 of its past Homecoming games, the only loss coming in 1954 when North Texas State squeezed out a 20-13 win. Last season the Devils romped to a 35-6 win over Wyoming.

Kansas State brings a poor 1-5 record into the game. However, last weekend's loss was a heartbreaker for the Wildcats — a 7-0 loss to a strong Kansas team.

THE MAIN objective for the Wildcats will be to get into the scoring column. K-State has been shut out in its last four outings.

Other than Kansas, Wildcat losses have been to Oklahoma 44-0, Nebraska 47-0, Missouri 7-0 and Wisconsin 17-7. The lone win was a 16-14 victory over Colorado.

On the other side of the slate, ASU's record was raised to 5-1 last weekend following the 34-6 romping over hapless Colorado State.

THE DEVILS' injury list for tomorrow night reads something like this:

Guard John Folmer (ribs), halfback Larry Todd (leg), fullback Jim Bramlet (ankle), linebacker Ed Mauck (shoulder) and tackle Pat Appulese (knee).

Kansas State is reported to have no serious injuries.

ASU's Player of the Week awards for the CSU game went to kicker Chuck Kolb and end Jerry Smith.

KOLB, WHO averages 38.3 yards per punt, has also reeled off two fine runs on fake punts. He has a 23-yarder against Utah and last week's 51-yarder against CSU. In both cases the option to kick or run was strictly up to him.

Against the Rams, Smith caught five passes for 117 yards and a touchdown. His defense was played equally well (five unassisted tackles). Smith's 41 minutes playing time is second only to Bobby Johnson's 44.

TOMORROW night's contest will be the first football meeting between ASU and K-State. The two schools have met once in basketball, ASU taking a 77-72 win.

BENNY HAWKINS, one of ASU's strongest candidates for All-Conference honors, will be in top physical condition for tomorrow night's battle with Kansas State.

ASU Stars Shine In Tennis Match

ASU netters captured all but one championship last weekend in the third annual Charity Tennis Tournament held at Phoenix Country Club.

Gwen Bussa defeated collegiate teammate Ann Rockwell, 6-3, 5-7, 6-0, for the singles crown, then teamed with another ASU coed, Penny Scott, to take the women's doubles championship.

Penny was paired with the number one man on the Sun Devil net squad, Dave Farmer, to defeat another ASU couple, Ted Winston and Judy Waid, in the mixed doubles, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Fourth-seeded Brad Ogle, a Phoenix real estate man, broke up ASU's monopoly by knocking off unseeded Walter Bugg 6-3, 4-6, 8-6 for the men's singles crown.

In the men's doubles, Ogle teamed with ASU student Paul Cullom to oust Ed Worsley and Don Thompson 6-3, 4-6, 10-8, for that title.

AS Runners Finish Last

Devil sophomore Louis Scott zipped to a third-place finish last Saturday in a triangular cross country meet with the UofA and New Mexico Western in Tucson.

This didn't help the ASU harriers, however, who finished last in the three-way battle. The UofA scored 25 points, Western had 45 and the Devils 58 (low score wins).

First-place finisher Lloyd Burson of Western cracked his own course record over the RICK DAVIS racks up one more point on his way to being one of the top Devil scorers. Davis has booted 18 points after in 20 attempts so far this season and has also made good three of three field goals. At present, he is the third leading scorer on the team with 27 points.

Week's Top Men Selected By WAC

Roy Jefferson, Utah end, and Stan Quintana, New Mexico quarterback, were named Tuesday as WAC Lineman and Back of the Week.

Quintana was a big factor, both on offense and defense, in the Lobo's important 17-6 conference victory over Wyoming.

Jefferson, an All-America candidate, has been outstanding on both offense and defense all season, and sparkled in Utah's 41-0 romp over Texas Western.

Quintana got the nod over Virgil Carter, BYU sophomore quarterback, who ran and passed for 274 yards to pace the 28-14 Cougar upset of Utah State.

Jefferson edged Wayne Tvrdik, New Mexico's fine tackle and All-America candidate.

Other players who were cited for outstanding play Saturday are Barry Corchnoy, BYU guard; Jerry Smith, Sun Devil end; Ron Coleman, Utah halfback; and Chuck Kolb, Sun Devil back, and Rick Egloff, Wyoming back.

Intramurals

Doubles in tennis started Monday and should be concluded in one or two weeks.

Three other events will be held this month with wrestling being the first to get under way. Next will come cross country and volley ball.
