IT'S THAT #*%/# COLLEGE MALL — Everytime I walk down that street, my shoes sink lower and lower into the ground. Now I can't even get my shoes on because they're so stiff with mud. I'll miss my delicious lunch at the MU Cafeteria if I don't get them on my feet again. Help me Cecelia!

KASN Unplugged; Engineer Plugged in KASN adviser Rob Bellis yesterday explained the mysterious absence of the station's strong signal on campus during the past few weeks.

"It all started," Bellis said, "when one of our engineers, Clyde Smutscliff, was offered a cigarette by station manager Dick Wracker."

He went on to explain that Wracker is somewhat a practical joker and added that the cigarette offered Smutscliff, "... was, of course, loaded."

"After we cleared away the rubble," Bellis said, "we found poor ol' Clyde with his posterior sorta' jammed in where the speaker ought to be in that $300 speaker system.

"Ol' Clyde was sooo mad that as the stretcher boys carried him out, he grabbed the transmitter plug and pulled it out."

Smutscliff is undergoing plastic surgery at the Student Health Center where his condition is described as "a little bent out of shape."

The four members of the ASU College Bowl team were suspended from school at 3:17 p.m. yesterday when University officials found the students had used crib sheets on the nationally televised program.

University officials were informed of the information late yesterday morning when Major Electric Corp. demanded return of the money it had awarded the University for scholarships.

The team members were Suzee Smith, Peddle Porthole, Kathy Kleindienst and Willard Goldlips, captain. Trainer and coach of the team was Dr. Neal Scaloppini, assistant professor of Etruscan.

Action was taken with all possible haste, but the four college bowlers may have already spent some of the thousands in scholarship moneys made available to them, according to a high University source.

THE DRUNK janitor also said, "If the school doesn't get the money back from the four, we'll probably have to levy a tithe on the student body."

At 3:23 the State Press called Dr. Scaloppini's office and received no answer. We then called ASU President Karl Wochner.

Wochner had only this comment to make concerning the cheating scandal, "I don't think we should be too hasty to condemn the team, or for that matter the administration or the faculty. We must take time to consider the ramifications; right now I don't really have a comment."

When contacted on the subject, team captain Goldlips said, "The only reason we did it was 'cause we thought we'd never get caught." That attitude stinks.

GOLDLIPS went on to describe the cheating system he and his teammates used: "The first game we had answers printed on Suzee's contact lens. The second game we had the answers tattooed on Kathy's earlobes. The third game we had a 12-transistor radio installed in Peddle's head and had the answers read to us by a source whom I will reveal in the next issue of the State Press. The fourth game we used the spots on my necktie to camouflage answers printed there.

"During the last contest we glued on fake fingernails with answers printed on them. We lost that game because we were all so nervous we'd get caught we bit all the answers off."

When asked what he planned to do now that he had been severed from ASU, Goldlips said, "I thought I might try to get into the Air Force Academy."

GGA May Be Converted to A Field House

Intercollegiate Athletics has revealed a proposal to convert Gammage Auditorium into a field house, the State Press learned today.

Included in the new plan was the selling of all seats, equipment and facilities presently in the building to obtain money to buy bleachers to be installed upon conversion of the auditorium. The plan also called for the razing of the Education Building to provide adequate parking for the proposed fieldhouse.

The proposal came shortly after a 10-minute meeting of the Board of Athletic Control.

THE BOARD'S decision was based on the imperative need for a fieldhouse and the high cost of building one. The board issued the following statement:

"Since we ain't got enough money to build a real fieldhouse this seems to be the only way. And since the auditorium ain't benefitting any students now, only the Phoenix Symphony, why not? Besides that, there's plenty of room in Cosner Auditorium for all them guys who likes culture."

Accompanying a slight $17.46 increase in the amount ICA takes from student activity fees it will be necessary to charge $1.75 for each game, said the board.

WHEN ASKED about the situation, AS president Karl Wochner said, "Well, I haven't had much time to study the

Sororities to Vacate PV Hall

Move to Houses On Frat Row

Sororities will move out of Palo Verde Hall and into what are now fraternity houses on Alpha Drive next semester.

The office of the associate dean announced the projected change in its weekly press conference yesterday.

The "row," as it is now called, will be renamed Contempo North, with the sororities occupying every other house, a source close to the office said. One major reason given for the change is to "interbreed strength in the Greek system."

ANOTHER reason is "to bring to the attention of a certain men's magazine that we can have fun on campus too."

The plans call for all of the sororities except the two currently colonizing to occupy five houses on Alpha Drive. The remaining houses will be filled with fraternity men.

The men will double up in the other houses, with rooms given out on a first-come, first-serve basis, after the final plans for sorority occupancy have been revealed.

THE NEW sorority houses will be operated as honor halls with the presidents serving as head residents. "This will alleviate the cost of salaried new head residents," the source said. The fraternity house mothers will be relieved of their duties.

The value of this "social experiment," as it has been termed by the dean's office will be evident in the high dropout rate in succeeding semesters, the source said. We expect that the closeness of the fraternities and sororities which will be encouraged by the new housing arrangements will in turn encourage a high marriage rate among coeds.

"AFTER PLANS for the change have been made known," the source stated, "the dean's office expects a sharp increase in the number of girls interested in going through fall rush."

As one official noted, "My experience with coeds has proved they just come here to get a man anyway. But that is strictly off the record so don't quote me on it in your newspaper."

A random survey of sorority and fraternity members revealed almost complete approval of the new plan. Dissenting opinions came from several coeds who said, "I don't think my mother would like it."

Administration Building Disappears

Campus Security has reported that someone has made off with the Administration Building. Officer Marshall Law said, "I was so busy issuing traffic tickets that I didn't notice it was missing." He added with a sly grin, "I think I ticketed the thieves' crane and wrecker."

President Durham could not be reached for comment since he was in the building at the time. The only thing the rascals spared was the buildings right wing which contains the dean of students' office.

New Telecourses

KAET-TV, Channel 8, will offer two new telecourses in the near future, Station spokesmen said yesterday.

The first, "How to Fix Your TV Set," is designed as a non-educational course for elementary education majors. It offers no credit, but should offer interested students an enlightening look at the new-found art, a member of the Arizona TV Fixers Council said.

The second, "Home and the Family," is hosted by Rex Oedipus whom his mother described as "a wonderful boy, but a little mixed up."

James Bond in ASU Infirmary

Officer James Bond of campus security was admitted to the Student Health Center with a severe case of writer's cramp yesterday. "I think I got it from writing so many parking tickets," he said, grimacing in pain.

Nurse Florence Nightentail said, "He should be all right in a few days. We are having a special on our all-purpose blue pills this week and my dog seems to enjoy them."

Regents Up Requirements For Could-be Graduates

In an effort to stop what they've termed "campus corruption," the Board of Regents today issued a sweeping declaration to raise grade requirements for graduation to a 3.5 cumulative index.

"This will make students study more and play less," reasoned a board member.

The upping of the requirement will take effect immediately, said a spokesman for the board. "Of course, members of the athletic teams will be exempt from the ruling because we all know athletes don't have any time for playing around, what with being in training all the time."

The decision to raise the requirements came a month after a report on student social patterns was filed by the Social Board. The report had included pictures and descriptions of the ASU social life. Also included in the report was a recommendation to provide all women students with knitting needles and men with corn-cob pipes.

Social Board Chairman Louise Oaktree said, "We thought our report reflected the best interests of the student body." AS President Karl Wochner said, "I don't think we should make any hasty remarks about the situation now; I, myself, plan to study the situation further."

"Although we never went to college we know what all you young whipper-snappers do there at those fraternity parties. Drinking, smoking, dancing and all those shameful things," said one regent.

What Do Those Names on the Walls Mean?

Dr. James Egg, head of the Department of Scatology, has been awarded a $1,873,023.08 by the federal government to study telephone numbers written on the walls of local phone booths.

According to a federal spokesman, it is part of President Johnson's Great Society program.

Dr. Egg has researched nine booths so far and found the same name and number in six of them. Dr. Egg said he'll call the number tonight to do a more "involved study." The re-offer two new telecourses in teh near future, station spokes-magazine under the title, "Dial M for Millie."

YES Award To Birdfood

Assistant Dean of Men Boswell Birdfood has been accepted into the Young Educators Society, according to informed sources.

Birdfood is one of 4,000 U.S. college administrators to be inducted into the group.

However, he is the first YES man at ASU.

IT'S FREEZER TIME DOWN SOUTH — Sahuaro yearbook editor Aladdin Freezer gazes at his stolen copy of the 1965 edition. Under fire of the Sahuaro editor, Freezer decided to take a cooler in his icecube-lined tub till the heat in MU 2 subsided.

Wanted to Meet Deadlines

Sahuaro yearbook editor Genie Graux disclosed today that she and her staff have suspended their adviser, Aladdin Freezer.

Freezer was shut out cold after a staff meeting in the yearbook office, the MU broom-closet. The grounds for his suspension were outlined in a report issued after the meeting, which read in part:

"MR. FREEZER has constantly inhibited the Sahuaro staff by trying to inject organization and quality into the staff, something our annual will not tolerate."

The staff's statement also enumerated the charges against Freezer which included:

—Freezer was trying to persuade the staff to meet deadlines.

—Freezer had petitioned to move the Sahuaro office to a more convenient location. Like Dick Thinley's office.

—Freezer had insisted on having Thinley's secretary serve as student government editor.

—FREEZER had requested the staff open the office during the day and stop those night sessions.

—Freezer had continually asked that the radio be turned down and female staff members stop dancing.

The suspension of Freezer will become final after the facts of the case are weighed at the ASU Bureau of Weights and Measures.

Senate Censures Its Own Member

The Student Senate suspended the rules of order and railroaded through a measure to censure Sen. Glad Hander for violating the senatorial code of conduct.

Sen Hander was found guilty of attending two Senate sessions in a row, thereby making the other senators look bad. Sen. Hander could offer no other excuse except he thought he might like to know what he would be voting on the next time his turn to attend the Senate session.

It doesn't pay to know too much about student government said speaker Jackie Hammer. We try to keep all the senators from coming each meeting so no one but me will know exactly what's going on. Besides that there aren't enough seats in the Senate Chamber.

The birds are singing.
The trees are blooming.
Spring is here.
All these attitudes stink!

They all breed apathy and besides that they hinder the separation of powers in Associated Students. How can students be so dumb? How can they be so apathetic?

LIKE IT has been said a hundred times or more, "Justice is the only answer to the problems of reconverting tabular syndroms to the system of government now being placed at the feet of the all-mighty voter and his conscience."

That is what I think, and that is the right thing to think about. That is the right attitude, huh George?

Now if we could get all the students to back the proposal in the form it now stands in, or a form similar enough to be recognized by the average student on this crummy campus.

The students seldom realize the many and varied ways in which the student government on this campus is trying its best to do the things they think the student body would like to have them do for them.

TO MAKE this clear to the students, I am writing this column in hopes that somewhere, someone will read it and understand the problems which are faced daily by the limited number of students who take the time to participate in student government through Associated Students.

To these students we owe a great deal and at the same time we should ask ourselves, are they doing the best job possible? Of course the answer to this question is difficult to discuss without getting into personalities, and this is one thing I think should not be included in a discussion of politics, huh George?

The obvious answer is no. THE STUDENTS can't do the best job possible when the student body they represent is so apathetic that they don't bother to vote in elections, campaign in campaigns or do things at school sponsored activities.

The students at this school don't deserve the corrupt, apathetic student government they have now, much less a better one.

So, as I've said before . . . You apathetic students get exactly what you deserve, you finks.

(Deciphered copies of this column may be obtained by writing to Stale Press, c/o Asphalt, MU 347, ASU.)

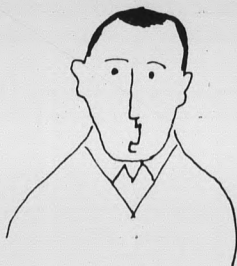

Fishy Story

This is the first in a series of one in which the editor-in-chief pontificates on the ills of contemporary Western man. Like Hugh Hefner he gets his inspiration by going to Bunny clubs.

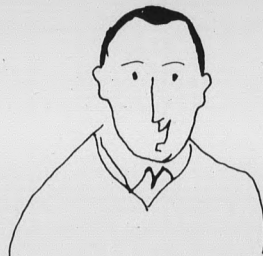

Day by day we pass them by. Walking, skipping, jumping we don't have a care in the world. But right under our very noses the daily struggle for life continues.

We're talking about the fish in the Old Main pond. Yes the fish in the Old Main pond. Have you been over there lately? THOSE FISH ARE DYING!!! Yes, every day is another day closer to their final reward. DOESN'T ANYONE CARE? How would you like to be cramped up in a pond and have people throw cigarette butts and candy wrappers at you??? Then every once in a while somebody would get pinned and have to be thrown into your little world and you'd get stomped on by a pair of dirty tennies. You wouldn't, would you? Well speaking from personal experience, neither would they.

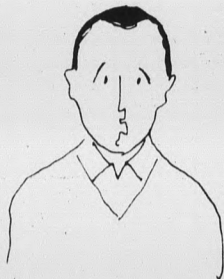

Are today's college youths so apathetic that we can let this condition continue one more day? Contact the dean of students, your congressman, animal shelter, Charley the Tuna and President Johnson immediately if not sooner. Let's show the fish we really care.

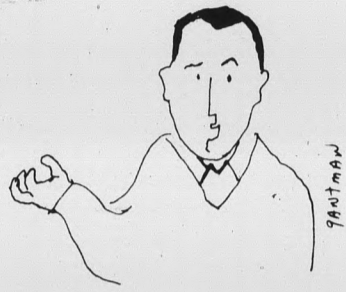

The editor said to me, "Say Ron, we're doing a special April Fools issue and we want a special cartoon."

So I said, "Great John, how about a special civil rights one, or one depicting hypocrisy, or a deep, thought-provoking one on conformity. . ."

And he said, "No, how about an extremely, well-drawn, funny one."

That's just one of the reasons why I drink.

EDITORIALS FROM OTHER PAPERS

- From the Tempe Daily News:
"America needs more flag wavers"
- From the Evening American:
"The American needs more readers"

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary to fill space, the newspaper filler is used to fill up space in newspapers whether it be of the blank variety or someone's careless, stupid mistake and an error in judgment. The things which fill unfilled space are called space fillers because their prime purpose is to fill space. When news doesn't fit, the filler does; that is to say it fills up the space that will otherwise be occupied by a blank space. This is known as a filler and it is used to fill in where the filler didn't fill the filler.

Why Weather?

As someone once said, "Aw, your mother wears combat boots." This has nothing to do with what we're about to complain about, but it sounded nice as a beginning to one of our editorials.

The situation we are complaining about is the weather. We hate to be trite and argue with Mark Twain but we're trying to fight this good weather and the chamber of commerce can go to heck or stay here all summer, whichever it chooses. We think the administration should do something about this deplorable situation right now. This nice weather has got to stop!

It was five minutes before deadline and our adrenalin and alcohol in our system was going at full pitch. Isn't writing editorials exciting, we thought to ourselves as the words flowed onto the paper in our typewriter. Isn't it ridiculous to write "we" when everybody knows damn well that it is some jerk who is trying to fill up space, we wondered to ourselves as the words continued to engulf paper in our typewriter.

The office was the scene of confusion and madness. In one corner two reporters were having a fight over a story, according to reliable sources whom we personally don't have much faith in.

Isn't journalism wonderful as we found we finally had filled our space. Maybe next year we'll switch from elementary education to journalism.

Ungawa Mambosa Conducts Famed Borneo Philharmonic; Artur Boobenstein is Soloist

It is indeed rare that the University gets the opportunity that music lovers all over the world would give their set of Groves for. Yet that was the opportunity given a lucky audience last week when the internationally-known Borneo Philharmonic appeared with equally well-known pianist Artur Boobenstein.

Conductor Ungawa Mambosa started the evening off with a real bang. He shot the first trumpet player.

During intermission your reviewer asked Mambosa why he did such a thing. "For drinking," he answered, walking off. Another member of the brass section standing nearby explained the liquid emanating from the trumpeter's spit valve was NOT spit. He added: "Mambosa's a stickler for discipline." Conceivable.

First on the program was Malcolm Arnold's "A Grand Grand Overture" which, as everyone knows, is scored for orchestra, organ, rifles, three Hoovers and an electric floor polisher. The work is difficult to prepare for because two of the vacuums must be uprights (tuned to the key of B flat), and the third must be a horizontal model with detachable sucker in C. The floor polisher must be in E flat.

Evidently the altitude of the plane that shipped the polisher disagreed with its metabolism.

The best it could do was a rather meek C. The plane by the way was a Fokker D-VII once flown by Von Richthofen himself. To digress even further, this critic was told by reliable sources that after landing atop the Education Building, the plane was inspected at length by Boy Scouts (looking for Girl Scouts). The plane's cockpit contained a skeleton sitting at the controls wearing an Iron Cross, leather helmet and scarf. One of the scouts touched it. It crumbled to dust.

Back to the concert. Mambosa was deeply concerned over the polisher's sudden acrophobia and asked University o-officials what could be done to revive the ailing instrument. As it turns out, the polisher (a 1928 model) is exactly like the one used to clean the modest floors of this noble newspaper. It is also used to clean the walls, but that is another story. Anyway, the performance of the Arnold work was electric in intensity, and polished in performance.

IS EUROPE?

College life is such a busy one, what with learning the Maxix, attending public executions, and walking our cheetahs, that perforce we find ourselves sometimes neglecting our studies. Therefore this column, normally a vehicle for innocent tomfoolery, will occasionally forego levity to offer a quick survey course in one of the learned disciplines. Today, for an opener, we will discuss Modern European History.

Strictly defined, Modern European History covers the history of Europe from January 1, 1964, to the present. However, in order to provide employment for more teachers, the course has been moved back to the Age of Pericles, or the Renaissance, as it is better known as.

The single most important fact to remember about Modern European History is the emergence of Prussia. As we all know, Prussia was originally called Russia. The "P" was purchased from Persia in 1874 for $24 and Manhattan Island. This later became known as Guy Fawkes Day.

Persia without a "P" was of course called Ersia. This so embarrassed the natives that they changed the name of the country to Iran. This led to a rash of name changing. Mesopotamia became Iraq, Schleswig-Holstein became Saxe-Coburg, Bosnia-Herzegovina became Cleveland. There was even talk about changing the name of stable old England, but it was forgotten when the little princes escaped from the Tower and invented James Watt. This later became known as the Missouri Compromise.

Only last week he invented the German short-haired pointer.

Meanwhile Johann Gutenberg was quietly inventing the printing press, for which we may all be grateful, believe you me. Why grateful? I'll tell you why: Because without Gutenberg's invention you would not have this newspaper to read and you might never learn that Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades are now available in two varieties—the regular double-edge blade we have all come to know and love, and the new Personna Injector Blade. Users of injector razors have grown morose in recent years, even sullen, and who can blame them? How would you feel if you were denied the speed and comfort and durability and truth and beauty of Personna Stainless Steel shaving? Not very jolly, I'll wager! But injector shavers may now rejoice—indeed all shavers may—for whether you remove your whiskers regularly or injectively, there is a Personna blade for you—a Personna Stainless Steel Blade which will give you more luxury shaves than Beep-Beep or any other brand you might name. If by chance you don't agree, the makers of Personna will gladly buy you a pack of any brand you think is better.

Yes, friends, we may all be grateful to Johann Gutenberg for inventing the means to spread this great news about Personna. The next time you're in Frankfurt-am-Main, why don't you drop in and say thanks to Mr. Gutenberg? He is elderly—408 years last birthday—but still quite active in his laboratory. Only last week he invented the German short-haired pointer.

But I digress. Returning to Modern European History, let us now examine that ever-popular favorite, France.

France, as we all know, is divided into several Departments. There is the Police Department, the Fire Department, the Gas and Water Department, and the Bureau of Weights and Measures. There is also Madame Pompadour, but that is a dirty story and is taught only to graduate students.

Finally we take up Italy—the newest European nation. Italy did not become a unified state until 1848 when Garibaldi, Cavour, and Victor Emmanuel threw three coins in the Trevi Fountain. This lovely gesture so enchanted all of Europe that Metternich traded Parma to Talleyrand for Mad Ludwig of Bavaria. Then everybody waltzed till dawn and then, tired but happy, they started the Thirty Years War. This later became known as Pitt the Younger.

Space does not permit me to tell you any more about Modern European History. Aren't you glad?

Dr. Neal Scaloppini, assistant professor of Etruscan, was found at 3:21 yesterday hanging by his neck from a rope attached to the ceiling. He was dead.

Campus Security said after a partial investigation that the apparent cause of death was lack of oxygen. There are no clues to Dr. Scaloppini's death.

However, a patrolman did say an autographed picture of the College Bowl team, which Dr. Scaloppini coached, was found in the wastebasket.

MU Board Surprises Mrs. Molar With Action

The MU Board has passed a resolution that the MU should be made into a discotheque complete with cages, Mrs. Celuliod Molar, MU decorator, could not be reached since she is in a severe state of shock. When she was notified of the decision, she supposedly said, "I knew this would happen. It's all because of our lax policy on shorts."

In other action, the board clarified its policy on topless bathing suits. The decision will go to Mrs. Molar when she recovers from the shock.

Using Mrs. Molar's recommendations, the board's has decided to re-decorate Clancy's. The suggested motif will be mid-Victorian with spittoons instead of ash trays.

YRFers Injure Several KKC's

Three Kappa Kappa Clubby sorority members were injured last night as the result of an exchange with the Young Radicals for Freedom (YRF). The coeds were rejected by the Student Health Center because it was after hours.

According to a little bird, the trouble started when the head RFER suggested a way to break the monotony. "Let's hang 10," he shouted. Sidewalk surfboards immediately appeared from the coeds' pocketbooks, but they didn't understand that the RFRers wanted to hang 10 because of purported liberal tendencies. Being women, the sorority members didn't take it lightly. One coed survivor was quoted as saying, "Are you kidding me?"

Pros Won't Accept
Non-Grad Athletes

The owner of the Lordsburg (N.M.) Lions professional football club said last night at the spring football banquet that the collegiate ball players who do not graduate will "be ineligible to play professional football." James Renegade, addressing the ASU football coaching staff and 37 players, told the stunned audience "too many fine boys have been lured away from the campus with the almighty dollar and this must stop immediately. Schools like Arizona State have not only been stripped of fine athletes but, have been used as professional minor leagues instead of institutions of higher learning."

A new hiring and pay scale policy has been adopted by professional club owners, according to Renegade. "Not only must boys finish school but their grades must be respectable. Mental screening tests, like the Graduate Record Exam, will now be given by all the clubs." Starting salaries start at $4,500 to $6,000 a year since "no boy fresh out of college should earn more than his professors with Ph.D. degrees," said Renegade.

John Trailsmen, executive secretary of the Three X Club, said tiddley winks tryouts will start at 3 tomorrow afternoon in the MU upper lounge.

Trailsmen, a senior, said he prefers candidates majoring in history, political science or economics with side interests in art history, music, drama and classical languages because, "on the away trips we must have something to talk about." Conversational French is also highly recommended.

Inexperienced players need not worry since, "most people can learn to be tiddley players in two or three weeks."

Four positions remain open on the tiddley wink cheerleader squad. Trailsmen said any girl may apply but prefers the "pale, tubercular, drawing room type."

Dairyman Gets $$$$$ Contract

Basketball, the step-child of professional athletics, signed court star Dennis Dairyman to a $10,000,000 contract which includes a life insurance policy that provides a monthly income of $8,000 a month for life.

"We don't know where Dairyman will play yet," said National Cage Association (NCA) president Max Promoter, "We couldn't take the chance of losing him to a law school for three years."

open this fall. The new structure's design features three major playing areas, covered by thick, heavy, wall-to-wall carpeting with lounges scattered around the center ring. The weight lifting team will use it in the off season.

Sherry bars and periodicals (London Times, Saturday Review, Playboy, Paris Match, and The Wall Street Journal) will be made available free, to spectators who like to indulge and browse during matches.

Halftime activities include talks by Mario Savio, free speech; Jean Paul Sartre, existentialism; Bertrand Russell, pacifism; James Baldwin, Equality; Richard Burton, Shakespeare; and Germaine Bree, Albert Camus.

TOUGH SCHEDULE:

The tiddley squad's schedule is the toughest in its history. Matches include Reed College, Claremont, Grinnell College University of the South, Williams, Harvard, Princeton, Swarthmore College, Rice Institute, and England's Cambridge and Oxford.

Candidates who make the team will be given $10,000 scholarships, room and board, travel expenses and a new Mustang.

Rank Official Exposes New ROTC Plans

Special to the Stale Press (SPNS) — "The ROTC program is finally moving into the 20th century," said a highly rank defense official recently. He outlined the plan for next year that ASU will follow:

"A new plan (form 38-24-36, all other obsolete) was just approved by the secretary of defense (form 1965, all other obsolete) which will make it mandatory for all students to take ROTC. In keeping with our austerity program, the Angel Flight and the Kaydettes will only accept those who definitely want to go into the service later on (see your recruiter). No longer will beauty be the only criterion (see the editorial page.)

"Many students have been complaining about the Early 7:40 drills. We have come to the conclusion that the best time for drills would be Friday nights. That way it wouldn't interfere with anything else.

We've also had some complaints about the tailoring for the pants. So to show we too are collegians at heart, we are going to issue special Continental-cut trousers. It's part of the Great Society.

"From now on we will have all officers call them charges "buddies." The name "weinies" tends to make them soft and brings out their individualistic tendencies."

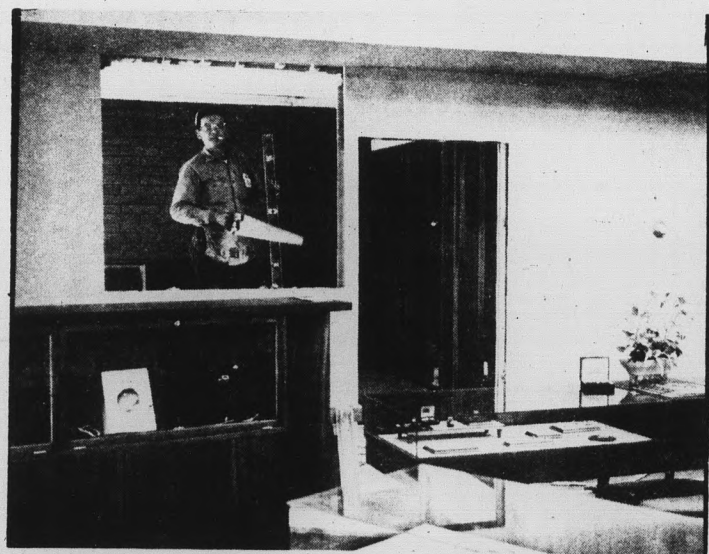

EARLY MORNING EXERCISE — An unidentified Blue Cheer words that will live forever, he yelled, "To coin a phrase, 'Give me the Library or a Discotheque.'" Spectators are yawning.

problem and since it isn't wise to make hasty decisions, I don't have any comment at this time."

Since the cost of the conversion will be so high it will be necessary to rent the fieldhouse in off seasons, said the board. Because of this the board has tentatively accepted an offer to lease the converted facility for the 8-month non-basketball season to a traveling revival show.
