TODAY

The nutty musical-comedy "Bye Bye Birdie" starring Dick Van Dyke and Ann Margaret gives an insight into what's the matter with kids today. The movie is set for 7:30 p.m. in Cosner Auditorium.

KAET-TV, the campus television station, throws open its doors to a tour starting at 3 p.m. from the MU information desk.

The first of eight bridge lessons sponsored by the MU and taught by Capt. Ericson Lewis is scheduled from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. in MU 209-210. A $6 fee for the course and an instruction booklet must be paid at the MU information desk prior to today's class.

TOMORROW

"Bye Bye Birdie" is scheduled for a second showing at 7:30 p.m. in Cosner Auditorium.

MONDAY

The classic "Adventures of Robinson Crusoe" is projected for the kids and other adventure-loving souls at 7:30 p.m. in Cosner Auditorium.

TUESDAY

Paul E. Purser, special assistant to the director of the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston, delivers a speech "The U. S. National Space Program" at 8 p.m. in the MU ballroom. A reception follows in the MU upper lounge.

A tour of the "inner city" of Phoenix leaves at 1:30 p.m. from in front of the MU. The three-hour bus tour is led by a member of the President's National Advisory Committee on Poverty. Cost is $1.50 for transportation.

Bridge lesson No. 2 is from 2-3:30 p.m. in MU 209-210.

WEDNESDAY

Coffee, juice and sweet rolls and donuts are abundant and inexpensive (5 cents each) at the MU coffee break, 8:45 to 10:30 a.m. in the MU Pagoda Room.

A tour of the late Frank Lloyd Wright's school of architecture, Taliesin West, is scheduled for 3 p.m. Busses will leave from the front of the MU. Reservations for the tour can be made at the MU information desk for 75 cents.

tuition goes up by $25

board of regents

The Board of Regents has increased tuition $25 per year, raising each semester's fees from $115 to $127.50, effective July 1, 1966.

Out-of-state tuition at the two universities will be raised $50 per year on July 1, 1966, increasing total non-resident fees from $880 to $930 per year.

No change in costs have been announced for summer sessions.

The Board of Regents also has distributed the $15,525,000 provided by the 1965 state legislature for the 1965-66, and 1966-67 building programs at Arizona's universities and state college.

Of the $5,525,000 appropriated for 1965-66, the regents awarded $2,755,000 to the University of Arizona; $1,960,000 to ASU, and $810,000 to Arizona State College.

Of the $10 million approved for 1966-67, the board allocated $5,295,000 to the UofA; $3,705,000 to ASU, and $1,000,000 to ASC.

In other action, the regents have approved building contracts totaling $1,968,991.75 for four construction projects on campus.

A $1,085,478 contract has been awarded to the William Peper Construction Co. for a women's physical education building on the east campus, and a $742,650 contract to the Chanen Construction Co. has been approved for a College of Nursing Building at the southwest corner of College Avenue and Eighth Street.

Funds for both projects were appropriated during the 1964 session of the state legislature.

An $8,998 contract has been awarded to Seabrooks Industries for a new cooling tower and piping for the Engineering Center, and a $131,865.75 contract to the All-American School Supply Co., Inc. has been approved for the installation of approximately 11,200 semi-permanent bleacher seats for Sun Devil Stadium.

Funds for the stadium seats have been provided by income from the University's intercollegiate athletic programs.

matching funds

money from EOA

Arizona's senior U.S. Senator Carl Hayden has announced that seven colleges and universities in Arizona have been granted a total of $403,703 to help students in a work-study program authorized under the Economic Opportunity Act.

Sen. Hayden said the work-study program is designed to help needy students attend college and the funds authorized will be used by the respective schools to provide employment for the students while they are in school.

"These funds are provided on a $90 to $10 matching basis," Sen. Hayden said, "and it is up to the schools themselves to select the students and administer the funds."

The Senator listed these amounts for the major Arizona schools:

Arizona State College at Flagstaff, $148,255; Arizona State University, $156,188, and the University of Arizona, $72,653.

university loses money, students get TV

By JOHN POLICH

The state-wide construction industry strike-lockout will cost the University a minimum $100,000 in lost revenue this fall, according to Housing Director Edward Hickcox.

Hickcox explained the figure is a conservative estimate of student housing fees that won't be collected because 330-bed additions to Best and Sahuaro Halls will not be completed by the start of the fall semester. The loss will be partially offset by reduced operating expenses, but officials said ASU will be about 200 beds short when classes begin.

All dormitory room reservations received so far have been filled, Hickcox said. He said 80 men will be temporarily assigned to Haigler Hall in Goodwin Stadium. The antiquated dorm was originally ordered phased out last spring.

Another 60 men will be housed in a Tempe motel. Hickcox said the students will stay at the Trans Travel Motel, just north of the Tempe bridge, until on-campus space is available. The motel is a 20-minute walk from class, but the housing director said he expects most residents will have cars.

The modern motel features room television and telephones, a coffee shop and large swimming pool. Hickcox said maid service will be provided once or twice a week.

Hickcox predicted the motel would be a little more comfortable than a men's dorm, but added that study facilities are poor and the venture will cost the University $1,300 a month more than if dormitory rooms were available.

Students living in the motel will pay the regular Sahuaro Hall per diem rate of about $1.25, Hickcox said. He said officials hope the 60 men can be moved on-campus by early November.

A head resident and supervisory personnel will watch over the men housed in the motel.

Tran Van Chuong speech

By ELSON IRWIN
news bureau writer

Dr. Tran Van Chuong avoided the future and spoke mostly of the past in the last programs of the Summer Concert-Lecture Series of first session, last week. The ex-ambassador to the United States from South Vietnam addressed some 600 people in the MU ballroom.

Dr. Chuong accused the French of "selling out Vietnam" to the Communists; he chastised columnist Walter Lippmann, and he attempted to punch holes in Sen. William Fulbright's "pullback policy."

"I do not blame the French," Dr. Chuong said. "They could not do otherwise. They were severely defeated by the Vietminh."

But in his Oriental way of first saying something nice about a person or a country, using the words "honorable" and "well-meaning," Dr. Chuong placed a great deal of the blame on former French Premier Pierre Mendes-France, who, according to Dr. Chuong, had agreed to peace with the Vietminh previous to hearing a South Vietnamese proposal for placing the whole of Vietnam under United Nations control.

"Whom do you believe?" Dr. Chuong asked. "Do you believe three presidents of the United States who have pledged support for the Vietnamese people or those who would pull back strategically?"

Father of the controversial Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu, Dr. Chuong declined to comment in depth on the nationalist government of Diem, for whom he served as ambassador to the U.S., and with whom he broke relations shortly before Diem's assassination in 1963.

"Diem is dead now," Dr. Chuong said, "and I should like to refrain from saying much more about it."

"HANOI . . . A SILENT CITY"

The 67-year-old ex-ambassador did say, however, that no government in South Vietnam could be as bad as that of Ho Chi Minh, the iron-handed ruler of North Vietnam.

"In Hanoi (North Vietnam's capital) people no longer smile. It is a silent city," Dr. Chuong said, "where Communist terrorists have enslaved the people, confiscated lands and have kidnapped and assassinated those who would not succumb to their wishes."

In a break in Dr. Chuong's prepared speech, he spoke briefly of his own experiences with the Communists in North Vietnam. He said he hid in a cemetery for some time to avoid them. He added, "I would either have had to become a Communist official or be shot."

Dr. Chuong is from a North Vietnamese family, born at Shu Ly. He rose to become senior lawyer in Hanoi. He owned a large house in the North Vietnamese capital.

The Vietnamese statesman told how Ho Chi Minh changed his name and his identity to take over North Vietnam by deceit. He said he had been a Communist agitator for 20 years before suddenly emerging as a nationalist leader and spirited foe of the Japanese during World War II.

"Now, he wants to enslave all of Vietnam," Dr. Chuong said.

Dr. Chuong does not believe that Red China will intervene in the struggle. He hinted at the fact that Ho Chi Minh may not really want Red China to enter the war.

Dr. Chuong believes Red China may be fearful that the U.S. will strike back at her nuclear factories and set them back in the race for nuclear power. He hinted again at Ho Chi Minh's reluctance to invite the Red Chinese in for fear he would lose the respect of his people.

"The people of Vietnam are not Communists. This is true both in the North and South," Dr. Chuong said. "They are the victims of the Communists."

Dr. Chuong explained that some 860,000 North Vietnamese fled the country for "freedom" in South Vietnam.

He said if the United States should pull out or back in South Vietnam, it would be "another Munich with the same consequences."

He explained that a withdrawal would not give the United States one day of relief, and that "the whole world would no longer have any confidence in America."

U.S. RIGHT IN STRIKING BACK

Dr. Chuong called the "war of aggression" a major challenge to the security of the United States itself. He said that the U.S. has finally understood and has begun to do the right thing — to strike back at North Vietnam — at least the military targets.

In answer to the critics who say: "Why is it taking so long?" Dr. Chuong said, "How can you undo in four short months what has been taking place for seven or eight long years?"

He said we are now doing the right thing, but we must have patience. "If the most powerful nation in the world cannot save Vietnam," Dr. Chuong asked, "then what other country do you expect to save?"

Dr. Chuong explained that in Vietnam the people are not starving; they do not suffer from the cold; they are not ripe for a Communist take-over.

"They are willing to keep fighting, even though they have fought so long," he said.

SINO-SOVIET RIFT COULD WIDEN

Dr. Chuong also believes that if the U.S. continues to stand up for what he termed as "right," that this will cause an even wider rift between Russia and Red China.

Dr. Chuong said that when Russia "sees that the U.S. is determined to halt Communist aggression, they will pull away telling China: I told you so."

The former ambassador also believes that South Vietnam will resolve its religious struggle — the struggle between the Catholics and Buddhists. (Dr. Chuong is a Buddhist; his daughter, Mme. Nhu and the entire Diem regime was Catholic.)

"They lived together in peace for centuries. This recent struggle is an accident of history," he said.

Dr. Chuong is traveling through the United States under the auspices of Wide World Lecture Bureau of New York City. He no longer has any official connection with the government of South Vietnam.

6,000 expected enrollment

Approximately 6,000 students were expected to register for the second summer session Monday, according to Dr. Roy C. Rice, dean of summer sessions. A total of 8,778 students enrolled for the first summer session. A post session of six courses follows on Aug. 23.

MU coffee break

Coffee break at the MU — a delightful period of donut dunking, gossip, pre-class cramming and just plain relaxation.

A blurry-eyed, unshaven junior said, "The coffee break helps me wake up." A pert housewife mused it was the only chance she got to "sit down and rest for a second, what with the kids at home and classes here."

"It gives me a chance to finish my homework," a freshman coed said with a guilty smile. But it was summed up by a middle-aged gentleman who said, "I come here 'cause the coffee is better than my wife's."

Coffee and juice drinkers assemble between 8:45 and 10:30 each Wednesday morning of summer session in the MU Pagoda Room. For only a nickel students and faculty can enjoy the drinks or a donut or sweet roll.
