Moving Day Draws Near

By GEORGE BODDY

The gargantuan task of moving 600,000 books and other items from Matthews to the new Hayden library and still remain open for summer school is now facing the library staff.

Dr. Alan Covey, librarian, said the summertime transfer will take place on a floor-to-floor basis, as each floor is made available.

Moving by hand-truck, the operation will begin in the middle of July and take about six weeks to finish.

THREE WEEKS of the transfer period will be during summer session, a time when books will be needed by students. The library plans to confront this problem with a page system.

If a book has already been moved, it will be located in its new stack for the student.

Durham Visits African Posts, Sends Greeting

"Greetings and best wishes to all Summer Session students and faculty" have been received from Nairobi, Africa, where ASU President G. Homer Durham is on an assignment, sponsored by the State Department, in connection with his duties as a member of the Board of Foreign Scholarships.

Dr. Durham, who was recently re-appointed to the Board of Foreign Scholarships by President Lyndon B. Johnson, is a member of a delegation conferring with government leaders throughout Africa in regard to the U.S. foreign scholarship program. He is expected to return to ASU July 15.

Complete text of the message reads:

"May I use this means, from Nairobi, Kenya, 5 posts 'in' on my official visits to our African posts, to extend greetings and best wishes to all Summer Session students and faculty.

"Had you been with me in Algiers, Tunis, Tripoli, Benghazi and Cairo in North Africa, you would have sensed, as I did, the fact that education is truly America's Magic — and that the improvement of the human condition, as well as international understanding, rests heavily on its extension.

"And now, on to further duty in Central Africa. Best wishes! G. Homer Durham."

Judge to Speak At MU Luncheon Today Noon

Noted Arizona Juror Henry S. Stevens will discuss "Some Provisions of the Constitution" at today's first summer lecture-luncheon in the MU Pagoda room.

Judge Stevens has been chief judge of the Court of Appeals, Division One, since Jan. 4, 1965, and formerly served as judge of the Superior Court since 1953.

The buffet-style luncheon will begin at 12:15 p.m., followed at 12:45 p.m. by the lecture. The cost is $1.25.

Born in Madison, Wis., Judge Stevens is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and of the College of Law at the University of Arizona. He was admitted to law practice in Arizona in 1931, with subsequent admission to practice before the United States Court of Appeals in San Francisco and the Supreme Court of the United States.

He served four years as assistant city attorney of the City of Phoenix, and also served in the U.S. Air Force as Lt. Colonel, working in the field of law, during which time he graduated from the Judge Advocate General's officers school at the University of Michigan.

BRIEF STRIKE

About 150 library construction workers left their jobs yesterday morning, causing a temporary work stoppage.

It was reported the sheet metal workers called a strike protesting that sub-scale wages were being paid by one contractor to workers erecting library stack shelves.

Some students are employed by the contractor assembling the shelves and it was unofficially reported that the sheet metal workers were in fact objecting to the hiring of students. Other workers respected the sheet metal picket lines.

John Ellingson, director of the Physical Plant, termed the event a misunderstanding, and said it was reported to the U.S. Labor Department.

The picket line was withdrawn at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday and indications were that there would be no further interruption.

"It is our intention and obligation to make books available to the student and faculty," Dr. Covey said. "With an hour or two delay the book should be available."

AT THE CLOSE of the summer session the library will close its doors to speed up moving. Library services will be available only to graduate students and faculty during this period.

Moving into the $4 million library will be completed and the library opened early in September.

SPACE FOR BOOKS and other reading material will be greatly expanded over present facilities, and 2,400 more seats will be available to students in the new building.

Carrels for private study number 1,200, of which 250 are the locking variety to be made available to graduate students.

Student traffic problems have been avoided by providing for a separate downstairs entrance to the busiest area of the library, the Education room. By placing education materials on the submerged first floor, traffic from the ground level second floor may move in two directions.

SELF-SUFFICIENT units of study will be located on all of the five floors. The 4th floor, for example, will hold all the periodicals, maps, prints, listening and microfilm facilities concerned with Social Sciences. It will be known as the Social Science floor.

Law School Hires First Professor

The former dean of the Northwestern University School of Law has been engaged as the first faculty member of the University's new College of Law.

Dr. Harold C. Havighurst, who will retire this month as professor of law at Northwestern University, has accepted an appointment to a similar position here.

and doctor of law degrees from Ohio Wesleyan University and master of arts and bachelor of law degrees from Harvard University.

In addition to more than 35 major articles for professional journals, Professor Havighurst is the author of "Nature of Private Contract," 1961, and "Cases on Contracts," 1934 and 1950.

Dr. H. C. Havighurst

Described by Dr. John Ritchie, present dean of Northwestern University's School of Law, as "one of this country's most distinguished legal scholars," Dr. Havighurst will join the faculty in September, 1967, when the new College of Law is scheduled to initiate classes.

"One of the truly distinguished figures in American legal education," Dr. Havighurst will teach courses in contracts and insurance, says Dr. Willard H. Pedrick, dean of the College of Law.

A Phi Beta Kappa, Dr. Havighurst holds bachelor of arts

Dean Warns Of Deadline

Tomorrow is the last day a student may drop a course with a W (withdrew) grade, which carries no penalty.

Dean of Summer Sessions Roy C. Rice said any withdrawals after tomorrow carry E (failure) grades. Any exception due to injury, death in the family, or other crisis must be approved by the instructor, the Dean of the College, and the student's curriculum adviser.

No student will be permitted to drop a course during the week in which final examinations begin.

A student who quits a course for which he is officially registered by absenting himself from class will receive a grade of E at the end of the session.

To drop a course the student must obtain from the Office of Registrar and Director of Admissions and Authorization for Dropping Course form and process it according to the instructions on the form.

Basketball Stars Make Pro Bids

Two of last season's basketball players are away at tryout camps making bids for professional hoop contracts.

Freddie Lewis reported to the Cincinnati Royals camp as a late round draft choice. Lewis broke seven school records, tied for one and averaged 22.7 points per game.

Dennis Hamilton was to report to the Los Angeles Lakers camp. The 6-foot-8 athlete averaged 17 points per game while at ASU.

The tryout camps give the players a chance for acceptance by the regular professional team training camps later this year.

Scholar to Talk On Court Fools

That ostensibly useless people do have some value to society is the provocative theme of an MU lecture Tuesday by an internationally known sociologist.

Dr. Werner Stark, visiting professor during the first summer session, will discuss "Court Fools and Other Useless People" at his 8 p.m. talk in the MU ballroom.

He is conducting a course on campus on the Sociology of Knowledge, a field in which he is world-renowned, both as an educator and author.

Students, faculty and the public are invited. There is no admission charge.

Letter Policy

Letters to the editor will be accepted but should not exceed 150 words. Letters must be signed but names will be withheld upon request.

The Summer State Press is published each Thursday during the summer, except final examination week.

'Sahuaro' Colorful

NOTE: Your hefty, 480-page Sahuaro has arrived and if you have not yet picked it up, it's waiting at MU 207. The shipment of 3,500 volumes is the result of a year's effort by 43 yearbook staffers. The editorial staff was composed of: Patrick O'Neil, editor-in-chief; John Van Houten, business manager; Terri Kohn, layout editor; Pamela Sisk, photo editor; Sheila Sullivan, copy editor; and Allan Frazier, supervisor.

By RUTH K. SMITH

The mystifying arrangement of last year's "Sahuaro," with its too-subtle references to campus architecture, unwittingly gave a clue to this year's success in yearbook production.

For the staff of the 1966 "Sahuaro" has published a book with a structure combining beauty and functional design.

Through the theme of "growth, the struggle for individuality," the various aspects of university life are unified in telling the year's story.

The use of appropriate chronological narrative style also gives it superior organization.

BASED ON THE single fundamental idea of growth and its accompanying search for individuality, the 1966 "Sahuaro" begins with 16 pages of striking color photography and poetic legend to reveal its theme: the desert awakening, pushing upward through growth and burgeoning struggle to a future too complex and uncertain to fathom.

All sections carry out this basic idea with additional color pages used to illustrate the various divisions of school life as they tell their part of the story.

THE STORY MOVES on to its conclusion in the metaphor of the sahuaro — struggling, persistent and finally presenting its lone bloom — emphasizing individuality, the ultimate campus achievement.

More complete coverage, made possible by the addition of 47 pages to include an adequate faculty section and a well-planned achievement division, improves this most recent edition.

Through the 1966 "Sahuaro" staff is itself experiencing the growing pains depicted in story in the yearbook, it has produced a book superior in many respects to previous editions.

'Thieves' Two Weeks From Stage

With opening night less than two weeks away, "Thieves' Carnival," the comedy by Jean Anouilh, is well into rehearsals.

The play will be staged July 5-7 at 8 p.m. in Grady Gammage Memorial Auditorium.

The cast, as announced by Dr. James Yeater, the director, features James Minotto of Phoenix, and Michael Lucchesi and John Williamson of Scottsdale, as the three affectionate thieves who invade a palatial home in which two attractive girls reside.

The girls — played by Randalyn Roer, as Juliette, and Gail Smith, as Eva, both of Phoenix — are nieces of Lady Turf, who will be portrayed by Roberta Trujillo of Tempe.

Also in the cast are Eric Silver, Phoenix, as Lord Edgard; Jed Nolan, Phoenix, as Dupont-Duford, Sr.; Gary Hall, Phoenix, as Dupont-Duford, Jr.; Ralph Bradshaw, Phoenix, as the town crier; Bob Graybill, Tempe, as the policeman; Cynthia Wootton, Tempe, as the nursemaid; and Margie Davenport, Tempe, as the little girl.

Seats will be reserved and tickets for the public, priced at $1.50 or $2 depending on location, may be reserved in advance by calling the Lyceum box office, 966-3437. Special student rates are also available. Tickets may also be obtained at Gammage on evenings of performances.

The three evening performances are included on "Arizona Festival," summer program of drama, music and lectures scheduled during both summer sessions on campus.

BEATING THE HEAT — Graduate mathematics student Chuck Hagopian demonstrates his method of keeping cool when the temperatures hit 100 plus degrees. Pool use is light compared to last year. Cost for use of the pool is $2 per summer session for students, and $5 for the summer for faculty and staff.

Phoenix Resident To Head Alumni

Keith Turley, 5121 E. Montrey Way, Phoenix, has been elected president of the Arizona State University Alumni Association, assuming office July 1.

A director on the alumni board the past two years, Turley also served as chairman of the association's awards committee last year, and is a past president of the Phoenix alumni chapter.

Controller of the Arizona Public Service Company and a past-president of the Scottsdale School District Board, Turley succeeds Ralph Watkins Jr., Buckeye, who remains on the board as past-president.

Other new alumni association officers are: C. K. "Kim" Rose, Phoenix attorney, first vice-president; Thelton Beck, Prescott attorney, second vice-president; Lanny Kope, Maryvale High School counselor, third vice-president; Mary Ann Enloe Dutton, Phoenix, Glendale Community College music teacher, secretary; and George Morrell, Tempe, ASU purchasing agent, treasurer.

Elected board members for two-year terms are: Harry Wrede, Scottsdale, vice-president of Valley North American Moving and Storage Co.; Stan Peabody, Scottsdale, president of EMP Electronics, Tempe; Scott Fry, Phoenix, principal of Valley View Elementary School; and Ralph Lingerfelt, Tempe, principal of McKemy School.

Five directors remain in office to complete two-year terms: Dave Graybill, Tempe, liaison officer with the ASU Department of Intercollegiate Athletics; R. George Steele, Casa Grande, assistant manager, Valley National Bank; Everett Reed, Tempe, vice president of Western American Mortgage Co., Phoenix; John Holland, Phoenix, vice president of Transamerica Title Co.; and Fernando Guerrero, Mesa, Guerrero-Lindsey Sign Co.

John R. Sandige, Phoenix, continues as trust officer on the alumni board.

Navajos Show Rapid Progress

By JERRY EATON

Life on the Navajo Indian Reservation in northeastern Arizona is changing at a rapid pace, says Dr. Robert W. Ashe, professor education.

After directing a survey team's research during a nine-month period, he has filed a report now under study recommending a junior college be built at the Navajo reservation at Window Rock.

Dr. Ashe noticed that modern trends of living are finally reaching the Indians on the 24,000 square mile tribal headquarters.

"THE RADIO, especially the transistor, battery-powered set, has found its way into nearly all the hogans, log cabins, and frame houses," said Dr. Ashe.

"Radio stations in nearby communities are using Navajo disc jockeys to provide a service and assist merchants in advertising programs."

"The style of dress is changing, too, particularly among the school-age boys and girls whose attire is typical of students in any school in the Southwest.

Navajo adults, however, still cling to the fashions of the past. "The Navajo man does cut his hair more often and wears western dress," said Dr. Ashe. "Both men and women continue to wear a lot of jewelry."

NAVAJO FAMILIES moving to the developing communities on the reservation want better housing and, when incomes permit, the purchases are arranged.

"Unfortunately, the sanitary conditions on much of the reservation are primitive," Dr. Ashe said. "The tribe has invested large sums of money in the development of wells so that people and livestock can have water.

"In several communities, the tribal government has cooperated with the Federal Public Health Service to develop sewage disposal systems with main trunk lines."

ROADS ARE BEING built by the tribe and the federal government is making parts of the reservation accessible to tourists. Pick-up trucks and automobiles are replacing horse-drawn wagons and carts.

"The Navajo has a great interest in education and abundant faith in the value of an education," said Dr. Ashe. "It was thought that education would help in self-government as well as in making life more livable.

"The Navajo wants to live on the reservation... in harmony with nature and his fellow man... in the community of mountains, the painted desert, and beautiful landscapes. All of these things... lead to the conclusion that a college on the reservation would be good for the Navajo."

Grid Seats Selling Fast

Football season tickets are moving more briskly than last year, thanks mainly to 1,400 new ticket locations atop the east concourse.

Ticket Manager Bill Gorman said the new seats, located between the 30-yard lines, offer the same view afforded from the press box atop the west concourse. Seating in this area is priced at $25 per season ticket.

Gorman said individual game ticket orders are also being accepted. The ticket office is located in the lobby of Sun Devil Gymnasium.
