ASU SUMMER SESSION ARIZONA STATE UNIVERSITY

No. 5

Thursday, July 21, 1966

Tempe, Arizona

ONE THIRD FEWER

6,300 Brave Second Session

Too many eager students — all of them wanting to sign up early Saturday morning — accounted for the only hitch in the University's otherwise smooth registration for the second summer session.

While the overall operation "went very well," said Associate Registrar Galen H. Cassity, long lines forming as early as 7 a.m. created a temporary bottleneck.

"Everybody wants to be first," said Cassity. "They all came down at 7 o'clock."

Reacting to the "too many, too soon," registration workers started handing out materials at 7:45 instead of at 8 a.m.

Latest figures indicate upwards of 6,300 students decided to brave late summer sky-high temperatures to attend the second session.

A total of 5,961 were registered for second session last year, indicating an increase this year of about 300.

Saturday morning saw more than 4,600 students move before noon through the walk-through procedure, the only method possible to sign up.

Although by 9 a.m. an irregular line wove down the crowded sidewalk to the MU, then to the left half a block, by 10 a.m. most registrants were inside the refrigerated gym and 3,000 had been processed.

More than 400 college-credit classes are offered on the main Campus during the second term, in addition to art courses at the Payson Art Center.

About 9,620 students enrolled in on-campus classes during the first summer term which ended last Friday.

An additional 311 students took extension courses, and 492 high school students participated in the Arizona music camp and Upward Bound programs on campus.

Regular fall-semester registration is scheduled for Sept. 8-10.

Folk Songs at Noon Today

Ever have a folk music concert with your lunch? You will if you attend today's Noon Time Folk Concert in the MU ballroom.

Dolan Ellis, folk singer and member of the original New Christy Minstrels, will present a folk art program at 12:15 p.m. while you have a sandwich and Coke.

The cost is 75 cents. To accommodate students, the program ends no later than 1:30 p.m.

Nationally known, Ellis toured with the New Christy Minstrels for 1½ years, and while with the group appeared for 39 weeks on NBC-TV's "The Andy Williams Show."

He now operates a Scottsdale music store.

Today's concert is one of two to be presented during the second summer session.

Folk artists John Cook and Phil Lucas will appear Aug. 4. Known as the University Bal-

University Grants Total $4 Million

Grants and gifts totaling more than $4 million have been received by the University in less than three months time.

Of the total $4,053,496, $1,429,263 came in the form of federal grants for the construction of three buildings; $1,118,702, contracts for military and professional training programs, research projects and educational services; $1,475,390, grants for research, the purchase of scientific equipment, and professional education programs; and $30,141 in gifts.

The construction grants from the Office of Education under the provisions of the Higher Education Facilities Act of 1963 include $843,321 for the art and architecture building; $318,514, business administration building; and $267,428, mathematics building.

LARGEST of the contracts is a $439,339 agreement between the University and the Peace Corps for the continuation of the ASU-PC program in Mato Grosso, Brazil, which began in September, 1964.

Other major contracts include a $229,245 agreement between the University and Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, covering military personnel enrolled at the University, and a $197,270 agreement between ASU and the Office of Education in support of an Institute for Advanced Study in Counseling and Guidance, directed by Dr. C. Patrick McGreevey, lecturer in education and counseling.

OTHER CONTRACTS involve an Institute for Advanced Study in English, $68,255, Office of Education, directed by Dr. J.J. Lamberts, professor of English; an evaluation of in-service program effectiveness, $66,553, Office of Education, by Dr. Frederick D. Levan, assistant professor of education administration.

The contracts also include a $60,462 agreement between the University and the U.S. Army Medical Research and Development Command for the "Synthesis of Quinone Antimalarials," conducted by Dr. George R. Pettit, professor of chemistry.

Objective of the Army contract is to develop a practical chemotherapeutic agent for a resistant strain of malaria, a serious medical problem in Vietnam.

Local Families Invited to House Foreign Students

Would you like to have a foreign student live in your home during the next school year?

The ASU International Student Relations Board (ISRB) is seeking interested persons who might wish to participate in its 1966-67 program.

"We would like to have the names of these families in our possession by August 1," said ISRB Chairman Bill Sage, because starting that week "new foreign students will be arriving on the campus and we should like to set these families up with a foreign student as soon as possible.

"Some foreign students will be able to pay rent," says Sage, but "others not."

He requests an interested student to leave his name, address, a note on family size and other information, including his preference of the foreign student's country, at MU 207.

Famous Pianist to Present Auditorium Concert Tuesday

Jacob Lateiner, world renowned pianist, will present a concert Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Grady Gammage Memorial Auditorium.

The artist was praised by "High Fidelity Magazine" as "the best Beethoven pianist in the business," following his fall 1964 program at Carnegie Hall.

He has played with virtually every major orchestra in America, has toured Europe frequently, and has twice toured Australia.

One of the works he has selected for the concert is Beethoven's C-minor Sonata, Opus 111, the composer's final keyboard essay on human life and death.

When only 16, Lateiner began the study of this work, starting his recording career at the age of 22 with this same composition.

In addition to the Beethoven sonata, the artist will perform "Three Impromptus," Opus 90" by Schubert, and Brahms' "Variations on a Theme of Paganini."

Tickets, priced at $1 for the general public, will be on sale at Gammage Auditorium the night of the concert.

Students will be admitted free upon presentation of registration fee receipt. There are no reserved seats.

FOLK SINGER Dolan Ellis with accompanist Daniel "Igor" Glenn at MU today.

ladiers, the pair has made a number of western appearances, locally at "The Mews" in Scottsdale.

Reservations may be made at the MU desk up to one day preceding the second concert.

TONIGHT and tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. the motion picture "The Visit," starring Ingrid Bergman and Anthony Quinn, and the short subject "Russia," will be shown at Cosner Auditorium.

Admission is free to faculty, staff and students. Students must have their registration fee receipt to gain admission.

TUESDAY marks the final summer tour to the Phoenix Art Museum. The free tour departs the MU at 2:30 p.m. Make your reservation at the MU information desk up to one day before the tour.

WEDNESDAY another morning coffee is planned from 9 to 10:30 a.m. in the Pagoda Room. Juice, coffee, milk and sweet rolls are 5 cents each.

Two New Buildings OK'd

Regents Approve Architects Plans

Final plans for the construction of a Physical Plant building and an addition to the Central Heating and Refrigeration Plant at the University have been approved by the Board of Regents.

Including shops and store-room, the 38,000-square-foot Physical Plant structure will be located east of McAllister on University drive.

David Sholder of Phoenix is the architect for the building, estimated cost of which is $540,000, or $14.21 per square foot. Funds have been provided by legislative appropriation.

Lowry and Sorensen, Phoenix, are the engineers for the 22,500-square-foot addition to the Central Heating and Refrigeration Plant, estimated cost of which is $344,000, or $15.29 per square foot.

Final contract price for the project is $299,249.80, with Kemper Goodwin, Tempe, the architect, and PBSW Supply and Equipment Co., Phoenix, the contractor.

Greeks Solicit Fall Rushees

Men students interested in joining a fraternity are urged to sign up for fall rush now at MU 225 between 12:30 and 3 p.m. daily.

Listed rushees will be invited by the fraternities to summer rush parties, which serve to familiarize the rushee with the different Greek organizations.

Information may be obtained by contacting Henry Martinson or Robert Herbeck at MU 225 or by calling 966-3807.

Alumnus Gonzales Says

Campus Architecture Exudes Odor

By BILL CUSHING

Campus architecture? "I think it stinks," said Phoenix architect and alumnus Bennie M. Gonzales recently. Gonzales made the candid comment after a talk at the MU's final lecture-luncheon July 7.

There's "too much emulation without valid thought" in ASU architecture, he said. And even though architects with campus commissions do construct buildings, "they don't consider the building's impact on the campus.

"So as a result we have a hodgepodge of buildings, but no place to converse.

"This is what's wrong with this campus," he said.

As a student prior to 1953, the architect recalled that students then gathered in front of Old Main or Matthews Library to discuss contemporary issues. No place on campus is conducive to such dialogue now, he said.

The architect's work includes the nearly completed Har Zion in the Desert located in Paradise Valley, and the Rush Memorial Building in Phoenix, as well as the Gloria Dei Lutheran Church now under construction in Paradise Valley.

Introducing Gonzales, Dean

James W. Elmore of the College of Architecture described him as a man whose "buildings are truly from the heart . . . and from the head."

Gonzales spoke without euphemisms. Deploring the "rather chaotic" set of buildings now emerging on campus and in the Phoenix metropolitan area, he warned that the fast-growing area was speeding toward a time when there will be "three times as many buildings" as there are now.

But while painting a bleak picture of the state of campus architecture, Gonzales offered one hope:

"Buildings wear out, so we will have another chance to build the campus" sometime in the future, he said.

Drawing a bead on Phoenix,

Gonzales drew applause with his remark that "downtown Phoenix is a mess and has been for 50 or 60 years."

Later, he said, "Let's face it, it's a big dump."

Although prideful of being from Arizona, the successful architect said he "was not proud of being from an ugly place like Phoenix, and Tempe, or like the campus is getting to be."

Spanish Guitarist 'Silver Hands' To Open Fine Arts Series in Fall

Manitas De Plata, great Spanish flamenco guitarist whose name means "Silver Hands," will open the University Fine Arts Series at the Grady Gammage Memorial Auditorium next fall on Oct. 25.

Described as an extraordinary interpreter of an extraordinary music, De Plata has won worldwide popular and critical acclaim with his records and concert appearances.

He is entirely self-taught and numbers among his admirers such artists as Pablo Picasso, the late Jean Cocteau, and John Steinbeck, who called him "a great and savage artist."

Neil Simon's hilarious comedy, "The Odd Couple," Broadway smash hit which deals as humorously with divorce as his earlier "Barefoot in the Park" dealt with marriage, will be staged at Gammage Jan. 10.

THE "NEW YORKER" called "The Odd Couple" the "most comic enterprise that has come our way in a long, long time."

Under the direction of Sir John Barbirolli, the Houston Symphony will present its first

Zubin Mehta
Philharmonic Conductor

concert at ASU on Monday, March 6.

Now rated as one of the nation's top orchestras, the Houston Symphony will present a second and different program at Gammage Auditorium March 7, on the Celebrity Series.

THE AMERICAN Ballet Theatre is scheduled to perform April 4. This group, according to N.Y. Times critic Walter Terry, "has been making it abundantly clear that not only does it have the most diversified repertory of any ballet company in the world, but also that it is the best in America today."

The tour repertoire features the same lavish sets and costumes, the same dazzling personnel that break box office records in New York City.

CONCLUDING the Fine Arts Series will be a return engagement May 11 of the Los Angeles Philharmonic under the direction of the exciting young conductor, Zubin Mehta.

Said Republic critic, William J. Nazario, after last year's concerts at ASU: "The Los Angeles Philharmonic clearly is a major symphony orchestra . . . and in Zubin Mehta it possesses a truly superb conducting talent. We hope they return soon to the Valley of the Sun."

Further information and reservations for Series events may be obtained at the Gammage Auditorium box office, 966-3434, starting Aug. 1.
