

Service Yesterday For Slain Coed

"The sum of the matter is this: A human being was among us and no longer is. There is little more that needs to be said. There is little more that can be said."

So ended the memorial for the brutally murdered Laura Bernstein. The statement was given by Charles Seller of the co-operative campus ministry yesterday afternoon on the Social Science Building mass.

Edward Goodman who was formerly with the Hillel foundation followed the statement with a Hebrew prayer. Goodman recited the brief invocation to an attentive crowd of students and newsmen.

Present at the memorial were

Boyd Baker of the American Baptist campus ministry, Lloyd Ewart of the Wesley Foundation (Methodist), Bert Johnson of the Lutheran Campus ministry, and Father Walsch of the Newman Foundation (Catholic).

"The temptation we now face is to use her and her memory for our own purposes and to support our own presuppositions," read the statement.

"Laura's faithfulness to her own convictions . . . led her to adopt a position of dissent from certain attitudes. To us this demonstrates the essence of the character of her own Jewish religious heritage and the best of the traditions of the academic community."

Castro Ex-Officer Discusses Cuba

A former officer in Castro's air force, Major Diaz Lanz, will speak on "Communism in Cuba" tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 in the Business Administration Building 103.

Maj. Lanz was commander of the Communist air force in 1959. He was Castro's personal pilot during the early days of the Sierra Maestra Revolution and fought many battles with the Cuban leader. Maj. Lanz also participated in Castro's Civil Disobedience Demonstration.

Lanz was one of the leading non-Communists in Cuba who was fooled into helping Castro turn Cuba into a Communist state.

Soon after Lanz resigned his command and denounced Castro as a Communist in 1959, the Cuban Government began moves against him. He and his family fled to the United States. He remained in Cuba only long enough to get information to explain the nature of the Revolution.

In July of 1959, Lanz testified before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, warning them of the danger to the U. S.

The lectures is one of 17 that Lanz will make in the southwest. He is sponsored by the ASU chapter of the Young Americans for Freedom. The lecture is open to the public.

Unity, Better Communication Stressed at NAU Workshop

By ANDY BANK

Unity within the student government body and better communication with the students and faculty are the two primary goals which were stressed at the Leadership Workshop last weekend.

Associated Student officers, board chairmen, senate members and university officials attended the workshop at Northern Arizona University in Flagstaff.

"This was one of the most successful workshops we have ever had," said Carolyn Owens, chairman of the event. "Everyone gained a thorough understanding of the problems we face and also many new ideas and solutions were presented." "We also had the opportunity to become better acquainted," she continued. "This will help consolidate the efforts of the student government."

Following an address Friday afternoon by President Durham, the group left by bus for Flagstaff. After dinner Gayle Shuman, assistant director of financial aid, Dr. Joseph Schabacker, academic vice president, and Dr. Robert Hill, who was the keynote speaker, addressed the conference.

Dr. George Hamm, dean of students, began Saturday's activities by stating what he felt to be the purposes and goals of student government. He stressed the need for continuity within the government framework and the need for long-range programs.

Next, Bob McConnell, ASASU president, presented some of his ideas. He pointed out the advantage of using faculty resources, getting younger students on the boards and having unity with the students, faculty and government body. "Student government is not a ruling body, but should represent and serve the students," McConnell stated. "We need to know their wants, needs and problems before any action can be taken."

Structure and procedures of ASASU were presented Saturday afternoon followed by a panel moderated by Dr. Hill. On the panel were Dr. Joseph Schabacker, Dr. Ronald Smith, Dr. William Podlich and Dean Kay Hoover. Afterwards group sessions to develop programs were held.

"We are very excited about the participation on Student Government Day," McConnell said. "Although it is impossible to place all the applicants on boards, we hope that the interest will continue in the form of participation in events sponsored by the student government." "Every possible effort will be made to make the students aware of the things which are being offered," he concluded.

Ole! 'Fiesta Mexicana' Here Tonight

WEDDING DANCE — The Tehuantepec Wedding Dance is featured in "Fiesta Mexicana" appearing tonight in Gammage Auditorium at 8:15. Princess Teo Xochitl, left, and Javier de Leon support Melania and Salvador Hernandez, stars of the traveling company, who portray the parts of the bride and groom.

Mexico's colorful history, from the ancient Maya and Aztec civilizations to the present, will be retold in dance and music during the "Fiesta Mexicana" at Gammage Auditorium this evening, at 8:15.

DIRECTOR Javier De Leon has studied the ancient legends and customs of Mexico, and with his 30 authentically costumed dancers, singers, and musicians, will reproduce the exotic dances and rituals which have almost been lost in history.

By intermission, the audience will have viewed 600 years of Mexican tradition. The second half of the program will feature the contemporary music, moods and dances of Mexico.

The Fiesta Mexicana is re-known internationally and has performed in Paris, Madrid, Berlin, Naples, London and Tokyo. It is presently on tour of the U. S. under the management of Columbia Artists.

Phoenix Symphony Opens 20th Season on October 31

With the downbeat of Conductor Guy Taylor's baton, the Phoenix Symphony Orchestra will open its 20th season on Oct. 31 at Gammage Auditorium. A total of 20 performances will be presented during the regular season.

The first three concerts will feature pianists. Alicia de Larrocha will appear Oct. 31 and Nov. 1; Guiomar Novaes will play on Nov. 21-22; Robert Casadesu will perform on Dec. 19-20.

CESARE VALLETTI, tenor, will sing on Jan. 16-17. Violinist Charles Treger will play on Jan. 30-31. The next month will bring an all orchestral concert on Feb. 13-14, and pianist Grant Johanne- sen on Feb. 27-28.

Violinist Isaac Stern will return by popular demand March 13-14. March 27-28 will bring cellist Zara Nelsova to the Valley. The final concert on April 17-18, will feature soloists and the Phoenix Symphony Chorale with the orchestra.

Concert time is 8:30 p.m. Gammage Auditorium is the scene of the Monday evening performances, while the Tuesday evening performances will be in the Phoenix Union High school auditorium.

THE MONDAY NIGHT performances are already a sell-out for the season. Season tickets for the Tuesday performances only will be available beginning Oct. 17 from members of the Phoenix Symphony Guild and at all Community Box Office locations.

As part of the 20th season of the Symphony, several special attractions have been planned. The first of these is composer-conductor Skitch Henderson who will perform with the Phoenix Symphony "Pops" Orchestra at 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 23, in Gammage Auditorium.

A bit of Old Scotland will touch Phoenix on Tuesday, Oct. 25 at 8 p.m. when the Royal Highland Fusiliers perform at the Veterans Memorial Coliseum.

BOTH SPECIAL attractions are co-sponsored by Sears, Roebuck & Co. and the Community Box Office.

Tickets for these special performances are now available at all Community Box Office locations. In Tempe it's the Happy House.

Concert information is available from the Community Box Office, 277-6205.

National Teachers Exams To be Held Across U. S.

Attention college seniors in preparation for a teaching career!

New dates for the National Teacher Examinations are: Jan. 7, March 18, July 1, and Oct. 7, 1967. The tests will be given at 500 different locations throughout the United States.

Results of the National Teacher examination are used by school districts in the selection of new teachers.

On each full day of testing, prospective teachers may take the common examinations and one of the teaching area examinations, which measure mastery of the subject they expect to teach.

An information bulletin containing a list of test centers, and information about the examinations, as well as a registration form may be obtained from the college placement center in the Administration building, or directly from National Teacher Examination, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J. 08540

Fun Day Slated By Rodeo Club

A Fun Day for the Sun Devil Rodeo Club was planned for Friday evening at the ABC Ranch, during last Thursday's organizational meeting. Details will be explained at this Thursday's meeting.

President Pete Beers introduced new members to the current officers and presented new club sponsors, Dr. Elvin Taysom of the Agriculture Department and Max Rogers of the experimental farm.

Both sponsors begin their official touring duties with the Tucson Rodeo, scheduled for the first week of November.

Bands to Step Out at Game

Seventeen high school bands with 1500 musicians among their numbers will perform at the annual Band Day Saturday during halftime of the ASU-West Texas football game.

HEADED BY the Sun Devil Marching Band, the combined bands will salute Harold Hines, who retired this year as director of bands at ASU. Selections include: "Sixteen Go in on Seventeen," "Do Re Me," and "Edelweiss" with the massed baritone sections performing selections from "The Sound of Music."

One of the highlights of the program will be the combined percussion sections performing under Marvin Britton, associate professor of music.

High schools included in Band Day will be Apache Junction, Buckeye, Chandler, Coronado, Globe, Gilbert, Mohave County, Paradise Valley, Payson, Peoria, Phoenix Christian, St. Mary, Salpointe, Sunnyside, Superior, West Phoenix and Westwood.

SUN DEVIL Drum Major George Gullett, head twirler Cheryl Collins, and twirlers Judy Harris, Vicky Lowe, Rennie Reeb and Robyn Warner will also perform.

Band Day is one of five events involving high school students this semester. All the activities are sponsored by the Arizona Interscholastic Association.

Chicago, Tempe PDs Seek Slayings Link

Tempe police are exchanging information with Chicago and Fair Lawn, N. J. police in connection with the murder of Laura Bernstein last week.

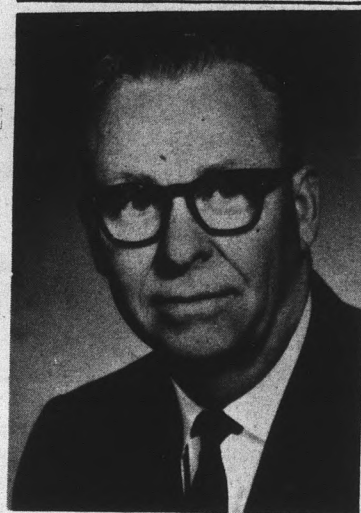

Chicago police initiated the exchange, says Tempe police Lt. Bill Hill, to attempt to discover if a link exists between the murders of Valerie Percy in Chicago and Miss Bernstein here.

Tempe firemen were called into the search Monday. Their ladders were used to search the tops of surrounding buildings in a hunt for the murder weapon or other clues, however none were discovered.

Campus Security investigated a report Monday night that an unidentified young man approached a coed about 7:30 in the Palo Verde complex parking lot with a closed pocket knife in his hand.

Campus Security reports indicate that the coed talked with the man for a few moments. She asked him why he was carrying a knife and he answered, "Girls have to be protected." Then he walked away.

Dean Home From Peace Corps

Photos by Bill Gray

By CON KEYES

After two years of work with the Peace Corps in Brazil, Loretta Hanner, dean of the College of Nursing, returns to a new building for the college she helped start in 1957.

The new building also means a new curriculum designed to reduce the number of credit hours and the introduction of more independent study courses, according to Dean Hanner.

WORKING out of Annex 16 and 2 and obtaining teaching rooms from other campus buildings since 1957, the new College of Nursing building will mean more time and less running around for the faculty and students, she said.

Plans are now under way for a Nov. 9 dedication. The building is scheduled for completion in 45 days, according to John R. Ellingson, director of the Physical Plant.

With the present enrollment at nearly 500 students, 15 of which are male, the college has grown substantially from an enrollment of 65 in its first year.

Presently the college is growing at a rate of 11 to 27 per cent, according to Dean Hanner, and it's expected close to 625 students will enroll in its 10th year next fall.

NEW FACILITIES included in the 40,000 square foot building are 21 teaching rooms along with several labs and office space for faculty and staff. There are also seminar rooms, student lounges, reading rooms, and student locker rooms.

An observation room for clinical uses along with a multi-purpose room set up for student practice includes hospital beds, surgical sinks and a medication room.

The cost of construction was $718,844 with $440,294 coming from a federal grant to the University. The work was done by Chanen Construction Company.

DEAN HANNER spent two years in Brazil at the inter state of Mongrosso which is in the center of country. She acted as a co-ordinator for the Peace Corps Public Health in-country training program.

Arriving in Brazil in the fall of 1964, Dean Hanner stated that the quarters were cramped but the 65 volunteers were very interested in serving the people of Brazil.

"In fact, I'd say they were a little overly ambitious and they expected too much of themselves," said Dean Hanner.

While Dean Hanner was in Brazil, 108 Peace Corps volunteers were placed in the state of Mongrosso.

"THE PEACE CORPS volunteers could teach health with visual aids and oftentimes the way they taught depended upon their language ability," said Dean Hanner.

A lot of people had limited background and a demonstration would be needed to show the village people how to keep themselves in good health, according to Dean Hanner.

"It was very evident," according to Dean Hanner, "that the volunteers were interested in giving service, and they created a very favorable impression of Americans."

Dean Hanner felt that a college student wishing to be a Peace Corps volunteer would find an excellent opportunity for getting a cultural background which later on could help them to being a better person.

"The maturity of a volunteer is quickly gained," said Dean Hanner, "as compared with the maturity rate should they stay in this country. They returned as much better citizens to their communities than had they stayed at home."

TEACHING more with new methods and encouraging independent study is part of a new revamping that the college is undertaking now.

Dean Hanner said that she was more pleased to see the faculty and more enthusiastic about the work on the program curriculum after returning to Phoenix from Brazil on Aug. 25 than she was about the new building.

"We have a research project going on now to evaluate the faculty," said Dean Hanner, "which is being done to insure that we have the top teachers in their field or specialty."

SHE EXPLAINED that as many as four professors will be teaching one course to insure that the student nurse will have top professional knowledge from those who know.

This new program will not go into effect for another year or so, but once it has begun, the number of hours a student nurse has to take will be reduced and it will also eliminate repetition.

For example, the Public Health and Maternal and Child Nursing courses will be integrated into one course where the student nurse will learn about family health in the home and the care of the mother and child during pregnancy, parturition and childhood.

THE COLLEGE OF NURSING graduated 24 students last June, according to Dean Hanner. "We have a high dropout rate because many students are not prepared well enough in high school to meet the academic standards of college," she said.

Dean Hanner pointed out that a recent survey by the Western Council on Higher Education for Nursing stated that one out of six who start in nursing drop out before they finish school.

"Some students should take five years to complete the program," said Dean Hanner. "I think it best the student should complete the nursing program at their own pace and incorporate summer school into their schedule."

SHE BELIEVES that Nursing requires a dedicated person like the Peace Corps volunteer.

MAINSTREET — New mall, stretching north and south through campus has become the "mainstreet" of the University. Complete with flower boxes, a kiosk and sunken seating areas, the mall is 90 per cent completed. The north end next to the new College of Nursing, remains to be completed.

Student Quartet To Perform at Voss Art Show

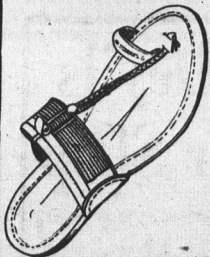

A string quartet, composed of ASU students, will perform Sunday at 2:30 p.m., at Mesa Community College.

The half-hour program in the student union building on campus, located at the corner of Southern and Dobson Roads in Mesa, will be presented in conjunction with the opening of a one-man show of paintings by Bill Voss. An ASU graduate, Voss is on the faculty at Mesa Community College.

The musicians, all students of Takayori Atsumi, ASU cellist of note who is on the music department faculty, include Ellen Wolfinger of Prescott, first violin; Dwight Lear, Salem, Ore., second violin; Susan Rath, Phoenix, viola; and David Nebel, Salem, Ore., cello.

The program will feature works by Boccherini, Dvorak and Schubert. The public is invited to attend the musical program at 2:30 and the opening of the exhibition of paintings from 2 to 4 p.m.

Placement Center Offer Grads Jobs

Students interested in finding a job will discover that the Placement Center Admin 101 can be a helpful place to visit.

Though it is hard to keep exact figures, Dr. Robert F. Menke, director of placement, says that it helps nine out of ten students who register with the office.

This may entail just mailing out a resume to setting up an interview with prospective employers.

The heaviest time for interviewing is in the spring and fall. According to Dr. Menke big-name companies and agencies from Anheuser-Busch to the Central Intelligence Agency vie for ASU's graduates.

Students who play to graduate in the spring, summer or fall should register now to take advantage of one or both of the heavy interviewing periods.

"For the student who plays it smart, an early notification to the Placement Center is a good way to be well ahead of the competition for summer employment," said Dr. Menke.

Top War Minds TV Series Topic

"Minds Behind War," a three-part series currently being run on Fridays at 8:30 p.m. over KAET, has host Peter Lilley interviewing Sir Biran Horrocks, a retired British general.

Horrocks discussed Eisenhower and MacArthur in the first two programs. The final program will be run this Friday with German Field Marshall Erwin Rommel as its subject.

Gen. Horrocks was an allied group commander during World War II and was well acquainted with the tactics and manners of these three great soldiers.

Small Business and Management Seminar Opens This Week for Valley Businessmen

Duplicate programs are being offered to handle the increased demand of the "Small Business and Management Seminar" announced Edward E. Scannell, of the Bureau of Business Research and services yesterday. The seminar, held on-campus started yesterday and will run until Nov. 15. "This will provide an opportunity for the businessman to examine modern management principles and techniques and to consider their applications in the solution of his daily problems," he said.

A "Seminar for Middle Managers" will be held tomorrow until Dec. 15, "for those in middle management who did not emphasize management in their education" and as a refresher course for those with earlier training in management.

"Management Institute," a two year program divided into three terms of 10 weeks each, will begin Oct. 5. The course was developed by the University and Valley of the Sun Industries, and will offer middle management training rather than basic supervisory training.

For further information, contact Mr. Scannell at 966-3441.

Refs Come From All Walks of Life

(Part two of a two part series)

Most referees are active in church and civic affairs in their respective home towns. They feel that participation in sports has made a valuable contribution to their success, and through officiating, they hope to repay, in a small measure, a debt. They love the game.

Where do they come from? Usually, they are from neighboring states and are graduates of colleges and universities other than those for which they officiate. Most major collegiate conferences even prohibit an official from working in a conference game if he resides in the state in which either school is located. These men are impartial and "call 'em as they see 'em."

FURTHER examination of the records would reveal that almost all of these men have been officiating at least 10 years — most of them much longer. They started in high school games, demonstrated their abilities, and worked their way up.

Before being admitted to collegiate football officiating ranks a man is carefully screened, even beyond his demonstrated work in high school games. He is tested each year for knowledge of the rules, penalties, enforcements, and officiating techniques. He must be a man of high intelligence and unimpeachable character, and must be in good physical condition.

Each year, about a month before the football season starts, collegiate officials, at their own expense, attend a two-day clinic. There they receive interpretations of new rules and take a brief refresher course and test over the more difficult rules and techniques of officiating. Although the NCAA rules book sets forth 382 basic rules, most of them are applicable to multiple play situations and variable playing techniques.

OFFICIALS must know all of these rules, each penalty and the spot of enforcement for each violation. They must be able to identify fouls and decide quickly. Unlike a corporation executive, they don't have time to sit down at a conference table for a 30-minute discussion before making a decision.

Throughout the season, each official reviews the rules in private study and attends a weekly group meeting, where interpretations, unusual play situations, difficult decisions, and officiating techniques are discussed.

Four hours before kickoff, college officials hold a 90-minute conference, to plan better co-ordination and efficiency in game administration. They go onto the field thoroughly prepared.

Football officials are assigned several months in advance. After a season is completed, each coach is asked to rate officials according to his preference, and the commissioner assigns to each game the following season men who are acceptable to both coaches.

OFFICIALS CAN not be "thin skinned." They know that the occupational hazards include jeers and boos from partisan fans and occasional crude unsportsmanlike remarks from irate individuals, but they maintain their dignity and professional poise.

Dr. Paul W. Brechler, commissioner of the Western Athletic Conference, explained, "Throughout collegiate football in this country, commissioners, athletic directors, coaches, and designated observers generally agree that the quality of officiating is good. The officials are well trained and carefully chosen.

"Occasionally an official is subjected to unfair criticism or abuse and decides to retire. The inevitable and unfortunate result, in most cases, is the necessity of replacing him with a less experienced man."

IN HIS COLUMN in the Indianapolis Star, Bob Collins wrote: "The football official is the only human who is not allowed a margin for error. He is expected to start the game perfect — and gradually improve.

"During a game even coaches sometimes get confused. Players forget their assignments, drop the ball, miss blocks, and botch tackles. Yet if the guy in the striped shirt makes a disputable call, he's the cause of it all. You'd think a few years of being wrong all the time — even when they are right — would send officials into early retirement at Ulcerville.

"But the amazing thing is that they love their jobs. It is a feeling that must be like that of the fellow who beat himself on the head with a hammer because it felt so good when he quit."

BYU End Aims At Devil Marks

Two Sun Devil WAC career records are fast becoming "just more statistics."

Phil Olde, Brigham Young end, needs only four TD passes to eclipse the mark of 14 set by Ben "The Hawk" Hawkins, former Sun Devil and now a pro with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Six more touchdowns would help the BYU speedster put down the record of 16 total touchdowns, rushing and passing, held by Charley Taylor, ex-Sun Devil now in pro ball with the Washington Redskins.

Ground Game Disastrous for Footballers

After two wars, a single victory and a sound thrashing, the Sun Devils stand at 1-1.

The attack route has been by air, where John Goodman has completed 29 of 59 passes for 381 yards and 4 TD's.

STRONGEST ON THE ground has been fullback Jim Bramlet with 81 yards in 19 rushing attempts for a 4.3 average. Notably, he's never been thrown for a loss behind the line of scrimmage.

End Kenny Dyer continues to surprise and delight on offense with eight receptions for a total of 159 yards and one TD. This averages to 19.9 yards each time the tall junior pulls down one of Goodman's aeriels.

A late finisher, the Devils have outscored their opponents in the second half by 29-7. But the Devils have taken it on the chin in first half totals 42-7.

THE TEAMS MOST inglorious statistic belongs to quarterback John Goodman. The California senior averages a minus 6.5 yards when he carries the ball.

Newcomer Club Sets Meeting

A salad supper at the home of Mrs. G. Homer Durham, wife of the ASU president, will be the first meeting of the year for the Faculty Wives' Newcomers Group.

The event, to be held Tuesday, Oct. 4 at 7 p.m., is given for new faculty wives by the second-year Newcomers.

Dick Smith, Olympic diving coach and ASU faculty member, will present his champion divers in an exhibition.

Other entertainment at the party will include a skit designed to show the wide range of interest groups available to new and former faculty wives, including sports, cooking, arts, crafts, interior decorating, books, sewing and knitting.

Toad Caper Wins Honor

The Lambda Chi Alpha Toad Hop earned the ASU chapter recognition for the year's outstanding single service project at their recent national convention.

The trophy winning Toad Hop was covered by five television stations, 30 radio stations and newspapers as far away as Indianapolis, Ind.

The campaign distinguished the ASU chapter from 168 chapters throughout the United States and Canada and received more publicity than any event in the history of the fraternity.
