Carillon Bells Set To Ring Monday

If everything runs smooth, the $23,000 carillon bells should be ringing by Monday, said University purchasing agent George W. Morrell.

The bells should be installed in Matthews Library over the weekend, said Morrell. Once installed, the bells will begin playing Christmas music which will be continued over the vacation.

The dedication for the carillon bells is being planned for Jan. 4. AS President Bob McConnell said as part of the plans a man will be operating the bells manually in the morning. Students will be able to watch the man from behind a glass pane upstairs in the old library.

Final approval for the purchase of the bell system came in September when President Durham signed the senate bill.

The bill, which was opposed by many students last spring who felt the money would be better spent on library books, proposed the purchase of the bells to mark the hours and to serve as a signaling device for students.

MU Talk Cites Need For Indian Education

By FRANK LOPEZ

Concentrating on educational programs in southwestern Indian tribes and reservations, George A. Gill, coordinator of the University's Indian Education Center, presented an Indian's view on present Indian problems in a Center for American Studies talk Wednesday in the MU ballroom.

A member of the Omaha tribe, Gill said the key to solving these problems was the development of the Indian economic employment potential.

IN HIS TALK entitled "The Changing Indian of the Southwest," Gill emphasized the developments in administration, recreation, culture centers, counselling, and pre-schools now in effect throughout Arizona, California, and New Mexico.

He also said that traditionally, the American Indian is "in a state of dilemma and suspiciousness of any outside assistance."

"ALTOGETHER, there have been 321 treaties made with the Indians," James Hena of the community action project added, "and there have been 321 treaties broken. The Indian people have a fear this will continue to happen."

He added, "there is no doubt in my mind there will be a junior college on the Navajo reservation in a matter of a few years."

ALSO, THE various tribes are very much interested in preserving their culture, Gill said. Tribal leaders are very interested in having their children learn their own history, and the teaching is being included with other school work.

He went on to say that America's treatment of the Indian is not one which they can be proud of, that the Indian people must be educated in order to understand the ways of the white people.

Gill is the first American Indian to receive a degree from the University. He has lived on a reservation for 25 years.

Dormitory Library Money Heats Up Senate's Debate

By DICK GAZI

The first heated debate of the year developed in the Student Senate Wednesday over a bill appropriating $1,000 each to the Best-Hayden-Irish and Saguaro complexes for library materials.

The bill, introduced by Interhall Sen. Pat O'Neil, passed in the Committee of the Whole. However, some of the opposing senators left before the vote was tabulated.

THE MEASURE will receive a final decision at the senate's next meeting Dec. 14.

In defense of the bill, Sen. O'Neil said, "In order to see the importance of it, one would have to take a three-week seminar on the concept of the living-learning unit, a new term for dormitory."

"The idea is to bring the academic atmosphere closer to the dormitory," continued Sen. O'Neil.

COMMENTING on the living-learning aspect, Architecture Sen. Thomas Papandrew said, "Architecturally, the dormitories aren't set up that way." He also added that the intentions of the bill would be a duplication of the Hayden Library services.

He also noted that the complex libraries would be run 24 hours a day for the University, not just for the dormitories.

PANHELLENIC Sen. Mary Thompson related that the Palo Verde Complex has its own library and the residents were supporting it.

In further debate, Sophomore Sen. Bob Carlin, a resident adviser at Saguaro Hall, added that not very many books can be bought with $1,000.

In other action, the senate unanimously passed a bill establishing a University Western Week.

PROVIDING SOME insight into the bill, Panhellenic Sen. Abby Sack said, "Senators that voted in favor of the bill have, in effect, pledged their full support."

In other legislation, an amendment to the AS Constitution passed unanimously. The amendment will now be referred to a student-faculty committee. The student members of the committee are to be senators, according to the AS Constitution.

The amendment reads, "The officers of the AS, AMS, AWS and the justices of the Supreme Court shall hold office from June 1 to May 31." The present term is from July 1 to June 30.

Limited Edition Hits Campus

A "limited edition" hit campus yesterday.

John B. Duffy, director of Campus Security, said that an unknown person or persons were distributing on campus a limited number of dittoed sheets saying "Durham is dead" yesterday during class hours.

"We are looking into the incident in view that the distributors may have violated a University regulation governing distribution of printed matter without a bulletin board number," Duffy said.

Art Sale Continues Works Selling Rapidly

Over 350 items have been sold so far in the Student Christmas Art Sale in the upper lounge of the MU and more art work is being brought in to replenish the supply for Saturday and Sunday.

"There are going to be more works in all categories," said Art Hahn, advisor to the Art League, which is co-sponsoring the show along with the MU. "If someone was in and didn't find what they wanted, chances are they might find it tomorrow or Sunday."

The show, which began Wednesday morning, opens at 10 a.m. and closes at 10 p.m. Sunday is the last day of the sale.

Edward Dobson, last year's Art League president, said "It's unfortunate that many people think all the good works were bought out the first day because it isn't true. We have more items being brought in all the time."

Manager Says Car Towing Tale Partly Incorrect

The manager of one of the two largest stores in Tempe Center said yesterday portions of news stories in Wednesday's State Press regarding towing of students' cars from the Center's lot were incorrect.

W. T. Grant store manager Donald Dietrich, in a telephone call to State Press faculty supervisor Robert E. Lance, said:

— The decision to tow away improperly-parked autos was not made by merchants of the Center, but by O'Malley Investment Co., managers of the Center.

— There was no "split decision" or even any vote taken by members of the Tempe Center Merchant's Association in regard to car towing.

— A statement that the W. T. Grant manager replied "no comment" to State Press inquiries on the situation was erroneous. "I said any comment would have to come from our (W. T. Grant Co.) New York offices," Dietrich said.

Weekend Will See Who's To Be Who

The Who's Who selection committee will choose finalists this weekend.

The committee will select from a list of over 200 nominations submitted by faculty, staff, students and officially approved organizations.

ACCORDING TO ASASU President Bob McConnell, committee chairman, the selection committee should have the results by late next week.

A complete list of students nominated will be released by Dr. George Hamm, dean of students, Monday.

Students selected by the committee will be mailed applications which must be returned to Dean Hamm.

Final selection of the inductees for Who's Who at ASU, will be chosen from the applications.

This year's selection committee consists of all members of the executive council, three faculty members and Dean Hamm. However, Dean Hamm is a non-voting member.

THE INCLUSION of faculty members on the selection committee is an ASU first, following a senate bill passed last year providing for faculty representation.

Thirty Fellowships Offered

Potential College Teacher Eligible For Funds

Thirty new graduate fellowships have been made available for the 1967-68 academic year, under the National Defense Education Act, the U. S. Office of Education announced recently.

The grants are available to "graduate students who show promise of developing into good college and university teachers," the announcement said.

THE FELLOWSHIPS are for study in the following fields: One each in botany, chemistry, physics, psychology and zoology; a total of six in engineering, including civil, electrical, industrial and mechanical engineering and engineering science; four grants in business administration, three in counselor education, three in educational psychiatry and three in English.

In addition, two new programs have been allocated fellowship grants. Three grants will be awarded in higher education, and three more in mathematics.

The grants are awarded on the basis of nominations made by the various departments which are covered in the program, said Dr. Richard Landini, assistant dean of the graduate college.

THE GRADUATE college then makes the awards, he said.

Students who are interested in obtaining fellowship grants should make application with the department in which they are enrolled, advised Dr. Landini.

YOUR SENATOR

Fine Arts Senator Enjoys Sports; Active Musically

Fine Arts Senator Linda Vogel, among many activities, enjoys using her musical abilities at church functions.

"I accompany Tony Fontaine, a sacred concert artist, on the piano when he travels through the valley," Linda says.

A music major, Linda reserves her Sundays for playing the church organ, but during the week, she is active in the concert choir, choral union and is a Campus Crusade for Christ member.

She also finds time for a daily typing job at the campus VISTA office and a Friday night waitress shift at a Scottsdale restaurant.

"I like sports," too," says Linda, "All spectator sports — but I haven't yet tried being on a team myself."

'Haunted House' Has Harrowing History

Old Mansion Arouses Curiosity

By MYRNA SEVEY

Tom Harter, art professor, and his wife, Helen, are used to hearing their home described in a number of ways, from "Gingerbread" to "Victorian" by the press, to "Haunted House" by children in the nearby subdivision.

The red-bricked, two-story old house that sits in stateliness on the corner of Southern and Priest Roads, could easily pass any of these descriptions, with its ornate facade, balcony and spread of about 14 rooms. But Mrs. Harter, who is an ASU Alumni with an MA in art education, confessed, "Whatever they call it, it's home to us."

THE IMPOSING, majestic structure, once a showplace among Valley homes, and still an eye-catcher to passers-by, is owned by Mrs. Ed Decker of Tempe, but the Harters have lived in it since 1951.

Mrs. Decker asked them to move in to help keep the place up and prevent break-ins. "At first we came here as a lark, never dreaming we'd be here this long," Mrs. Harter commented.

Professor Harter used to bring out his art classes to sketch on the grounds of the old house. "When Mrs. Decker's husband died and she realized she would need someone to take care of the place, she thought of us," Harter said.

Inside the house, which was built about 1890, the 12-foot ceilings, decorative wallpaper, chandeliers, heat fire-places and a narrow stairway create an atmosphere that is indeed reminiscent of the Victorian Age. The Harters have pretty much followed the style with many corresponding antique furnishings.

THE HARTERS and their daughter, Susan, who is a teaching assistant in the English department, enjoy art, and many of their own paintings hang on the walls. Near the old-fashioned piano in the living room, a picture portrays three decaying palm trees on the property that may be seen out of the nearby picture window that overlooks much of the grounds.

"The house and its surroundings are often an inspiration for art work," Harter noted. "Many people come to sketch it, and we have the problem of people who are fascinated and feel free to wander around without an invitation," Mrs. Harter added.

THE HOUSE is now on 4½ acres of land, but was once staked out by Niels Peterson, an immigrant from Denmark, as the first homestead in the Valley. Mrs. Harter, who has made a study of the history of the house, says that Niels built the house for his second wife, Susanna. "Both are buried in a private cemetery near the house," she revealed.

Many citrus, fig and palm trees are included on the grounds. The Harters keep livestock to keep down the weeds and growth on the property.

"When we first moved here, this house was way out in the country, and some friends suggested that we get calves to 'mow the lawn,'" Mrs. Harter commented.

"But since we never had any experience with animals before, we tried to keep them on our land with clothesline. My husband often called me from the school where I was teaching to come home and help him round up the calves," she chuckled.

A BARBED WIRE fence now surrounds the property, which keeps in several steers, a horse and many chickens.

The Harters said that when they first moved to the old house, they saw many foxes, raccoons and skunks. They also had many experiences with scorpions. "We got some chickens and then the scorpion problem went down, but then the raccoons and foxes started getting to the chickens," said Harter.

Mrs. Harter has written an unpublished manuscript about many of her family's experiences with the old house. They would enjoy owning it, but it is tied up in a will so that it cannot be sold.

Hanukah Holiday This Week

Valiant Story Upholds Jew's Proud Tradition

By RONALD HOCKENBERG

The story of Hanukah, now being celebrated, is the story of the Maccabees, who in 168 B.C. led a small army of Jews against the might of their Syrian rulers in a struggle to the death for the right to worship God in their own traditional way.

It is a valiant story which has filled generations of Jews with a justifiable pride in their heritage. Yet Jewish tradition was hesitant about transforming a military triumph into a religious celebration.

FOR, ALTHOUGH the Bible regards some wars as just, it did not allow human bloodshed to be associated with worship. King David, one of Judaism's greatest heroes was not permitted to build the temple, because his life had been devoted to the pursuits of war.

All this happened more than 2,000 years ago (168 B.C.), but Jews in every land, year after year still celebrate the festival of Hanukah with great merriment and joy. For eight days, beginning with the 25th day of the Jewish month of Kislev (November and December), the Jews in every home light the Hanukkah lamp with its eight small candles.

CHILDREN and grown-ups alike indulge in all sorts of games, and offer special prayers of thanksgiving to God. The tiny candles bring to mind this story of those heroes who, under the leadership of the unforgettable Maccabean family, fought and died for freedom of worship.

American Jews have transformed this minor festival into a major one because its traditional customs so closely parallel the Christmas celebration which occurs at the same time.

ITALIAN CANNES WINNER —

Prize Film on NET Tonight

"NET Playhouse" on KAET will present the Michelangelo Antonioni's award winning film, "L'Avventura" tonight at 9 p.m. and again tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. over Channel 8.

"L'Avventura" won the Special Jury Prize at the Cannes Film Festival. It was acclaimed a "landmark in the history of the cinema." It will be the first major feature film on "NET Playhouse" this season.

Director Antonioni made the film in an avant-garde novel style designed to let the plot be interpreted by the viewer. Antonioni said, "to (have the viewers) search for their own meanings."

He feels that this "search" will enable the viewer to review the film as an "intellectual adventure."

The film is a comment on the emotional imbalance in Italian society and stars Monica Vitti and Gabriele Ferzetti.

Clark's Capers

By DAN CLARK

Happened to saunter in at the King and I last weekend for after hours. The place was so packed that there was a waiting line to get to the dance floor. It wouldn't have been so bad, if the bands were playing.

The big attraction is the battle of the bands, featuring Stan Devero and the Trendsetters (of Red Dog Fame) trying to outplay, outclass and outshow the Carravelles. Both bands are putting on quite a show, with continuous entertainment and lots of noise.

SPEAKING OF continuous entertainment, Crazy Ed's Rock Bottom sends word that he will be featuring live folk music starting this weekend. My old buddy Mike Miloso will be back in town to provide some of his original folk type tunes.

Other Valley folk singers will be featured to provide continuous music from 8 p.m. till who-knows-when. Yours truly will even be there with banjo in hand to pound out a couple of old service ballads.

For the movie seeker, "How to Steal a Million" is playing at the Cini-Capri. Stars include Audrey Hepburn, and Peter O'Toole. Good movie, with lots of mystery and laughs.

ANDY GRAND'S Bowery, 48th and McDowell, has Lloyd Ellis at the guitar for your pleasure this weekend. Andy's place is one of the more informal spots in the Valley.

With the cold weather and the rain, I understand that snow conditions at Williams, Flag and Big "C", are good for skiing. It's fun, too, to go up and just play in the snow with an inner-tube for a sled.

Please don't zlupf Sprite. It makes plenty of noise all by itself.

Sprite, you recall, is the soft drink that's so tart and tingling, we just couldn't keep it quiet.

Flip its lid and it really flips.

Bubbling, fizzing, gurgling, hissing and carrying on all over the place.

An almost excessively lively drink.

Hence, to zlupf is to err.

What is zlupfing?

Zlupfing is to drinking what smacking one's lips is to eating.

It's the staccato buzz you make when draining the last few deliciously tangy drops of Sprite from the bottle with a straw.

Zzzzzllupf!

It's completely uncalled for. Frowned upon in polite society. And not appreciated on campus either.

But. If zlupfing Sprite is absolutely essential to your enjoyment; if a good healthy zlupf is your idea of heaven, well...all right.

But have a heart. With a drink as noisy as Sprite, a little zlupf goes a long, long way.

SPRITE. SO TART AND TINGLING, WE JUST COULDN'T KEEP IT QUIET.

Soccermen To Challenge Yuma Team

The Sun Devil soccer team will try to better its 3-2 record tomorrow when the 11 kickers go against Yuma of the Arizona Soccer League.

The game will start at 3 p.m. at Monterey Park, 7th Street and Sheridan in Phoenix.

Team captain Bill Allen is optimistic, despite the team's 7-1 drubbing by the Luftwaffe last Sunday. Allen looks to the immense potential of the club for future victories.

Karate Club Demonstration

The Sun Devil Karate Club will host a demonstration and Kyu exam Sunday at 2 p.m. in the men's gym.

The demonstration will be given with the cooperation of the Arizona Karate Association and will include a short history of karate, techniques in training, Kata, sparring, power and self-defense.

Cage Game Set; Wulk Confident

Of all people, basketball Head Coach Ned Wulk is hopeful.

"We're getting a solid effort from all the players," he says, "although we're making too many mistakes. But we're learning."

The question is, have the Devils learned enough to stop the high flying Bluejays of Creighton University tomorrow night in Sun Devil Gym?

ON PAPER, the only difference between the two teams are the records. Creighton of Omaha, Neb. is 3-0 with victories over the Big 8's Oklahoma State, the Big 10's Iowa State and independent Wisconsin State. Overall, the jays are averaging 78.7 points a game.

But in the similarities department, Creighton is just as inexperienced as the Sun Devils. In the Bluejays starting lineup are two sophomores and a junior to go with a pair of seniors.

The Devils do better than this with two sophomores, a pair of juniors and only one senior. But this is the team that almost pulled it out against San Jose Monday night with a 42-point second half. Still, the team is 1-2, beating Whittier and losing to Stanford (87-73) and San Jose (66-62).

ON TOP OF the Devils is senior Randy Lindner with a 14-point average per game. Next is junior Jim Altengarten with 12.7 points per game. The duo are the only two Devils averaging in double figures as the team is hitting from the floor at a 37.4 per cent.

Starting for the Devils outside will be Roger Detter and Willie Hearnton. Inside starters will probably be Randy Lindner, Jim Altengarten and Mike Lang.

Gametime is 8 p.m.

Gymnasts Fly to Opener

Vie On Coast

The Sun Devil gymnastics team starts off the season tomorrow afternoon, when they fly to California to vie against UCLA and USC, perennial national powerhouses, in Pauley Pavilion in Los Angeles.

Rich Impson is ASU's big threat, being ranked fifth in the nation on the long horse, and seventh in the nation in free exercise. He is also in the top ten in the country for all-around NCAA performance.

Other Sun Devil standouts are sophomore Darryl Bair on the parallel and high bars and Nick Spann on the trampoline.

UCLA features Kanati Allen, a member of the U.S. team which competed in the World Championships this year and the 1966 AAWU horizontal bar champion, Al Lubber.

USC boasts the Sakamoto brothers. Makato was a member of the 1964 U.S. Olympic team (in high school) and is re-

Wrestlers Prepare for Meet

The Sun Devil wrestlers travel to Tucson for the UofA Invitational Wrestling Meet today and tomorrow.

Teams entered will include Brigham Young, New Mexico, Hiram Scott College, Northern Arizona, Cal Poly, Long Beach State, the UofA and ASU.

COACH TED Bredehoff says his chief problem right now is a lack of depth. He has a stack of fine frosh prospects who aren't eligible to wrestle until Jan. 1. In addition, 137-pounder Norm Dean is suffering from a knee injury.

To offset this bad news is the return of WAC heavyweight champ Curley Culp. Curley recently joined the team after a break from football.

The Devils finished in third place in the same tourney last year. Returning weight class winners are Glenn McMinn at 115 pounds, Pete Russo at 123 and Culp in the heavyweight division.

DEVIL ENTRIES in the other classes are: Gene Parrish at 130, Norm Dean at 137, Jim Forler at 145, Pat Seferovich at 152, Dick Thompson at 167, Wayne Partee at 177 and Dick Cahill at 191.

The team will again forfeit the 160-pound match, as they did against Mankato State University last Friday night. Even so, the Devils took their first match of the season by 17-16 over the Mankato squad.

Sun Imps Will Play Monsters

The flashy Sun Imp basketballers will go against the Gila Monsters of Eastern Arizona Junior College tomorrow in Sun Devil gym at 6 p.m., immediately preceding the varsity tilt with Creighton.

The Imps are 1-1 after a surprising win over Phoenix College (104-87) and just as surprising a defeat at the hands of Mesa Community College.

Starting outside for the freshmen will be Jay Arnote and Seaburn Hill. Inside will be Gerhard Schreur, Ron Johnson and Tom Douthit. Hill leads the Imps with 44 points in the two games. Schreur is next with 30 tallies and Johnson follows with 29 points.

Both Johnson and Douthit were ineffective against Mesa Tuesday. They fouled out later in the game.

If the team can stay out of foul trouble, their rebounding strength could be a factor. The Imps out-rebounded PC's Bears by 67-38, Schreur doing the big job for the little Devils.

FRIDAY, December 9, 1966

Students from 15 colleges and universities throughout Arizona and southern California will participate in the ASU Rodeo Saturday and Sunday, with approximately 175 contestants entering in all.

The rodeo will be held in a portable stadium erected at the corner of Scottsdale Road and University Drive at 1:30 p.m. each day.

Spectators will be able to watch calf roping, bull-dogging, ribbon roping, bull riding, saddle bronc riding and barback bronc riding events in the men's division.

IN THE WOMEN'S division, there will be the barrel race, goat tying and the special ASU organizational event. The special event involves both men and women in which several calves are released. The calves are roped by the men and the women put panties on them. The first team to get the panties on the calf and get back to the judges' stand wins.

The stock for the rodeo is being provided by the Big Sky Rodeo Co. of Kalispell, Mont.

ADMISSION for the rodeo is free to students with their activity cards. The public will be charged $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Decky Harsh, liberal arts junior, has been selected Rodeo Queen. Joanne Humphrey and Nancy Gwinn, both sophomores, are the princesses of the rodeo and will ride with Miss Marsh in the Grand Entry, which opens the rodeo Saturday.

Ears Trained to Music By Symbols, Not Sounds

By BERTHA REYNOLDS
Can ears be trained to hear musical sounds by studying music symbols?

This is a curious question being probed by Ronald Lo Presti, assistant professor of music, in teaching an experimental music class, Integrated Music, to 24 freshman music majors. "WE'RE ATTEMPTING to do three year's work of music study in two," said Lo Presti.

He chose 12 men and 12 women from a music theory placement test in order to form a choral group, and integrated students according to the type of instrument each played to form an orchestra.

The experimental class which is made possible by a grant from the Ford Foundation, is the only one of its kind in Arizona. Similar classes are scattered throughout the United States, but the others are using different teaching approaches.

"OUR APPROACH is to integrate history composition, style, orchestration, form and counterpoint all within one class," said Lo Presti.

This approach was tried at the Juillard School of Music in New York in a four-year course and failed according to Lo Presti.

The students meet two hours Monday through Friday and receive six hours of credit per semester for 2 consecutive years.

CHRISTMAS OPENER —

'Messiah' Performance

The University Choral Union and the University Symphony Orchestra will perform the traditional pre-Christmas "Messiah" Sunday at 3 p.m. in Gammage Auditorium.

Richard Dales, associate professor of music, will direct the public program. Tickets are on sale at the auditorium box office. Early reservations are suggested.

EUGENE LOMBARDI, associate professor of music, is conductor of the University Symphony Orchestra while Lawrence Hoogerhyde, graduate assistant in music, is assistant conductor with Dales for the University Choral Union.

Charles Brown, University organist, will accompany the all-student choral and orchestral groups with the organ and the harpsichord.

Soloists include Carol Carpenter, Glenda Finley, Besty Taylor, Mrs. Helen Ralls, sopranos; Diane Hejhall and Sharon Jaquinto, contraltos; Theodore Bradshaw and Lawrence Hoogerhyde, tenors; and David Rasmussen and John Williamson, basses.

GUESTS AT the performance are invited to view paintings on Christmas themes by Renaissance and baroque masters from the University's Lemore and Lewis Ruskin collection on exhibition in the foyer of the auditorium.

The performance of the "Messiah" will be broadcast Christmas Eve on radio station KOOL for those unable to attend Sunday.

Brass Choir Sets Sunday MU Ballroom Performance

"Alegro Marziale," Act IV of the Fairy Queen, will begin the University Brass Choir's performance Sunday in the MU ballroom at 8:30 p.m.

Nineteen musicians will perform "The Brass Square" by Earl Zindars, the first prize winning composition of the Thor Johnson Brass Composition Awards TJBCA in 1952.

Playing the French horn will be Dan Beeff, John Smart, Karen Fair and Dianne Fischer.

Bryan Shelburne, Mark Klein, Stephen Coffin, Kenneth Bruno and Robert Loughrige will perform on trombones while Dennis Royal, baritone and Richard Felix, tuba play also.

Another musical selection will be "Leipzig Towers" by Paul Shahan, a second prize winning composition for the TJBCA of 1955.

"Theme and Variations For Brass Choir" by Verne Reynolds was a first prize winning composition in the TJBCA of 1950. "Canzon Duodecimi Toni" by Giovanni Gabrieli and "A Festival of Christmas Music For Brass Choir" by Ronald Lo Presti, assistant professor of music will conclude the evening's program.

Western civilization usually traces its roots to ancient Greece, for religion, government, philosophy and, of course, literature.

Thanks to Homer's "Iliad" and "Odyssey," and works of dramatists and historians who came later, the modern world has a fairly clear picture of the culture of our root-civilization. Now, thanks to the Office of Navajo Economic Opportunity, a component of the national war on poverty, the culture of the Navajo people will be recorded for future generations.

THE NAVAJO tribe, eager to retain a history of its ancient ritual and fearful that each new generation moves another step away from a knowledge of their past, is through the Navajo Culture Program working to compile and publish a book recording their history, legends and mythology.

Alonzo T. Spang, director of the Indian Community Action

Project on campus, commented on the purpose of the Culture Program.

"FEWER NAVAJOS each year," he observed, "are familiar with the rich heritage of their Indian past. If their culture is not preserved in some way," he continued, "their heritage may be lost forever to future generations."

Staff members of the Navajo Culture Program, funded by the OEO in Washington, will interview medicine men and historians. The information they collect will be stored on tapes and in photographs.

Accent On Music

Radio station KPFK-FM, Los Angeles, will present a 75-minute concert at 8:45 p.m. Sunday devoted entirely to the compositions of Dr. Grant Fletcher, professor of music on campus.

The Sunday concert, a repeat of a program presented over the station at 12:45 p.m. Tuesday, features the following Fletcher works:

Symphony No. 1, two orchestral pieces entitled "Sumare and Wintare," the "Carrion Crow" Overture, "An American Overture," the "Caprice Argentine" for Violin and Piano, "Six Songs from Irene Orgel," and the "Sonata for Clarinet and Piano."

The program will be comprised of tape recordings of European performances of the works, presented during 1962-63 in Spain, Austria, Denmark and Germany.

UNIVERSITY PLAYERS PERFORM —

Children's Play On at Lyceum

"Androcles and the Lion," adapted by Aurand Harris, a pre-Christmas representation for Valley of the Sun youngsters, will be staged at the Lyceum today, tomorrow and Sunday and Dec. 16-18 by the children's theatre group of the University Players.

Legend contends that Androcles, a Roman slave, played by Lanny Thomas, escaped death when thrown into the arena with a lion, played by Clyde Weaver, because the beast recognized him as the man who had once extracted a thorn from its foot. THE SETTING, an improvised stage for a Commedia dell'Arte troupe of strolling players in Sixteenth Century Italy, is enhanced with music reminiscent of the early renaissance.

As each character is introduced, he is given a musical theme to help emphasize his role. These songs are simplified, ranging from a work-song for Androcles, to a lament for Isabella, played by Julie Gibson, and a mock funeral march, as the Captain, played by Bill Zorn, and the Miser, march Androcles into the pit.

JERRI FAGAN does the musical direction, and also plays the harpsichord during the performance. Eric Silver portrays Pantalone and Tim Sullivan plays Lelio. Nona Blyth assists Dr. Daniel Witt in directing the play, while Paul Estes is in charge of the scenery and lighting. Jo Anne Yeo does the costuming and Greg Stump the choreography.

Performances will be 7:30 p.m. Fridays, 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Saturdays, and 2:30 p.m. Sundays. Tickets may be obtained at the Lyceum box office, 966-3437, at 50 cents for children and students, and $1 for adults.

UPSTAIRS in the ART CENTRE

Gammage Story Told

By DIANE AYRAUD

Grady Gammage Auditorium might have been Baghdad's Grand Opera and Civic Auditorium, but civil turmoil prevented construction of Frank Lloyd Wright's plans there.

When construction of the Baghdad Auditorium was canceled, Frank Lloyd Wright was living in Arizona and Dr. Grady Gammage had asked the Committee on Cultural Affairs to get a design for a cultural center at ASU.

THE COMMITTEE asked Wright to design the center. Wright was doubtful at first. He had just finished plans for an Arizona state capitol which he called "Oasis." But because of public opinion and controversy over Frank Lloyd Wright and his architecture, the plans were rejected. After this incident Wright commented, "I have never done a thing for the people whose community I have enjoyed for 25 years."

However, Wright consented to design the cultural center for ASU. An associate architect of Taliesen West said that "Wright's plans for Gammage was another working out of a similar idea that Wright expressed in his Baghdad drawings. They were both inspired by the same climate, and the original plans were adapted to American needs."

THE PUBLIC and state officials still weren't sure of Wright's architecture so Dr. Gammage and members of the Cultural Affairs Committee began to fight for its approval. A headline in the New York Times said, "A Wright Design Divides Arizona." Then Dr. Gammage and Frank Lloyd Wright died, but the struggle to get the auditorium continued, and eventually was won.

Since Wright had died, members of his associate architecture firm and his students completed his plans and constructed the auditorium.

After the construction of Gammage, even the people who at first disapproved were proud. And Frank Lloyd Wright's dream to "put new life into new buildings in the great Arizona desert spaces" was fulfilled.
