

TAYLOR TELLS AUDIENCE

War Tests Character

By BILL CUSHING, Campus Editor
Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, backing up Johnson Administration policy on Vietnam, told a Gammage audience of 2,000 Friday that the U.S. is holding a good hand in Asia, but cautioned "we must play our blue chips carefully."

"We can't afford to give away our biggest blue chips — the bombing of the north," said Taylor. The war "is a test of our national character. We have taken sides before the whole world and now that side must prevail."

Taylor, who ended a stint as ambassador to Saigon just a year and a half ago, said the conflict may come to an end in either of two ways, but implied that negotiations would be the more difficult of the two.

THERE will be either "a subsiding" without negotiations, or formal negotiations will take place with accompanying troop withdrawals and international guarantees, said the retired general.

The difficulties of negotiating could be avoided if the Hanoi government decides it has had enough, pulls back its troops and desists from further action, he said.

Formal negotiations would be much more difficult. A cease fire would be needed, and a Korean war type cease fire is hard to imagine in Vietnam, he said.

"Many of the enemy do not have nor need firearms" to do their work, he said. He questioned how the infiltration, the intimidation and other acts of the guerrilla war could be halted by negotiations.

IF NEGOTIATIONS ever do come about, he said, "it will all take time and patience."

"Never another Panmunjom," he counseled, a situation where 40,000 allied lives were lost while negotiations dragged on for two years before a Korean armistice accord was reached.

The 1922 West Point graduate outlined the Vietnam problem on the basis of U.S. policy, the progress of that policy, and the difficulties in terminating the war.

"Our policy is very clear," he said. The basic objective was defined by three presidents, but especially by President Johnson in his Johns Hopkins University speech in April, 1965.

JOHNSON said "the independence of a Vietnam free from attack" was our policy in the Southeast Asian country.

"We win when we attain the objective," said Taylor. "We lose when we do not."

What is absolutely required is the cessation of aggression, the creation of conditions viable to the existence of a South Vietnam government, the building of its economy and government, and the diplomatic initiation of negotiations for peace.

RECENTLY returned from a Vietnam visit last month, Taylor termed the progress of the war "encouraging" as compared to a year and a half ago, when he was Ambassador to Saigon.

Instability—he dealt with five prime ministers in 12 months—described conditions then. "It seemed almost hopeless," he said.

GEN. MAXWELL TAYLOR

There is not just one war going on, but three, said Taylor. There is the "big war" with its array of sophisticated weaponry, the "little war" against banditry and intimidation in the countryside, and the "criminal war" of assassination and kidnaping.

THE BIG WAR "goes well," he said. The U.S. now has "sufficient strength to go into

VALENTINES FOR PEACE — Not satisfied with mere placard protestations, demonstrators at Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor's Gammage speech passed out flowers and Valentines marked "Love."

Pickers Pro And Con Colored Taylor's Speech

Student pickets — both protesters and supporters of the war in Vietnam — were out in force Friday night in connection with the Gammage Auditorium speech of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor.

Close to 50 demonstrators, many armed with signs blazoning multi-colored slogans, formed a two-line corridor outside the auditorium box office.

PERSONS arriving at the box office were met with a flurry of comment from the signs, and were handed Valentines, artificial flowers and literature, both protesting and favoring current Vietnam war policy. There were no incidents, and box office traffic was not impeded.

Organizations represented included the Phoenix Committee on Vietnam, ASU Committee to End the War in Vietnam, Students for a Democratic Society, and the Student Peace Unions of Tempe Union High School and McClintock High School.

Pickets from the left were flanked by individuals with the opposite viewpoint, also outfitted with signs, reading: Rusty and Green Horns Brainwashed by Commie Propaganda, Invade North Vietnam, Support U.S. Troops, and Bomb Hanoi Now.

SIGNS condemning the war included: War Erodes the Great Society, No Nation Can Play God for Mankind, Peace, and Be a Dove, Love. Hand-fashioned Valentines sporting the image of a white dove complete with olive sprig, and gaily colored artificial flowers were handed out by some pickets condemning the war.

The Tempe City Council Thursday voted unanimously to abandon six city streets to the University for eventual campus expansion.

The six ordinances passed after the council restated certain stipulations which ASU must meet before the actual abandonment.

THESE stipulations include the relocation, by the University of Stadium Drive from its present location to a new location east of Manzanita Hall. Tempe also asked that the city be given ample notification before streets are closed for improvements.

Gilbert Cady, University vice president for business affairs, told the council the University would be in contact with Tempe at all times. He also said that the abandonment would permit the University to continue with a master plan of expansion.

According to present plans, the six abandoned streets will help fill a variety of uses. These range from an extension of the new Mall to part of the location of a new Arts and Architecture Building.

ACCORDING to John Ellingson, director of planning and construction, the present plans include using parts of two of the abandoned streets for an extension of the Mall.

The Mall is scheduled to extend from its present location down College Avenue to the north end of Goodwin Stadium. It will also run east on Orange Street from Forest Avenue (Education Building) to the east end of the Hayden Library.

According to Ellingson, the Mall is still in the planning stage, pending the outcome of a request for funds to finance construction, now before the state legislature.

Stadium Drive, abandoned between PV East and Manzanita Hall, is scheduled to be sealed off at University Drive extending to the PV parking lot. This strip of land along with some adjoining property will be converted into a parking lot.

THREE streets, all located east of Tempe Center, were abandoned to make room for future construction. Tentative plans include the use of 9th Street, 10th Street and the alley joining them for a new Arts and Architecture Building, and an enlargement of the College of Education Building facing 10th street.

Polich Requests Board Reconsideration

Fired State Press Editor John E. Polich yesterday asked the Board of Student Publications (BOSP) "to reconsider its decision to dismiss me and the policies which led to my dismissal. . ."

Polich was fired on Feb. 3 for failure to comply with BOSP policy.

He based his appeal primarily on the contention that he was not informed of the new board policy before he was interviewed as a candidate for the editorship. The policy was made earlier the same day the interview took place.

"This has nothing to do with the right or wrong of the policy," said Polich, "but is a question of legality."

"The charge of my refusal to accept the board's policy restricting without exception the editor, managing editor and campus editor from holding second jobs would have been eliminated had the board acknowledged its responsibility to inform me that such a policy existed."

TOKYO — North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh has asked Pope Paul to "use his influence" with the U. S. to bring peace to Vietnam. American planes resumed bombing of North Vietnam yesterday.

logistic sanctuaries" which even the French could not penetrate when they were in Vietnam.

The greatest tribute to the effectiveness of the air war, said Taylor, is evidenced by the efforts of the Communists to stop it.

But the non-military "little war" is not being reported and well-understood at home. On the political front of this "little war" the success of the elections of last year "is good news," he said.

AND EVEN though the constitution being framed by the elected representatives resembles the French constitution more than the American, he said, if the Vietnamese can carry this out in the midst of war, "it deserves the cheers of all good Americans, . . . something for the history books."

On the economic front, Taylor observed, "inflation is acute," although he said "it looks as though the situation is under control."

On pacification, he said "progress . . . is unsatisfactory" for two reasons:

There is an absence of stable security in many parts of South Vietnam. "You can't plant the corn outside the stockade as long as the Indians are around," as American frontiersmen learned, he said. "There are too many Indians in Vietnam."

ALSO, "There is a lack of administrative skill" because of a lack of tradition in government. "There is still a long way to go," he remarked.

Status of Women Examined

What are Arizona women like?

Questionnaires to provide factual information for a study to determine the present day status of women in Arizona have been mailed to 1,000 women throughout the state.

Returns are presently coming into the Commission on the Status of Women, which indicates an interest on the part of Arizona women to improve their position in society.

"We designed the questions," said Catherine Nichols, assistant dean of students, "to provide factual information on a few of the vitally significant concerns of women."

Dean Nichols was recently appointed chairman of the commission's survey committee. Mrs. Grady Gammage, assistant director of development, heads the commission's education and counseling committee.

An example of the questions being asked are: Do women feel guilty about leaving home and going to work? How well do families cooperate with working mothers? Do women feel discriminated against because of sex or age?

To insure a broad, accurate sampling, the questions range from elementary school dropouts to women with Ph.D's.

Skilled and unskilled women between 20 and 69, regardless of marital status, are also being sent questionnaires.

The compiling of responses will hopefully provide the commission with some concrete facts concerning the woman's position in Arizona.

"We feel confident," Mrs. Howard Hintz, commission chairman, said, "that such cooperation will help us enable women, along with men, to fulfill their roles as dignified human beings and contributing members of society."

Oshatz said he submitted detailed drawings and a 36-inch square, three-dimensional model to the contest. The drawings will be entered in national competition.

Can a college newspaper really be free?

The firing of State Press editor John Polich by the Board of Student Publications (BOSP) and the suppression of a critical editorial has brought a Student Senate resolution questioning the authority of the BOSP.

If the senate hasn't had a cause prior to this dispute, perhaps it now has.

There is little argument among those involved in the dispute why Polich was fired, and most would agree he was given every chance to reconsider his action and come to some agreement with the board. This is a closed case.

But, the suppression of the editorial, though it may have been according to the present BOSP policy and therefore legally justified, has made aspiring journalists in some way connected with the State Press and others see the delegated authority of the board used, much to their dismay. Up to this time no faculty adviser had killed an editorial unless it was obviously libelous or obscene.

Now the question has been raised, "Just how free is the State Press?"

The tragedy of this dispute is that had the students realized before hand the width and breadth of the BOSP policy which has been in effect for a number of years, something might have been done to avoid a public showdown. It is also unfortunate that so many well-meaning people were hurt. Journalists, though trained to be objective, precise and fair, are human and can become emotionally involved in a controversy which directly involves them.

It is true that there was no forthright, frank reporting on the suppression of the editorial written by Polich as AS President Bob McConnell stated in Friday's State Press, because there wasn't any one reporter in the interim editor's eyes who could report the situation objectively. Indeed, even the interim editor had his reservations.

Now, the net of emotion has begun to untangle itself and both the BOSP and students are seeking a reasonable solution and answer to the "free press" question. We might pose another set of questions.

First, to the question of a "free press." No newspaper in the world is absolutely free, nor could it be and hope to survive. Every newspaper has a publisher. Herbert Agar, author and columnist wrote, "The freedom of the press is a burden laid on the press, not a promise that the press can do what it likes." Ideally a newspaper should be free from outside control of its policies, but realistically every newspaper is influenced by outside pressures and, of course, its publisher.

A realistic picture of a contemporary newspaper publisher and how he got that way was written by Irving Brant, editorial page editor of the St. Louis Star-Times. Brant writes, "The policy of the newspaper is the policy of the owners. Except for temporary adjustments, it is enforced without regard to the wishes of the staff, and except for notification due to discretion, it is enforced without regard to the wishes of the public."

The last two quotes were from professional newspapermen and would be difficult to argue with if the State Press was on the same par as the Arizona Republic or the Los Angeles Times. The State Press, like any other college newspaper, is unique, but it does have a publisher.

Looking at the paper from a student standpoint we might refer to the codification of policy titled "Toward a Free and Responsible Student Press" published by the United States Student Press Association (USSPA), an association of some of the best college newspapers including the Duke Chronicle and the Minnesota Daily. (The State Press is indirectly connected with this organization and perhaps reflects the attitude of the majority of students interested in journalism).

This is what they have to say, which can be related to the current dispute here:

"PRINCIPLE. Although the university is, in most cases, the publisher of its college newspaper, and students are the editors, the newspaper must always remain above the interests of any single group. The mere fact that this press is a student press does not release it from the historical and social responsibilities inherent in the publication of any newspaper. These entail the reporting of all information relevant to an informed community and the maintenance of an open forum for the expression of opinion. The suppression of news or opinion, for the expediencies of any group is detrimental to the community as a whole. These premises must be especially underscored in an academic community, where the ultimate and overriding goal is the unhindered pursuit of truth."

They believe that "In no case should a representative of the university, whether a board or faculty adviser, have the implied or expressed power of prior censorship, or the power to set advertising policies." This is in direct conflict with the BOSP here.

Some students have asked, "Why not disband the Board of Student Publications?" This of course would be a most radical change, yet there would still have to be some authority, and a new authority could restrict much of the freedom we now enjoy, especially if it were turned over to student government.

We would like to ask these questions, which perhaps would give some direction to student inquiry about the BOSP policy. Could the membership of the BOSP be changed to represent the students to a greater degree, and possibly the faculty membership to include only those connected with the Journalism Department and the Graphic Arts Department? Would it be feasible to leave the appointment of the State Press faculty adviser up to the student staff? Would the BOSP be willing to open discussion to consider amending the present BOSP policy to all students and faculty members interested in the State Press operations and journalism?

We do not question the acts of the BOSP, past or present, but we do hope the powers and responsibilities of the board will be reviewed in a new light of cooperation so there will be no question of press freedom at ASU in the future.

Tony Ault

Letters to the Editor

Editor,

The current outcries against censorship as practiced by the Board of Student Publications are absurd, particularly because they have not been directed at the practice of censorship on the whole at ASU but rather on this particular application.

Censorship has been questioned simply because in this case it has stepped on a multitude of toes. In the case of SDS recognition, where censorship's wrath affected only a handful of students and an unpopular cause, few said a word.

SUDDENLY we find ASASU President Bob McConnell, apparently grieved by State Press criticisms of his boards and committees, yelling "unfair." Either everyone gets his fair share of criticism or nobody gets any, we imagine him mumbling under his breath. Somehow one gets the feeling he would rather prefer the latter.

ASASU, tired of supporting a newspaper it cannot itself censor, likewise yells unfair. Last year in particular, faced with criticism from the State Press, ASASU threatened to discontinue all funds to the publication. This year editorials from the State Press have justifiably and severely hit ASASU decisions—a fact which more than likely led to its outcry of State Press censorship. Revenge, not a concern for freedom of the press, prompted the ASASU resolution.

Censorship at ASU is an institution. How ironical that those who have for so long waved the censorship banner are now screaming unfair. Why didn't these same people yell unfair when an attempt was made to censor John Livingston for "I Sing of Olaf"?

THE RECENT outcries against censorship, filled as they are with self-interest, cannot be looked upon as sincere.

We must remember that the power to censor, practiced by the administration, ASASU, and a host of other boards and bodies, is tyranny. Inherent in the censorship process is the power to pick and choose, a power, I may add, one need look no farther than the Organizations Board to find.

Can we honestly blame the Board of Student Publications for using a power the administration has allowed it to exercise? We may question the ethics of the publications board, but, as the State Press editorial pointed out, not its jurisdiction.

IN PARTIAL defense of the publications board, and believe me it's hard to defend something one believes should not exist, I say let us direct our scorn not at the board but rather at those bodies who through their own actions have made censorship public policy for the entire university.

David Lubin

Editor,

The dismissal of John Polich as editor of State Press gives off an essence of SNAFU, powerplays, pettiness and the nightmarish logic of all bureaucratic action. But probably, assuming an optimistic a priori professional integrity, the board acted in good if somewhat emotional faith. It is surprising then, that professors of the arts of communication have failed so miserably to communicate and have left this unpleasant essence that now hangs smog-like over the whole affair. It is surprising that having not been more tactful neither have they yet clearly accounted for their action. It does not go without saying that they were correct.

Surprising too was the edi-

What's In A Card?

About 1,700 years ago today, in glorious Rome, the pagans were celebrating their annual festival of Lupercalia. The celebration lasted several days and supposedly took place during mid-February.

One of the activities called for each young maiden to drop a piece of paper with her name on it into an urn. After this, each young gent randomly picked a name and this was to be his sweetheart for the coming year.

And so the foundations of modern day Valentine's Day were laid.

IN 270 A.D. the Roman Emperor Claudius II declared the pagan feast was to cease. He forbade any new marriages (a natural result of the holiday), since he theorized married men were not as dedicated soldiers as unmarried men.

But there was a clergyman defector in his midst. His name was St. Valentine.

This romantic chap believed in the beauty of young couples falling in love and getting married, so he went on marrying couples who came to him.

Claudius had St. Valentine imprisoned, then beheaded — allegedly on Feb. 14.

MANY BELIEVE that early Christian leaders made Feb. 14 a feast day to commemorate Valentine and to play down the ancient pagan festival.

It seems likely the two festivals merged and the feast for young lovers was celebrated on Feb. 14 as St. Valentine's Day.

The Encyclopedia Britannica disagrees, however. It says: "Saint Valentine's Day as a lovers festival, the choice of a valentine and the modern development of sending valentine cards has no relation to the saint or any incident in his life."

BUT THE fact remains that the sending of valentines dates back many centuries. There are printed valentines dated 1815.

Catalyst Contest Deadlines Near

The winner of each category of the Catalyst A. and Photography Contest ending Thursday will be awarded a prize of $15.

The two categories of the contest are the photographic essay contest stressing aesthetic value in photographic composition and the art design contest from which the cover of the publication will be selected.

In addition to aesthetic quality the entries in the photographic contest must stress human interest. They must be matted on an 8" x 8" board with the caption of the title.

THE WINNING entry for the art design contest will be used as the cover of the Catalyst or for the division pages. Entries must be done in pen and ink on 8" x 8" paper.

Entries should be turned into the Catalyst office in LL 529 by Thursday.

Library Guide Now on Sale

Hayden Library is now selling floor plans of the library showing where the various sections of books are located.

The sets contain a floor plan of each of the five floors. They are being sold at the Xerox desk for 10 cents.

The plans are being sold in sets so that students can keep them in their notebooks to enable them to find the books easier in the future. Dr. Kenneth Slack, assistant librarian for public services, said. Also this saves the student from paying 50 cents or 10 cents to copy each floor plan.

Renewal Date Set For Financial Aids

It's time to renew scholarships according to scholarship secretary Marge McKemy. Although the deadline isn't until May 1, it is wise to renew them early, she said.

Academic scholarship holders must have carried 30 hours during the last two semesters and have a 3.0 cumulative index to apply for renewal.

Other renewals being taken are Educational Opportunity grants and any loans handled by the financial office.

Applications are also being taken for scholarships for next fall.

Last year, thousands of lawyers, bankers, accountants, engineers, doctors and businessmen went back to college.

And not just for the football games.

We'd like to clear up what appears to be a misunderstanding. It is somewhat popular on campus to decry a business career on the grounds that you stop learning once you start working for Cliché Nuts & Bolts.

That idea is groundless.

We can't speak for Cliché, but we can for ourselves—Western Electric, the manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell System. 6 out of 10 college graduates who have joined us over the past 10 years, for example, have continued their higher education.

How're these for openers:

W.E.'s Tuition Refund Plan lets employees pursue degrees while working for us. Over 6 thousand have attended schools in 41 states under this plan. We refund more than $1 million in tuition costs to employees a year.

To name another program: advanced engineering study, under the direction of Lehigh University, is conducted at our Engineering Research Center in Princeton, N. J. Selected employees are sent there from all over the country for a year's concentrated study leading to a master's degree.

You get the idea. We're for more learning in our business. After all, Western Electric doesn't make buggy whips. We make advanced communications equipment. And the Bell telephone network will need even more sophisticated devices by the time your fifth reunion rolls around. The state of the art, never static, is where the action is.

At Western Electric, what's happening is the excitement and satisfaction of continued doing and learning. If this happens to appeal to you, no matter what degree you're aiming for, check us out. And grab a piece of the action.

Charter Day Program Set

The annual Charter Day observance on March 13 will feature an address by Dr. Willard H. Pedrick, dean of the new College of Law.

A special Charter Day convocation will be held at 10:40 a.m. in the Gammage Auditorium.

The program will mark this year the 82nd anniversary of the signing into law of the bill chartering the Arizona Territorial Normal School at Tempe.

Dr. Clifford Schroeder, associate professor of physics, is chairman of the 1967 Charter Day convocation, and Charles Wise, administrative vice president of Associated Students, is coordinating student participation in the annual event.

A nationally prominent legal educator and former member of the Northwestern University law faculty, Dean Pedrick joined the University faculty in 1965.

Book Display Discloses Cover-Content Relation

The correlation between the cover of a book and its content is the subject of an exhibit in the reference area of Hayden Library.

The exhibit deals with how beauty or uniqueness of design in binding or content contributes to an interpretation of the author's text.

The Western Books of 1966 collection, sponsored by the Rounce and Coffin Club of Los Angeles, will be here for a month before going on to other college and university libraries throughout the country.

Books printed in 1965 in the Western states were eligible for submission to the 25th Western Books Exhibition.

The books that were selected for the display vary from "A Stereotype Atlas of the Chimpanzee's Brain" to "It All Happened in Tombstone." They range in size from three to 17 inches, but all have in common a quality of fine printing and binding, said Dr. Kenneth Slack, assistant librarian.

"People who love fine printing won't want to miss the exhibition. Many of the books are open to display the high crafts-

"Profiles" Relives Treason Trial

The stand of Chief Justice John Marshall in the treason trial of Aaron Burr will be told on "Profiles in Courage," tonight at 8 on Channel 8.

The story of one of the most controversial trials in U. S. history and the risk of impeachment taken by the chief justice will be aired.

Burr was a threat to the newly unified country and President Jefferson, recognizing him as a dangerous man, wanted him found guilty of treason. However, Marshall, who was the presiding judge, was determined to give Burr a fair trial.

Marshall, resisting the public outcry and political pressures, on August 31, 1807, read his opinion clearly defining the law of treason in the United States, after which the jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Dr. Slack said that the library has already purchased copies of many of the books in the exhibition.

Draft Can Be Justified

A recent poll of colleges and universities indicated that more than 90 per cent of American students feel that a nation can be justified in drafting its citizens into the military.

The results of the poll, which was conducted by the United States National Student Association (USNSA), will be presented to a conference of youth and student organization leaders who will be looking for an alternative to the present Selective Service System.

TWENTY-THREE campuses with a total student population of 99,000 participated in the USNSA poll. Approximately 31 per cent, or 30,500 of these students actually voted.

Eugene Groves, President of USNSA, said, "We worked especially hard to assure a wide diversity of types of colleges and universities in the polling sample."

Results also showed that:

■ More than 70 per cent of the students are not satisfied with the present Selective Service System.

■ More than 70 per cent would prefer to have non-military service, such as the Peace Corps, VISTA, and the Teachers Corps, as an equal alternative to military service.

■ Over 60 per cent do not feel that students should be deferred just because they are students.

Coed Causes Controversy

The long-lasting controversy between student rights and university control was again brought forth last week when Pam Brewer, a University of Florida coed, was put on temporary probation for appearing in the nude in a photograph published in an off-campus magazine.

In a public hearing Friday, she was fined and convicted of "such indiscretion or appropriate conduct so as to warrant the attention of the university."

THE CONVICTION touched off a wave of turmoil and agitation.

"It could be another Berkeley," said Andy Moor, an editor on the university newspaper.

Stan Laughlin, an associate law professor and member of the American Civil Liberties Union, agreed. "The whole area of the student's relationship to the university has become increasingly sharp," he said. "The students are concerned."

PAM'S LAWYER, Selig Golden, stated, "Our position is that the university has no authority to govern her activities so long as they are lawful, particularly when they occur off campus."

Golden also said that the charge against her, "such indiscretion or appropriate conduct so as to warrant the attention of the university," was vague.

Graduates' Wages Soar, Placement Director Says

This year's graduating seniors can expect to receive more and higher salary offers than any other year in history, according to Robert F. Menke, director of the placement office.

Menke quoted the 21st annual study of "Trends in Employment of College and University Graduates in Business and Industry," recently conducted by Frank S. Endicott, director of placement at Northwestern University.

THE 200 companies participating in the survey will pay engineering students the highest starting salary, an average of $712 a month (up $46 from 1966); accountants, $612 a month; sales personnel $583; men with training in business administration, $572; and liberal arts graduates, $565.

Endicott's survey also revealed that these same companies hired 13,932 graduates with bachelor's degrees in 1966 compared to the 21,251 they plan to hire this June.

Graduates with master's degrees obtained 2,444 jobs last year, 1,297 less than will find jobs this year, the survey states.

Engineering students with master's degrees can expect to earn about $835 a month; accountants, $736; sales and marketing graduates, $773; and graduates in business administration, $752. All these salaries represent increases over those paid last year to the same groups.

ANOTHER REPORT, the College Placement Council's 1966-67 Survey in which ASU took part, shows that graduates with

Cuddled—Crib to Coals For Faculty Chick Fry

By BETTY DICKIE

The Faculty Club's chicken fry next Wednesday is an event to be envied by the most discriminating epicure.

For 17 years Dr. Ernest Parker, professor of Agriculture and internationally known poultry expert, has made a special project of selecting and raising the chickens to be consumed.

Each year, when the date for the dinner is set, Dr. Parker counts back three and one-half months and orders baby chicks that were born on that particular day.

Not just any chickens will do. He orders Wantress Cross chickens which, he says, "are the best in the U. S."

Only the best in scientific care and feeding is given these young fryers. When they are at the peak of their perfection — tender, succulent, deliciously flavored — the big day has arrived.

A Phoenix food processor cleans and dresses them and rushes them on beds of crushed ice to the Saga Food chefs.

Tender and loving care is taken in frying these exceptional chickens to make sure that the preparation is commensurate with the quality of the

Devil Shortstop Unites With Pro Chicago Club

By BILL THOMAS
Sports Editor

Jim Armstrong, the talented senior shortstop who led Arizona State's baseball team in batting last year, signed with the Chicago Cubs Friday for a $20,000 bonus.

The loss of Armstrong dealt a severe blow to Coach Bobby Winkles' hopes for first place in the Western Athletic Conference and a berth in the national playoffs at Omaha, Neb., this summer.

Sports
Report

ARMSTRONG, who hit a healthy .339 average last season, will probably report to the Cubs' triple-A farm club, Tacoma, at the first of next month. Tacoma, a Pacific Coast League team, holds its spring training in Scottsdale.

"I plan to stay in school," Armstrong said. "I'll probably play ball for Tacoma this summer."

Armstrong was drafted by the Cubs last year but chose not to sign at that time. He could have waited until the end of May to reach an agreement. The delay would have limited Armstrong's bargaining power, however, so he penned the contract only fourteen days before the opening game of the ASU baseball season.

THE RANGY redhead had sparked the Sun Devil infield for two years and was expected to help stabilize the youthful Arizona State squad in the coming season.

Armstrong's prowess with the bat did not overshadow his glove work.

Just hours before Armstrong signed, Winkles said, "He's making the double-play better than anyone we've ever had."

WINKLES was planning to convert Armstrong from shortstop to second base.

"He throws sidearm," Winkles said. "He's a natural for second. We've had this in mind for some time."

Utags Down, WAC on Tap

Sun Devil wrestlers demolished a woefully inept Utah State team 35-0 Friday night, but Arizona State mat coach Ted Bredehoft was disappointed with his squad's performance.

"Team-wise the squad was stuttering throughout the meet. They just weren't as sharp as I would like," he said.

Still, Bredehoft had praise for some of his grapplers.

"I was quite pleased with Ralph Gambin," he said. "He's really coming of age after a slow start."

Bredehoft also had a good word for big Curley Culp saying, "He performed in his usual fine fashion."

For Culp, it was his tenth pin in twelve meets. Other wrestlers who registered pins were Glenn McMinn, Ralph Gambin and Wayne Partee.

It was the first time this year that the Devil squad had shut out an opponent. The last white-wash job came two years ago against New Mexico, 34-0. It was the same year that the ASU mat team copped the Western Athletic Conference title.

"I don't believe in omens," Bredehoft said, "but if anyone does, there it is."

Later this week the Devil matmen will begin the WAC "Suicide Swing," a three day road trip that will bring them face-to-face with such wrestling powerhouses as Wyoming, Brigham Young and Utah.

"Sunday morning we should be able to indicate the pre-WAC favorite from all of this," Bredehoft said.

A-State Takes Awards In Games Tournament

Approximately 100 students from eight universities participated in the MU Games Tournament over the weekend.

Participants from ASU, UofA, Colorado State College, New Mexico State University, Adams State College, University of Wyoming, University of Utah and the Air Force Academy took part in the events.

Ferenc Mercz, ASU senior, finished first in table tennis singles. In doubles Mercz teamed with Will Haggerty, a junior, to take second place behind a team from the UofA.

Pam Frier, ASU, finished first in women's bowling while the mens' team from ASU finished first in men's bowling team competition.

Scott Smith, ASU, finished second in billiards. In chess two two-men teams from ASU finished second and third, respectively. The four men from ASU finished in the top tight in the overall competition.

ON CUE — Arizona State's Scott Smith lines up his shot in billiards competition during the MU tournament last weekend. Smith finished third.

Illinois Tops Beelzebubs

Coach Norris Steverson's gymnasts tackled tough Southern Illinois Saturday night here, and came out on the short end of the deal, 184.10-195.20.

Devil gymnasts captured only two of the events, the parallel bars and the still rings, while the Sulkies swept the first three places in the long horse, side horse and floor exercise.

THE WINNING of first place was not the factor which kept the Devils in the meet. It was the constant picking up of the lower point scores of second, third, fourth and fifth.

Veteran Sun Devil Richard Impson turned in a squeaker in the all-around competition, nudging SIU's Fred Dennis, 54.05 to 54.00.

Devil trampolinist Nick Spahn, who was previously ranked number one in the nation, managed only a third place, finishing behind Sulkies' Dale Hardt and Hutch Dvorak.

THE DEVILS' two victories were won by Impson on the parallel bars and Joel Pearson on the still rings.

Other credible performances were turned in by Ken Holt, who tied for third place with Rick Tucker and Ron Harstad of SIU, on the parallel bars and John Price who likewise captured a third place rating on the still rings.

The Devils' next and last home meet of the season is scheduled for February 24, against Brigham Young.

Racquetees Opposed By Gen. Taylor

By MARK FRANKFURT

The general moved quickly and deftly as he cut loose with a barrage of terrific smashes—the dust cleared and the opponent had been defeated. General Maxwell Taylor again came through a battle in a manner truly befitting an American hero.

But wait a minute. Where are the Viet Cong? Why is everybody applauding? And since when does the U. S. Army outfit its soldiers in white shorts?

MAYBE THE TIME has come to invest in Russian war bonds. No, not really. It's just that it was such a beautiful afternoon, that General Taylor couldn't resist the opportunity to bask in the glowing Arizona sun and sharpen up his tennis game at the same time. And everybody who witnessed the general's surprisingly skillful exhibition was glad he elected to accept ASU's invitation to use the Apache court facilities.

The general dashed from side to side and back and forth, displaying a backhand and forehand that would have made Pancho Gonzales proud. His tactics on the court seemed to be as well mapped out as they would be on the battlefield, and he eyed his opponent in a fashion that would have led one to believe that he was trying to invoke some hypnotic spell.

Maxwell Taylor's name can now be added to the long list of dignitaries to visit the Tempe campus, but he is the first to put on a tennis exhibition here. All concerned seemed delighted to see the former great military leader and diplomat "let his hair down" and take on a far different role than he is usually expected to fill. What's more, he seemed to thoroughly enjoy it.

AFTER HIS MATCH, General Taylor, puffing and panting (but only slightly, mind you, as he is obviously in peak condition), was extremely cordial and did his best to answer all questions fired at him on a variety of topics. He even discussed his tennis game and cheerfully acknowledged his severest critics.

POLISHED BRASS — General Maxwell Taylor chats with tennis coach Ted Bredehoff after workout with Devil tennis team. "I predict a brilliant future for the squad; they humiliated me no end," Taylor said.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

Devils Signal Call For Doctor's Help

"If there is a doctor in the house, will he please report to the Arizona State dressing room immediately after the game?"

That's the call that should have gone out Saturday night as the Sun Devils absorbed a 90-59 pasting by a group that went by the title Utah State University. But those who saw the game know that was a misnomer, reminiscent of the days when Superman posed as Clark Kent, "the mild-mannered reporter . . ."

For ASU fans, this group will be remembered by the name of its leader, one Shaler Halimon.

Playing a mere 29 minutes, Halimon spearheaded the Aggie attack with 27 points and 15 rebounds. Aside from Les Powell's 11 points, he was the only Aggie in double figures.

But Utah State probably could have won this one even without Halimon—unless Arizona State had had him, that is. The team had so much depth that they could substitute freely without noticeable effect.

The Devils, on the other hand, consistently played poor ball all night, with the exception of Randy Lindner. The Central High product hit for 22 points and picked off six rebounds in one of his best efforts of the year.

MORE ABOUT —

Graduates' Wages

a B.A. degree and a technical background will receive an average monthly salary of $706, an increase of 5.2 per cent since the end of June.

Because of the sudden demand for college graduates with a B.A. or B.S. degree by business and industry, the number of job offers has increased 42 per cent since January 1965. Technical students in particular have been in short supply and the number of offers to this group has climbed nearly 60 per cent in the past two years.

This survey states that the aerospace industry made more offers to bachelor's candidates from Sept. 1 to Dec. 13, 1966 than any other of the 16 employer groups in the study. Almost 925 offers were extended or one third of the total. This survey was limited to male students only.

PUBLIC utilities have recorded a notable increase in the number of job offers it made in this period — 279 offers. They are followed by electronics, chemicals and drugs, metals, public accounting and petroleum.

The increases in dollar value of offers to master's and doctoral candidates are more modest than to bachelor's candidates. The top increase in the master's area since June is five per cent for mechanical engineering.

Chemistry is the only doctoral program with a sizable number of offers and its increase is only 2.3 per cent. Overall, the volume of offers to doctoral candidates is almost double that of a year ago, while the master's volume is up 16 per cent.
