'War and Peace' Movie Tops MU Activity Slate

The movie classic "War and Peace," starring Henry Fonda and Audrey Hepburn, will be shown tonight and tomorrow evening at 7:30 in the MU Ballroom as the first in a series of MU sponsored films and tours.

Based on the marathon epic by Russian novelist Leo Tolstoy, "War and Peace" depicts the lives and loves of individuals caught in the backlash of the Napoleonic Wars.

A REGISTRATION receipt is required for admission to the showing which is open to students, staff, members of their families and guests.

"The Misadventures of Merlin Jones," a Walt Disney production, will be shown Monday evening.

Rounding out the movie schedule for the first summer session will be "Sanctuary," "Pepe," "Me and the Colonel" and "Hans Christian Andersen." Second session features are "Spy Who Came In From the Cold," "The Old Dark House," "The Hill," "Oscar Wilde" and "Mysterious Island."

BUS TOURS to the Phoenix Art Museum, Mountain States Telephone Co., Taliesin West and the University Arts Center in Payson are also under MU sponsorship.

The first tour will leave the MU on Tuesday at 2 p.m. for a junket to the Art Museum. Tickets are 75 cents and should be purchased at the Information Desk two days in advance, according to Mike Byron, MU program director.

Early 'Coffee and ...' Perks Wednesday

Coffee, juice and pastries will be served each Wednesday morning of the summer session at a 'Coffee and ...' between 8:40 and 10:30 in the Pagoda Room of the MU. Each item will cost 10 cents.

Registration Goes Past 10,000 Mark

Enrollment for the first Summer Session reached 9,858 at the close of the regular registration period Tuesday night and is expected to exceed 10,200 when the final count is in.

The record turnout surpasses the previous high of 9,625 set during the first term last summer. An expanded program of workshops, special interest classes and seminars have been instrumental in the soaring enrollment.

A total of 4,002 students registered by mail and 4,734 were processed Saturday.

"There were the usual long lines," said Registrar Alfred Thomas, Jr., "but I guess that's a part of our way of life." In general he thought the registration went smoothly.

Approximately 700 classes will be in session during the first term of the summer sessions.

"With each successive summer," said Thomas, "more and more regularly - enrolled students, graduates as well as undergraduates, are remaining on campus to complete their advanced degrees or four - year baccalaureate programs ahead of schedule."

He also pointed out that the number of school teachers returning to the University to complete advanced degrees and earn additional credits to qualify for salary increases remains large.

UCLA Educator Talks Business

A prominent business educator from UCLA will be the first speaker in a series of guest lecturers beginning Tuesday and slated to continue through the summer sessions under sponsorship of the Department of Office Administration and Business Education.

Dr. S. J. Wanous, a noted textbook author, will talk on "Problems and Trends in Business Education." The lecture will be from 9:20 to 10:50 a.m. and will continue at 1:15 to 2:15 p.m. in BA 303.

Tempe Continues Sales Tax Suit

The City of Tempe continued its sales tax suit against the University yesterday by filing a motion to set a date for a court hearing on the matter.

City officials contend that the University is liable for the municipality's 1 per cent sales tax on such transactions as events at Grady Gamage, campus bookstore sales and dormitory rentals.

"WE HAVE TAKEN the position that ASU is liable for back taxes starting 15 months ago," said David Merkel, assistant city attorney. "The outcome of the suit will be a precedent for the UofA, NAU and several private schools and junior colleges such as Prescott JC and Mesa Community College. It could have some far-reaching effects."

MERKEL FILED the suit with the Arizona Supreme Court early in the second semester after more than a year of negotiations proved fruitless. The Supreme Court, however, refused jurisdiction in the matter and suggested that suit for declaratory judgment be filed in a lower court. Early this month Merkel filed the suit in the Superior Court.

"We may get the hearing in nine months to a year," Merkel said. "Hopefully, because a state school is involved, we can get squeezed on the docket early."

$25 Million Finances Construction

Construction projects totaling more than $25 million are either in progress or in late planning stages for the University's sprawling campus.

MAJOR PROJECTS IN the building boom are the new Law College Building and Manzanita Hall, a 15-story girls' dormitory. Both projects are being contracted by Del Webb.

The unique Law College will feature a circular amphitheater court overlooking a jury box and judge's stand. A separate library will house over 200,000 volumes. Currently under construction, the building will cost an estimated $1,677,000 and will be ready for use in December.

MANZANITA HALL, located between the Palo Verde complex and Alpha Drive, will provide housing accommodations for 1,000 coeds. The honeycombed structure has special recreation areas and lounges, a patio area and provisions for the handicapped. An elevator workmen's strike slowed construction for nearly two months late last semester, but the $3,700,000 residence hall should still be ready for the fall term, according to John Ellingson, director of the Physical Plant.

Slated for use next March is the new Business Administration Building, also contracted by Del Webb. The facility will feature classrooms designed for team teaching. Although the structure will rise only four stories initially, it is designed for the addition of more floors in the future.

THE CENTRAL HEATING and Refrigeration Plant is undergoing a $1,750,000 revamping that will add space for 10,000 tons of refrigeration and a new steam boiler. The additional equipment is needed to accommodate the mushrooming construction, Ellingson said. The expanded Physical Plant facilities will be adequate until about 1975.

THE ARTS COMPLEX, scheduled for groundbreaking in November, will be comprised of three buildings located on Forest Avenue between 9th and 10th Streets. The proposed $2,200,000 center will have studios, a library, exhibition areas and a 500-seat lecture hall.

A newly approved Psychology and Anthropology Building will probably be ready late in the Spring semester. The edifice will cost $3,250,000, second only to Manzanita Hall in proposed single project expenditure.

The MU will get its share of the construction budget starting in December, when the present facilities will be doubled. The building cost will be $2,785,000.

Gentry, Reid Pace Devils

Arizona State's spirited baseball team convincingly trounced its first two opponents in the Collegiate World Series in Omaha this week to bolster hopes for a second national title in three years.

Last night, as this paper went to press, the Sun Devils were facing powerful Stanford, the top-ranked team in the nation. Senior southpaw Jeff Pentland (14-5) started on the mound for ASU.

Hurler Gary Gentry and right fielder Scott Reid provided the fireworks Monday night as the Devils dumped Oklahoma State's Cowboys, 7-2.

After a shaky start, Gentry settled down and retired 17 straight batters in the game's closing frames. The fireballing junior from Phoenix tied a collegiate series record by cutting down 16 Cowboys on strikes. It was Gentry's 16th win against one loss.

Reid, a switch-hitting Junior, clobbered two wrong-field homeruns and drove in four rbi's.

Tom Burgess shook off control problems in Tuesday night's game to pitch the Devils to an 8-1 win over Boston College. Burgess, a big righthander, knocked across three runs to help his own cause. Outfielder Larry Linville also wielded a hot bat, collecting three hits in four trips to the plate.

The Omaha Series is double-elimination competition. If the Devils won last night they will be considered tournament favorites. If the Stanford Indians won they will remain the series pace-setters.

From Forensics to Taxation

Potpourri of Workshops Start

Forensics anyone? Or maybe taxation tutelage?

Special instruction and smatterings of graduate class credit can be gained from a potpourri of workshops being offered here this summer. A number of the sessions are already in progress.

THE 14th ANNUAL Workshop on the Exceptional Child which started Monday offers individual and group study for handicapped, retarded, gifted and disadvantaged children. Lectures, motion pictures and field trips will supplement the students' regularly assigned projects. The program will extend through July 15 and offers six semester hours credit for persons who have an interest in obtaining basic understanding of problems involved in teaching exceptional children.

A seminar comprised of five separate workshops on "Tax Planning for the Executive-Investor" got under way Tuesday and will run for another four weeks. The sessions will cover deferred compensation arrangements, life insurance, corporate accumulation and distributions, tax option corporations and tax traps and tax benefits for the executive-investor.

A MODERN DANCE workshop will conclude tomorrow after a week of instruction in technique, improvisation and composition. The class featured a lecture, "New Trends and Development in the Arts," and will net students one hour of graduate credit.

A typewriter workshop for elementary and junior high school teachers is scheduled for July 14. Areas covered will include methods, operation, writing skills and language arts related to typewriter use. The course offers graduate credit.

The Music Department is offering a number of workshop programs throughout the summer. The first, already started, is designed for general classroom teachers in the elementary and junior high schools as well as music specialists. The sessions are geared for teachers who seek to develop new approaches to the creative talents of children in an age of technology.

OTHER MUSIC-SPONSORED workshops include humanities and the comparative arts, June 12-July 14; music theater June 12-July 14; conducting and band rehearsal techniques, July 17-Aug. 4; and percussion materials and repertoire, July 17-Aug. 4.

Both students and teachers will get a chance to participate in a forensic workshop slated to begin June 25 and extend through July 8. For the instructors, a pro-seminar outlining the philosophy, methods and problems of directing a forensic program will be offered. The high school students who enroll in the sessions will be exposed to the fundamental principles and methods of debate through lectures, discussion and laboratory sessions.

THREE WORKSHOPS on team teaching and flexible scheduling begin Monday and last through July 28. The sessions will cover methods, organization, evaluation, literature and development of teaching resource units. Students receive two graduate semester hours credit for each workshop.

A two-week junior college workshop emphasizing counseling, guidance, testing and student services will also begin Monday. The program will provide current and prospective JC personnel with an opportunity for directed study on community college-oriented themes.

Cadets Get Taste Of Viet Nam War

More than 120 advanced Army ROTC cadets will leave today for six weeks of intensified military training during the annual summer camp at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

"The slant of the training is toward Viet Nam," said Chuck Sankey, former Cadet Brigade Commander. "They don't tell you that but it's pretty evident. The men will get instruction in leadership training and techniques, how to work as a unit and tactical training. They will be living the military for six weeks as sort of 'glorified privates'."

THE 1,500 MEN at the camp will represent colleges and universities from all over the nation.

Demonstrations are scheduled in the use of artillery, chemical warfare, armor and napalm. The cadets will also participate in war games, implementing military theory and equipment in the field.

MODEL VIETNAMESE-TYPE villages are set up for cordon and search maneuvers. In the mock operation a cadet unit surrounds the village, then half of the men conduct a house-to-house search while the other half remains in a security ring, or cordon, around the area.

"One of the most impressive things will be the napalm demonstration," said Sankey, a graduate of last year's camp. "Jets coming flying in as slow as hell and drop the napalm. We were half-a-mile away and we could still feel the heat."

"THE MEN WILL have an opportunity for practical application of classroom effort here at the University," said Col. Coy Curtis, professor of military science.

The future officers will also receive social instruction at a military ball.

Thirty-five other cadets left last weekend for special boot camp training at Ft. Benning, Ga. The men are students who, for various reasons, have not completed the basic course. They will undergo a vigorous six-week program to prepare them for the advanced course next year.

Professor from Purdue Appointed Industrial Engineering Chairman

Dr. Hewitt H. Young, assistant head of the school of industrial engineering at Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., has been named chairman of the industrial engineering faculty here effective in August.

Young, professor of industrial engineering at Purdue, received his Ph.D. here in 1966 after studying as a Ford Foundation Fellow in 1964-65. He will succeed Dr. C. B. Gambrell who has accepted the first vice-presidency of academic affairs at Florida Technological University, Orlando, Fla.

Gambrell recently termed his successor "one of the top three industrial engineering educators today."

Netters Net Swedish Duo

Two internationally ranked tennis players from Sweden have signed letters of intent to enroll at Arizona State in the fall.

Bjorn Alven and Hans-Fredrik Nordstrom, both members of their country's Junior Wimbledon team, should make coach Ted Bredehoff's net squad a strong contender for the Western Athletic Conference title next spring.

'What's New at ASU' Luncheon Lecture Topic

Lecture luncheons featuring a variety of speakers have been scheduled for the summer sessions by MU program director Mike Byron.

The first speaker will be vice-president Gilbert Cady who will talk about "What's New at ASU." The buffet will be held Thursday afternoon, at 12:15 in the MU Ballroom.

TED DE GRAZIA, internationally known Arizona artist, will present a film and commentary at a luncheon on June 22.

In the second session, Prof. Troy Pewe, chairman of the Geology Department, will give a lecture and show a film on "The Great Alaska Earthquake of 1964" on July 27. Pewe conducted extensive research after the disaster and produced the movie himself. He is the former head of the Geology Department at the University of Alaska.
