

Fans Welcome Victorious Sun Devils

2,000 Jam Terminal, Greet NCAA Champs

More than 2,000 loyal Sun Devil baseball fans braved parking snarls and a 40 minute delay to welcome the College World Series Champions Monday night at Sky Harbor Airport.

When Coach Bobby Winkles stepped off the big Frontier turbojet, flashbulbs popped, the fans cheered and waved "Welcome Home" signs, and a 15-piece band struck up the Devil Fight Song.

There were just six players in the homecoming content. The other 15 who made the trip to Omaha dispersed to different parts of the country to play in semipro leagues.

On hand at Sky Harbor were pitchers Gary Gentry, Tom Burgess, Sam Chipps and Doug Nurnberg, left fielder Ralph Carpenter and shortstop Jack Lind.

Burgess was the winning pitcher in the championship game against Houston Sunday night. The big righthander, a former JC All-America at Phoenix College, scattered 12 hits and struck out a record 15 batters.

Constantly in hot water, Burgess worked his way out of jam after jam, allowing at least one Houston hit each inning. The Cougars were all thumbs, however, and committed six errors, giving the Devils a chance to break the game wide open. The final score was a lop-sided 11-2.

But it was Gentry that captured the imagination of the fans at Omaha.

To reach the final playoff, the Devils had to face number-one-ranked Stanford for the second time in the tourney. In the first contest between the two clubs, Arizona State had won, 5-3, behind the brilliant relief pitching of Sophomore Larry Gura. But armchair coaches were waging their heads about the possibility of knocking off Stanford twice in less than a week.

Gentry, however, rose to the occasion and turned in one of the classic performances in tournament history, beating Stanford, 4-3, in a marathon 14-inning game. The slightly-built righthander struck out 16 opponents to the extra-inning record in that department.

'Hustle Pays,' Winkles Says

Sun Devil coach Bobby Winkles stepped off the plane from Omaha Monday night looking remarkably rested for a man who hasn't had a good night's sleep since early last month.

It wasn't until Winkles' own version of the "Cardiac Kids" finally pulled the championship out of the fire Sunday night, that the fast-aging mentor could at last relax.

"It's hard to pick out the tensest moment," Winkles said. "I guess it was from the ninth to the fourteenth inning against Stanford. The game with Arizona was better played, but with Stanford it was for all the chips."

Winkles singled out Catcher Ron Davini as the team's spark-plug. "He was the inspiration to the team. We did out-hustle everyone back there in Omaha and it paid off. The people were impressed by our brand of baseball," he said.

'Civilians of Vietnam'

Dedera to Give Slide-Lecture

Don Dedera, columnist for the Arizona Republic, will portray a different side of the war in Vietnam when he presents a slide-lecture, "The Civilians of Vietnam," Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in the MU Ballroom.

Dedera visited the war-torn country last year on assignment from the Republic.

"Many correspondents went to Vietnam with the primary emphasis on reporting the war," Dedera said. "I went to do that, too, but also to take a look at the plight of the civilian. The war moves fluidly through the civilian population so it is not really so far detached."

MU Slates Film, Tour

A tour of the Mountain States Telephone facilities and a showing of the movie, "Sanctuary," starring Lee Remick and Yves Montand, will be the featured events on the MU activity calendar this week.

"Sanctuary," based on the novel by William Faulkner, is a story of the Roaring Twenties. It will be shown tonight and tomorrow evening at 7:30 in the MU Ballroom. Admission is free with presentation of a registration receipt.

The tour of the telephone company will leave the front of the MU by air-conditioned bus at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday. A look at a new phone system will be one of the highlights of the trip, according to Mike Byron, MU activity director. Cost for the junket is 75 cents to cover transportation expenses.

the author of a home-spun daily column for the morning paper, Dedera donned khaki fatigues and spent four months puddle-jumping from the DMZ to Vietnam's southern-most tip.

During his whirlwind trip, Dedera made 110 airplane landings and takeoffs, visiting all major cities in the country.

"I have never been the type to sit around in a bar picking some other reporter's brains," he said. "I got out and covered the stories myself."

Dedera's slides include photos of civil disorders and rioting, military activity and civilian life. He will begin his talk with a few opening remarks, then show slides and follow with a question and answer period. Admission is free with presentation of activity receipt.

College Inn Eases Housing Pressure

The College Inn, a privately owned dormitory complex slated for completion before the fall semester, will relieve the bulging University residence halls by providing housing for 373 male students.

The facility, located just west of the Tempe Sands on Mill Avenue, offers a unique concept in university living, according to S. Kenneth Slemmons, resident manager.

"WE FEEL we do fill quite a need," Slemmons said. "The Inn will be more regulated than an apartment and have more freedom than a dorm."

University housing will probably be filled to its 1,400 man capacity in the fall, according to Edward Hickcox, director of housing.

"The Inn should relieve some of the pressure," he said, "although we still are quite certain that by September the halls on campus will be filled."

THE COMPLEX, which will rise three stories, will provide 235 rooms and two dining halls. There will be eight separate choices of housing accommodations, ranging from a one-man room with private bath to a three-man room with adjoining bath.

Recreation facilities include a pool, sun deck and two games rooms featuring ping pong, billiards and color television. Private parking will be provided for all residents.

The individual rooms are comparable in size to those in the M.O. Best Complex. Each unit is carpeted and weekly maid service is provided.

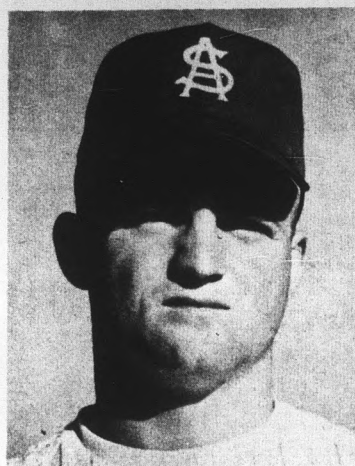

RESIDENTS WILL be allowed to entertain coeds in their rooms during certain hours. Social activities such as dances and dinners will be sponsored by the Inn, according to Slemmons.

"Because it's on private property and privately owned, we like to feel we're a little more realistic than the University concerning regulations," Slemmons said.

Prices for rooms range from $820 to $1,170 per semester. The total includes 20 meals each week.

Reid, Gentry Rate All-America

Pitcher Gary Gentry and left fielder Scott Reid were named first team All-Americans last week and three other Sun Devils were picked for the All-Tournament squad in Omaha.

Catcher Ron Davini, shortstop Jack Lind, third baseman Dave Grangaard, Gentry and Reid were selected by coaches as the most outstanding at their respective positions during the season with the College World Series. Davini was also chosen the Most Valuable Player in the tourney.

Gentry, a righthander from Phoenix, posted a sterling 17-1 record during the season with a national record 229 strikeouts. He provided Devil fans with the two most exciting moments of the campaign when he pitched his team to pulsating extra-inning victories over the University of Arizona and top-ranked Stanford.

Gentry set numerous strikeout records both during the regular season and in the tournament. He plans to sign with the New York Mets soon.

Reid, a big junior transfer from Cerritos Junior College, led the Devils at the plate with nine hits in 22 trips for a whopping .409 average in the tourney. He cracked two homers and drove in 10 runs.

Playing his All-America role to the hilt, Reid tripled home Gentry with the winning run in the marathon game against Stanford that allowed the Devils to reach the finals.

Davini, the fiery sparkplug of the Arizona State squad, also hit .409. His constant hustle gave the Devils the spirit they needed when the going got tough.

When he received his MVP award at home plate after the championship game, Davini said, "There are 21 other ballplayers who deserve this as much as I do."

Grangaard, a .348 hitter during the series, contributed a game-tying homer in the second tilt with Stanford.

Lind sparked the Devil effort in the field, participating in four double plays. He also hit .278 and stole a pair of bases.

Congress Approves Bill For Deferring Students

The United States Congress approved a four-year draft extension bill yesterday that defers college undergraduates whose academic work is satisfactory to their schools.

The legislation, which is now awaiting President Johnson's signature, eliminates the present system of class standings and test scores as a guide for local draft boards.

The bill also blocks Johnson's efforts to set up a lottery-type system for selecting inductees. The President, however, will be able to proceed with his announced plan of reversing the age order of induction to take 19-year-olds first.

Johnson also retains authority to specify which post-graduate students should be deferred. The chief executive has already indicated he would limit graduate school deferments to medical and dental students.

The Administration's objection to the bill, as voiced by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is that those without the means or ability to go to college still would remain victims of discrimination.

Kennedy failed to rally support for a delay or revisions in the bill.

Aural Experiment Volunteers Sought

One-hundred volunteers are needed to participate in an experimental study in speech-reading to be conducted next week in the Department of Speech and Hearing.

"It is hoped that through research a factor can be found that will enhance the ability of aurally handicapped persons to speech read," said Mrs. Velva Hinman, a graduate student in speech and hearing. Mrs. Hinman is conducting the experiment for her master's thesis.

The study will be conducted daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. beginning Monday in LL130 and lasting for 10 days. Additional information may be obtained by calling 966-3863.

Mandatory Exams Planned June 28

Tests required for placement, entrance or exemption in a variety of academic areas are scheduled for Wednesday, June 28.

Exams to be conducted at 1 p.m. are English Exemption; Music Theory Placement, required of all entering music majors; and Architecture Aptitude, required of all freshmen entering the College of Architecture. The Foreign Language Placement Test will be held at 3:30 p.m.
