

TAKING SHAPE — The new College of Law building is expected to be finished early in January. The charter class will begin studies in September, using facilities at Matthews Center until their permanent home is completed.

Law Dean to Lecture

Dr. Willard Pedrick, dean of the University's new Law College, will speak on "The Study of Law and the Pursuit of Happiness" at the last lecture-luncheon of the summer at 12:15 p.m. today in the MU Ballroom.

Describing the pursuit of happiness as the right to live fruitful, productive and satisfying lives, Pedrick will indicate that providing a framework for this is one of the functions of the government.

There are, however, individuals and groups who feel, with some reason, that they don't have a decent opportunity to share in a highly productive economic system, he said.

The study of the law is demanding, grueling, and hardly in itself the epitome of happiness. Yet, it lets young men and women enter a profession, the objective of which is to enable all members of society to have a better chance to realize the American dream, according to Pedrick.

In the lecture, he will discuss the new Law College, describing the faculty, enrollment and physical plant. He also will indicate how the College can help enlarge the capacity of the state and country to provide trained professionals for counseling, advising and representing clients.

Sean Connery Appears In MU Film, 'The Hill'

Sean Connery, the super-cool secret agent of James Bond fame, will step out of his stereotyped 007 role to star in a semi-art film, "The Hill," at 7:30 tonight and tomorrow evening in the MU Ballroom.

The motion picture centers around the inhumane conditions in a desert prison camp for British soldiers who have committed wartime discipline infractions. "The Hill" is a study in the mental reactions of men who are being driven beyond their physical capabilities.

The movie is free to students, staff and faculty.

Other MU activities this week will include a tour to Taliesin West, the home and workshop of the late architect, Frank Lloyd Wright.

Wright designed the Grady Gammage Auditorium and the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house on the University campus.

The tour will leave the front of the MU in an air-conditioned bus at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon.

The weekly "Coffee and..." get-together will be held as usual from 8:40 to 10:30 Wednesday morning in the MU's Pagoda Room.

Greeks Gird for Rush

Fraternity rush will begin in earnest during the next month as blazer-clad Greeks extend the "glad hand" to a record 700 potential pledges.

The informal phase of the rushing program, generally consisting of pool parties, house tours and individual sales pitches, will continue until the regular rush week, Sept. 11-16.

THE INTER-fraternity Council sent out 3,600 rush booklets last week in an effort to encourage early registration of rushees, thereby expanding the informal part of the program. Rush week scheduling will be much the same as in recent years, with an orientation assembly, open houses, smokers and preference parties highlighting the weeks' activities.

Special Report

The usual bevy of attractive coeds, scrubbed fraternity houses, chapter scrap-books and casual banter will be in evidence as the Greeks vie to attract the best crop of pledges.

A NEW RULING on minimum grade averages for rushees is expected to improve the academic quality of pledges, according to Barry McBan, IFC rush chairman. Entering freshmen must have a 2.5 average or have been in the upper half of their high school graduating class. Transfer students must have a 2.0 accumulative, and continuing students must either have a 2.0 for the previous semester or a 2.0 accumulative.

"The rule will cause the quality of men to improve in the near future," McBan said. "There's no question about that. Also, more men will be going active."

The 20 fraternities on campus offer a variety of programs ranging from social activities to academics, community service and intramural athletics.

SOCIAL FUNCTIONS, the backbone of the Greek system, include boondockers, fraternity-sorority exchanges, Greek Week, Sigma Chi's Derby Day, T.G.I.F. parties and holiday formals.

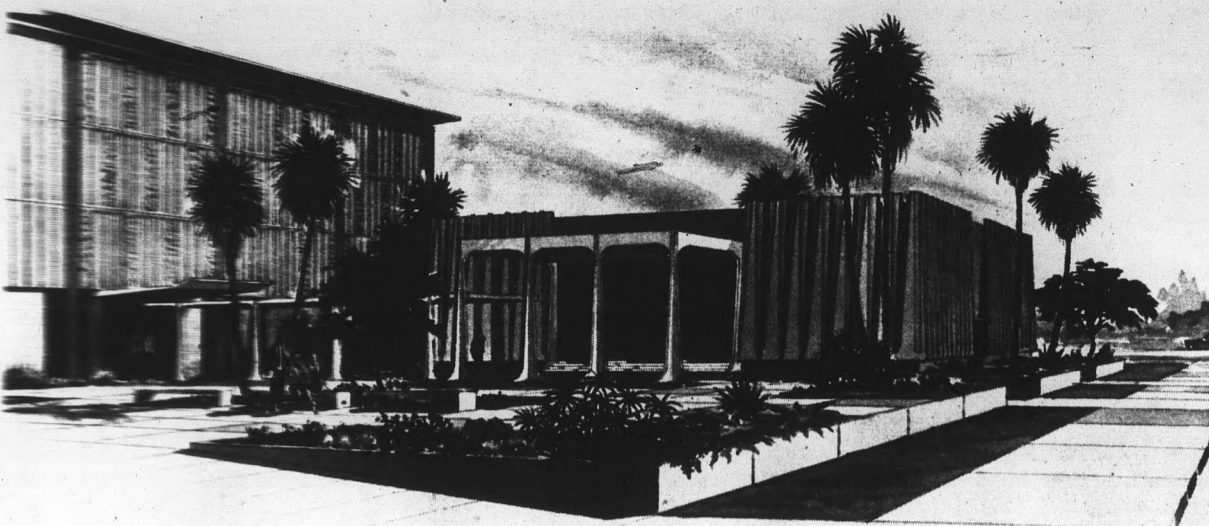

"Some people seem to think the Greeks spend more time drinking beer than studying," McBan said. "That just isn't so. Every house has study tables four or five nights each week for its pledges. The IFC grade average has always been higher than the all-mens average."

LAST SEMESTER the fraternities came closer than ever before to seeing that record tarnished. They barely edged out the men's index, 2.36 to 2.34.

The Greeks, however, did their share of community service last year, climaxing their collective efforts by providing a recreation area for Guadalupe, an impoverished community south of Phoenix. Fraternities and sororities united to clear playgrounds, put up picnic benches and renovate battered facilities. The Coca Cola Corp. has given the IFC a $500 grant to continue the work next Spring.

WHAT'S WITH HIM? — "No Time for Sergeants," a rollicking comedy by Ira Levin, will be presented by the University Players on Aug. 11 and 12. Above, nurses (Kathy Hurley and Sybil Davis) chuckle as Private Will Stockdale (Charles Evans) salutes them and nearly everyone else he meets during induction process. Tickets are now on sale at the Lyceum box office, 966-3437, or may be obtained on nights of performances at Grady Gammage Auditorium.

Progress — Education College Will Double

Two construction projects, which will double the present facilities of the College of Education, are scheduled to begin in November, according to John R. Ellingson, director of planning and construction.

The construction will include two new buildings and several covered walkways linking the College's facilities.

The largest of the new structures (below) will be located on Forest Avenue at the west end of Orange Street, and will include classrooms, labs and offices.

The second of the proposed buildings (left) will be a 500-seat lecture hall, located at the southwest corner of the present College of Education structure.

The new buildings will cost an estimated $1,838,000 and are slated for completion by November, 1968.

Dr. Peek Named Dean Of Liberal Arts College

A nationally-recognized scholar who has served as professor of science here for the past three years will assume direction of the University's largest college on Sept. 1.

Dr. George A. Peek, Jr., has been appointed dean of the College of Liberal Arts by University President G. Homer Durham.

He will succeed Dr. Karl H. Dammfeldt, who was recently named new academic vice-president of the University after the voluntary retirement of Gordon Castle.

than 1,000 students each semester.

He also received a national citation from the American Bar Association for his National Educational Television series about the Bill of Rights.

A frequent contributor to professional publications, Dr. Peek is also the author of "The Political Writings of John Adams," published in 1954.

Dr. George A. Peek, Jr.

As a member of the University of Michigan political science faculty from 1948 to 1964, Dr. Peek advanced from instructor to full professor, won two awards for excellence in teaching, and organized and directed an introductory course in political science that enrolled more

All-America Picks In Coed Archery Include 5 Devils

Sun Devil coeds were named to five of the top six spots on the 1967 All-America Women's Archery Team which was announced last week by the National Collegiate Archery Coaches Association.

Judy Severance, senior in physical education, was named to the number one position on the squad for an unprecedented third straight year. She received an honorable mention her first year and is probably the only person, man or woman, to have been chosen on four All-America teams.

Other Arizona State archers selected were Lynn Swanlund (3), Sue Dannelly (4), Cris Bauer (1st alternate) and Susan Shiner (2nd alternate).

The main basis for selection was archery scores shot in collegiate competition during the school year.

Keating In, Leary Out at Gammage Radical Publisher To Talk Tuesday

The controversial founder and former publisher of Ramparts magazine, Edward M. Keating, will lecture on "A Radical's View of America," at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday in Grady Gammage Auditorium.

Keating is a graduate of Stanford University and author of "The Scandal of Silence," a book published in 1965 by Random House. That same year he won the Beth Am Ethical Actions award as "an outstanding leader in the area of social justice, through action and the spoken and written word."

He also was the 1964 recipient of the Peninsula Council of B'nai B'riths Brotherhood Award for "outstanding contribution to the cause of brotherhood of peoples of all faiths and creeds."

No seats will be reserved for the lecture, but general admission tickets, priced at $1, will be on sale at the Gammage Auditorium box office.

Arts Board Nixes 'Drop Out' Movie

The Dr. Timothy Leary film concerning experiments with LSD, "Turn On, Tune In, Drop Out," has been cancelled, according to David Scoular, chairman of the University performing arts board.

The film performances had been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Aug. 2 through Aug. 4 at the Grady Gammage Memorial Auditorium.

After viewing the film, members of the performing arts board who are on campus during the summer concluded that "it is not the kind of entertainment normally presented in a center for the performing arts, such as Gammage Auditorium."

The committee also felt that the film "has certain clinical implications, and its showing should be presented with clinical observations and discussions by qualified commentators."

Indian Newsmen Plan Pow-wow

A journalism workshop for Indians will be sponsored by the University's Indian Community Action Project on Aug. 22 and 23 in Albuquerque, N.M.

Pueblo, Apache and Navajo editors in New Mexico will meet at the University of New Mexico for the two-day training period.

The program is a follow-up for the journalism workshop held here last winter.
