

ROTC Bill Held For More Study

A recommendation Saturday by President G. Homer Durham that ROTC be made voluntary did not sway the Board of Regents from delaying its decision until April.

The regents decided to defer the decision so they could study the matter more thoroughly and because President Richard Harvill of the UofA requested more time for he and the faculty to study the proposal.

A COMMITTEE of three regents was formed to study the situation, with the aid of the university presidents, and make recommendations in April.

President Durham expressed his belief at the meeting that the public does not understand the voluntary ROTC movement or the people behind it.

He said most students oppose compulsory ROTC because they see no intellectual value in drilling and not because they lacked patriotism or wanted to avoid the responsibilities of citizenship.

THE FACULTY and students supporting voluntary ROTC were by no means pacifists, he said, and meant no censure of the military by their actions.

A presentation indicating a national trend from compulsory to voluntary ROTC programs was also given to the regents.

It cited a study showing that only 24 of the current 177 Air Force ROTC programs were compulsory.

THE STUDY also pointed out that the number of voluntary Army ROTC programs had risen from 78 out of the 248 offered to the present 151 voluntary.

Dr. Harvill of the UofA said that, while UofA students favored voluntary ROTC by a 2 to 1 ratio, he preferred to make his personal opinion known at a later date.

The action of the Board of Regents in deferring its decision puts one more rung on the ladder being climbed by a persistent voluntary ROTC movement at the University in the past few months.

THE MOVEMENT began with the individual actions of a few small groups that soon gained the support of other, more well-known organizations on campus.

These actions brought it to the attention of the Student Senate which almost unanimously passed a resolution to the Faculty Senate and President Durham requesting that ROTC no longer be compulsory.

Bulletin

Five students, all members of the same fraternity, were suspended from the University yesterday afternoon for academic dishonesty, said Dr. Willard Abraham, chairman of the University Student Conduct Committee. There was no more information available at press time.

Emergency Fund Cut By Intramural Slice

By LARRY ROSS

Men's intramurals got a $2,019.50 boost from dwindling student government funds Monday to supplement a budget that was described as inadequate for the rapidly expanding campus sports program.

The funding request was approved at a 10-minute Board of Financial Control meeting and encountered opposition only briefly from acting board chairman Steve Yarbrough.

YARBROUGH, first vice president, questioned whether the funds should be transferred from the AS contingency fund, which he said was getting reasonably close to bottom.

The student government emergency fund has been steadily losing poundage to the budgetary knife and recently had nearly 20 per cent carved off to supply the salary of an activities center supervisor.

Yarbrough and other student government officers have expressed concern recently over the status of the approximately $10,000 in the contingency fund. No report on the level of the money has been given since early in the semester.

DUDLEY MELICHAR, coordinator of student activities, told the board that the funds for intramurals had already been figured into the fund reports as spent and assured them that there was enough money to cover the budget request for intramurals.

The biggest portion of the $2,019.50 request was taken up by a $1,716 imbalance between funds allotted and needed for officiating wages.

The difference is explained by a leaps and bounds increase in intramurals participation, according to Melichar, who introduced the request.

HE NOTED that there had been an increase of 24 teams and 180 games in football alone, and that other sports had shown a similar increase.

The request also reflected the increased cost of office supplies, postage and fees.

Melichar reported that intramurals had been cutting corners in the area of officiation by hiring students in the work-study program as assistants. The school pays only 25 per cent of the work-study wage.

Bells Still Issue After Tolling Year

By ROB SHAW

"Now that we've got them, we might as well make the best of them."

This seems to be a typical attitude of students toward the University's $23,000 carillon bells after a year's use.

THE ELECTRIC carillons, an offspring of Fred Reish's ASA-SU administration of the first semester, 1966, have provoked some of the most heated controversy on campus since "I Sing of Olaf."

The initial opposition to purchase of the bells was perhaps the most acute criticism the bells' advocates have faced. Petitions, signed by a greater number of students than that which elected Reish's administration, were presented as proof of student opposition to the bells. The bells' advocates contended that the petitions weren't a valid reflection of the general student attitude.

Thus, Senate Bill 264 appropriated $23,000 for purchase of the bells. They were purchased, installed and played.

SUDDENLY, IRATE professors cried from the vibrating halls of the LL Building, "They are too loud. They're bloody

Full Cars Tempting To Holiday Thieves

As "Exodus '67" swings into high gear today, John Duffy, director of Campus Security, cautions students who are packing and leaving in the next 24 hours.

Duffy said yesterday that he hopes students will be as cooperative in guarding their packed clothing as they were over the Thanksgiving vacation.

Duffy noted that there were very few reports of stolen clothing that weekend probably because students were on guard for clothing thieves.

Again, he suggested that students not pack their cars the night before they leave as even a locked car is a temptation to thieves.

As an added note, Duffy observed that with the amount of dismal weather lately, many drivers are leaving their car lights on after they have parked and locked their vehicles.

WISEMEN AND STAR — To upperclassmen, this scene atop the Tempe Butte every year has become familiar. Sponsored by Tempe city, the scene was begun before WWII, abandoned during the war and begun again after. The camels, made of plywood, stand about 30 feet high, twice the size of a real camel. The present set of camels is the second, and is about 50 per cent larger than the original. The star is made from a wood frame. Finally, State Press wishes to all, season's greetings.

Dolls Will Reign at DDD

HOLLAND-BORN HARRIET GROOTERS was chosen for yuletide Devil Doll this season. Blonde, blue-eyed five foot five, the senior German major has been in this country only 12 of her 22 years and has been a citizen since 1964. A member of Alpha Delta Pi social sorority, Harriet was named to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Weary holiday celebrants can swing to wild, wailing music and ogle the cream of the Devil Doll crop when they return from vacation.

The second annual Devil Doll Dance will shake the MU ballroom to the rafters Jan. 4. The Gage Garner 5, current attraction at Mr. Lucky's, will rock as contest sponsors call the roll of lucky raffle winners.

Two of the beautiful coeds who have graced State Press pages during the last year will be selected as queens of the dance. Last year's winners, Carolyn Grisz and Susan Russel, will be present to crown their successors.

Tickets, priced at 50 cents stag and 75 cents drag, will be sold Jan. 3 and 4 by members of Sigma Delta Chi, sponsoring journalism fraternity.

Carillon Bells

(Continued from page 1) well drowning out my lectures." The bells were softened and received little criticism from then on. Recently, though, when queried on the bells' effectiveness, student government leaders remarked, "They're not too effective if you can't hear them, are they?"

ASASU administrators feel that students should have a greater voice in how the bells will be used. They contend that students would like to hear more school songs such as the fight song and the alma mater.

ONE administrator noted, "The bells were installed with the stipulation that a committee composed of the dean of the fine arts college, the University vice-president, and the ASASU president would decide upon how they would be programmed. So far, we haven't been contacted about forming that committee."

Another student government official noted that the carillons were to be placed on the highest building on campus. He said the bells were to have had refractors on them to dispel excess noise on campus, yet still allow them to be heard throughout the surrounding community.

Henry A. Bruinsma, dean of the fine arts college, is currently in charge of programming the bells. Dean Bruinsma said recently that the University has about six rolls consisting of 38 tunes for the bells. Rolls cost $20 each.

The carillons can be played manually or programmed with rolls. Located on top of Matthews Center, they play at 12:30 p.m., 5 p.m. and 10 p.m. every school day.

Concerning past criticism levelled at the bells, Dean Bruinsma said frankly, "I was surprised that we purchased them for $23,000. I thought it would cost much more. I would suggest that to avoid future controversy on purchases like the carillons, we should not accumulate so much money in the student budget that we must ask where to spend it."

Nominations Being Taken For 1967 Faculty Awards

Students, faculty and staff members are invited to submit nominations for the Alumni Association's annual Distinguished Teacher and Faculty Achievement awards.

Deadline for nominations is 4 p.m., Jan. 8, 1968, according to Don Dotts, executive director of the Alumni Association. Nominations forms may be picked up at Alumni House by students and faculty, or will be sent to those telephoning their request to Alumni House.

THE AWARDS will be presented by the Alumni Association at the Founders Day dinner Feb. 7.

The Distinguished Teacher Award recognizes and gives evidence of the value placed on superior teaching, honoring and encouraging teacher achievement and scholarship.

The Faculty Achievement Award recognizes the value placed on achievement by faculty or staff in work outside the classroom, which reflects a creditable and recognizable contribution to higher education — including publications, research, and professional and community activities.

Past recipients of the Distinguished Teacher Award are Dr. Duane Manning, professor of education; Dr. Douglas Arner, professor of philosophy; Dr. A. R. Burton, professor of business, and Dr. Charles M. Woolf, professor of zoology.

Past recipients of the Faculty Achievement Award are: Dr. Alan B. Pritsker, professor of industrial engineering; Dr. Keith Davis, professor of management; Dr. Willard Abraham, professor of special education, and Peter Stein, professor of mechanical engineering.

Indians Benefit From Program

An eight-week experimental program which was conducted at the University during the summer is helping 75 Indian students earn better grades in high school this fall.

The ungraded program which places emphasis on individual achievement and continued progress evaluations is the first of its kind in the nation. The curriculum consists of language arts, typing, mathematics, Indian culture identification, philosophy, health, vocational careers and guidance.

GEORGE A. Gill, coordinator of the University's Indian Educational Center, said preliminary studies indicate that the pupils are being motivated towards more and higher education, a factor which has been traditionally absent in their communities.

The project is still in progress and the second phase is a follow-up program designed to check the progress of the students. Gill and his assistant, Gabriel Sharp, travel throughout Arizona to study the effects of the project.

NINE TRIBES were represented in the experimental program. They were the Mohave, Chemehuevi, Hualapai, Hopi, Navajo, Papago, Gila River Pima, San Carlos and White Mountain Apaches. Their reservations are located in all areas of the state.

College Consultant Speaks to Law Class

The man who was consulted by the University in the formative stages of the College of Law returned last week and addressed the founding class.

John G. Hervey, Dean of the Oklahoma City University College of Law, visited the University and gave a few comments of encouragement and inspiration to the law students.

Dean Willard Pedrick of the College of Law said "Hervey placed great emphasis upon the opportunity for the law students to establish traditions and standards for the school, but also cautioned that the standards shouldn't be so high that they will never be attained."

The rains seldom come to the Valley of the Sun, but when they do, the students take the wetting in style.

A Solitary Life

He was born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman. He was not attended at birth by a doctor. He and his mother never saw a hospital.

He grew up in still another village, where he worked in a carpenter shop, like his stepfather before him. When he was thirty he left home and became an itinerant preacher.

He never had a family or owned a house.

HE NEVER wrote a book. He never held an office. He didn't go to college. He never visited a big city. He saw neither the highest mountain nor the largest ocean.

He never traveled two hundred miles from the place where he was born. He did none of the things one usually associates with greatness. He had no credentials but himself.

He was only thirty-three when the tide of public opinion turned against him. His friends ran away. Some even denied having known him. He was turned over to his enemies for a price and went through the mockery of a trial. False witnesses testified against him.

HE WAS NAILED to a cross between two thieves. He asked for water and was given vinegar to drink. While he was dying, his executioners gambled for his clothing, the only property he had on earth. When he was dead, he was laid in a borrowed grave, the gift of a friend's pity.

Nineteen centuries have come and gone, and today he is the central figure of the human race and the leader of mankind's progress. All the armies that ever marched, all the navies that ever sailed, all the parliaments that ever sat, all the kings that ever reigned, put together, have not affected the life of man as much as that

CHURCH BELLS ON A QUIET EVE

Church bells on a quiet eve
Remind me of the joys once known
At Christmas time long ago.

Twas a time when soft moonlight
Bathed the Child with radiance.
Twas a time when hearts were filled
With love and songs of hope.
Twas a time when peace on earth
Was more than just a slogan.
Twas a time when friends were cherished
More than pompous gifts of giving.

Let us then this Christmas time
Strive for understanding.
Let us listen as the church bells
Ring out their commanding.
Fill us all with love and hope
And simple joys divine.
O Silent Night, O Holy Night
Bring Peace to all mankind.

J. L. Klotz

'Tis the season to be jolly.
That's what they tell us.

They also say it's the time to be "aware of shoplifters," to buy and buy and buy, to get and get and get, and to worship the once-jolly gent who now drinks Coca-Cola and advertises every product from credit cards to shaving lotion.

THEY SAY WE should "put Christ back in Christmas." And that Christmas has become a commercialized holiday when no one considers its real meaning or purpose.

And we agree.

We say it's a shame that we've lost the beauty of Christmas. That it was different when we were kids.

But what do we do? It's the old song of words without action.

HOW LONG since you've made someone a Christmas gift instead of rushing down to the five-and-ten?
How long since you've driven the kids (or your nieces and nephews) around town—just to view the Christmas decorations? How long since you've driven up north, cut down your own tree and lugged it back, decorating it with self-made ornaments? How long since your family gathered together on Christmas Eve to sing carols and recall the story of the first Christmas?

This, if any year, is the one when we should recall the simpler pleasures of the holiday. With so many returning to strike-affected communities, the pleasures will have to be kept simple—and low in cost.

It can be done. Even if we have forgotten how.
FOR THIS IS the season of Christ's birthday, of loving, of giving, of family ties, of reflections on the past year and thanks for the coming one.

It is a time for young and old, rich and poor, the sad and the happy.

Because Christmas is a time for all. It is, at least, if we make it so.

THE TUMBLEWEED THAT TOOK OVER MATTHEWS CENTER—Mrs. Kay Johnson has assembled an unusual Christmas tree using several tumbleweeds in the lobby of Matthews Center. Irby Cain, a first year student in the College of Law, listens to her explanation. Mrs. Johnson is secretary to Dean Pedrick.

Anderson, from Sheboygan, Wis., graduated from ASU in 1962 with a degree in social studies. Since that time he pitched professionally in the Baltimore Orioles chain, seeing action in leagues ranging from Class A to AAA.

Coed Sneaks 'Sing'

The Dec. 10 performance of "The Messiah" required weeks of preparation for all but one participant of the Choral Union.

The female exception, Michele Beaudry, merely found an empty seat in the soprano section, followed Conductor Richard Dales' directions carefully, and sang away.

The senior nursing major is an old hand at what she calls "sneaking on in" when Choral Union members assemble before the performance.

She has a perfect four for four record. She's made an unauthorized appearance at every performance of "The Messiah" since she was a freshman.

She learned every number in the musical score several years ago at Ft. Bliss, Tex., where her father was stationed.

"Once you know the pieces, you just don't forget them that easily," said Michele, who has her own copy of "The Messiah" which she brings to the performances each year.

The pre-performance assembly of Choral Union students turned out to be too organized when a girl told her she was sitting in her seat.

She ran into more trouble in the form of a female attendance taker who insisted she sign a small square of paper with her name and section for class roll purposes.

"You don't get credit for the class unless you take one," the girl threatened, when Michele declined one.

To make her happy, Michele finally took one, receiving credit for a class she's not enrolled in.

Sun Devil Classic Looms

By CON KEYES
Basketball Writer

The Sun Devil Classic begins tomorrow night at the Veterans Memorial Coliseum in Phoenix with Big Ten Michigan facing Pacific 8 Oregon State at 7:30 and the Sun Devils playing against tough Oklahoma State at 9:30.

On Friday night the winners of Thursday's games play at 9:30 p.m. while the losers will play at 7:30 p.m.

ALL FOUR teams in the Classic are in a building year. However, a more than balanced field will be evident in this year's Classic.

Michigan and Oklahoma State are the odds-on favorite to take the Classic crown, with Oregon State and the Devils in third and fourth place.

But the Devils can't be ruled out, showing that they are a fast breaking ball club with good ball control, scoring at a respectable rate and hitting from the inside at a good clip. The only problem the Devils haven't been able to whip is holding down their fouls.

THE DEVILS will be carrying the highest scoring average into the Classic with an 82.8 against 81.2 for Michigan, 64.8 for Oklahoma State and 63.8 for Oregon State.

All four teams are fairly well balanced with only one senior in each of the starting line-up for the visitors. Only Oregon State has three starting sopho-

Broken Metatarsal Sidelines Johnson

The Sun Devil basketball team has suffered its first major setback from injury with the report that 6-7 sophomore Ron Johnson will be out for the season with a broken right foot.

Officials at the Student Health Center said X-rays showed that Johnson has a broken middle metatarsal bone.

Johnson, a former Mesa High standout, first injured the foot Dec. 7 against Creighton. The break apparently occurred during play against Colorado, last Saturday night.

Johnson, who first saw action against Wichita State Dec. 11, was eighth in Sun Devil scoring with 35 points and a 5.0 average.

An inside man, he had his best game against Creighton, when he scored 11 points. He played only nine minutes against Colorado and contributed two points in the Sun Devil 83-79 victory.

Mud, Showers Plague Rodeo

Mud and spasmodic rains contributed to the unpredictability of animals used in last weekend's West Coast National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association competition.

The rodeo was hosted by the Sun Devil Rodeo Association and featured 155 contestants from 16 colleges.

University competitors took third place in the men's division with 50 points after Mesa Community College's 90 points and California State Polytechnic College's 70 points.

In the women's division, ASU was second with 50 points after California State Polytechnic College's 65 points and over University of Arizona's 45 points.

Individual event winners among the Sun Devil cowboys were Stan Harter, steer wrestling, and Nial Robinson, bareback riding.

Pi Phis 'Dunk' Intramural Title

Pi Phi defeated Alpha Phi to win the last intramural event for the semester, sorority basketball.

Farmer, an off-campus team, won the open division by defeating Wilson 40-12. Manzanita won the consolation by toppling Palo Verde West.

Don't laugh at Charles Van der Hoff's big ears. He can hear a party a mile away, thanks to Sprite.

VAN DER HOFF WITH SPRITE

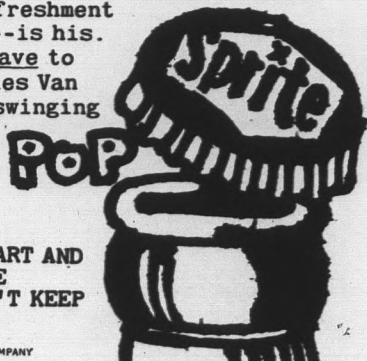

Social-life majors, take a look at Charles Van der Hoff. He can't play the guitar. Never directed an underground movie. And then look at his ears! A bit much? Yes! But--Charles Van der Hoff can hear a bottle of tart, tingling Sprite being opened in the girls' dormitory from across the campus!

What does it matter, you say? Hah! Do you realize that Charles Van der Hoff has never missed a party in four years? When he hears those bottles of Sprite being uncapped--the roars--the fizzes--the bubbles--he runs! So before you can say anti-existentialism, he's getting in on that tart, tingling, slightly tickling taste of Sprite. And delicious refreshment --as well as a good time--is his.

Of course, you don't have to have ears as big as Charles Van der Hoff's to enjoy the swinging taste of Sprite. You may just have to resign yourself to a little less social life.

 mores in the first team line-up.
 Coach Ned Wulk figures on staying with the starting five in the Colorado game, but he may add Seabern Hill in place of an inside man for more scoring punch and ball handling.

THE DEVILS have outscored five of their seven opponents to date from the field and hold a decisive 227-199 margin in field goals scored. However, the opponents lead in free throws scored 187-126.

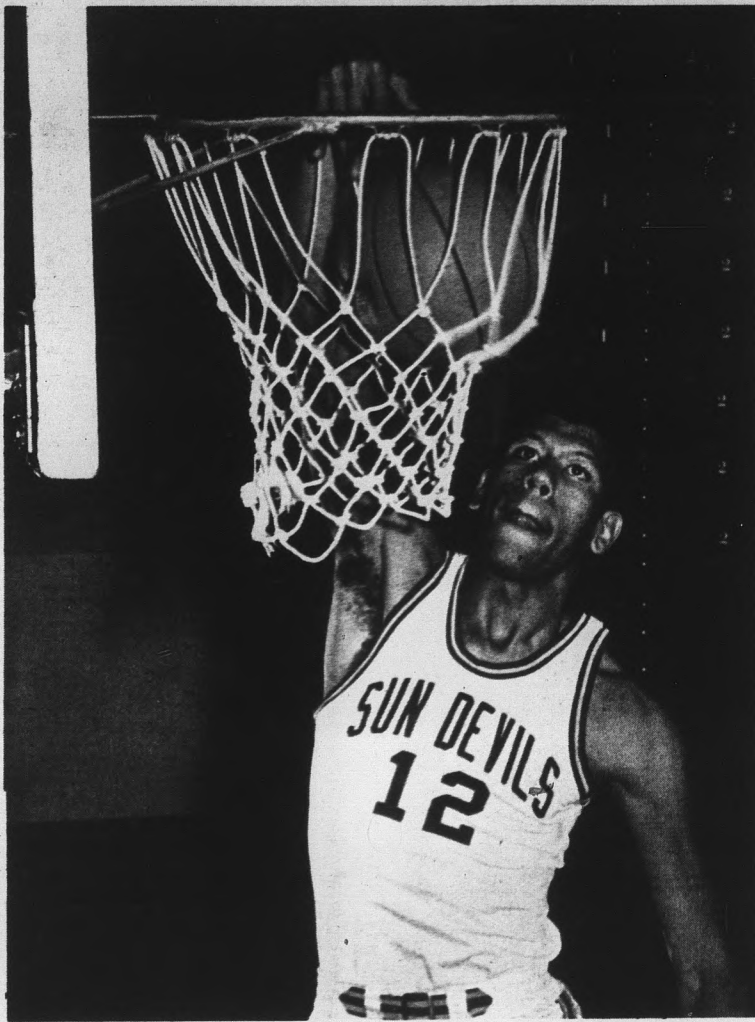

Tickets can be purchased at the Ticket Office or at the Veterans Memorial Coliseum in Phoenix at prices from one to four dollars.

Issues and Answers

Why Not a Mat Match Pitting Culp vs. Tribble?

Sports Editor's Note: Students and faculty are invited to send in questions addressed to the Sports Desk to be answered by the Athletic Director, his staff or the coaching staff. This week's questions are answered by Clyde Smith, athletic director.

QUESTION: Why has there never been an exhibition wrestling match between Curley Culp and Charley Tribble?

SMITH: Both Charley Tribble and Curley Culp have represented Arizona State University with honor in conference and national competition. Both of them are fine men and wrestlers. They are also fine friends.

One has completed his eligibility, the other has one year remaining. Why does it become necessary that one prove his superiority over the other to satisfy a third party?

Neither has indicated a desire to engage himself in an exhibition match. Both mutually respect the ability of the other. Why not let it rest there?

QUESTION: How do certain Phoenix College football stars escape the clutches of our University?

SMITH: This is very simple. A student attending any university has freedom of choice.

A high percentage of student athletes select a university because it has the program of study they wish to pursue. We are interested in Phoenix College or any Arizona high school student athletes who would like to attend ASU and pursue a degree and participate in our athletic program.

Devil Archers Nail Four New Records

Four archery records were broken by Sun Devil archers in last week's Intercollegiate Winter Tournament.

The women's team, consisting of Kirstie Kaiser, Cris Bauer, Susan Shiner and Sue Cheshire, shot a composite score of 2340, breaking last year's record of 2323.

The mixed team of Kirstie Kaiser, Bob Taliaferro, Cris Bauer and Sue Cheshire shot a total score of 2400, which topped last year's record of 2302.

Both Miss Kaiser and Taliaferro set new individual records of 620 and 624 respectively.

WHITE CHRISTMAS — Sun Devil slope-slickers head for the abundant "white stuff" in Arizona, Colorado and Utah during Christmas holidays.

Storm Plays Santa For Skiing Buffs

Skiers, unlike mailmen and snow plow drivers, welcomed recent snowstorms.

The Western states were dusted with sufficient amounts of snow to provide an enjoyable holiday for the schussers.

Currently, Flagstaff's Snow Bowl has at least 60 inches with snow still falling. McNary's Big Cienega has 48 inches with a 20-inch base, while the Williams ski area has 60 inches.

The Snow Bowl has been closed due to lack of a drivable road and a parking lot, but it is hoped the facility will be open by Saturday or Sunday.

The Phoenix Optimist Club is chartering buses to the ski areas. Anyone interested should contact either the Purple Ski in Phoenix or the Ski Haus in Tempe.
