Liberal Arts Amplifies Course-Drop Policy

By ED TAYLOR

The College of Liberal Arts has amplified its policy on dropping courses after six weeks.

The major point of the document written by Dr. E. B. Z. Kaminsky, associate professor of political science, is that the procedure for dropping a class after six weeks as stated in the University catalogue will be strictly enforced.

The catalogue states that a student wishing to drop a liberal arts course after six weeks must receive permission from Dr. George A. Peek, dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

Dr. Kaminsky listed several cases in which the dean would grant his approval to a drop after six weeks. Examples were a student who is taking a physical activity class and becomes ill or a student who makes a mistake in registration which can only be corrected by a drop.

If the student cannot obtain the dean's approval, Dr. Kaminsky named two alternate courses that are available. The student may either withdraw from the university or obtain a grade of incomplete from the instructor of the course.

Memorial Today Cancels Classes

President G. Homer Durham has announced that a special convocation in honor of Martin Luther King will be held in Gammage Auditorium at 11:30 a.m. today.

Dr. King, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964, was assassinated last Thursday in Memphis.

All classes are requested to adjourn at 11:15 a.m. to permit all students to attend the convocation.

President Durham, AS President Bill Perkins, Arnold Tilden, professor of history, and law professor John Morris will address the gathering.

Campus Mourns King Death

Memphis Gloom Clouds Sunshine

By BOB PETTY

The sun was shining brightly but the atmosphere was clouded with gloom Friday as a long line of University students and teachers mourned the death of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

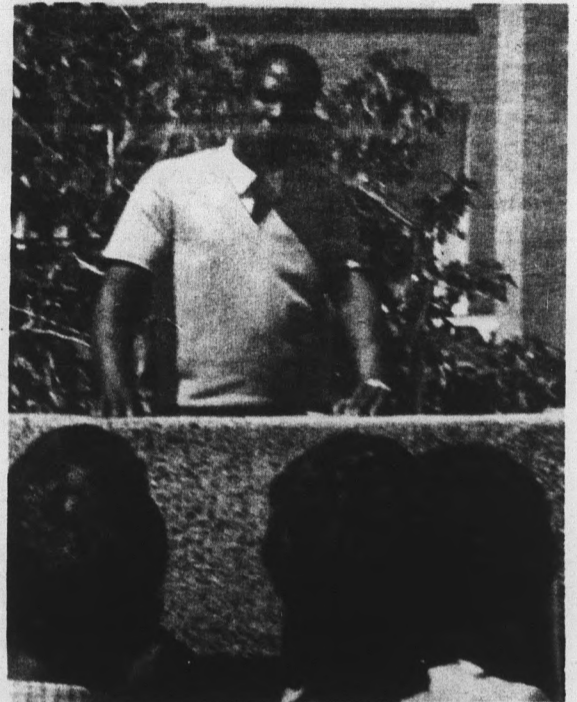

The line of black and white faces stood silently in front of Hayden Library wearing black arm bands of mourning.

Dr. John Morris of the College of Law delivered a eulogy from the speech Dr. King made after his march on Washington in 1963.

The speech, entitled "I Have A Dream," told of Dr. King's dream for America: "I have a dream of freedom's bell ringing all over America . . . I have a dream of little black children and little white children walking hand in hand," the speech said.

Rev. Robert Nesby, Pastor of First Institutional Baptist Church, led the mourners in prayer. He prayed, "May the dreams of Dr. King come true."

"The killing of Dr. King was not the act of one man but an act of American society," said Dr. Morris Starsky of the philosophy department as he collected donations to be sent to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the organization Dr. King founded.

SIDEWALK SERMON—Rev. Robert Nesby, pastor of the First Institutional Baptist Church of Phoenix, called on middle-class America, both black and white, to challenge the American press to print what is true as he spoke during a peaceful demonstration on campus yesterday. Rev. Nesby charged newspaper editors with printing what middle-class America wants to hear rather than telling things as they are. About 30 students participated in the march across campus in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King.

Delta Delta Delta Takes Trophy

Greek Sing Ends Week's Activities

By GAIL WALSH

The annual Greek Week celebration came to a close with the 1968 Greek Sing in Gammage Auditorium Saturday night.

A crowd of 2,000 listened as 16 groups sang in competition for the sweepstakes trophy.

THE GROUPS were judged on their musical performance and appearance.

Delta Delta Delta sorority, singing a medley of songs from the Broadway show "Wildcat," won the sweepstakes trophy for the third straight year.

Wearing pastel striped cotton shifts and led by Linda Vogel, the Tri Delts sang "Hey, Look Me Over," "Tall Hope," "You've Come Home" and "What Takes My Fancy."

THE ALPHA DELTA Pi's and the Gamma Phi Beta's placed first and second in the women's division.

In the mixed group category, Chi Omega and Sigma Nu were first, Kappa Kappa Gamma and Phi Delta Theta second and Pi Beta Phi and Kappa Sigma third.

The men of Sigma Chi, Phi Sigma Kappa and Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternities placed first, second, and third in the men's division.

AS A SPECIAL treat the fraternity house mothers, wearing long gowns, overly-flowered hats and mink stoles, pantomimed to a record of "Take Back Your Mink" from "Guys and Dolls."

The Phoenix Hemophilia Foundation received $2,090 worth of blood donated by the Greeks during the week as a philanthropic project.

Sigma Nu fraternity was awarded trophies for having the best spirit throughout Greek Week, the best decorated chariot in the Greek Games chariot race and the best decorated house for progressive parties.

PHI SIGMA KAPPA, Kappa Alpha Theta and Lambda Chi Alpha received the team trophy for having the most overall points in Greek Game competition.

Alpha Tau Omega, Alpha Delta Pi and Phi Kappa Psi came in a close second with only one point less.

The Greek Week Steering Committee presented a special award to its chairman, Tom Ebzery, for his work on the project.

Arkesis, the sorority honorary, tapped 17 new members, and Archons, the fraternity honorary, tapped five men.

Speaker Predicts Trouble in Panama

By RICHARD SHANNON

Harold K. Milks, Latin American Affairs editor for the Arizona Republic, believes that the impatience of former Panamanian President Arias will lead to violence, bloodshed and embarrassment to the United States. Milks spoke to University students yesterday following a recent month-long tour of Latin America.

Milks said that Arias was to blame for the impeachment proceedings against incumbent President Robles, and called the action a "successful move to stir up trouble."

Nurse Joins Group For Health Grants

Dean Loretta Hanner of the College of Nursing has received an appointment to the Project Grants Review Committee of the Public Health Service Nurse Training Act.

Dean Hanner received a letter March 11 informing her of the appointment. She was in Washington D.C. last week for orientation.

The committee has nine members representing different types of education programs in nursing. It acts as a technical review board for applications requesting federal funds for projects designed to strengthen, improve or expand programs to teach and train members, said Mrs. Mary C. Yarnell, administrative assistant of the College of Nursing. It meets in February, May and October each year for a one or two-day session. Dean Hanner will be serving on the committee from April 1, 1968 to March 31, 1971.

STATE PRESS is published by Arizona State University as the official campus newspaper every Tuesday through Friday during the school year, except holidays and examination periods, and is entered as second class matter at Tempe, Arizona, 85281.

"The political flare-up," Milks said, "has delayed action which would give the Central American country the right to operate the Panama Canal."

The veteran correspondent noted that the man-on-the-street is only concerned now with the internal political issues and gives little thought to the canal treaty.

Although Milks was amazed by the lack of "Yankee Go Home" and anti-war demonstrations, he was disappointed by the lack of recognition by existing Latin American governments to the "plight of the little man who works hard, lives in misery, and has little hope of educating his children."

Milks said that most of the countries in Latin and South America are stable politically, and that they are trying to build the economy of their countries.

Upward Bound 'Benefit' for Coed

Program Encourages Students to Attend College

Anyone that says programs like Upward Bound are a waste of the taxpayers' money have no idea how wrong they are, says Betty Houston, a graduate of the Upward Bound program and now a second semester freshman.

She agrees with Dr. Richard Wootton, program director, that Upward Bound is a motivating force to encourage high school students to attend college.

MISS HOUSTON was a member of the program for two years, while a student at Phoenix Union High School.

"Because the students attend classes on the University campus and study in a college atmosphere, I think this is one way the program is helpful," she said.

"Many of the students are attracted to the program because during the summer they have the opportunity to live on the University campus and attend classes every day," Miss Houston said.

"FOR MANY OF THE students living on campus during the summer it's their first time away from home and it is a really big deal," she said.

"No one can truthfully say that all of the students will benefit from the program or that all of the students appreciate the program but to those who benefit from it or appreciate it, Upward Bound has done its job," she said. If any student benefits from the program then it's a worthwhile program, Miss Houston said.

Film to Depict Society's Decay

"The Detached American," a movie sponsored by Irish Hall, will be shown at 8 tonight in the M.O. Best C Lobby.

A discussion following the movie by Dr. Peter Garabedian, associate professor of sociology, will investigate some of the causes of the decay in American society and methods for stopping it.

Bern To Speak On Genetics

Dr. Howard A. Bern, professor of zoology at the Cancer Research Genetics Laboratory at the University of California at Berkeley, will discuss "Pro-lactin Physiology and the Evolution of a Vertebrate Hormone" at 4 p.m. today in LSC 163. Students are invited.

dent of the Department of Audiovisual Instruction (DAVI) of the National Education Association.

Vergis is presently serving as a visiting professor at the University of Southern California where he is conducting two Offices of Education media institutes designed to acquaint college professors with audiovisual techniques.

In his speech to the DAVI convention in Houston, Vergis said, "Machines do not make independent decisions — not yet — people do. Machines can be programmed to aid our thinking process but they do not feel, laugh, cry."

Vergis stated that audiovisual educators are faced with such problems as power explosions, the disadvantaged, the technological backlash and the need for development and recognition of the whole man.

Rational Reaction

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., had a dream . . . that the black and white peoples of America could live together in equality — and in peace.

Dr. King will be buried this morning in Atlanta, Ga. . . . victim of the insensate savagery he preached against.

BUT EVEN WHILE Dr. King's body is being lowered into the grave, mindless mobs of the irresponsible are turning his dream still further into a nightmare, burning and looting in several of the nation's largest cities.

What a way to show respect for a man of peace! What a way to honor his memory . . . to ignore his staunch philosophy, "I'm not going to use violence, no matter what," and follow the insane goadings of the Stokeley Carmichaels and the Rap Browns: "Get Whitey! Get a gun!" . . . to use the violent death of a man of peace as a reason for more violence.

What a paradox.

Yet, in the midst of so much hypocrisy and attempted anarchy, it is encouraging to see the rational reaction of students at this University to the events of the last few days.

NEGROES and whites, together, joined in a memorial service Friday on the Mall in front of Danforth Chapel. Yesterday, students and professors walked across the Mall together, singing, "We Shall Overcome." And this morning, members of the University community will pay last respects to Dr. King, together.

Instead of cries for violence, there have been cries of grief and outrage at the death of a leader.

INSTEAD of oaths of hatred between the races, there have been prayers from black and white alike — to the same God — full of hope and greater understanding.

The students and faculty here have set an example that the rest of the nation would do well to follow.

Captain Fenwick's MAILBOX

Since Martin Luther King's career was of particular importance to Negro Americans, it was interesting to hear the most intemperate and stupid comments here on King's assassination come from white students.

At the open forum on the Mall following Friday's memorial service, one left-wing spokesman said the only solution to America's racial problems was for Negroes and whites to help their own people. Separately. As in segregated.

That was bad enough, but he was followed by some conservative-type who preached peace with a vengeance. His words warned against violence, but his harsh tone of voice rightly angered some Negroes in the audience. He sounded as if he was blaming them for the whole thing.

And one giant brain was overheard in class saying that Mississippi and Alabama should be burned off the map. A neat, logical, non-violent solution to every racial problem in America, all right.

Not all the fools in the white race live in Memphis.

Are you Kidding me?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

rotc again

Editor:

Last fall, over 5,000 University students signed a petition which sought to change the status of ROTC from compulsory to voluntary. Bill Oldham, ASASU president-elect, introduced a resolution in the Student Senate which supported the proposed change. The Senate subsequently passed the resolution. The Faculty Senate also passed a resolution urging the Board of Regents to change ROTC from compulsory to voluntary.

We, the students and faculty of ASU, attempted to affirm a value — that of individuality of choice, through voluntary ROTC. Our pleas were pigeon-holed for study. We were denied the actualization of our value.

When a value has been affirmed in the mind and when the situation appears in opposition to it, there are three courses of action which may be followed: 1) the value may be deleted out of cowardice; 2) a compromise situation may be reached; or 3) the intolerable situation may be rejected.

We have been denied. Therefore, we urge all students to reaffirm their values in opposition to current Regent board policy. We urge the student government to reaffirm its pledge and to work with the various organizations which have provided leadership for the mandate of change — the committee to end compulsory ROTC, Young Democrats and Young Republicans. We urge the faculty and graduate students to fill the moral void they have so shamefully created by their present indifference to the situation. We hope for a compromise, but we will not accept cowardice. We demand action.

Gary Eschbacher, John Clark, Bill Fortner

irresponsible behavior

Editor:

One of our most articulate, reasonable, and respected leaders has been killed while working for peace and freedom in the United States. He was working without the military weapons or financial support of his government to gain economic support and aid for a large group of United States citizens, and to move toward the possession of all constitutional rights by all citizens of this country. It was his hope that this could be accomplished by the recognition of injustice by the people of his country and by their subsequent solution of these problems through their personal and collective (governmental) actions.

Our society was unable to give Dr. Martin Luther King the support he needed for his cause, as we were committed to guarantee the freedom of another people in another land. This other cause is not being carried on by Dr. King's principles of non-violence. The cause we are so heavily committed to is costing the nation lives and in excess of 30 billion dollars a year military support. Dr. King's cause could be won with the commitment of good will, without the loss of lives and with a financial commitment of less than half that committed to the present war.

The question is often asked, "What would the other countries think of us if we didn't live up to our commitments, could they place their trust in us?" Is not Dr. King's commitment America's commitment? Are we supporting this commitment with more than a token effort? What would conditions be like in the United States if we pursued Dr. King's cause with the fervor and self-sacrifice that our country affords the Vietnam cause?

Will we solve our internal problems as Dr. King had hoped, non-violently, or can we only respond to violence and more violence with violence?

Our leaders should be notified as to how we wish our problems solved and what priorities we place on them.

Donald W. Johnson

spiritual decadence

Editor:

I feel that a few comments concerning the opinions of Mr. Krupa, regarding the poster sale, are in order.

Mr. Krupa believes that the motive of profit justifies the means of procurement. This is absurd. Just because a club or organization needs money for activities does not give them the right to resort to means which are clearly against the basic human qualities of personal respect and dignity. These are self-evident qualities.

Furthermore, how can these posters and stickers not contribute to the physical or spiritual decadence in America, if they militate blatantly against all our country stands for, belief in God, patriotism and unity, and the dignity of men as individuals?

Joseph P. Gouveia

Davini, Hansen Sparkle As Devils Take Series

By BILL JACKSON
Sports Editor

Ron (The Pigpen) Davini and Ken Hansen gave the New Mexico Lobos a lesson in baseball Friday and Saturday as they and their Sun Devil teammates downed the visitors three times, 3-2, 3-2, and 4-1.

Davini looked more like the Davini Sun Devil fans remembered from last year, including the gathering of dirt on his uniform that earned him his nickname last season.

And Hansen, the freshman from Maryvale, proved to everybody that he is ready for the big time by tossing a one-hitter against the Lobos Saturday night.

In the first game on Friday, Davini drove in two of the three Devil runs with a single and cut off two Lobo scoring threats at the plate with tags that left no doubt in anyone's mind.

In all three games, the old Davini hustle was evident, as he ran full-speed-ahead on every play and on and off the field between innings.

In the second game Saturday afternoon, Davini came through in the clutch, driving in the winning run with a single in the 11th inning.

The Devils had blown a two run lead in the ninth inning on a throwing error by Lenny Randle, allowing the Lobos to tie the game and force extra innings.

Davini had put the Devils ahead in the seventh inning with a solo homerun over the left field fence. The Devils added another run in the eighth.

Jeff Pentland took the first game, going the distance for his fourth win of the season. He got into trouble right at the start, loading the bases in the first inning with one out. A line drive to Fred Nelson, who doubled the man at second, ended the threat. The Lobos picked up their two runs in the fifth inning on three hits.

Larry Gura pitched nine innings of Saturday's first game, being lifted in the ninth for a pinch hitter. He allowed only five hits and had struck out 12 during his stint on the mound.

Joe Arnold, who took over for Gura in the tenth, picked up his sixth win of the season against one loss.

Hansen, in picking up his fourth win of the season, struck out 15 and walked two on the way to his one-hitter.

The lanky Hansen should add the needed punch to the Devils' pitching staff with Lerrin LaGrow still out indefinitely with a sore arm.

"If I had to face Arizona tomorrow," said head coach Bobby Winkles, "Kenny would pitch the third game. He's earned a spot in the pitching rotation."

SAFE — Paul Ray Powell slides safely back into first base in Friday night's game. The Devils upped their record to 23-3 and 3-0 in WAC play.

Devil Trackmen Suffer Loss

After beating the University of Colorado Thursday night the Sun Devil track team had a pretty hard time of it against San Jose State and Brigham Young.

The Devils lost to the Spartans 93-52 and to the Cougars 75-69.

The entire event, which will rank among the finest in the 1968 track and field season, featured two double winners for the Devils: Jerry Bright and Isiah Oakes.

Bright who ran his fastest 100 of the year was timed at 9.4 and nudged San Jose's Lee Evans in the 220, although both clocked 20.9.

Oakes mentioned earlier this year that one of his goals was to put the shot 60 feet. It doesn't look like he has too far to go.

Oakes put the Devils in front early with a heave of 59-4½ in the shot put and a 175-2 toss in the discus.

San Jose's Ray Gamez took the lead in the second lap of the two mile run before Sun Devil Jerry Jobski made his move. Jobski overtook Gamez in the last 110 yards to win with a time of 8:52.9.

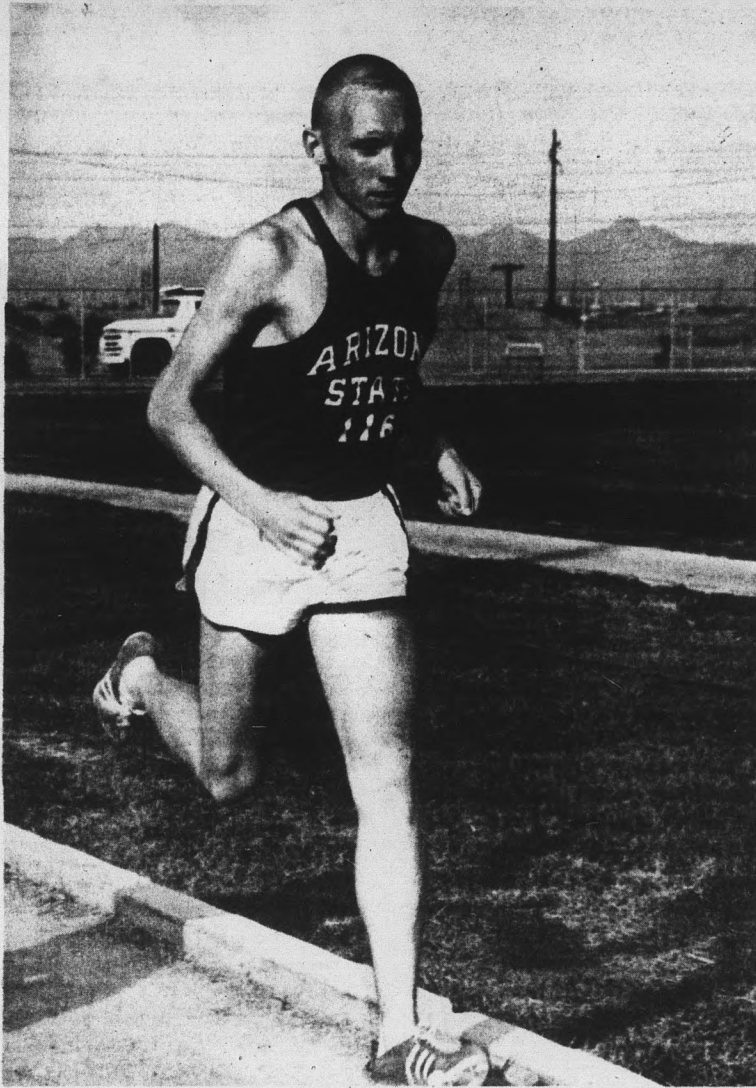

Another first place for the Devils came from Fair Hooker who won the 120 high hurdles with a time of 14.3.

One of many highlights of the night came in the mile relay. Ron Freeman ran against Lee Evans in the final lap and just missed catching him in trying to make up for an eight yard deficit.

Freeman's quarter - mile lap was timed in 45.6, but the Spartans won the relay with a time of 3:10.2, and the Devils came in second with a close 3:10.3.

Other highlights of the meet were a pole vault of 16-11 by Altii Alarotu of BYU, a seven-foot high jump by BYU's Ed Hanks and a 1:49.8 half - mile by Stan Bergeson also of BYU.

The Devils next home meet will be Saturday against Utah and NAU, beginning at 7:30 on Joe Selleh Field.

Old Bell's History Long With Service

By JOHN KEETER

The bell in the small church at the corner of University Drive and College Avenue rings every day even though the church has no pews and no one comes to worship there.

Father Thomas A. Walsh, director of the Newman Catholic Student Center, said he rings the bell for Mass, which is held in the new church at the Newman Center.

THE OLD CHURCH isn't really a church anymore, he said, but a storehouse for old floats, psychedelic posters and other remnants of the students' activities at the center and the University.

Father Walsh explained that because the church can accommodate only 200 people it was abandoned for the new facilities at the Newman Center in 1964. The pews were given to a church in Phoenix.

The wooden - spired church, in addition to serving as a storehouse, also houses students in the basement who sacrificed luxuries for proximity to the campus.

THE SMALL WOODEN addition behind the church is usually occupied by artists searching for atmosphere in which to create or foreign students searching for a place to prepare posters and displays for student events.

Twice each day, while the students are in classes and the artists are painting in the back room, Father Walsh rings the half-ton bell.

He said that although students know when Mass begins each day, the sound of a hand-pulled bell is a reminder. Father Walsh added that it also gives all students a chance to hear a "real" bell, one that is rung by hand and not controlled electronically.

UNLIKE THE University's bells, the old bell has never been the target for complaints or criticism. However, to keep the record spotless, Father Walsh decided not to ring the bell at the 6:40 a.m. Mass.

Each day children stand in front of the weathered wooden doors hoping Father Walsh will let one of them pull the long rope that rings the bell high overhead.

When a small child pulls the rope, the momentum of the bell lifts the rope four feet up the wall with the child desperately hanging on. Father Walsh said that they can let go of the rope before it lifts them off the steps but few ever do.

LIKE CHILDREN, each bell is given a unique name when it is cast. The name is always on the bell in raised letters along with the date of its casting and the name of the company that poured it.

But he added that he had never in his four years as director of the Newman Center been up the rickety ladders into the belfry to find out the name of the bell.

Occasionally the 67-year-old bell will slip from its track after a hard pull or begin to squeal from lack of oil. Students then must climb to the belfry, oil and grease the bell and set it back on its track before the next Mass.

It's a difficult job when the wind rushes between the louver boards and one must work on a two-foot ledge with the floor 20 feet below.

FATHER WALSH said the church, which is also 67 years old, will eventually be replaced with a new church capable of handling the growing University population.

What about the bell? It will remain. When the time comes, it will be installed in the new church — rope and all.
