McCarthy 'Nice Guy' —

Image Could Hurt Chances

By TERRY ROSS

The one criticism that could hurt Sen. Eugene McCarthy's presidential hopes is that he is "too nice a guy," according to Dr. Bruce Mason.

Mason, professor of political science, speaks from his vantage point as campaign chairman for McCarthy in Arizona. He made this comment and others during a momentary rest after McCarthy's visit here over the weekend.

McCarthy's difficulty is the opposite of that Sen. Robert Kennedy encountered, Mason told a State Press reporter. Sen. Kennedy had gained a reputation for being ruthless during his early political career.

"You never hear any basic criticism of McCarthy as a person," Mason added. "Some just think maybe he couldn't win because maybe he's too nice a guy."

Commenting on McCarthy's delegate-hunting activities at the Democratic conference here over the weekend, Mason said he didn't know of a single Kennedy delegate that had definitely gone to Vice President Hubert Humphrey, but some had already switched to McCarthy.

IN ARIZONA at least, he did not think it would be true that much of Kennedy's support would follow the Humphrey campaign banner.

McCarthy's main difficulty at the national convention, according to Mason, will be overcoming the "unit rule." Under the unit rule the delegation votes as a bloc, with the majority imposing its will on those who might wish to support another candidate.

"The Humphrey people are trying to achieve this unit rule in state delegations right now," Mason said.

Mason said the McCarthy campaign in Arizona is growing, and a new campaign center will be opened soon at 1019 N. Central. The old headquarters at 407 Mill here in Tempe, he added, will have regular meetings every Monday evening at 8.

Temperatures On the Rise— So Are Registration Totals

Registration totals for the first semester of summer school, although incomplete, have already topped last year's by a considerable margin, according to University Registrar and Director of Admissions Alfred Thomas Jr.

As of late afternoon Tuesday 10,497 were enrolled at the University, compared with a total figure of 10,101 last year.

THOMAS indicated registration was still incomplete for eight workshops and institutes and estimated at least 300 more students would register by the end of this week.

Although pre-registration was used by over 4,000 registrants, Thomas said it was unfortunate more didn't take advantage of the computerized service in view of all the mall construction.

The registrar said 5,221 students requested to be prescheduled, the highest figure yet attained. Of those, some 1,161 did not return their materials by deadline.

OF THOSE remaining, only 37 applications were improperly filled out or the classes requested were canceled. Thomas said an additional 188 students received partial schedules.

Even higher percentage-wise than the regular-session registration was pre-session. This year 706 students signed up, as against last year's 431.

Registrar Thomas said there will be no pre-registration for the second session as such, but registration materials will be available the last week of first session.

Registration for second session is expected to be two-thirds that of first session, Thomas said.

'Emerging Africa' Topic Of MU Lecture-Luncheon

"Emerging Africa — From Exploration to Independence" will be the topic today at the first in a series of five lecture-luncheons sponsored by the MU.

The guest lecturer, who will speak and show slides, is Dr. Peter Duignan, director of African Studies at the Hoover Institution, Stanford University.

RECIPIENT of a Ford Foundation fellowship in 1957, Dr. Duignan spent two years in Africa and has visited there since in search of materials.

A buffet luncheon will be served from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m. in the MU ballroom, followed immediately by the lecture which is scheduled to conclude at 1:30 p.m.

TICKETS MAY be purchased by students, faculty and the public for $1.25 until 11:00 a.m. today at the MU Information Desk.

On June 27, Dr. Carleton Moore, director of the University's Center for Meteorite Studies, will present a motion picture and discuss "Meteorites—Messengers from Time and Space."

A special preview of Lyric Opera Theatre's summer musical, "Stop the World, I want to Get Off," directed by Mary Robert, is scheduled July 11.

A Duke University associate professor of history, Dr. Donald Gillin, will speak July 25 on "The American Image of China," and show slides of his recent trip to Taiwan.

The concluding program, Aug. 1, will feature a "down-to-earth" folk concert, presented by Valley folk musicians.

Advanced reservations are requested for these four programs and may be made by calling the MU Information Desk, 3406, at least two days prior to the event.

Group Alleges University Is Biased

Administrator Cady Brands Charge Ludicrous

By LARRY ROSS

A charge that the University encourages liberal campus speakers over conservatives was called ludicrous by a University administrator Tuesday.

Gilbert L. Cady, vice president for business affairs, said that he and others in the administration were now in the process of preparing for a meeting with the Board of Regents July 5 on the matter.

"WE'RE TRYING to develop some facts in the case," he said of their progress, "but what's a conservative? I don't know what a conservative is; everybody has a different definition."

A coalition of self-styled conservative groups calling themselves the "Conference of Concerned Citizens" alleges that the University supports "subversive activities" through the encouragement of liberal speakers over conservatives. Gov. Williams asked the Board of Regents to investigate the allegation.

At the July 5 meeting, Cady said, a 52-page list of speakers for the past year will be presented to the board members, but there will be no attempt to place them in the political camps.

"I'M NOT going to classify them, and I'm in no position to classify them as liberal or conservatives," explained Cady, who has been handling the problem while University President Durham was out of town.

The administrator also said to his knowledge there had been no direct contact with the group that brought the charge.

The established University policy, Cady said, requires that a speaker be sponsored by a group with a faculty adviser.

He indicated that the administration is responsible for only four speakers — commencement, baccalaureate, honors day and charter day — and other speakers are brought to campus by groups without direct University administration involvement.

Choir Slated For Gammage

The opening of summer season events on campus will be marked by the appearance of the Chattanooga Boys Choir at 8 p.m., June 24 in Gammage Auditorium.

The choir was founded in 1954 to foster a love and appreciation for good music in boys, and to provide outstanding entertainment for churches, civic organizations, schools and universities.

The 40 vocalists, ranging in age from nine to 14, have performed at international conventions — Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions — at the 1964 World's Fair and on radio and television.

Stephen J. Ortlip, the director, has designed a broad repertoire, with works by Bach, Beethoven, Purcell, Britten and others.

Admission for students, faculty and the public is $1.

Other scheduled summer events:

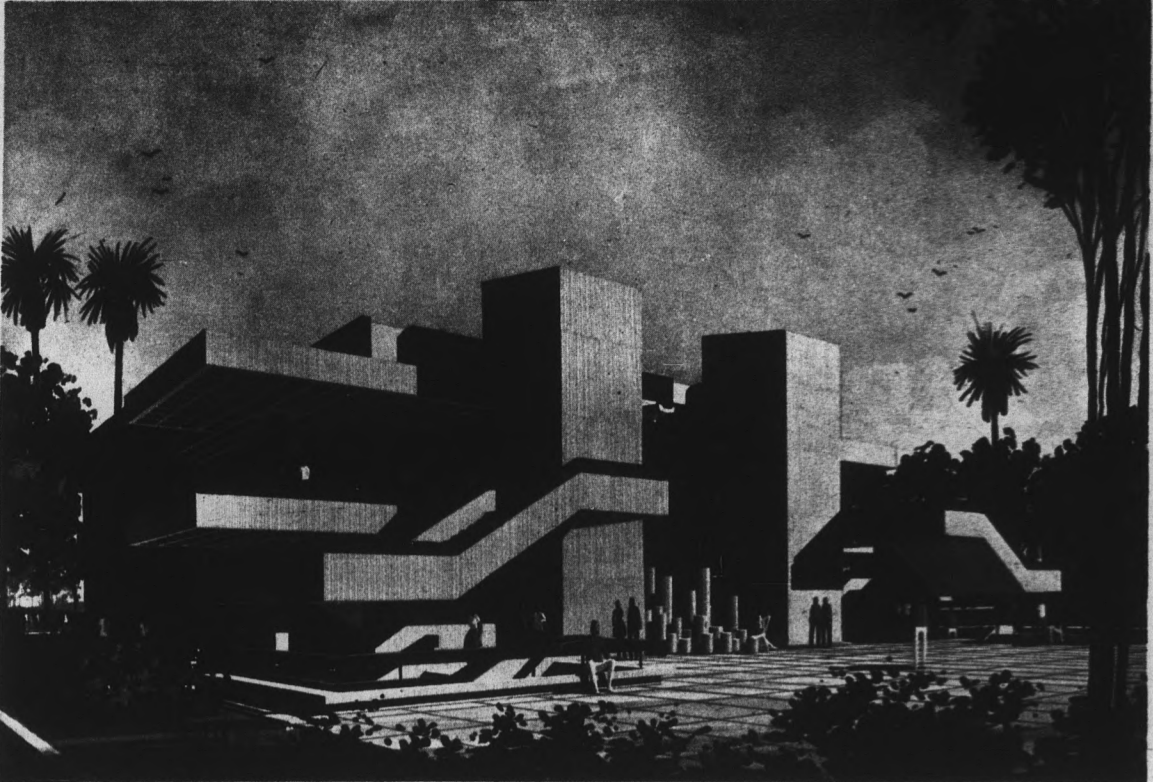

—A RECITAL by former Metropolitan Opera soprano, Christina Carroll at 8 p.m., July 1 at Gammage Auditorium. Miss Carroll, an associate professor of music, joined the faculty in 1966.

—JULY 13, final day of the annual Arizona All-State High School Fine Arts Camp (June 30-July 13).

Parents, friends, scholarship donors and the public are invited to special programs throughout the day.

These include art exhibits at the Arts Bldg., a drama demonstration at the Lyceum Theatre and a program of dance in WPE.

Afternoon and evening events at Gammage Auditorium will feature bands, orchestras and choirs. At 8 p.m. Meli Mehta, conductor and violinist of Bombay, India will direct the symphony orchestra.

TENNIS TO TRACTORS — Tennis players will have to look elsewhere for courts next fall as construction begins on this 20,598-square-foot lecture hall building. Located north of the Men's Physical Education Building and west of the Engineering Science Center, the structure is designed to permit entrance and exit of 2,000 students during the crucial 10-minutes between classes. Designed by Donald B. Schwenn, Phoenix architect, the building will include two 500-seat lecture halls, one on each floor.

Mike Byron Works in Prison

Convicts—They're Just Men

By PAM SEBASTIAN

Prison inmates aren't all grinningly blasé Cool Hand Lukes, lonely, intellectual Birdmen of Alcatraz or thoroughly tough Dillingers — they're just men.

"They're people you might have gone to school with," said Mike Byron, MU program director and actor in "The Riot."

THE MOVIE, adapted from a book written by a former inmate, was filmed entirely in the state penitentiary at Florence employing 56 of 300 volunteer actor-inmates.

Byron plays the prison psychologist held as a pawn by the riot leader, played by former football player, Jim Brown.

At first Byron felt comfortable inside prison walls. But that ease was often shattered by a glimpse of an armed guard patrolling a wall, or a click of the unforgettable lock.

"I DON'T know how to explain it," he said, "I felt bad knowing I could get out."

Byron quickly shed his preconceived notions about the inmates. They were willing to accept him if he would accept them. How is that done?

"You just go in there and you just be," he said. "You just are, and pretty soon you realize 'They're people — I'm people' and that's all they want — you to be yourself — and don't try to put them on."

BYRON HOPED the movie, to be released this fall, will give "more realization to the public that it has much more in common than different with inmates."

Byron also realized that the prisoner's problems don't dissolve into the free air once he is released.

"I'm no penologist," he said, "but I know he wants the opportunity to work and quit being bothered."

MOST important, perhaps, was the effect the project had on prisoners' attitudes.

Said one inmate, "I didn't believe that people on the outside gave a damn about an ex-con."

Error in Calendar Affects Swimmers

Contrary to the schedule printed in the MU's summer calendar the swimming pool is closed at all times to guests of students, faculty and staff.

Members of the faculty and staff may purchase a $5 swimming ticket which will cover their immediate family for the entire summer but guests cannot be admitted under this ticket, according to pool supervisor Marvin Grier.

STUDENTS desiring to participate in recreational swimming must purchase a swimming ticket for $2 per session. This ticket can be used only by the student. Other members of the student's immediate family over age 12 also must purchase a $2 ticket.

At no time will anyone be admitted with an unauthorized card and any such attempt will cause the owner of the ticket to lose his privileges.

The pool hours remain the same as printed in the summer calendar for faculty, staff and students.

GRIER ALSO said that swimmers must bring their swimming cards each time they intend to swim. Too many people, he said, will be using the pool and it is impossible to keep track of who has a ticket and who doesn't.

The pool hours are from 9:30 to 11:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. daily for students, faculty, staff and their families. One o'clock to 4 p.m. is restricted to just students, faculty and staff.

Saturday hours are from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. for students, faculty, staff and their families. The pool is closed on Sundays.

Cinema Stars Peter O'Toole

Richard Brook's film adaptation of Joseph Conrad's "Lord Jim" will be shown in the MU Arts Lounge tomorrow at 1:00, 3:45 and 6:30 p.m.

Filmed in the Far East, it is the story of a young idealistic ship's officer, played by Peter O'Toole, who commits an act of cowardice which results in his dismissal and disgrace.

His struggle to atone for the act is set in the Malay Archipelago at the turn of the century.

The technicolor production is 154 minutes long, and co-stars James Mason, Curt Jurgens, Eli Wallach, Jack Hawkins, and Paul Lucas.

Students, faculty, staff and their guests may pick up free admission tickets for each showing at the MU Information desk.

Fred Nelson

Nelson Now Holds All-American Title

Sun Devil second baseman Freddie Nelson was selected to the first string of the 1968 All-American baseball team, becoming the seventh in the school's history to do so.

Among his more notable efforts last season were his team-leading .351 batting average and his 14 stolen bases. Nelson joins Sterling, Slaughter, Rick Monday, Luis Lagunas, Reggie Jackson, Scott Reid and Gary Gentry on the Sun Devil list of All-America baseball players.

Bridge Classes Sign-up Deadline Scheduled Today

Registration deadline for all those interested in entering the Memorial Union's bridge program is at 2 p.m. today.

Open to both levels of beginning and review bridge players, each session will run for two hours. The first of the eight lessons is scheduled for 2 p.m. today in rooms 209 and 210 of the MU.

Those who haven't done so may sign up at the MU Information desk. At least 16 applicants are needed to form the classes and that number still has not been reached, according to Mike Byron, MU programmer.

Mrs. Mildred Buck, professional bridge teacher, will conduct the lessons. A ten-dollar fee is required for the course.

Contracts Signed

Two members of the 1968 Sun Devil baseball team have been drafted by professional teams.

Slugging third baseman Dave Grangaard and pitcher Joe Arnold have both been drafted by the Houston Astros of the National Baseball League.
