

Starsky lectures in San Diego

By RANDY D. BAILEY
Campus Editor

Controversial former University professor Dr. Morris Starsky is alive and doing well as a visiting lecturer at San Diego State College, the State Press learned yesterday. Dr. Starsky, who had served with the philosophy department for seven years, was issued a "terminal sabbatical leave at reduced pay" this summer by the Board of Regents.

The action came after the Academic Freedom and Tenure Committee, which conducted a three-and-a-half-week hearing, had recommended that charges against the professor be dropped. Starsky was accused of dismissing classes to attend a political rally at the UofA.

The "terminal sabbatical" allows Dr. Starsky to receive one year's reduced salary, then his contract with the University is severed.

In a phone interview yesterday, Dr. Starsky said that it was "nice to be away from ASU, away from the public view."

He said that since his visiting lectureship in San Diego will end in May, he is still searching for another permanent position.

Dr. Starsky expressed fears that an attempt might be made to jeopardize his position at San Diego State by informing that administration of his past political activities at ASU.

The philosophy professor claimed last year to be a "communist with a small 'c'" and was active with the Young Socialist Alliance.

"ASU is a fishbowl to the Arizona Legislature," he added. "The political control of the University is extremely direct since the legislature is located in Phoenix."

He said he didn't like the way he was "driven out of the University." The final decision concerning his tenure, he claimed, would be settled in a federal court suit he has filed through his attorney, Alan Kyman.

Kyman, who represented Dr. Starsky during the tenure hearings, told the State Press yesterday that the suit was filed to force the University to rehire Prof. Starsky, but while the suit is pending he could make no official comment.

Reflecting on the adverse publicity he said he received during the spring hearings, he commented: "It was a tremendous social price to pay for speaking out against the establishment."

Newly-adopted rule lends students limited practice

By CRICKET STILWELL

Third year law students will be given a chance to try out their vocal persuasiveness as newly adopted Rule 28e from the Arizona Supreme Court allows them to limited practice in the courts.

The rule which was adopted June 12 allows qualified students to represent clients in court and prepare necessary legal documents and pleadings under the supervision of a practicing attorney.

According to the College of Law's "Devil's Advocate" newspaper, Attorney General Gary Nelson praised the adoption as a "step forward" and as an effort to establish a legal intern program similar to that utilized by the medical profession.

In order to qualify for the pilot defender program, the students must either be enrolled at the University or at the University's College of Law. He must have completed two years of basic core curriculum in law school and be certified by the dean of the college.

This quadrant, five University students are working 40 hours a week under the supervision of Attorney Jeremy Toles in Phoenix City Court.

Invitation to the court came from Chief Judge Eugene K. Mangum. The Court handles traffic violations and misdemeanors and has no public defender.

The students, Judy Skousen, Richard Gibson, Gary Raemaker, Warren Jarvis and Galen Wilkes are able to counsel on an appointment basis for people who can't afford an attorney.

Students are given limited case loads — they handle approximately 30 cases a month during the two-month program. The cases are relatively manageable.

Professor Arthur LaFrance, of the College of Law, handles the classroom end of the program. He has contact with the interns at all times.

Students on bail

Two University burglary suspects were caught early Tuesday morning, reported Detective Paul Lee of Campus Security.

University students, Timothy E. Fain and Robert C. Swisher, were jailed and charged with first degree burglary.

The two were charged with stealing from an auto at night, which automatically carries a first degree charge.

Swisher and Fain were held on $1,100 bond and arraigned later in the day. The suspects posted bond. Justice of the Peace George Boyd set the preliminary hearing for September 30.

The arrest took place behind the Phi Sigma Kappa house at 609 Alpha Drive. Occupants of the fraternity discovered the pair and detained them until Campus Security arrived.

Phi Sigma Kappa president Scott Dunton declined to identify the fraternity men who captured the suspects.

Speaker policy set by board

Groups utilizing off-campus speakers this year face a new permission procedure recently formulated by the Public Lectures Board.

The series will provide a broad spectrum of ideas and philosophies in all areas of education. Qualified speakers will be invited to participate in the series which is open to students, faculty, the University staff and members of the public.

In concordance with the new policy pertaining to speakers not from the University, all student organizations must be a registered student group.

An officer of that group must then submit a written request to the Student Affairs Committee containing all the necessary data.

For speakers addressing organizations only, the request must be submitted 14 days in advance and will be answered within seven days by the committee.

If the speaker's address is of interest to the school and public, a request must be submitted 30 days in advance and the committee will render a decision within seven days.

The committee may deny a request if it feels that the speaker or his address constitutes a "clear and present danger to the University's operation."

If the committee accepts a request, the sponsoring organization will inform the Office of Student Affairs.

For further information concerning speakers for organizations and the University community, contact Robert W. Chamberlain, assistant dean of Student Affairs. For information concerning off-campus speakers for the University and the public, contact Dr. George Downing, head of the Public Lectures Board.

Devil duo bent

There was a "cast" party at Joe Selleh field yesterday afternoon for two Sun Devil band members.

Vicky Vedder, with the broken arm and Donna Heck with the plastered leg, met Tuesday in a campus parking lot head on, which resulted in the bent limbs.

Vicky and Donna both report that they will be sidelined from Sun Devil marching band half-time shows for most of the season, but they'll be at every game to cheer the band (and team) on.

On the right, Donna watches the Sun Devil band play on — minus two members, at the Selleh Field practice.

Women's Liberation meets Monday

The weekend is sponsored by Campus Crusade for Christ. Students participating will come from the University, UofA, NAU and community colleges throughout Arizona. High school seniors are also invited.

Featured speaker will be Don Orvis, instructor in campus evangelism at Denver Seminary and leader of a collegiate movement there. Orvis received a master's degree from the University and taught in Mesa for three years before entering the ministry.

Workshops will be held for discussing Christianity and ways of sharing one's faith.

In addition there will be music, hiking, skits and other recreational activities.

Cost of the weekend is $7, which includes transportation, food, lodging and insurance. Tickets may be purchased at the booth on the Mall.

Campus Crusade is an interdenominational organization with a staff of 2,200. Most are recent college graduates who are now in 44 nations and on 250 campuses across the country.

Twenty-one staff members are in Arizona.

Activities on campus include an annual banquet, films, suppers, action groups, Bible studies, an annual Christmas party and weekly "College Life" programs.

Psychology 112 course offers different approach

By JOHN BANASZEWSKI
Work with rats and enjoy it. That may sound like a high pressure come-on but Thomas Trimble, course director of psychology 112, feels it's possible due to the uniqueness of the course's set up.

Trimble said in an interview with the State Press yesterday that the course's "basic impetus is to get away from the usual student-teacher relationship and provide more interaction between the student and the professor."

Trimble, a second-year graduate student in experimental psychology, continued "the students run the program and within the structure of the course can progress at their own pace and take tests at chosen intervals."

Testing involves reading required course materials and taking and re-taking assigned tests until the students has scored perfectly on that test, Trimble said.

He continued, a student receives a passed grade on each test before continuing to the next unit and must pass 22 or 23 unit tests to earn an "A". He added that 60 percent of last year's grades were A's.

The course founder was J. G. Sherman who came to the University in 1965 after leaving the University of Brazil in 1962 where he formed his ideas, Trimble said. He added that Sherman's course is based on the Skinnerian technique which resembles the teaching machine in its step by step teaching procedures.

The course's laboratories, Trimble said, involve teaching the animals maze exercises through reinforcement procedures. He added, "Ours is the only program that I know of in the nation which operates as effectively as this one does."

Trimble continued, "We are trying to approach from a practical application rather than a mere identification or memorization side." He added that the 300 students enrolled in the four-semester hour course "are enjoying it but they must simply work."

MU activities divisions plan dinner series, art

The Memorial Union has six new activities divisions ranging from arts and entertainment to political issues and special events, and all are open to University students.

The arts and display division will sponsor art exhibits, displays and demonstrations, with an emphasis on utilizing campus as well as outside art resource material.

The entertainment division is responsible for the MU film series, the development of a "coffee house" program and live concerts and demonstrations.

Developing presentations relevant to contemporary world, national, local and campus issues is the function of the ideas and issues division.

This division is also responsible for scheduling nationally prominent speakers in a MU dinner series.

MU hostesses, composed of freshman and sophomore women, will be working in the hospitality division serving as MU guides and information sources at the main desk.

Special events and holidays will be supervised by the special events division. They sponsor holiday parties and MU participation in all-university events.

The circulation division will be working primarily in public relations to make students and faculty aware of MU activities.

Applications for all of these activities divisions are available in the MU front porch.

MU film festival to open with 'The April Fools'

The Memorial Union film festival this semester will give University students an array of film "greats."

Friday night at 8 p.m. Jack Lemmon and Catherine Deneuve will star in "The April Fools", a hilarious comedy about two people in love who discover themselves and manage to look within and beyond their own world.

There is a 50 cent admission charge for tickets to this Friday's showing. Tickets are available to students with current identification cards in the MU games room each Monday morning until show time.

All film festival events will be shown in the Art and Architecture Auditorium each Friday at 8 p.m. Tickets will not be sold at the door.

Other features are: "A Shot in the Dark" on Oct. 2; "In Cold Blood," Oct. 9; "The Family Way" on Oct. 16; "Planet of the Apes," Oct. 23 and a Halloween triple feature with "Study in Terror", "Vampire Bat" and "Wait Until Dark".

November highlights are "Cat Balou" on the 6th, "Psycho" on the 13th and "Paths of Glory" on the 20th.

Rosemary's Baby" can be viewed Dec. 4, while a Christmas feature is planned for Dec. 11.

On January 8, "Me Natalie" concludes out the festival.

The 50 cent charge does not apply to all the movies. With the raise in the cost of film programming increasing, the entertainment division of the MU found it necessary to attach a small charge to a portion of the movies.

Fearon: Arizona economy in upswing

Arizona's economy is showing signs of life, according to Dr. Harold Fearon, professor of management.

"After a 6-month general economic slowdown and a lackluster summer, it now appears business activity has stabilized and perhaps even turned the corner," Dr. Fearon said. "New orders received, production, and employment indicators are on the upswing for the first time in months."

The economist also is encouraged by the decline in the price increase rate.

"Although prices paid for major purchase items still continue in an upward trend, there is some evidence of a leveling in the rising price pressures," he said.

Dr. Fearon, who conducts a monthly economic survey for the Purchasing Management Association of Arizona, noted that the upturn shown at the end of the summer months is particularly encouraging.

"Admittedly, the basic increases that occurred during the summer are slight, however they may well signal a basic change in the trend of Arizona economy," he explained. "If so, it will mean that the current economic contraction has been quite mild overall."

Specifically, higher employment was reported by 23 per cent of the firms responding to his survey while 20 per cent cut payrolls.

Higher production was reported by 29 per cent of the respondents. New orders received from customers increased slightly with 36 per cent of the firms reporting more new business and 34 per cent recording a decline.

Twenty-seven per cent of the respondents noted higher inventory levels while 39 per cent trimmed inventories.

Delivery time on shipments from vendors continued to stretch out. Normal summer plant slowdowns probably accounted for some of the delay.

Higher prices were reported by 42 per cent of the purchasing managers; 53 per cent saw prices unchanged; 5 per cent paid lower prices.

"Evidently, efforts on a national level to curtail the rate of inflation have been successful to some extent, as shown by the results of this survey and by the national indicators released by the Bureau of Labor Statistics," Dr. Fearon said.

He added that Arizona's economy typically slows down a bit during the hot months, then resumes an upward course in the fall.

"The economic upturn noted at summer's end is particularly encouraging," he said. "Economists will watch the next two months' activity closely to determine if a basic turnaround in the trend has, in fact, occurred."

Enrollment up this semester

Enrollment is up this semester by 1,155 with a total of 26,294 students enrolled in on-campus courses, according to a preliminary report released by Alfred Thomas Jr., registrar and director of admissions.

On-campus enrollment last fall was 25,139, while the total first-semester, 1969-1970 registration, including extension and correspondence students, was 28,111.

The total is 234 more than the 26,060 anticipated for budgetary purposes.

The current on-campus enrollment of 26,294, is almost ten times as great as the total registration of 2,640 in the 1946-1947 school year.

With 'Cat QB's injury

Dickey-Spag duel clouded

By BARNEY HUTCHINSON
Sports Editor

In 1946 Hollywood labored and brought forth a lengthy western movie epic titled "Duel in the Sun."

With modifications in the title to account for the night setting, a remake could be made this Saturday when Joe Spagnola and Arizona State meet Kansas State and a possible showdown with Lynn Dickey.

The issue of the duel is slightly clouded with the rib injury Dickey suffered in a 16-3 loss to Kentucky last weekend. But the threat Dickey embodies will be enough to bring out more than the 43,504 that made the season opener.

Like its old Hollywood counterpart made two years before the birth of Spagnola and Dickey, the upcoming duel has the elements of an all-star cast, a good box office possibility and a chance for national recognition.

But some of the reviews of this remake might be less than rave if Dickey, Kansas State's bonafied candidate for the Heisman Trophy, gives way to backup signal caller Max Arreguin. Arreguin, the Kansas City, Mo. native, actually ran the team in parts of only two games last year as Dickey has dominated quarterback playing time since early in his sophomore season.

If healthy, Dickey will add everything to the QB duel when ASU meets K-State Saturday night at Sun Devil Stadium. The 6-4, 213-pounder holds nine Big Eight passing and two total offense records. All that remains are four more touchdown passes, which will break the late Paul Christman's career touchdown passing mark, and 907 yards total offense.

The All-Big Eight selection ranked sixth in the NCAA passing statistics and seventh in total offense earning national Back-of-the-Week honors after leading his team over Oklahoma.

Dickey has thrown for 22 touchdowns in the past two years and has an impressive completion average (.503 percent) and a quick release that has stirred pro football scouts.

The senior idolizes New York Jet quarterback star Joe Namath and both he and Spagnola have been compared to Namath. The similarities don't end there.

Both wear the number 11. Both quarterback teams picked to win their respective league titles. And both are trying to bring national recognition to their schools.

Spagnola has come off a little less impressively in the passing department but there is a reason. The Arizona State QB has surrounded himself with a corps of fleet backs that take the pressure off his passing. The results are best reflected in the won-loss records: Spag, in games he has started, has directed his team to a 15-3 (.833) record while Dickey's is 8-10 (.444).

Spagnola has not been inert in the record-making department. The 6-1, 190-pounder continues to move up on the ASU record charts.

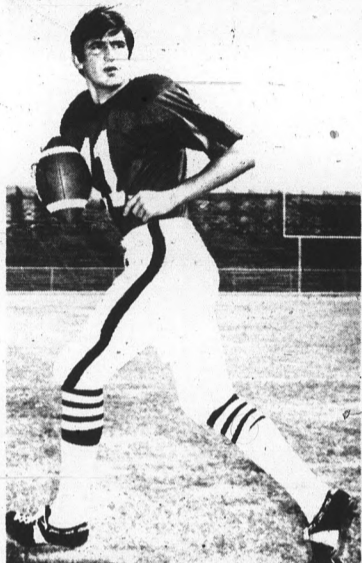

He completed 13 of 25 for 189 yards and added 19 on the ground for 208 total offense. He went from fourth to second in total offense (now at 2,995 yards), fifth to third in passing yards (now at 2,594), fifth to fourth in completions (now with 162) and fourth to third in attempts (now at 334). He has to beat the career records of Whizzer White's 3,285 total offense mark, John Torok's 2,956 passing yards, John Goodman's 197 pass completions and Cecil Coleman's 414 pass attempts.

When and if Spagnola duels Dickey in the battle of the prolific quarterbacks, it will be only the second time that Kansas State and Arizona State have met in football. The only other time was in 1964 when ASU prevailed 21-10 on the way to an 8-2 season.

Arizona's Mark Arneson was named Defensive Player of the Week for his 18 tackles and general defensive play against Michigan.
