Tenure may die if bill is passed

By BILL WILLIAMS

A bill is before the Arizona House of Representatives which would repeal the article of the Arizona Revised Statutes which provides for the automatic renewal of contracts for teachers who have served satisfactorily during a three-year probationary term.

In addition, the bill would make it unnecessary to notify a terminated teacher in writing of his dismissal, and deny his present statutory right to a hearing and to appeal of the decision to terminate him.

However, Rep. Polly Rosenbaum, D-District 7, one of eight legislators who introduced the bill, said the measure is not intended as much to repeal the present statute as it is "to give the bill a good airing."

Mrs. Rosenbaum said she has received many complaints "in private" about the tenure provision in the statutes. "School boards have complained they can't get their schools in order" under the present system, Mrs. Rosenbaum said.

Teachers have even complained about the tenure provision, she added.

Rep. Rosenbaum said the Starsky issue at the University had "absolutely nothing whatsoever to do" with the introduction of the bill.

"There is no vindictiveness intended in this bill," she said.

She said the bill will probably not repeal the entire tenure provision, but will give people on both sides of the issue a chance to voice their opinions on the tenure statute and hopefully bring about a better understanding of one side for the other.

No guarantee made on trips for families by Prescott firm

By JOHN BANASZEWSKI

The campus representative for Educational Friendship Tours, a Prescott firm which offered foreign trips to families for housing German and Japanese students, said yesterday the firm had "nothing written down" in contract obligations and made no guarantee of charter flights at a specific date to the hosting families.

Fay Faron, EFT's campus representative for the past two months, said she became suspicious of the firm's transaction due to a "lack of printed material" on their contractual commitments and a vague explanation of the corporation's expressed aims and purposes.

Miss Faron said she checked with the Better Business Bureau concerning EFT's qualifications but found nothing on the corporation headed by Dr. Thomas Fruin.

She said she joined the organization to get the free charter flight but admitted to Mrs. Natalie Lampi the Phoenix representative for EFA, that she couldn't house any foreign students. Miss Faron said Mrs. Lampi, who was hosting a number of foreign students, would transfer her rights to one of the students in order that Miss Faron would be eligible for the free charter flight.

A discontinuance statement was filed last Thursday by the attorney general's office with Superior Court pledging that the corporation would refrain from making false promotional advertising concerning foreign accommodations.

Miss Faron said that last Saturday Mrs. Lamp claimed contracts would now be sent out to families as a result of the attorney general's statement.

Miss Faron said a $25 initiation fee entitled the hosting families to a charter flight to either Japan or Germany if they housed the foreign students for six weeks during the summer.

She said a family could make the round trip to Germany for nearly $300 and the trip to Japan for slightly over $400. She added that the trips were strictly sight-seeing.

BLACK WEEK

'Blackness' gets national tribute

By TOM JOURNEY
Black Heritage Week, the "nationally recognized time for paying tribute to Blackness," began yesterday with a children's day program.

The program featured a film narrated by comedian Bill Cosby, dinner in the MU and a "Black Expression" talent show. Activities which are sponsored by the Black Cultural Center will continue through Saturday.

Events today include the film "Body and Soul," which deals with Black athletes in the 1968 Olympics. The film will be shown at 1:40 p.m. in MU 269 (Pinal Room).

The Black Cultural Center, according to program chairman Sheila Mess, "represents a positive Black fusion." The Center attempts to bring together the diversity of Black people and Black thought by providing a "vehicle for the expression of this Black diversity as well as a stimulant for the rediscovery and appreciation of the broad and positive skein of Black culture," the sponsors say.

Since it opened last year, the Black Cultural Center has sponsored a Christmas drive to provide food, clothing and toys for needy families in the Black Community. They also hosted a reception in honor of Georgia Congressman Julian Bond.

Black Heritage Week is the most comprehensive program developed by the center.

Activities this week have been designed to provide an opportunity for Black expression and Black discovery. Representatives at the center added that the week is a "celebration of the Beauty of Blackness."

Members at the center view the Black Heritage Week program as reflecting the kinds of programs which are projected for future sponsorship. Those at the center anticipate continuing sponsorship of the film series, seminars and workshops. Also planned are Black celebrations, Black entertainment, community action programs and other activities that reflect a positive and enlightened Black thrust," the sponsors said.

Speaking on the Mall Thursday at 12:40 p.m. will be University student Bob Dale, Black Liberation Organizational Committee member. Black activist Elaine Brown will be the

CONCERN

Today, the State Press begins a daily question-answer feature called CONCERN.

Questions of an informational nature will be accepted from any member of the University community. CONCERN will not provide advice on personal problems.

A box where questions may be placed is located at the Message Center, just inside the north entrance of the Memorial Union. Questions should be written and include name, address and phone number, for purposes of verification. All questions, names, addresses and phone numbers will be confidential.

Only initials will be used in CONCERN. They will be withheld upon request.

Questions for CONCERN may be submitted at the Message Center of the MU. Questions must be written and include name, address and phone number, for verification purposes. Only initials are used in CONCERN. Initials will be withheld upon request. Questions are welcomed from any member of the University community.

Q. I am an out-of-state student. I plan to live in Tempe this summer. Next fall, can I be classified as a resident student? — N.S.

A. Alfred Thomas, University registrar, told CONCERN that students under 21 years of age must be classified as non-residents if the parent or guardian with legal custody of the student is a non-resident.

Students 21 and older must have established legal residence in Arizona for at least one year immediately preceding the last day of registration for credit, and must be eligible to become a registered voter in the state, in order to be classified as a resident student.

However, the constitutionality of this policy is now being considered in an appellate court in Tucson.

Q. How many students did ASU have when it was first built? — D.B.

A. When the school was established in 1885 as Arizona Territorial Normal School, the enrollment was 33. The designers of the first building, Old Main, had overlooked one thing which caused a problem — they neglected to install a hitching post and the 33 students who came by horseback had no place to park their mounts.

Q. Within my department, requirements for graduation are changing. Must I meet new requirements which go into effect before I graduate? — D.M.

A. According to the University catalog, students with continuous registration and attendance may graduate under the requirements or the equivalent of the requirements of the catalog in effect when the student first registered.

Continuous registration applies only up to 16 semesters, however. During the first eight semesters, a student must receive at least three semester hours of credit each semester. After eight semesters, he must receive at least three credit hours and must average six credit hours each semester.

A student who is continuously enrolled for more than 16 semesters will be required to meet the graduation requirements of the catalog in effect at the time of graduation.

Summer sessions have no bearing on continuous enrollment interpretations.

Anniversary marked by parking problem

Yesterday marked the 84th anniversary of the opening of the University, the first institution of higher education in the Southwest. It opened under a great deal of handicaps, yet there was one link with today's university — a parking problem.

In those days, that parking problem wasn't with automobiles. According to "The Arizona State University Story," written by Ernest J. Hopkins, professor emeritus of journalism, and Alfred Thomas Jr., registrar and director of admissions, there were "fully thirty horses," for the 33 students.

The book brings out facts that aren't usually told about ASU. An example of this is that the Arizona Territorial Normal School, the University's forerunner, began classes for 31 students on Feb. 8, 1886, in a four-room building with a faculty of one, its principal, Hiram Bradford Farmer.

The Tempe school had an initial enrollment of 33 students, and on opening day it had no equipment.

The gaiety of opening day must also have been somewhat inhibited, for when the students first reported to classes, they observed the founding fathers had committed an oversight—they had neglected to provide a single hitching-post.

Former VP Ryan takes Indiana post

Former University Vice-President Dr. John W. Ryan has been elected the 14th president of Indiana University at Bloomington.

Dr. Ryan, vice-president for academic affairs at the University from 1963-65, left the University at that time to accept the post of chancellor at the University of Massachusetts at Boston.

In 1968, Dr. Ryan left Boston to return to Indiana University where he received a graduate degree in political science.

Before his Jan. 26 appointment, Dr. Ryan served as vice-president and chancellor for regional campuses of Indiana University.

Race driver plans reading

A former race driver turned poet will recite some of his writings at 8 tonight in the Memorial Union Alumni Lounge.

The recitation will be given by Dan Gerber of Fremont, Mich., co-editor of Sumac Magazine and a one-time nationally known automobile racing driver.

The program, free to the public, is the sixth in a series sponsored by the University English department and the Southwest Creative Writing Project.

Gerber graduated from Michigan State University where he was a poet-in-residence in 1969.

Kaydettes sponsor tea

All girls interested in joining the Kaydettes are invited to a tea at 3:30 today in Gammage Auditorium. Signs in the building will post the room number.

The Kaydettes are a service organization for the University and host functions for Army ROTC. During the tea, the affiliation's various activities will be previewed for the coming semester. These include a drill team, military ball, parade and a trip to Gompers Rehabilitation Center.

Approximately 30 girls from today's interviews will be chosen to attend another selection tea on Thursday, said Maj. Joseph Pellegrino, Kaydette adviser, with final decisions being made at that time.

A 2.0 grade cumulative and interviews at both teas are the only requirements. General interviews will be held today, with personal interviews on Thursday, Maj. Pellegrino added.

Traffic fatalities—a gristly game

By DAVID JENSEN

"Graveyards — people are just dying to get there."

The way Arizonans are killing themselves on the state's highways, this old way may be more truth than fiction.

As of February 7, 93 people had lost their lives in traffic accidents on the state's highways. This toll is 32 more dead than last year at the same time, and lest it be forgotten, last year was a record-breaking one for highway fatalities.

The use of highway deaths as a possible solution to the problem of overpopulation isn't one that has been furthered by those concerned with the problem, but at the rate Arizonans are killing themselves on the road it might just become one.

As usual, people are looking out for themselves, and saying to hell with the other guy. The result is that on a given day at least one person is killed in an auto related incident.

This brings up a very pressing question: "Are people so conditioned to the idea that if a record is kept on a number scale that they feel compelled to run the figures to a higher peak each succeeding year?"

If so, the gory numbers represented by the annual body count on the state's highways is an enviable one.

Unfortunately, the traffic death count is not a "score" of this type. Rather, it is one that must be kept down rather than run up. If something isn't done by the citizens of the state, the government (either state or national) will be forced to intervene in some type of an attempt to slow the mounting death rate.

Should the government be forced to step in, the people may find themselves faced with some type of mass transit system.

A system of this type would probably resemble the subway system of New York, a less than perfect way of getting from place to place, but by and large a safer method than driving your own automobile.

The thing is, do we as human beings have to rely on the government to keep us alive? As a people who have fought so hard through the years to gain our freedom of choice, are we so willing to give it up?

If all we can see fit to do is butcher each other on the highways, then maybe it's time to let someone else tell us what to do and when to do it.

There is still a chance for man to share his own future if he will choose to act positively now.

Man has been so concerned about the war and the environment that he has completely forgotten that it takes someone to live there to make it work.

The time to act is now.

If we fail to heed the warnings, we are headed for one of two ends. We will either be led by the hand by some other power so that we don't hurt ourselves or worse yet, we will slowly but surely annihilate ourselves.

For what it's worth, the choice is ours.

Only time will tell which choice the human race will make.

Prejudice in hands of state legislators

By RAY KIPP

For many Blacks, states rights have long meant no rights. And much of America's youth may be in line to experience a little of what the Black man has been dealing with for the last 150 years.

A little touch of black may overcome every 18-21-year-old now that the U.S. Supreme Court has upheld the youth's right to vote in national elections but left the states free to determine the voting age in local elections.

In conservative Arizona, where the 18-year-old vote has not received much legislative support, there's talk of letting the voters decide.

While this gives the illusion of democracy, it is nothing but a loophole to let someone else assume the role of the heavy. Legislators know the mood of the voters and can feel safe in hiding behind the White Anglo-Saxon vote of Maricopa County.

They can hide behind the "will of the people" when all the while they possess the power to give not only the right to vote but complete franchise to the 18-year-old in Arizona.

Even the way the voting referendum is being handled smells of political maneuvering. Some legislators want a special referendum submitted to the people so the issue would be decided by the 1972 election. Others want to wait and include the question on the '72 ballot. This would put off any possibility of the 18-year-old for another election period. Then of course there's Gov. Williams, flapping like a flag in the political wind, first blowing one way and then the other.

However things could be even worse if every state official possessed the narrow-minded philosophy of Maricopa County Recorder Paul Marston, who has said he would be willing to accept the extra cost and headaches of separate elections before giving 18-year-olds the right to vote for any state candidate.

And it appears that this issue of personal rights turned into states rights may well be left to the voters. And it's voters like Paul Marston who will bring the touch of the Southern bigot to Arizona.

This is the tactic supported by some legislators who, afraid to go on public record, could avoid the expense and farce of a special election by simply deciding on the floor of the Legislature which is more important—Arizona's right to deny freedom or Arizona youth's right to possess it.

Letters Policy

The State Press will continue its policy of printing as many letters to the editor as space requirements permit. A few basic requirements must be noted, however.

Letters should be no longer than 300 words in length. They must be double — or triple — spaced, and should contain neither libelous nor obscene material.

As in the past, the editor reserves the right to edit all material published to conform to rules or style, spelling and grammar, though general content will not be altered.

Letters must be signed. Names will be withheld on request. Correspondents should also include their addresses and phone numbers.

All letters received are subject to verification by the editor.

Driving off the road may become a crime

By RAY WONG

Desecration of Arizona's countryside by off-road vehicles has recently brought about an uprising between four-legged animals and the four and two-wheeled motor vehicles.

The enactment of a law providing restrictions on the use of motor vehicles off the "established roadway" is needed in this state, but not by the approach as stated in House Bill 63-64.

Authored by Rep. Stan Turley, R-Mesa, chairman of the House Natural Resources Committee, the bills would make it a misdemeanor for a person to drive a "vehicle" off an "established roadway" on private or public land.

HB 64, upon conviction of driving off an established roadway, one may have his hunting and fishing privileges revoked or suspended.

The established roadway, as stated in HB 63, is "any dedicated federal, state, county or municipal road or street and all undedicated roads marked for public use by the owner of lessee of the land or by a public land management agency."

I can see the necessity of restricting vehicles from going off the roads, but restricting vehicles from an undesignated, unmarked roads is a different story. If the road is clearly marked as a road and has been well traveled, why shouldn't people be allowed to use the roads?

It's like telling a cow she cannot get off the "established" cow trails. In fact, try telling a cow that she cannot get off the beaten path.

The bill also does not establish what a "vehicle" is. This could mean that a horse, cow, or mule could be limited to use on marked trails or roads.

The roads are built for the convenience of people and could be the only link for many people with others. Take away the privilege of using roads and you take away some of Arizona's most cherished pastimes and economy — hunting, fishing, camping, picnicing, sight-seeing, mining and just enjoying the great outdoors.

Perhaps what will help everyone out is to LEARN TO WALK.

University gets grants

Grants amounting to $46,089 by the National Science Foundation were recently awarded to the University to help in two summer programs.

Two grants totaling $37,569 were awarded to a program which emphasizes the teaching of the skills of science rather than its contents.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science program is to help the elementary grade teachers become proficient in teaching science without the help of a book.

Dr. Theodore Munch, professor of science education and director of the program, said through this program the students are taught to observe, infer, predict, measure and experiment with the basic skills of science.

The program titled "Science: A Process Approach" is developed for grades one and two.

Dr. Lehi Smith, professor of mathematics, will use $5,480 of the $37,569 grant to continue work begun several years ago with teachers from the Navajo Indian Reservation.

Dr. Smith's program uses videotape recordings of his lectures to reservation teachers during the summer. In turn teachers take the tapes back to the reservation and can give instruction in mathematics to teachers in remote areas.

In another program, the NSF awarded a grant of $8,520 to help six undergraduate students in research under the guidance of the chemical engineering faculty.

Participants, who are selected on scholarly attitude, imagination and perseverance in graduate study, will receive stipends of $60 per week over a 12-week period. Selection is made from the upperclassmen in the engineering and science fields.

Application forms may be obtained from Dr. C. O. Reiser, chairman of chemical engineering department, EC 136B.

Budget travel for students

Spend 60 days in Europe for $875.

This special rate for budget-minded college students is offered by Continental Study Projects, Inc., for this coming summer.

The program lasts from June 28 — Aug. 26 with a combination of travel and study at accredited universities in five European countries.

The trip includes one month of living and studying at a university in Britain, France, Spain, Austria or Italy; roundtrip - jet air fare and a two-month Eurailpass for travel.

Information on the trip can be obtained by writing Continental Study Projects, Inc., 527 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y., 10022 or call (212) PL2-8887.

Meditation comes to the campus

Anyone who walks into Nursing 101 tomorrow at 2 p.m. may be in for a mind-blowing experience.

Dr. Paul Levine, a theoretical physicist at the California Institute of Technology, will speak on transcendental meditation at that time. He will repeat his speech at 8 p.m. in the East Chochise Room of the MU.

The speech, said David Fitch, a teacher of transcendental meditation at the Tempe branch of the Students International Meditation Society (SIMS), will deal partly with "The Science of Creative Intelligence."

"Transcendental meditation (TM) is a simple, natural mental technique which allows the attention of the mind to be drawn inwards, producing an expansion of consciousness and deep relaxation," Fitch said.

He added that courses in TM, now offered by Stanford University, University of Colorado and the University of California at Irvine, will probably be offered at ASU in the future.

According to Fitch, there are 60,000 students involved in the program. "We are the fastest growing student organization in the world," he added. Transcendental meditation produces a natural heightened awareness which has led many who formerly used drugs to practice TM," he said.

And the results of TM? Fitch commented that "scientific studies have indicated 80 per cent of those who formerly used drugs stopped taking drugs immediately and 15 per cent more stopped within a few months" after practicing TM.

Enamel class still open

Thursday is the final day of registration for a University extension crafts course in metal enameling.

The three credit course is open to the public and is being taught by Mrs. Pauli Lane of Scottsdale, a well known enamelist who has received various awards for her work.

The classe is held at 6:40 to 9:30 p.m. Thursdays in Room 216 in the Art building.

Cost will be $16 per semester hour.

Hair gives bare facts

By RANDY D. BAILEY
 "Hair." Valley clergymen have given sermons against it. The city council almost banned it, but it's here to stay.

Fine arts review

The rock-musical, playing at Palace West through Sunday, saw the opening night last Tuesday polluted with anti-"Hair" pickets, but no performances were stopped.

It's not the best musical to play at Palace West (using a conservative definition), but it does have great singers, and fantastic lighting. The acting is decent, if not the script, in several points in the play.

There is even a brief (!) nude scene at the close of the first act that is closely monitored by Phoenix Police.

It is this nude scene, along with references to homosexuality, drugs and the American flag, that has agitated the right wingers. But, if "Hair" is what it takes to destroy America's morals, then our society is already on its knees. The social comment of "Hair" is little stronger than what can be viewed on "Laugh-In".

And maybe "Hair" does a service by making America take a look at those traditions (motherhood, apple pie, Custer's Last Stand) which it holds dear. "Hair" even spoofs the idea of hair, drugs, sex and most aspects of our culture.

The center will be selling books, posters, buttons, bumper stickers and other Black-related items from its booth on the Mall this week.

Located at 712 E. Lemon, the Black Cultural Center will serve as the locale for many of its activities and as a gathering place for Blacks, according to its program director.

Devils schedule extra football game at CSU

The Sun Devils will travel to Fort Collins for an 11th football game in the 1971 season against Colorado State University, Oct. 9.

An 11-game schedule was made legal by the NCAA last season. ASU played the traditional 10-game season in 1970.

ASU Rugby Club drops 6-3 decision

ASU's Rugby Club lost to the Eagle Rock, Calif. Rugby Club Sunday, 6-3.

Eagle Rock scored on a three point try in the first half, followed by a three point try-after.

ASU scored on a three point try in the second half but missed the try-after.

By JAY HOVDEY
The Sun Devils came back from a disaster in El Paso to crush the University of New Mexico 92-80 in WAC basketball Saturday night.

Guard Bill Kennedy led ASU into a tie for second place with 26 points, while four other Devils scored in double figures.

The cold shooting that plagued ASU in their 74-59 loss to the University of Texas-El Paso last Thursday night disappeared in Albuquerque with a 54.4 field goal percentage.

At El Paso the Devils hit on only 38 per cent of their shots from the floor.

Foward Paul Stovall scored 20 points against UTEP and accounted for 11 of the team's 36 rebounds.

ASU went into the UTEP game leading the nation in total rebounds per game.

Saturday night New Mexico's Willie Long tried to carry the show for the Lobos with 29 points and 14 rebounds, but he was not enough to stop the Devils quintet in double figures.

Helping Kennedy from the floor were Dave Hullman, 16 points; Mike Hopwood, 15 points; Rhea Taylor, 11 points; and Stovall, 10 points.

A crowd of 13,446 watched ASU move to a 44-39 lead at halftime, then pull away during the second half, outscoring the Lobos 48-41.

The Devils had a better night on the boards than at UTEP, bringing down 35 individual rebounds and 11 team rebounds.

The one win, one loss road trip brought ASU's WAC record to 4-3, in a tie for second with Utah and BYU. UTEP leads the pack with a 5-3 record.

The Devils's season record, 12-6, is the best in the WAC.

Friday the Colorado State Rams will be in Tempe for their second meeting with ASU this year. The Devils won the first game 80-77 on CSU's court.

Saturday's opponent is Wyoming, a winner over ASU earlier this season. Wyoming will be battling for a share of the WAC lead in a tight race.

NFL picks four seniors

By BILL BUTLER
Four seniors from the 1970 Peach Bowl champion Sun Devils were selected by NFL teams during the Jan. 28 and 29 pro football draft.

First to go was All-WAC WIDE RECEIVER J. D. Hill, who was the first selection of the Buffalo Bills. The Bills were led this year by the American Conference's Rookie of the Year, quarterback Dennis Shaw.

Hill, fourth player picked, was the first non-quarterback.

Mike Fanucci went in the eighth round of the draft, selected by the Washington Redskins.

Punting specialist Jim McCann was the ninth round choice of the San Francisco 49ers. McCann finished the season with the second best punting average in the nation.

Senior fullback Bob Thomas was the 14th round choice of the Cincinnati Bengals. Thomas gained over 900 yards for the Devils last season.

Overlooked in the 2-day draft was All-WAC quarterback Joe Spagnola. Spagnola was among the nation's leaders in total yardage throughout the football season.

Players like ASU's Spagnola who were not selected in the draft can still attempt to sign on with a pro team as free agents.

Wrestlers finish third in tourney

ASU's wrestling team placed third last weekend at the 23rd Annual Naval Training Center Invitational Championship held in San Diego, Calif.

Gary Coley took a third place individually in the 158-pound class. During the tournament, Coley scored four falls to give him 12 for the season.

Coley, 18-5 on the year, needs only six more falls to break the ASU single season records of Curly Culp and Pete Russo.

Dave Grieve finished fourth in the 177-pound division. In one match, Grieve, tried Russ Camallere, who has competed on the last two U.S. Olympic teams.

Ed Wells, competing in the 134-pound class, was injured during the meet. Wells, undefeated in 12 matches since mid-December, attempted to wrestle after the injury but was beaten.

Next weekend the Devil wrestlers will compete in the New Mexico Invitational Tournament at Albuquerque.
