

Football to cost students more

Price upped $1 a game

By ROBERT McCALL

Students attending next fall's University home football games will be charged an extra $1 per game in addition to the activity fee.

Ron McCoy, ASASU president, revealed the plan yesterday. McCoy said the proposal was adopted at a meeting of the Athletic Board two weeks ago. McCoy, a member of the board, did not attend the meeting.

Amendment on today's ballot

A copy of the ASASU constitutional amendment to be voted on in today's student body general election is printed on pages six and seven.

The ASASU Public Relations Board announced that voting will be from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the sunken planter across from Hayden Library.

In addition to the approval of the student fee, the Athletic Board also approved a proposal to increase the student section by moving it into a tighter group and eliminating many of the end zone seats.

McCoy called the report a good one. "I think there will be objections, but it is the most equitable," he said.

The proposal was prepared last fall after a dispute arose over issuing group seating tickets, Allan Frazier, assistant dean in charge of student publications and special events, said.

Frazier said the plan was presented to the Student Senate by a committee headed by Milt Stamatis. But he said the Student Senate failed to act on the measure.

McCoy said he then presented the proposal to the Athletic Board where it was approved.

Frazier said the decision on the proposal had to be made now so tickets could be printed and prepared for sale. He said this was necessary because the new student section will encompass sections formerly sold to season ticket holders and others.

McCoy said the $1 fee per game was decided upon to make up for some of the loss incurred by the loss of revenue seats.

The proposal presented to the Athletic Board noted that full-time students pay $12 per year among the various tuition fees for athletic events.

The anticipated revenue from the student fees for an estimated 20,000 students next fall would be about $240,000, the proposal said. But the proposal noted students would occupy seats in the football stadium estimated in value at $247,000, plus $52,500 in seats at basketball, track and baseball games.

The report said a deficit of $51,536 would appear at the end of the year if the program followed this semester is continued.

Frazier said the student committee had suggested raising the tuition fee for all students. But the group decided it was unfair since only about half the student body attends the games.

The report said an average of 9,176 students attended the games last season. A high of 10,562 students viewed the Kansas State contest while a low of 8,152 saw the San Jose State game.

Frazier said if each student attends every athletic event on the University campus, his admission fee would average out to about 20 cents a contest. But he noted many students do not attend so they are subsidizing those who do.

So, Frazier said, the committee felt those that attend the contests should foot the additional costs.

The report noted that the present $5 ticket had been increased to $6 per game for the six home contests.

"It would especially provide more student seats for 1971 without any major movement of season ticket holders, thus avoiding any public relations problems in that regard."

The report continued by saying that "inasmuch as athletic costs are increasing, students should not necessarily escape sharing this increased cost."

The proposal noted the expanded student section would move many of the students out of the end zone area, and at the same time move them into a tighter seating area.

"Such a move would also begin to bring the student section back into perspective as a student section for cheering, card section, or whatever purposes," the proposal said.

The proposal said if the student section is filled, the student overflow would be absorbed in the north end zone bleachers with a 50 cents per ticket charge.

In addition to the student fee charge, the Athletic Board voted

Board recommends campus food service

By DEB EGERER

Although finding that the overall food service here compares favorably with other universities, an independent consultant has strongly recommended to the Auxiliary Services Advisory Board that food service be operated by the University.

Edward Hickox, director of auxiliary services, discussed yesterday the findings of a report by a food service consultant.

Douglas Richie, hired by auxiliary services, met with Hickox, and interviewed Saga personnel, University officials and students during a three-day visit to the campus in mid-February. He also visited all operating food units, eating seven meals in six different units.

The report by Richie states Saga is doing a good job in general indicated by student satisfaction, overall quality of food and overall variety of food.

Richie also found evidence of "a distinct disregard of University interests brought about by the necessity to meet financial objectives."

Hickox commented that Richie made the assumption "the basic conflict of interest was between financial goals of the food service company and goals of the University."

Hickox said this was not the University's general experience with Saga, and in fact, found Saga more responsive than some University agencies.

He added this was because Saga's primary goal is "to try to please customers" and is "motivated by their desire to not lose this account." Hickox doubted if food service operated by the University would be as responsive.

Areas that need improvement, according to Richie, include communication with University representatives and students, sanitation and housekeeping, follow-through on requests from the University and a la carte prices.

The report added that the a la carte prices in the Memorial Union were justifiable, although higher than the University of Arizona or California State College at Long Beach, which both operate their own food services.

Hickox said a problem Saga had with a la carte prices this year was because it was understood the MU would be opened Sept. 1, 1970 and Saga predicted prices on this basis. However, the MU did not open until January, 1971.

Richie also found hall prices were lower than average, according to a 1970 study of 49 colleges in the nation. University hall prices were $2.35 per day compared to an average of $2.43. Hickox added although the University rate has since risen to $2.45, its relative position in the survey is still the same.

Hickox said although Saga was informed a consultant had been hired, the food service did not know who the consultant was or when he was coming until he was already on campus.

Richie is currently director of food services at California State College at Long Beach. He also worked for two commercial food services including Saga.

Ft. Grant studied by campus group

By BILL KLEIN

During the middle of last year, University Young Republicans set out to study the operating procedures of Ft. Grant, the State Industrial School near Safford.

The industrial school is undergoing criticism because of an increase in escapes from the rehabilitation institution.

Numerous interviews and discussions were conducted with current and former inmates and staff members and professional people in the area of juvenile corrections.

All information gathered by the Special Committee on Juvenile Corrections was confidential.

Gary Nelson, an education major and one of the three members on the committee said the school lacks the necessary standards set up by the National Association of Correctional Schools Superintendents.

Those standards state the school should have the equivalent of a small hospital with X-ray and laboratory equipment.

"The school," Nelson said, "should be equipped with a staff doctor and 24-hour nursing care." Right now they don't have round-the-clock nursing facilities, he said.

"They cannot keep a doctor up there because the doctors get frustrated with the lack of facilities and discipline," Nelson said.

"They have no facilities for testing or dentistry," Nelson said, "so they have to go into Safford, which is about 50 miles."

Nelson pointed out another problem concerning the lack of qualified medical facilities and personnel. "Quite often," he said, "a delinquent boy will have poor health; he'll be less physically mature; he'll have more medical problems than a normal adolescent will have."

To illustrate one of the serious problems evolving from the lack of facilities, Nelson showed the State Press a portion of a letter from Dr. Loehr of the industrial school to another school official in the school.

The letter concerned one of the inmates at the industrial school who suffered from a diabetic condition.

The letter stated, "It is impossible to put this boy on a diabetic diet

Questions are welcomed from any member of the University community.

Q. In the event that I, as a pedestrian, am injured by one of the rapidly moving bikes on campus, what information (evidence) should I gather at the scene that will enable me to properly initiate legal action against the bike rider? A.W.

A. Arizona Revised Statutes Section 28-812 requires bicycle riders using roadways to be subject to most of the responsibilities of automobile drivers. A pedestrian that is injured by a bicyclist on the highway should note whether the driver was exercising the care required by all drivers using the highways.

If the injury occurs somewhere other than on a roadway, the pedestrian should take down the bicyclist's name, any possible obstructions of his view, any distractions, his control over the bike and whether he was carrying passengers.

The conditions at the site of the accident such as sun glare conditions, slippery pavement, bicyclist's speed along with the names of any witnesses should be noted.

Q. Why can't a student receive the grade in a course to which he is entitled? If, for example, a student has earned a 3.4 for the course, the instructor is required to give him a 3.0; yet the student's overall grade average is computed to the nearest 0.0 point.

A. Alfred Thomas, registrar and director of admissions, said the grade a student earns in a class is a letter grade and it is up to the instructor to assign the grade he feels the student has earned. The grades then go to the records and are computed on the basis of honor points with an "A" equal to four points and so forth.

Resistance ingrained in Angela's heritage

By DEBBIE ELLISON

The plight of Angela Davis, the unjust treatment of political prisoners and the need for public involvement were discussed at Murdock Hall Monday night by the head of the speakers bureau for the National United Committee to Defend Angela Davis.

Mrs. Rene Harding, substituting for Ron Baker, defense committee spokesman, began her talk to about 125 listeners by stating black people have a tremendous heritage of resistance.

"Third world people (minority groups) have come to the realization that what they believed were individual problems . . . are societal problems," Mrs. Harding said.

"Angela Davis 'brought it home' that there is something better than what we are getting." She is in jail because she was effective in what she said," Mrs. Harding said.

When asked to comment on Miss Davis' personal life, Mrs. Harding said Angela loves humanity.

"She is almost shy, but this does not change her effectiveness with the struggle," Mrs. Harding said.

"She's a good sister and I've seen her work hard," added Mrs. Harding, whose daughter is Miss Davis' god child.

When questioned on what could be done at the local level, she said the National Defense Committee for Angela Davis should ask people to demand her freedom.

"You, as college students, must reach and teach the people about the plight of Angela and other political prisoners," she said.

"It's all a game; the third world people against the system and the prize is Angela Davis," Mrs. Harding said.

Scholarships offered by marketing group

A check for two $500 scholarships was presented Friday to President H. K. Newburn by Pi Sigma Epsilon, national professional fraternity in marketing, sales management and selling.

The scholarships, for low-income minority students, were provided through sales of "Dollar - Power" booklets by fraternity members.

Sold to University students and faculty, the booklets contain coupons which offer discounts from local merchants.

Presenting the check were Jess Hernandez, 1971 president; Kent Meredith, 1970 president; Tim Ranahan, 1970 marketing vice-president; Solomon Smith, distinguished salesman for 1971 and Fran Morina, auxiliary representative.

Lawyer says children should be taught law

By ANKE HODENPEL

Children should be taught law when they are in grade school so they can effectively participate in our society, Alex Elson, a member of the Chicago Bar, told an audience in the Great Hall Monday night.

Speaking on "Children and the Law" with his wife, Miriam, who is chief social worker of the University of Chicago Student Mental Health Clinic, Elson said it is important to understand law "because ours is a government by law." He added, "You cannot support faith if you do not understand."

Ignorance of the law is no excuse, Elson said, but "ignorance of the law leads to frustration and alienation and sometimes violence."

A natural sequence of development exists in youngsters, like their teeth, bones and muscles, said Mrs. Elson. "You must take advantage of the opportunity" or they will never overcome the initial deficiency, she added.

Before the child can be effectively taught, teachers must first be adequately trained, both agreed. "We have a legal system more far reaching — it is beyond the knowledge of the layment and indeed, beyond the knowledge of the practitioner," Elson said.

Mrs. Elson supported using the Socratic or inquiry method of teaching law. The students' thinking processes change, Elson said, "so they can reason more soundly."

"You are no longer the lecturer — you enlist his work with you," Mrs. Elson said. The teachers must be trained to draw out the child, Mrs. Elson said, "wooing him to examine materials."

The children are encouraged to question and discuss, hold judicial courts and solve law problems among themselves, Mrs. Elson said. She added, "the greatest teachers are the children themselves."

"We want to teach them," Mrs. Elson said, "that law has a creative and supportive role which is important in a nation such as ours."

THE ADVENT GARRARD PIONEER SHURE STEREO SYSTEM

There are some areas where inflation can be licked. Electronics is one of those. As technology improves, the price may be reduced. So here is a system which takes advantage of the best current technology—also the best current values in equipment — at the best (that means lowest!) prices.

Now, one more inflation-deflating idea. We even lowered the regular price. We regularly sell this system at $565. This week we are going down to $499. Interesting? Read on.

The Advent Speaker has now legendary performance qualities. Nothing can touch its performance for the money... unless you want to spend over $200 per speaker.

The Pioneer SX-770, a 70 watt AM/FM Stereo receiver, delivers all the power you need with famous pioneer quality.

The precision British-made Garrard SL-65B is a classic in its own time, complete with base. Shure Bros. makes fine quality magnetic cartridges. This one is a $20 M 44-7.

So deflate inflation at Audio Specialists. Your dollars are worth more now than two years ago. This sale is limited, so don't wait. Come in for a demonstration and ask about our Five Year Free Protection Plan.

to boost the cost of spouse cards from $15 to $21. About 500 cards were sold this year.

The proposal noted the football stadium holds 46,842 persons. If all seats are sold at the 1970 prices, $186,124 would be realized from each game.

But the figure would be reduced by about $61,000 per game when the number of student seats are reduced. This amount is made up through student tuition fees and the newly imposed ticket fee.

Clyde Smith, University athletic director, declined to comment on the plan. He acknowledged the funds raised by the fee would be used to support the University's entire athletic program.

ASASU elections: Presidential foes state their views

Rather than take a firm "Vote for John Candidate" stand with regard to the ASASU presidential race, the State Press has elected to allow both candidates to present their views and aspirations should they be elected and let you, the readers, make up your own minds.

Printed below are what the candidates feel are their strong points, based on past performance, and what views they hold and hope to put into effect if they are elected.

Although it is normally considered the prerogative of a newspaper and its editorial staff to take sides when election time arrives, we of the State Press staff feel that the students of Arizona State University are perfectly capable of making up their own minds without outside influence.

The office of ASASU president was specifically singled out, because it is the one ASASU office which is given the most governing power, and it is necessary, therefore, for the members of the University to know all they can about the candidates who choose to run for it.

The articles printed below were prepared by the candidates themselves, not by members of the State Press staff, and are intended as a summary of what each has accomplished and hopes to accomplish in the coming year.

It is hoped that the information below will help the members of the student body in their choice of a new president and that they will give careful consideration to what the prospective candidates have done and hope to do, so that they can elect students who will represent them as they want to be represented.

Jeff Figler

I, Jeff Figler, seek the Presidency, first to hear, and then to be heard.

After learning of the support shown for me in last week's primary, my response was a growing ambivalence. Foremost, 20 per cent of the voters writing-in my name was a deeply appreciated compliment—a sincere "thank you" was, and is, in order. However I felt again the strong distaste I have for the inevitable politicking and compromising involved in any aggressive campaign (experience which had forced my decision to return next year to quiet, behind-the-scenes student government work). Finally, I realized that perhaps those votes represented both an opportunity for the continuation of the programs and concepts I have worked for this year as Activities Vice-President, and a chance to engage in a concise, straight-forward campaign for Student Body President. If true, and only running will tell, it is an opportunity I cannot resist. . . it is a challenge I accept.

So, I present today a simplified, but concrete, listing of feasible, realistic student government programs implemented this year, which, if nurtured and developed, can make ASASU a meaningful part of each student's campus life.

1. Relations with the State Legislature were initiated. This means that direct channels have been established, and if handled properly, flows of student influence will soon be felt in the Legislature. Relations need to be initiated with the Regents, and reinstated with the Governor.

2. Minority student recruitment was attempted on a large-scale basis. Because the total number of Black, Chicanos, and Indians at ASU is less than 1,000, students were sent to high schools and Indian reservations attempting to recruit minority group young people to come to ASU. Recently, financial assistance was requested of the State Legislature. Hopefully, our campus populace will soon reflect more clearly our entire society.

3. In the near future, plans for a Child Care Center will be presented to the Administration. Having pushed the project the entire year, I know well its importance and potential. In addition, pressure for Married Student Housing, funneled through ASASU, will soon be felt.

4. Decentralization of our student government has progressed—partially. Pushing downward both power and money is the only responsible method of distributing the assets of ASASU. Control must be taken from the present small elite and handed to College Councils and other more immediately representative bodies.

These tasks are both behind us and yet very much ahead; and many other potentialities await a Student Body President. Students, representing more of a variety of ideas and interests need to be appointed to University boards and committees. ASASU needs to be the unified student voice.

Residence Halls, the Code, the State Press, the Bookstore, Saga Foods, and hundred other issues, could be presented with accompanying easy answers designed to provoke approving nods. I can only say that there is room for reform. I will steadfastly encourage creative solutions for any sincere concerns. For the greatest challenge of the position is to use freely but effectively the influence granted the one man who carries the title of President. The many doors that position opens must be entered; not by a sole individual, but by a strong, clear voice of student opinion. A voice of passion and a voice of reason—not pleading for impossibilities, but rather, demanding the possible.

I, Jeff Figler, seek the Presidency, first to hear, and then to be heard.

Norm Keyt

As long as we are tied to the old "student government" concept at ASU, students have little reason to be interested in ASASU. Associated Students should exist only to attend to our multiple interests. It doesn't do this now. Presently "student government" is little more than a minor administrative department of the University which just "happens" to be staffed by students. It is a $200,000 plaything, while as a community we have many interests that go unserved.

It is not outrageous for us to want lower prices on books or more influence in curriculum innovation. It's not outrageous for us to want fairer and more comprehensive lease laws in Arizona (with a large percentage of students renting) or want to do something about arbitrary seizures of cleaning deposits. It's not presumptuous for us to want a voice in deciding what the regents capital outlay request from the state legislature will be (For instance this year's request, a list of twelve building projects, does not include a multi-level parking building, yet it does include such things as remodeling the academic services building). Nor is it presumptuous for us to want more entertainment opportunities such as concerts and movies or even to want a bigger hand in determining rules and living conditions in residence halls. We have these neglected concerns and many more. Where ASASU should have been serving these needs in the past it simply hasn't.

We have the talent in the student community to manage a bookstore, develop innovative courses or lobby for a parking building and new lease law, but we lack an agent to apply it. With over $200,000 ASASU could be that agent. No other student organization has comparable resources. To correctly apply them we must actively recruit qualified students and pay them for their services.

We have to discard the "student government mentality" and turn ASASU into an association capable of serving 30,000 students. ASASU should have the right to retain a lawyer, or operate its own permanent bookstore. If we want "big name" entertainment, ASASU must have a large source of capital (Popular groups like Santana go for $35,000 a night). Michigan State has a student credit union which not only gives students short term low-interest loans, but can be used as a capital source for concerts. We can implement a credit union here. If expansion within the present structure isn't feasible, incorporation of ASASU may be a means to our end. Associated students at the University of Oregon incorporated and now operate a broad range of effective programs. We can make ASASU effective.

As Community Affairs Board (CAB) Chairman this year I have had the opportunity to initiate several new programs that promise to be groundwork for the expansion of ASASU's service role. The CAB handles recruitment for "Big Brothers of America" on the ASU campus. The CAB also operates the ASASU consumer council and has researched and laid the groundwork for a tenants' association. These two programs, limited by meager budgets this year, can be expanded next year. The CAB also ran the ASASU Book Exchange, making it the first large-scale attempt to do something about the high cost of books.

My opponent is presently an executive officer of ASASU. ASASU's record speaks poorly for itself. Wednesday you simply have a choice between the old and the new. We can make Associated Students into a pressure group and service organization working for its members. Come vote Wednesday.

STATE PRESS is published by Arizona State University as the official campus newspaper every Tuesday through Friday during the school year, except holidays and examination periods, and is entered as second class matter at Tempe, Arizona, 85281.

Letters to the Editor

Remarks unfair

Editor:

I would like to object to the insinuations and straight condemnations in the article about ASASU President Ron McCoy, in regard to his "personal campaign" against the Code of Conduct.

It states that if the students objected to the code, there would be widespread support for its elimination. It was not to be noted, however, the uniqueness of the ASU student.

He is, for the most part, lazy, slow to react, thick-headed, apathetic and an introvert.

When the code was first presented to the students there were widespread objections. But when it looked as though the Regents didn't give a damn about their mumbling speeches, and other noise making, the students promptly returned to their dull, lifeless, everyday normalcy.

They took an attitude of "Well, if it doesn't bother me directly, I don't care."

Fortunately, some people, Ron McCoy in particular, have an interest in what the Regents are doing to the student's rights as a student and citizen. He has the guts and determination to stand up and declare that the code is unfair.

It is a president's job to make decisions for the people.

If the students are too lazy to support him, this "student body" is in bad shape.

I don't agree with everything that Ron McCoy has said and done, but I applaud him for taking a stand on his convictions, convictions that benefit the student.

Sorcery called equivalent of premeditated murder

By Sharon Bondra

Sorcery is the functional equivalent of premeditated murder in those societies where it is practiced, claimed Dr. Gananath Obeyesekere.

The University of Ceylon professor said, "Sorcery is a magical technique in which people attempt to kill others by supernatural methods such as incantations and rites."

People in those societies which practice sorcery believe it can kill or harm, and the element of premeditation is provided both by their decision to consult a sorcerer and calculation of the specific kind of sorcerer to consult, he said.

As a result of this, Dr. Obeyesekere said, criminological studies, which state 70 per cent of homicides are spontaneous crimes, are invalid in the non-Western world.

"What I am suggesting is that you cannot understand the general nature of crimes (in societies which practice sorcery) unless you include a control for sorcery," he added.

"If sorcery is viewed as an equivalent of premeditated crime, then it is much more common than believed," he said.

Dr. Obeyesekere's study of the relationship between sorcery and crime was conducted over a period of several months in Ceylon by interviewing people who went to semi-public sorcery shrines to practice sorcery, he said.

These people lived in urban environments where there were no methods for resolving minor conflicts as a result of social changes, he said. Village headmen had been abolished, courts were impersonal and there was a general distrust of the police, he added.

"The victims labored under a sense of injustice and were trying to resolve this injustice which they could not handle otherwise," said Dr. Obeyesekere.

The victims also believed that the dieties in the sorcery shrines would not fulfill their wishes if the cause was unjust, he said.

45's offered in contest

One thousand 45 rpm records will be given away in a contest April 2 to a KASN listener, Tom Walsh, station promotion director, announced this week.

The contest, which began Monday, is open to residents of Manzanita, Palo Verde East and Palo Verde Main residence halls.

Lot 74 closed

University parking area 74, located east of the swimming pool, will be closed from 7 a.m. - 9:30 a.m. Thursday and Friday.

University Police Lt. Thomas Godbehere said students should use parking lots on East Orange St., east of the new McAllister Ave.

The lot is being made available to participants in the National Women's Collegiate Swimming and Diving Championship.

Its purpose is to attract new listeners in the three dorms, particularly in Palo Verde East and Main, where the campus radio broadcasts were received for the first time March 8.

Once a night, KASN DJ's will announce that the first person calling the station will be eligible to win the records. The name of each night's winner will be placed in a container with the names of other winners from the beginning of the contest.

"The last day of the contest we'll have a drawing, and whoever wins, wins the whole hatch," Walsh said.

Included in the 1,000 records are cuts by such artists as Ike and Tina Turner, the Chambers Brothers, Jose Feliciano, Brooklyn Bridge, Oliver, Johnny Mathis and Rod McKuen.

"About half of the records are from the last couple of years," Walsh said, "and the rest are oldies."

Student photographers to show art, compete

All work, entry forms and fees for PHOTOGRAPHY 2, the second annual photographic exhibition, may be submitted until April 16, announced Henry Robert, MU Art Gallery director.

Robert said students may submit any work of art in the photographic imagery, and the top 40 works selected will be displayed in the MU Art Gallery May 5-28. Five $50 prizes will be awarded.

All participants are limited to three entries, Robert said, and no two-dimensional work larger than 16 inches by 20 inches will be accepted. He said all three-dimensional work must be pre-assembled and ready for display.

Entry forms may be picked up at the MU Information Desk, or the MU Activities Center, he said. A fee of 50 cents per entry is required.

Robert said work will be judged by a group of recognized authorities and experts in the field of creative arts. A catalog will be printed to include names of accepted artists and reproductions of prize winning work, he said.

Deliveries should be made to the MU Activities Center Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"The problems," Nelson said, "are just a few of the many serious problems faced by the school."

Nelson said, "Arizona suffers from the lack of sufficient facilities."

However, he said, "It is not all the fault of the industrial school because the school is forced to deal with too many different types of problems and too many different types of kids at the same time," all under one basic program.

"What they've got to do," Nelson said, "is to develop enough other facilities with privately and publicly operated facilities which can offer a variety of approaches to problems."

"The problem," said Nelson, "is the whole correctional system in Arizona, and they'll be the first ones to admit it." Arizona is far behind most other states in its correctional methods, he said.

Nelson commented on the Ft. Grant investigation recently ordered by Gov. Williams by saying that Steve Vukcevic, superintendent of the school, "can put on a very beautiful performance. A few nights at the Buckskin Ranch as guests of Vukcevic can impress anybody." The Buckskin Ranch, owned by Vukcevic, is used frequently to entertain guests of the school.

Women swimmers host coed nationals

By RUTH WOOTTEN

For those guys who like to see swim suit competition, over 330 coeds will be competing when ASU hosts the Women's National Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Championships starting tomorrow and continuing through Saturday at the Sun Devil pool.

Winning the nationals is beginning to be a habit for the Devils; they have won every national meet since first entering in 1967. Additionally, the women's team has only lost two meets of any sort in the 14 years ASU has had a swimming pool.

"It should be a really good meet," said Mrs. Mona Plummer, women's swim coach since 1957.

The Sun Devil squad has 22 qualified swimmers and divers. Among those entered are Penney Estes, Kathy Mathis, Didgie Blair, 1968 Olympian Jan Henne, Tina Heepie, Cindi Stock, Carol Figueroa, Carol Quintana, Leslie Webber and Claudia Bullard.

Mrs. Plummer cited the West Chester State, PA., team as offering rough competition and said, "they look very strong this year." West Chester has finished second to the Devils in the past three national competitions.

Colorado State promises to be another top water sports contender. In the 1970 nationals, the team finished third. Mrs. Plummer said the Devils' victory at the Intermountain district meet was the toughest ever against CSU because, "they have a real good team in this part of the country."

At 9:30 each morning of the meet, swimming preliminaries will be held until approximately noon. The swimming consolation finals and finals will begin at 3:30 all three afternoons.

The diving preliminaries and semi-finals will begin at 11 a.m. March 26 and 27. Finals will be held at 4:45 p.m. on those two days.

Admission is 50 cents.

Schmuck paces offensive punch

By KEN CERINO

A great part of Arizona State's baseball team's success has been due to its potent offense.

As a team, the Devils are hitting .317 compared to .227 for their opponents. They have exploded for 63 extra-base hits compared to 33 for the enemy.

Through 21 games, seven players are hitting over .300.

Roger Schmuck is pacing the crew with a .454 average, going 29 of 64.

Schmuck has hit six doubles and four triples and is second to Al Bannister in RBI's with 18.

Kent Jacobson is second at .385. Jac, as he is known to his teammates, is 25 for 65 with six doubles and a home run.

Al Bannister is the only man who has seen action in every game. The Buena Park native is showing why coach Bobby Winkles has him in the clean-up spot.

Bannister led the team in RBI's with 22 and in times up and hits (30-84, .358).

Another of Bannister's valuable assets is his glove — through 21 games, he has handled 97 chances with only two errors.

The other top hitters include: Gary Atwell (21-58, .353), Johnny Sain (19-57, .334), Jerry Mantlo (15-47, .319), and Rick Valley (17-55, .310).

Valley leads the team with walks with 22 and is tied with Schmuck with 17 runs scored.

The first three leadoff hitters for the devils (Reed, Valley, and Atwell) have accounted for 47 runs scored while Schmuck and Bannister have driven in 40.

Even the pitchers are getting into the batting act along with their fine performances on the mound.

Jim Crawford is hitting the ball at a .388 clip while his counterpart, Craig Swan is hitting a respectable .286.

These statistics are for all games up to March 21, and do not include Riverside Tournament play.

Clubs forming

The Lacrosse Club is holding its first meeting at 7:30 p.m., Thursday in MU 265. Billed as "the fastest sport on two feet," Lacrosse is of Iroquois origin. Those interested should attend or call captain John Arenare, 965-2769.

The M.U. Chess Association will hold its initial organizational meeting from one to five tomorrow afternoon in the Cochise room of the MU. For further information, call Michael Thomas, 955-6872.

LOVE

SO LET'S KEEP THE

Lovable imp

Designed by the Walt Disney Studios, our lovable, little Sun Devil has been with us for 25 years. During his lifetime, he has helped ASU grow from a small teachers' college of less than a thousand students to the great, multi-purpose University she is today. The smiling imp, with pitchfork in hand, has helped our baseball team win three national championships and he's busy working on a fourth. He's helped our football team through two undefeated seasons and a Peach Bowl victory. 25 is too young to die. Please don't be an executioner. After all, he is one of our few remaining traditions.

The other odor

No feminine spray can stop it.

The "other" odor. It starts in the vaginal track where no spray can work. You can't spray it away. And it's more offensive than external odor caused by perspiration.

That's the reason you need Norforms "the second deodorant." These tiny suppositories kill germs — stop odor in the vaginal tract for hours. Something no spray can do. And doctor-tested Norforms can be used as often as necessary. They insert easily, quickly.
