

Butte fence gets barbed

By JIM FINN

A barbed wire extension will be added to the top of the fence on the butte west of Sun Devil Stadium before the homecoming football game against the University of Wyoming Nov. 10.

Lt. Irving Jaffe of University Police said the barbed wire extension was ordered because of recent injuries and violence on the butte. University Police have reported 10 injuries, three assaults and two cases of public intoxication on the butte this year.

"The main idea is not to keep people out," Jaffe said. "The University isn't worried about losing football revenue."

"The University is worried about safety and the possibility of liability in cases when somebody gets hurt on University property."

During football games, a regular crowd of several hundred climbs on the hazardous butte, and at some day games the butte audience has been estimated at 1,000.

A seven-foot chain link fence was completed in 1971, but it failed to keep away the crowds.

"The fence is a Mickey Mouse thing in the first place," Jaffe said. "It's too low and almost anyone can climb right over it. People have also been crawling under the fence in several spots."

Jaffe said the only way to keep out people with a fence patrol would be to place 100 officers along the 1,700-foot fence.

He said University Police have also been concerned with the safety of officers in the area. Several officers were pelted with rocks in one incident on the butte this fall.

University Safety Officer Dale Partridge said the University is liable when people are injured on the butte.

"The University is liable unless we do everything possible to keep people out and keep them from getting hurt," Partridge said. He said persons injured on the butte could sue ASU and collect damages.

Partridge said another concern in the matter is the incidence of butte-sitters throwing rocks into the stadium seating areas.

Jaffe said the butte on the east side of the stadium has never been a problem, and the fence on that butte will not get a barbed wire extension. "It's a smaller butte with less fence to patrol," Jaffe said. "We keep two men up there during the games, but people just don't go up there. I guess they can't see as well."

A $2,945 contract for the barbed wire extension has been awarded to John L. Gray Inc., a Phoenix fence firm.

Professor claims group bargaining destroys ideals

By RACHELLE OREAR

Collective bargaining "will sound the deathnell of education" by encouraging the totalitarianism of academic ideals, Robert Loewenberg, assistant professor of history at ASU, said in an interview yesterday.

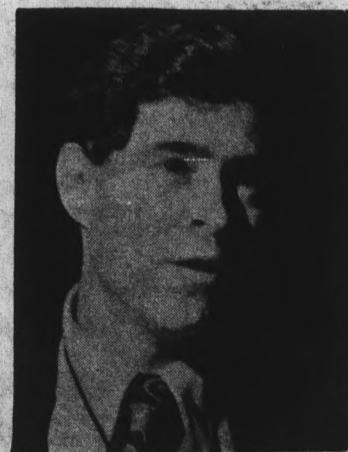

Loewenberg said unionization is retrograde in two respects.

Its appeal is largely to people who are mediocre, he said, and unionization creates a vested interest in forms of behavior which are now on the way out.

Approximately 50 of ASU's 2,000 faculty members met Thursday to discuss the possibility of collective bargaining for the University faculty.

Collective bargaining would solidify and institutionalize these retrogressive tendencies, Loewenberg said.

In the past three years the cost of living has risen 8 per cent, while faculty salaries have had only a 4 per cent increase.

Robert Loewenberg

This fact does not offer sufficient reason for faculty members to unionize, he said. "Let them get another job."

Loewenberg does not feel a personal need for any additional voice in the administration.

"I have always had a voice in what I am teaching. Nobody has told me what I should and shouldn't teach," he said.

"I'll tell you the kind of protection I need," he said. "It's against the kind of uniformities in collective bargaining."

Collective bargaining regulates opinion and this deadens opinions, he said.

Loewenberg cited as an example the recent decision at Berkeley to outlaw certain kinds of genetic research.

"It was a move by unionists," he said.

"Unionization is just another step on the way to that kind of development."

Egypt says it can defeat Israel

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Wednesday Egyptian forces could easily defeat Israeli units on the west bank of the Suez Canal.

Sadat said pressure is building up for an Egyptian strike. He said he is holding back because President Nixon asked for more time to get Israel to pull back from territory taken in the fighting.

"Militarily this is easy . . . the east bank forces of the Egyptian 3rd Army are well entrenched while the rest and larger part of this army is now behind the Israeli forces on the west bank," Sadat said in a news conference.

Sadat's statement conflicted with Israeli claims that they have the 3rd Army surrounded on the east bank of the canal.

Nixon, committee negotiating

The White House acknowledged Wednesday it was negotiating with the Senate Watergate committee about President Nixon's bank account records in Key Biscayne, Fla.

Committee sources said they were seeking the bank records, but the White House said it is not certain what is being sought.

Charles "Bebe" Rebozo, a close friend of Nixon, is president of the bank.

The Watergate committee also heard that President Nixon's 1972 campaign paid at least $110,000 to hire 22 political spies and saboteurs.

Committee investigator Mark Lackritz said the spies were used to infiltrate and disrupt Democratic presidential campaigns.

Saxbe might be atty. gen.

Sen. William Saxbe said Wednesday he is relatively sure he will be named U.S. attorney general. Saxbe admitted this after a meeting with President Nixon.

The White House refused to say if Saxbe is in line for the nomination. Former Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson resigned Oct. 20 after President Nixon ordered him to fire special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Military alert cancelled

The Pentagon announced yesterday the United States has ended the worldwide military alert called last week.

About 350,000 soldiers and sailors in Europe and the Atlantic fleet returned to normal military duty at midnight Tuesday.

The Pentagon said an alert of about 50,000 Soviet paratroopers in Russia and eastern Europe has ended also.

New justice committee

Law prof accepts advisor post

By DEBBE NELSON

Jack La Sota, assistant dean at the College of Law, has been named chairman of the newly organized Criminal Justice Planning Advisory Committee.

"This is a group set up to look over the workings of the whole criminal justice system in Phoenix, those parts the city can change, such as the police, the city courts, the prosecutors, and also the other facets that effect the city, but which Phoenix has no control over," La Sota said.

The committee of 12 includes three lawyers and five women, he said. Natalie Woodman, assistant dean of the ASU Graduate School of Social Service Administration, and Bobbie Jo McElroy from the center for criminal justice will also participate in the group.

Although the committee will have no definite power, La Sota said they will issue reports, make recommendations and support their ideas with factual material.

"I expect our work will lead to some changes in areas Phoenix can change and lead the city council to advocate changes that they themselves have no power over," he said.

"What I'm really talking about is pressure."

La Sota said, an example, a superior court judge is needed 24 hours a day in order for police to get search warrants. Although the city cannot directly change this, by showing need and pressure to the state legislature, some action could result.

He pointed to a stack of thick paperbacks. "There's a lot happening with criminal justice nationally. These books contain the latest thinking.

"Whether it can be and should be applied to changing the system in Phoenix, Arizona is what we'll be studying," he said.

The committee will also aid in the planning of federal revenue sharing fund expenditures, La Sota said.

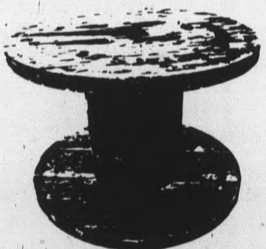

"I really don't know how it happened that I was chosen to be chairman," he said. "I guess because they know me in Phoenix and I have been involved in other new developments in criminal law."

La Sota was the legal adviser to the Phoenix police department for four-and-a-half years.

He worked on a committee that drafted new rules of criminal procedure in courts and he is a member of the Criminal Code Commission which is in the process of rewriting all of Arizona's criminal statutes.

The Criminal Justice Planning Advisory Committee will meet for orientation in mid-November.

ASU theater acts in folktale

Tales of the supernatural, surrealistic scenery depicting the Smoky Mountains of North Carolina, and southern folk music and dancing will come together as the ASU Theater presents "Dark of the Moon."

The play, based on the folk-ballad of Barbara Allen and the witch boy, will be presented at 8 tonight through Sunday and Nov. 8 — 11 in the Lyceum Theatre.

The ballad tells of a witch boy (Frederic Winslow Oram) who falls in love with a mountain maiden (Patricia Bechtold). He is turned into a human so he can be with her on the condition that she be faithful to him for one year.

But the superstitious townspeople, fearful of the boy, pressure her into unfaithfulness, breaking the spell.

Donald Doyle is directing the production, which features a large cast and period costumes from the turn of the century.

The original Broadway drama, written by Howard Richardson and William Berney, won the Maxwell Anderson Award for verse drama in the 1940's.

Tickets are on sale at the Lyceum box office. Tickets are a $1.00 for Thursday and Sunday. Admission on Friday and Saturday is $1.50.

MU provides matinee films for disabled

Special Friday matinees have been scheduled to run in the MU Pinal Room to meet the needs of disabled students unable to attend films in the MU Movie House.

"Gone With the Wind" will be shown Nov. 9 at 1:30 p.m.

Tickets will go on sale Monday in the MU Activities Center for $1.

Only 40 tickets will be available for these matinees — 20 for disabled students and 20 for those who accompany them. Tickets available at show time will be on sale to anyone at the door, however.

"Cabaret" will be shown at 2 p.m. November 7, and "Nicholas and Alexandra" will be shown at 2 p.m., November 30.

The Memorial Union Movie House is not equipped with ramp that would allow disabled students access to the facility, so the film committee scheduled the special showings.

Handbook tells tenants of rights

Tenant and landlord rights are spelled out in the Renter's Handbook published by the Associated Student's Tenants Association. The handbook is in response to the Uniform Residential Landlord and Tenants Act which became effective in Arizona on Aug. 6.

Before the bill was passed, exact tenant and landlord rights and obligations were very vague, even though the landlord was favored, said Wayne Johnson, director of the Tenants Association.

"Now you have a balance between the rights and obligations of both the landlord and the tenant," Johnson said.

The handbook was written by Johnson, and spells out tenant and landlord rights and obligations under the new act. The handbook is Johnson's interpretation of probable student tenant needs while at ASU.

The Tenants Association can only give students advice concerning their rights and obligations as tenants. However, the advice must not be construed as legal advice, Johnson said.

Another function the Tenants Association has is that of mediator between tenants and landlords, Johnson stated.

Johnson said the tenant association presents an image of power to the landlords, even though the association has no real power.

Copies of the handbook are available at the ASASU offices in the MU.

Caring about people

State Representative Bill McCune deserves some credit.

It's becoming more and more rare these days to see a legislator who seems to actually care about the problems of the people, even when they don't wield powerful purses.

McCune was on campus Monday to get a first-hand look at the parking situation at the McClintock-Gammage complex. Girls living in the dorms had sent complaints to McCune and other legislators about the distance they have to park from their dorm, and possibilities of their being attacked as they walk from the parking lot at night.

After failing to receive an adequate response to his inquiries addressed to the administration, McCune paid a visit to the dorms and spoke personally to their residents.

They showed him the lack of adequate parking facilities near the dorm, the poor lighting and some potential solutions to the problems.

McCune promised to continue to pursue the matter and not to accept rationale from the University such as "We don't have the money to study the problem."

There are those who will argue that McCune was only here for the free publicity and potential votes his visit could bring. If this is the case, more power to him.

If more politicians would follow his example and do their campaigning by getting involved with the people, listening to their problems and looking for solutions, this so-called government by the people would begin to show its true value.

The roar of the crowd

How unfortunate that so few people attended the weekend showing of "The Gold Rush," one of Charlie Chaplin's funniest and most moving pictures.

Sponsored by the ASASU Cultural Affairs Board, the movie was shown in Neeb Hall, which seats 500. However, an average of only 91 persons attended the four performances, an ASASU spokesman said.

I can think of some explanations for the poor turnout, though none of them is satisfactory. Possibly the university community, which is used to seeing movies for free at Neeb, didn't want to pay $1 ($1.50 for non-members).

But this won't wash, since the same university community pays good money (if you can call what's left of the dollar, that) to see less renowned movies on campus. If "Ryan's Daughter" was sold out for four performances or (God help us) "Dr. Zhivago" for six, which they were, then Charlie Chaplin warrants a crowd sufficient to fill Sun Devil Stadium.

The other reason might be that the university community doesn't find Chaplin worthwhile. If this is so, how sad.

Of the man, James Agee wrote: "The finest pantomime, the deepest emotion, the richest and most poignant poetry were in Chaplin's work." I don't think posterity will use similar words to describe most of the movies that have been and will be shown on campus this or any year.

I wouldn't use them to describe "The Candidate," "Super Fly," "The Music Lover," "Funny Girl," and "Butterflies Are Free;" or even "The Last Picture Show," "Five Easy Pieces" and "Bullit," decent movies, but certainly not classics.

I also realize that Chaplin's movies have been shown in the Valley throughout the years, so many people have seen them. True. But there are many people who haven't seen them, either because they were otherwise occupied or once may have been too young to appreciate or be interested in Chaplin.

Alas, all is not lost, since seven other Chaplin pictures will be shown at Neeb throughout the school year. These include "Modern Times" and "The Great Dictator," my two favorite Chaplins. The next Chaplin will be "The Circus" on Nov. 16-17.

If more people don't attend the Chaplin series, it will be a crime, one of the few we can't blame these days on the Watergate crowd.

SP series: A sense of community

Starting tomorrow on the editorial page will be a series of articles dealing with the sense of community on the ASU campus, or better the lack of it.

The State Press has been interviewing professors and administrators from various disciplines and getting their views on the sense of community at ASU, should there be one, how can the campus acquire this sense and is it really an advantage to have this community feeling.

'I NEED A NICE POLITE PARROT WHO'LL SIT ON MY SHOULDER AND SPEAK WHEN HE'S SPOKEN TO!'

STATE PRESS is published by Arizona State University Tuesday through Friday during the academic year, except holidays and examination periods. Entered as second class matter at Tempe, AZ, 85281.

Speech, theater offer syllabuses

The syllabus for each class offered by the department of speech and theater during the spring semester will be available Nov. 6 according to Prof. William E. Arnold, department chairman.

"This gives the advisor and the student a chance to look over the course before the student enters it," Arnold said.

The syllabus will include a list of required texts, the goals of the course, the assignments, and the types and number of examinations.

Arnold said the syllabuses will be put into booklet form and be available from the speech and theater department and the library. He said he hopes to have at least one copy available in each department office on campus.

Arnold said the advance syllabus should eliminate a lot of drop-add problems because the student will know the nature of the course and the work required in advance of registration.

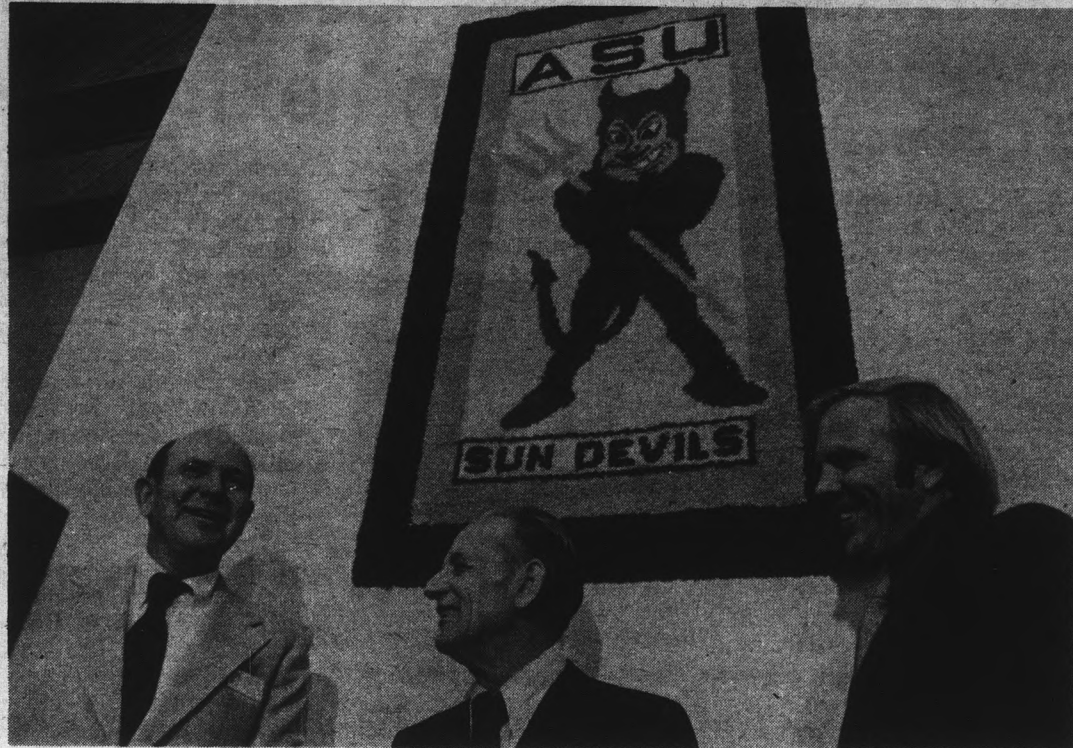

"If there is enough student interest (in the advance syllabus) I'll make it permanent and begin a program of preview courses," Arnold said.

To preview a course the student would receive the advance syllabus and spend some time speaking to the instructor about the course. Arnold said it would be a 'get acquainted' session.

He said the advance syllabus will eliminate registration confusion and aid advisement.

"I think we will come to the time when every syllabus is going to have to be available in the Dean's Office," Arnold said.

Laine's popularity in this country began with a recording of "Show Boat" in which she starred as Julie. She performed in Carnegie Hall last April and is presently touring the United States.

The New York Times described Laine's voice as "exotically dark, breathy... as she covers sources from T.S. Eliot to Bessie Smith with a polished artistry." Laine will appear with an ensemble headed by her husband, John Dankworth.

UofA tackle earns honor

Nine unassisted tackles, one assisted tackle and a fumble recovery in Arizona's 42-21 victory over Utah Saturday earned Wildcat defensive tackle Mike Dawson honors as Western Athletic Conference defensive player of the week.

Dawson has 41 unassisted tackles and 23 assists, plus nine tackles that resulted in the loss of yardage for the opposing offense in six games this season.

Other nominees for the defensive award were New Mexico's middle guard John Woodcock, Colorado State defensive end Dave Duncan, ASU linebacker Jim Baker, Wyoming linebacker Frank Erzinger and Texas-El Paso defensive end Rick Lopez.

Sun Imps travel; meet UofA Friday

The Arizona State Sun Imps will go into Tucson Friday with one win, a loss, and a tie season record to face the University of Arizona Wildkittens at 7:30 p.m.

In Saturday's contest against Scottsdale Community College, the Imps scored 14 points in the fourth quarter, managing a 27-27 tie.

One of the bright spots in the Scottsdale game was the combined passing of five Sun Imp quarterbacks.

They totaled 21 completions in 46 attempts for 324 yards. Kirk Carter's eight completions for 167 yards was the best statistically, but it was Tim Duffy's two touchdown passes in the final quarter that got the tie.

In three Sun Imp games, Duffy has thrown 14 completions for 249 yards and four touchdowns.

Carter has completed 10 passes for 191 yards.

"Coach Kush wants all the quarterbacks to see playing time so we can analyze them under game conditions," freshman coach Bill Kajikawa said. "We let each one take a few series of downs and then send the next one in."

Kajikawa said Duffy would be the starting quarterback for the Arizona game if he is available to the freshman. Duffy has been with the varsity throughout the week and may make the trip with the Sun Devils to Utah Saturday.

Leading the Sun Imps receivers is wingback Paul Ervin, who has nine catches for 203 yards and two touchdowns for a 22.6 yard average. Split end Larry Mucker has five catches for 84 yards and two touchdowns.

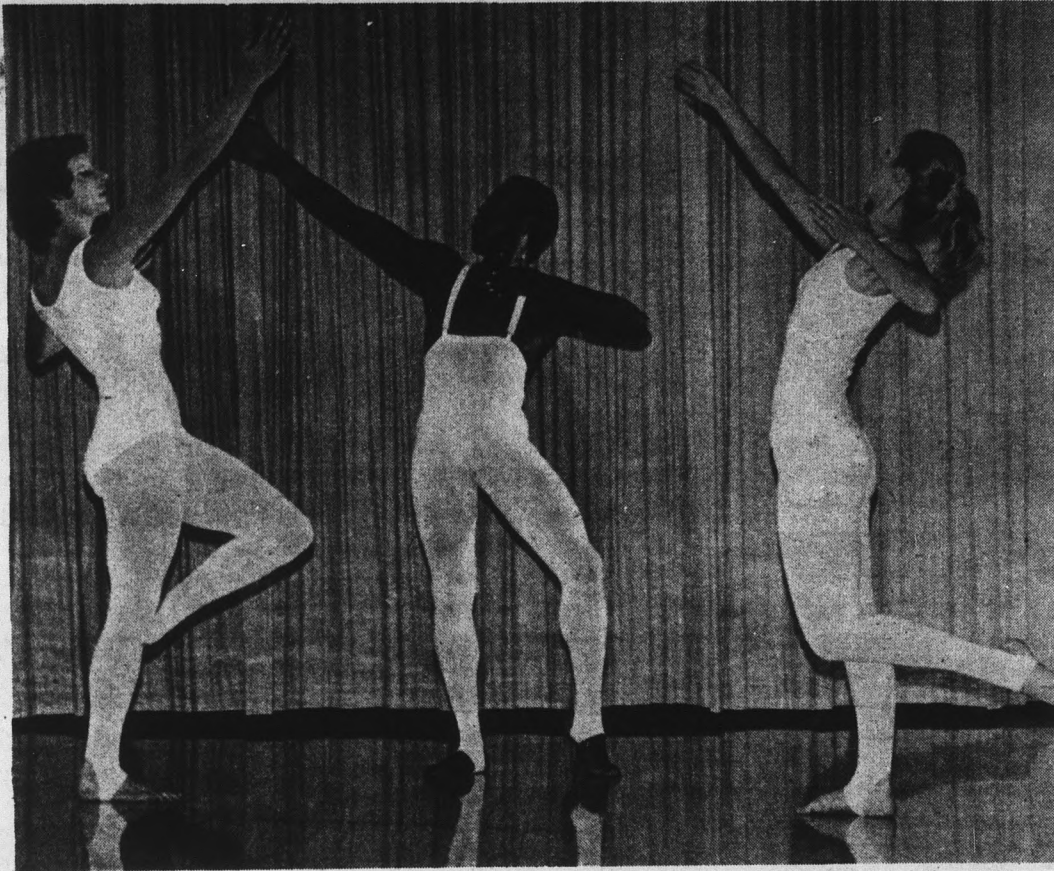

Kajikawa said linebacker Mike Douglas and safety Frank Allen have been standouts on the defensive squad.

The Sun Imps are close to the opposition in scoring, as they've scored 59 points and given up 58. In total offense, the Imps hold a slight lead with 881 yards as compared to 822 yards for their opponents.

Marilyn Read (left), Dennis Wright and Carolyn Klismith perform an archaic dance form for the University Dance Theater performance tonight and tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Women's Physical Education Building.

Dance theater stages fall show

The University Dance Theater will stage its annual fall performance at 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday in the Dance Studio of the Women's Physical Education building.

A lecture-demonstration by Phyllis Haskell will open the program. The lecture will be illustrated with dances and will encompass major dance styles throughout history.

Starting with current trends and backtracking to the earliest styles, Haskell will show how the various forms still influence today's dance.

Three student-choreographed works will be featured during the second part of the program. Patricia Payne's "Serenade" is choreographed to music by Beethoven. "Curios," choreographed by Carolyn Klismith, Ruth Lebrun, and Dennis Wright, will be performed to music by Charles Koechlin. Flutist Edwin Putnik and pianist Jean Barr will perform this music-live.

The final work, "Fields," is choreographed by Kimberly Moke to music by Arlo Guthrie and features David Lowenstein on harmonica (taped).

Proficiency test can substitute as basic English

The English Proficiency Exam will be given from 3-5 p.m. on Nov. 13 in Language and Literature C-57.

All students who received a "D" or lower in EN 101, 102 or 104 must pass this examination before graduating.
