Tempe, Arizona

Which way did it go?

Sun Devil Clay Westlake streaks into first while Cal-Irving's first baseman ponders the delivery of an elusive baseball. ASU won one of the double-header 7-1 and Cal-Irving won the other 6-4.

World View

Watergate committee will compromise

The Senate Watergate Committee told the U.S. Court of Appeals Monday it is willing to compromise in the fight to obtain five subpoenaed presidential tape recordings. The committee said as a last resort it would withhold the public release of the tapes but would leave the door open for future release.

Jurors added in Mitchell-Stans trial

Fourteen more potential jurors were qualified Monday to try former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans on charges of exchanging their political influence for a secret $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's 1972 Presidential campaign.

British face crisis

The British government reported Monday the biggest trading loss in its history. It said the nation would need massive foreign credit to pay its debts.

Free food distribution

Trucks bearing tons of free food headed for distribution centers Monday as Randolph Hearst complied with $6 million food give-away demands of the kidnappers of his daughter Patricia.

Symbionese members plead innocent

Two Symbionese Liberation Army members pleaded innocent Monday to murder charges in the slaying of Oakland School Supt. Marcus Foster.

Delays increase gas shortage

The end of the month gasoline squeeze grew tighter Monday and delays in extra allocations ordered by the Federal Energy Office will probably make the problem worse.

Gold prices soar

The price of gold reached a record high of $169 per ounce on European markets and dealers say it has still not reached a ceiling price.

Kissinger arrives on peace mission

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arrived in London on the first stop of a new Mideast peace mission for disengagement of Israeli and Syrian forces. Kissinger said he is confident that Syrian President Hafez Assad would hand over a list of Israeli war prisoners. Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, who is planning to quit his cabinet position, will meet with Kissinger Wednesday when he arrives in Israel.

List marks beginning of University carpool

Appearing below and on page three is a copy of the printout from the ASU computer showing those persons who had submitted forms for the campus carpool by Friday.

Those participating in the carpool should locate those on the printout with similar arrival and departure times living in the same or nearby areas. After a carpool has been set up, participants should inform the Associated Students office (965-3142) so their names can be deleted from the list.

Those wishing to participate whose names do not appear on the list may simply call an appropriate person on the list, or may submit forms for the program to the ASASU office, so their names can be entered on the list.

Forms for the program and maps showing area numbers are available in the ASASU office, on the second floor of the Memorial Union.

Don't settle for a mediocre speaker — check out our new arrival — the ESS Amt 4. After all, the essential reason behind selecting a speaker is its quality sound, not its low price. And the Amt 4's price is reasonable.

So make it a point to drop by this week. A short demonstration should be ample proof that the ESS Amt 4 is light years ahead of its competitors when it comes to pure sound reproduction. No previous experience in high fidelity sound will have prepared you for this.

What has made this quantum leap in quality of sound per dollar possible? The ESS Amt 4 (like the higher-priced speakers in the Amt series), is constructed around an elegantly simple piece of design genius: The Heil Air-Motion Transformer. This remarkably efficient little device represents the first authentically new concept in sound generation to come along in 50 years. Since you'll want all the technical details, ask for ESS's informative brochure. In it you'll find an in-depth description of how sound is reproduced by squeezing the air —

Nixon's Humor

A funny thing happened over the weekend. President Nixon appointed a committee to look into protecting every American's right to privacy.

That's great.

The President's show for privacy protection revolves around the use of computerized data banks by government and private agencies.

"Adequate safeguards must always stand watch so that man remains the master — and never becomes the victim — of the computer," Nixon said.

The concept of protecting people from these frequently-erroneous data banks is a good one. Coming from a Watergate president, however, protection of privacy goals take on characteristics of a black comedy.

"I want . . . to provide a personal shield for every American which he can use to protect his right to privacy," Nixon said.

Perhaps the President thinks his new committee can help the image of his administration when further Watergate inditements start pouring out.

It would have been interesting to see the reactions of people like Lawrence O'Brien (who's phone was tapped in the Democratic National Headquarters of the Watergate); presidential candidates who were sabotaged — like Edmund Muskie, Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern; Daniel Ellsberg and his burglarized psychiatrist; the still-incarcerated members of the "Plumbers" unit; and the large number of former Nixon aides and friends now facing indictments around the country. They of all people, should appreciate the tragic humor in the President's actions.

Maybe the privacy committee was not designed to improve the image of the Nixon administration. It may be designed to serve as a diversionary tactic. Everyone will be laughing too much to notice the country falling apart.

Art contest reply

EDITOR:

In reply to Mr. George Gamboa's letter of Wednesday, February 20, the Memorial Union Art Committee sincerely felt that this year's rules for Photography 5, the fifth annual student photography competition and exhibition, were the most equitable in five years of evolving the show into hopefully one of the best group photographic exhibitions in the Valley area.

Of the three judges, who are highly recognized in their field, two could be called art photographers and the third a commercial photographer. Therefore, the Art Committee feels there was fair jury representation according to the percentage of types of entries.

The judging was held February 7 in the MU Gallery and was open to the campus community.

Entrants who attended the jurying were encouraged to question the judges in an open discussion of selected and rejected works.

The Art Committee also disagrees with Mr. Gamboa's critique that works in the exhibition are "bizarre, obscure, and out of focus." Although picture-pretty photos are not in abundance, most works in the exhibition are carefully composed, meticulously printed, and, for the most part, direct approaches to the subject matter.

The committee does, however, appreciate Mr. Gamboa's interest and suggestions and because other students have also made inquiries, a meeting is planned for the near future in which constructive suggestions can be aired for next year's show. Individual entrants will be notified by mail of the time and place for such a discussion.

Sincerely,
Roseanne Cartledge

Regent support

EDITOR:

I wish to make a few comments on your editorial of Feb. 20, "The End Begins." In your chastisement of the Board of Regents you fail to discern their right, as rational beings, to continually review ALL decisional factors in flux and amend any and all previous resolutions.

Although NOT an avid football fan, I do, however, believe that professional football in Phoenix would create considerable long term benefits.

Of course, disadvantages do exist, but they are far from being commensurate with the beneficial aspects of establishing a professional franchise in Phoenix.

In regards to detrimental effects to the University community and the ASU football squad, the Board of Regents must act in a prudent manner in contracting a lease agreement. A short run lease, maximum of 2 years, would NOT cause irreparable damage to ASU and would, in the long run, benefit ASU, our football team and, most importantly, Metropolitan Phoenix.

Lastly, do not be overly concerned with CURRENT House members opinions. Their views will change as public approval of the expansion club and proposed stadium becomes evident.

Sincerely,
Israel M. Knobel

UofA blacks allege race discrimination

The Black Student Union's Committee on Racism and Discrimination at the UofA recently issued 23 charges against the University, the Wildcat Student Newspaper, reported Friday.

Chairman Walter A. Hill indicated the committee will submit proposals for solving the problems. "We don't want to deal with confrontation tactics," he said.

The committee in part charged the University with not following guidelines for hiring black professors, with inadequate academic counseling of black students, with inadequate financial assistance for blacks, and with misrepresentations of black news and culture in the Wildcat.

Hill indicated the charges and proposed solutions will be presented when the committee decides which administrative office should receive them.

African dance band to perform March 2

They eat fire, dance on broken glass, and wear authentic African attire. Nine Africans, in Phoenix to observe Black Heritage Week at ASU, will perform March 2 at the South Mountain High School auditorium.

Emperor Dele Ojo and his Africana International Dance Band Troupe from Nigeria will be part of the activities scheduled for the Black Heritage Festivities at ASU.

The activities will be presented by Umba Ujaama, a new black organization on campus. The group has been on campus since early fall but was not recognized by the University until this semester.

"The function of the organization is to supply the community with a creative educational influence," said Gregory Taylor, moderator for Umba Ujaama.

Taylor said the Phoenix area is deprived of black culture and the group was formed to bring about a sensitivity to black arts.

"Right now, we are involved with the black heritage program. We have five on-going workshops; art, writers, music, photography, and readers," said Taylor.

Black Heritage Week will be observed from Feb. 28 to March 3.

Devils eye last two games

By Roger Wittlin

The ASU basketball team has two remaining games and the motive for winning each is as different as the opposing teams.

At San Diego State tonight, the Sun Devils face a non-conference foe with a 5-18 record.

When ASU meets Arizona Saturday, more than pride will be on the line. A defeat will put an end to the Devils' conference title hopes.

Arizona and New Mexico share the conference lead with 9-4 WAC records. They each have one game remaining.

The Sun Devils are 8-5 after weekend wins over Utah and Brigham Young, 72-68 and 100-77 respectively. The wins were particularly pleasing to Wulk, whose team bounced back from a disastrous road trip against New Mexico and Texas-El Paso.

"We probably played our best trapping defensive game of the season, against Brigham Young," Wulk said.

The offense was also clicking against BYU. The Devils hit 45 of 67 field goal attempts for a .663 percentage, breaking a WAC record. The Devils made an incredible 26 of 32 attempts in the second half, also a WAC record. Guards Lionel Hollins and Mike Moon led the ASU shooting, combining for 19 field goals in 21 attempts.

The win gave ASU a chance to compete in post-season tournament play. They can do this in two ways;

A win over Arizona and a New Mexico loss to UTEP would tie the Devils for first-place with Arizona, UTEP, New Mexico and Utah, if the Utes win their two remaining games.

A tie for first would cause a playoff beginning March 4 at Fort Collins, Colo.

Another way ASU can reach post-season play is to tie for second place. If the Devils beat Arizona, and New Mexico wins its last game, the title will go to New Mexico, and second place a tie for second between ASU, Arizona and Utah will exist.

ASU, rather than Arizona or Utah, would go to the new conference runner-up tournament in St. Louis.

Arizona is not eligible for the runner-up tournament because of an NCAA rule which restricts a school from post-season play if it is hosting a tournament; Tucson is the site of the NCAA Western Regionals. ASU defeated Utah twice, so a tie for second with the Utes would give ASU the nod.

Devils drop to 5-4

ASU's baseball team is only 5-4 after the first two weeks of the season and Coach Jim Brock is concerned. "You could say we're behind schedule," he said.

The Sun Devils dropped two of three games to Cal-Irvine last weekend, giving them their worst start since 1970, when they were 3-6.

"I would have been happy at 6-3," Brock said. "It wouldn't have been great, but it would be ok."

Brock said losing the Cal-Irvine series at home upset him the most. "When we lost that second game Saturday, I became concerned. You should never lose a home series."

ASU lost 4-2 to the Anteaters Friday night and split the Saturday doubleheader, winning the first game 7-1 and losing the second one 6-4.

"We have more good young players on campus now than we ever had before, it's just a question of whether or not they are ready to play this caliber of ball," Brock said. He added it is obvious there are not enough players ready for the type of competition the Devils have faced so far this season.

The inconsistent pitching of the team is a mystery to Brock. He said he did not have any one pitcher to call on in a tight spot. Doug Slocum, whose 13-1 record last season earned him the top spot in the pitching rotation, has started off slowly, being forced out of both games he has started.

Rick Bethke after pitching a good game the first week, turned in a sub-par performance last weekend against Cal-Irvine.

Brock said he would not be concerned with pitching if Bethke becomes consistent and Slocum improves.

ASU's hitting has not been overpowering so far this season. The Devils are batting .273 after nine games.

"We have just four home runs and all of them came in a rout," he said. "We have enough good hitters and once they start going we can get some kind of pitching rotation."

"We've just got to hang on," Brock said.

The Sun Devils will play the University of Nevada at Las Vegas at 3 p.m. today on Sun Devil Field.

For film sequel

Student lands movie role

Alan Sands is an example of the success of self-promotion.

Sands has promoted his way from an extra to a much-seen minor character in the sequel movie "The Trial of Billy Jack."

Director-producer Tom Laughlin decided to utilize local talent for the film and auditioned 250 ASU students in early 1973. Sands was one of seven extras chosen.

Laughlin, who also co-wrote and stars in the title role, will release the film this year.

Filming began on location at St. John's Indian School, west of Phoenix.

Six other ASU students participated in the Phoenix portion of the film but were not asked to continue with the crew in the Tucson filming. However, Sands said he talked the casting director into letting him go, as an extra, to the Tucson location.

The film focuses on an Indian half-breed, Billy Jack, who leads a progressive school of young people. Controversy and riots result from a trial in which he is the defendant.

Sands landed the film role as the assistant editor of the college newspaper and appears under his own name.

Acting has always interested Sands. He performed in the ASU Student Experimental Theater's production of "Talk to Me Like the Rain and Let Me Listen."

He also played Young Scrooge in Dicken's "A Christmas Carol," which was produced by the ASU Theater.

Sands said he is excited about the film and feels that it will definitely be a success.

"I've had a lot of disappointments but the movie seems like a dream to me," he said.
