By John Lemmons

An investigation has been initiated by the political science department to try to determine the author of several letters and notes which make accusations against two professors in the department, said Dr. Jack Holmes, chairman of the political science department.

Holmes said the investigation was centered around two anonymous notes. "One morning when I got here there was stuck in the card slot in the door a two-by-five card with four or five lines on it — fairly scurrilous — inviting Professor Zoll to get lots," he said.

Holmes said Zoll also got a note in the departmental mail demanding his resignation. He said letters critical of Zoll had been sent to the State Press and the Republic.

"Dr. Zoll was very distressed," said Holmes. "I asked Dr. Zoll if he wanted to pursue the matter to ascertain where the thing had come from and he said yes."

The letter received by the State Press was typed on political science department stationery. It made accusations against Zoll and Dr. John White, another professor of political science. The letter was unsigned.

Holmes said he thinks he knows who wrote the letter but said he would hate to make a public accusation without more proof.

Holmes said the investigation has not been concluded. "We've attempted to ascertain what typewriter the thing was done on and who might have had access to the typewriter," he said. "There are not too many in the department with this type face."

Holmes said he and his secretary were doing the investigating, admitting they were looking through used carson typewriter ribbons.

Holmes said he was not investigating the accusations made in the letter to the State Press. "If the individual who wrote the letter was not willing to sign the letter then I don't think it is incumbent upon me to attempt, in the dark, to verify this sort of charge," he said.

Holmes said he would investigate any charges that came from a credible source.

Holmes said he didn't know what he would do if he actually did know who wrote the letter and notes. "If it was a

Campaigner charges opposition with making slandering statements

By Debbie Nelson

A campaign worker for Activities Vice Presidential candidate John Ridgway has charged Ridgway's opponent, Boyd Dunn, with making false and slanderous statements.

The statements were made in speeches to several Greek organizations, said James Witherspoon, Ridgway's worker and an opponent to Dunn in the ASASU elections last spring.

Dunn has countered the charges in a complaint stating Witherspoon published copies of his charges against Dunn before Election Coordinator Mike Arruda reviewed the matter.

Witherspoon said Dunn claimed in the speeches the Inter-fraternity Council endorses him. Witherspoon said the I.F.C. does not now, and never has endorsed Dunn.

Dunn also said he has been directly responsible for the success of the Cultural Affairs Board and he has been attending the meetings of the Public Lectures Board.

Ridgway said Dunn seldom attends either meetings and has not introduced one motion to bring a speaker to ASU this year.

Dunn called Ridgway's accusations and distribution of his accusations "slandering and, cheap smear tactics."

Ridgway was accused, earlier in his campaign, of presenting false information in handbills he distributed. In the fliers, he claimed to have brought several speakers to campus and said the number of ASASU concerts in the past year could be counted on one hand.

Arruda said both statements were found to be incorrect. Ridgway was told to stop distribution of the handbills. Ridgway complied and no further action was taken against him.

World View

Minimum wage goes up

Legislation raising the federal minimum wage in stages from $1.60 to $2.30 an hour was signed into law by President Nixon. Nixon vetoed similar legislation last year. He said he was signing the new bill because "raising the minimum wage is now a matter of justice that can no longer be fairly delayed." The measure raises the minimum wage to $2 an hour May 1 and boosts it to $2.30 by 1976.

Nixon spies in IRS

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., said a secret task force to compile intelligence reports on President Nixon's political enemies was set up inside the Internal Revenue Service within months after Nixon was elected. Weicker said by the time the special unit was dismantled by August, 1973, it had amassed intelligence files on 10,000 American taxpayers.

Missiles in Mideast

Saudi Arabia signed a contract Monday with an unnamed United States firm to "develop a missile network system in the desert kingdom, the Saudi radio reported. A Saudi announcement said the United States would provide the country with all its defense needs "as a result of the new agreement." A leftist Beirut newspaper reported Egypt may start getting U.S. arms supplies "directly or through Saudi Arabia."

Syria attends talks

Informed sources in Damascus said Syrian delegates will leave for Washington within the next 48 hours for talks with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on disengagement with Israel on the Golan Heights.

Voters elect mayor, council in Tempe city elections today

Voters will go to the polls today to elect a mayor and three members of the City Council here in Tempe.

In the race for mayor there are three candidates, in the race to fill the council seats there are 11 contenders. The city government race offers the voters a wide range in age and platforms.

The candidates for mayor are William J. LoPiano, 47; Dick Neuheisel, 37; and Jim Barber, 21.

The council candidates are James R. Phillips, 33; Arthur M. Oates, 44; Richard Porter, 18; Harry E. Mitchell 33; Howard C. Hansen, 39; Jean Hunnicutt, 42; Beverly Hermon, 40; Joseph Kropsch, 37; Bruce Hazel, 22; Michael Markotic, 55; Harl Chamberlain, 55.

LoPiano is a chiropractor serving his second four-year term on the city council. LoPiano has stressed his honesty during his eight years of government service and his concern. He has never missed a meeting.

Neuheisel is an attorney and served as a city councilman from 1968 to 1972.

Neuheisel says the issues are city growth, annexation and downtown redevelopment.

Barber is an ASU business administration senior. Barber said as a full-time mayor he will work for direct interaction and involvement between himself and the community.

Students registered to vote in Tempe may vote at one of 19 polling places. The polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Vote Today & Tomorrow

South of Hayden Library — 8:30 to 4:30

Uno-who cartoonist to speak at dinner

Reg Manning

Cartoonist-author Reg Manning will be the Library Associate's guest speaker at a dinner meeting on Thursday April 11.

Mrs. Russel Williams, program chairman, said reservations should be made in advance through Mrs. Kathryn Gammage in the ASU Administration Building, Room 210, 965-6531.

The meeting will start at 6:45 p.m. with a reception in the Alumni Lounge followed by dinner at 7:30 in the Maricopa Room.

Sundry offices contested in ASASU

John Balfour and Rick Weiss will contest for the Associated Students Presidency in general elections today and Wednesday.

Voting will be from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. both days in the moat between Hayden Library and the MU.

To vote, a student must either present:

A validated campus service card with photo, or

A validated campus service card and other identification (such as driver's license) with a photo, or

A tuition receipt card which has been stamped with the words "validated for photo" and other identification with photo.

In addition to the presidential race, Bob Kension opposes Rand Dee Bowerman in the First Vice President election; John Ridgway vies with Boyd Dunn in the Activities Vice President contest, and Maurice (mo) Portley and Gary Gallner run for Administrative Vice President.

Beer, wine question awaits student vote

A proposition calling for the sale of beer and wine in the Memorial Union will appear on the ballot today and Wednesday in general election for Associated Students offices.

The proposition, if approved by students will be used as "ammunition" next year when student officers argue for the sale of alcohol on campus, said Mike Arruda, elections coordinator.

Arruda said support of the proposition could convince state legislators and the Board of Regents to legalize booze sales.

Two other propositions also will appear on the ballot.

One calls for replacement of ASASU's present Constitution with new Articles of Association. The articles were approved Feb. 7 by the student senate.

A third proposition would remove Associated Women Students from ASASU's Executive Council. The council enforces Senate legislation and directs ASASU programs.

The articles will take effect in 1975-76 if they are ratified by a majority of voters.

Professor E. Lombardi selected as outstanding

Fine Arts Professor Eugene Lombardi has received this year's Distinguished Teacher Award.

Lombardi, said he believes his involvement in the community and the University probably helped him receive the award.

Lombardi teaches orchestra and violin lessons at ASU and is the University orchestra director. He has been the conductor for the Phoenix Symphonette, the assistant and Concert Master for the Phoenix Symphony and the Assistant conductor for the Symphony.

"I believe in performance oriented courses," he said. He attempts to give the students true to life experiences in the classroom to prepare them for performance careers.

Lombardi said he enjoys teaching because of the results, "I like to have people come back and thank me," he said.

"Naturally it is nice to get paid, but the fringe benefit like this is great. I would not trade it for anything."

He said it is rewarding to see students doing something he had a hand in.

To be eligible for the award a teacher must be at the University for five years and nominated for the award by his peers. The teacher is then evaluated by a committee composed of past recipients on his method of teaching, student's evaluations and recommendations from faculty and alumni.

Last year Lombardi received a gold medal from the National Society of Arts and Letters for work with young people in string instruments. He was named the Outstanding Graduate from Westminster College in 1948 and is listed in the Who's Who of the West and the International Biography.

Next time you're told to vote for a certain ASASU candidate ask why.

Particularly if they're talking about Activities Vice President. Because you should have some questions; like why haven't there been any A.S.A.S.U. campus concerts or any free mall concerts, and why did A.S.A.S.U. need to spend hundreds of dollars of student fees to send the Activities Vice President to a "concert convention" last year, and why has the money been budgeted to do it again this year? These are questions for the incumbent.

We are going to ask you to vote for John Ridgway because he knows how to establish a viable concert program, extend student discount rates for local sporting events, coordinate philanthropic efforts, and begin a student discount travel program. He knows how because as a member of the Public Lectures Board for three years John has brought several nationally known speakers to campus, including Dr. Benjamin Spock and Dick Gregory. John was a member of the Cultural Affairs Board for three years and spent one year in the Senate. John has, in his former capacity as the production editor of a local newspaper, dealt with such performers as Frank Zappa, Jackson Browne, Boz Scaggs, Ritchie Havens, and the promoters and managers which surround them. John has also been inside A.S.A.S.U. longer than any other student.

Opinion state press

Kevin Gustafson Elections

The State Press received an interesting letter today from Paul C. Rodriguez, an economics major. The State Press is not going to run this letter, but it does give me a chance to explain to students at ASU some of the things that Boyd Dunn has claimed as accomplishments as activities vice president of Associated Students this past year.

Rodriguez states in his letter, "He's (Dunn) asking students to disregard his dubious record of performance, be patient, and re-elect him." This statement is totally true.

Dunn, in his campaigning for re-election, has claimed credit for concerts with Arlo Guthrie, the Smothers Brothers and John Hartford. These concerts have been represented as accomplishments of the Social and Traditions Board (STB), which is one of the boards under Dunn's control.

The role that Dunn, and the STB, has played in the presentation of these shows has been very minor. Take the Smothers Brothers and John Hartford concert as Exhibit A.

Buster Bonoff of Bonoff Productions promoted this concert. Bonoff offers ticket discounts to any organization in the Valley to whom he believes the concert will appeal. This is the case with the Smothers show. Bonoff offered ticket discounts to ASU students and students from all the high schools and junior colleges in the Valley. All that Dunn had to do with the concert was have the posters printed and sell the tickets on campus, Bonoff said.

Exhibit B is the Arlo Guthrie concert in Gammage Auditorium last Nov. 14. The Guthrie show was produced by Gammage Auditorium, not by Boyd Dunn. Dunn, merely did work in conjunction with Warren Sumners, managing director of Gammage Auditorium.

Sumners said that when Gammage is going to produce a show of this nature, he contacts the activities vice president to see if students at ASU would be interested in that particular group.

Dunn also arranged for the publicity of the concert, and again, Dunn has cited the Guthrie concert as an accomplishment of the STB. Sumners said that in this manner, Dunn did sponsor the concert. But did he really? Did he, of his own initiative and free will, arrange for and bring Guthrie to ASU?

Another misrepresentation of the facts that Dunn has managed is the discount on the tickets for the Phoenix roadrunner hockey games. The discount deal, like the Smothers show, was handed to Dunn on a silver platter!

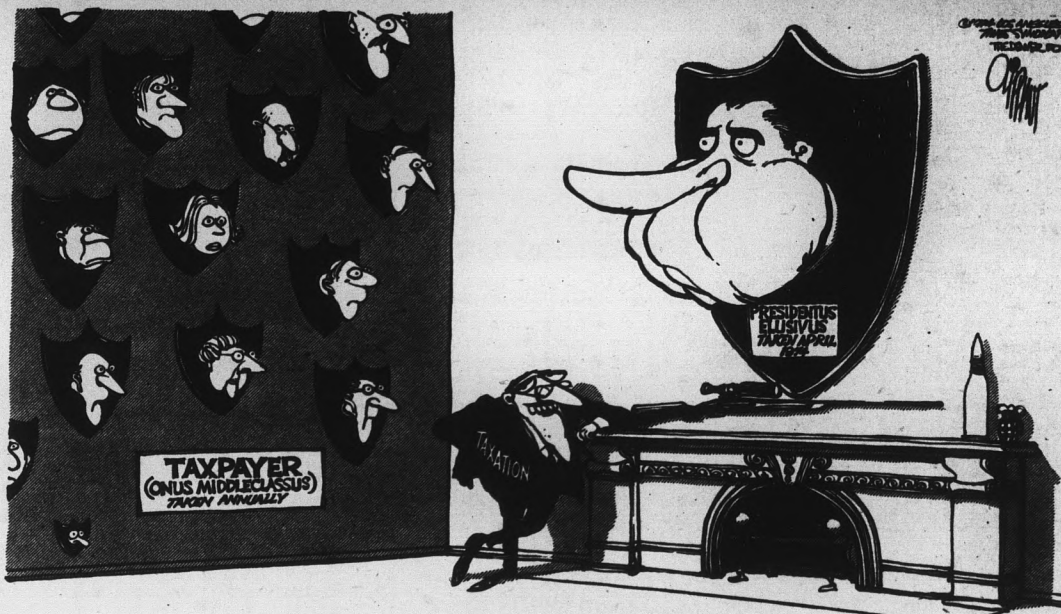

"We first simply wanted to do something special for ASU and the other colleges in the Valley," said Norm Smith, who handled the deal for the Roadrunners. Dunn could have refused to promote the deal and sell the tickets, but I give him more credit than that.

Dunn is also claiming credit for speakers brought to campus by the Public Lectures Board. The PLB, in its last couple of meetings, has selected speakers for next year, which due to tight scheduling is necessary. Dunn has missed the last four PLB meetings. Does he deserve credit for bringing those speakers to campus? I say no.

If you haven't caught the drift of this column as of yet, I guess that I can spell it out. All these things have been given to Dunn. As activities vice president of ASASU, he has not fulfilled his campaign promises of last year. ASASU should have concerts and we have not had them. This has been the responsibility of Boyd Dunn; he has done nothing.

If he is elected again, we will probably have more of the same. After hearing of the misrepresentations and half-truths, will you vote for Boyd Dunn?

Editor's note: The State Press will gladly provide Boyd Dunn similar space in Wednesday's paper if he wishes to reply to the charges. We ask that students do not base their vote merely on the one side presented above, but wait for Dunn's statement.

'NOW AND THEN I TRY FOR THE BIG STUFF!'

Letters

EDITOR,

Caught up as I am in the current evaluative spirit of our academic environment, I am unable to resist a word or two of meta-evaluation concerning the recent production by the Liberal Arts College Council.

The first comments are with respect to format. There is no table of contents, no index, and no pagination in the text proper. To compound the difficulties caused by these omissions, there is no alphabetization, either of the course abbreviations or of the instructors' names. There is even a lack of departmental unity in the course listings. For example, the Foreign Language courses are interspersed with Geography courses, and two Spanish courses taught by the same professor (Landeira) are found in separate locations. Obviously, more editors and fewer programmers are needed on the staff.

The next comments, solicited in the forward by the Council, are with respect to the evaluation's "objectivity." The very possibility of objectively evaluating such a subjective business as teaching is open to serious question in the first place.

Indeed, do we want "objectivity" at all? Since any "objectivity" given by the computer-sterile plethora of numbers is only a facade masking a wealth of subjectivity anyway, why not just summarize, synthesize, or directly report the students' subjective comments on the points under discussion in written form?

EDITOR:

In my opinion, the treatment of law school admissions in Wednesday's paper was misleading, though doubtlessly not so intended. Applicants from minority backgrounds do not "ease" into law school, as the banner headline proclaimed. A number of minority students with superior credentials are admitted without attending a summer institute. They do not "ease" in.

Students who graduate from the Council on Legal Education Opportunity Summer Institutes (sponsored by the American Bar Association, the Association of American Law Schools, the Law School Admission Council and the National Bar Association) or the American Indian Summer Law Program at New Mexico must have successfully completed a four-year college program, survived a selection process by the respective organizations from a pool ten times the number who can be accommodated, received evaluation of performance in a rigorous program of law courses taught by law professors, and in addition, satisfied the requirements of the law school which admits them. For the 1974 Southwest Institute, for example, this College of Law may nominate seven participants from a list of 89 candidates. This is hardly an "easy" avenue.

Moreover, once in school, the life of the law student is hard. For a law school to consider all relevant educational experiences as factors in admission decisions seems eminently sensible, as does the use of other factors for

This is, in fact, what has been done by the students of our sister institution in Tucson (Did anyone look at theirs?), and, to me at least, this seems immensely preferable.

In addition to a numerical component of evaluation similar to ours, a paragraph or two of comment summarization written about each course and instructor not only gives information not included in our evaluation (type of course, paper requirement, number and kind of exams and quizzes, attendance policy of the instructor, etc.), but also provides an "interest factor" not to be found in numbers alone.

Hopefully, unjust critiques would be disregarded and just ones would be a catalyst to improvement. Critiques in this written form could even be profitably included by the instructor in his dossier to improve his chances of future employment or promotion.

Finally, I would like to make it clear that I am strongly in favor of student course evaluations in general and I think that, despite its shortcomings, this one has made a valid beginning deserving of increased faculty support and participation. The Liberal Arts College Council is to be commended for its initiation of this worthy project.

Lee B. Croft
Asst. Prof. of Russian

predicting success in law study by any applicant. All students admitted to the law school must be academically qualified to pursue legal study. Admission is not easy for anyone.

The Association of American Law Schools has recently stated: "We are a diverse society and our perception of legal problems and our production of solutions will be the better the more comprehensive our perception of the underlying facts becomes. This roundness of perception can be most effectively done . . . by the presence in the classroom and school of different colors and sexes as well as different cultural and economic backgrounds. The presence of some minority students is, therefore, an asset in the legal education of all of the students."

REVIEW

The Eagles, 8:30 p.m., April 5, Celebrity Theatre, Celebrity Productions.

Eagles show lacks excitement

The music was great, but it takes more than that to make a good concert.

Friday night in the Celebrity Theatre the Eagles displayed their musical proficiency and versatility time and again, but never really got the excitement level, so important to a good concert, off the ground for very long.

Long pauses for instrument changes between numbers and a general lack of showmanship kept audience enthusiasm low for most of the show. Even a streaker, who ran onstage in mid-performance dressed only in a mask and cape, failed to elicit more than scattered applause from the lethargic crowd.

Things picked up some toward the end of the concert, when a conga player named Plato joined the group for a 30-minute segment which included "Witchy Woman" and "Outlaw Man," two of the band's most popular numbers.

The Eagles built on the success of that session, managing to keep the excitement level up until the end of the concert. But, as often happens when three outstanding guitarists are onstage at the same time, what was intended to be an intricate set of counter-leads often became a multi-decibel garble as each tried to be a little louder and fancier than the other two.

Still, there are always those in the audience who are proponents of the "loud means good" theory of rock music, so many enjoyed the display of ego.

The show was almost saved by an outstanding encore. After explaining that they had to finish quickly in order to make their 12:30 concert in Los Angeles the next day, they did a beautiful acoustic number, "The Best of My Love," from their new "On the Border" album.

After the encore the applause lasted about three seconds, the lights came on, and the audience filed out, while the "roadies" began packing the equipment for the ride to L.A.

Note: The Los Angeles concert Saturday, featured, besides the Eagles, Deep Purple and Earth, Wind and Fire. The crowd, estimated at 200,000, was one of the largest rock concert crowds in recent years.

You're serious about photography. So is the Canon F-1.

To you, photography is more than a hobby. You may never want to become a professional. Yet, your photography is as important a means of self-expression to you as your speech. You demand the same excellence in your photographic equipment as you do of your photographic skills.

The Canon F-1 is the camera that can fulfill any photographic task to which you put it. It can stand up to your ability in any situation.

Naturally, a great camera like the F-1 won't ensure great results. That's up to you. Yet—it's nice to know that your camera can grow with you as a photographer.

Part of the reason for this is the F-1 system. Since it was designed in totality, it offers total performance. There is nothing "added on" in the F-1 system. Everything works as it was designed to, and integrates superbly with everything else. You'll spend less time worrying about operating the camera than in shooting. And that's what creative photography is really all about.

Controls fall into place under each finger. It's no accident. Professionals who depend on a camera for their livelihood have a deep regard for the F-1's handling. It's amazing how much a comfortable camera can improve your work.

Sharing these lenses and many of these accessories are the new Electronic Canon EF, with fully automatic exposure control, the FTb, now improved with all exposure information visible in the finder, and the TLb, great for a second camera body or for getting started in Canon photography. Canon. For serious applications. For serious photographers.

New articles up for student ratification

In the general elections today and Wednesday, students will have the opportunity to express their opinions on three major campus issues. These three propositions are:

Proposition 1

The Associated Students (ASASU) Senate has recently voted to replace the ASASU Constitution with the new Articles of Association. The Articles would essentially restructure ASASU. They replace the Senate with a First Council made up of newly titled Executive offices and representatives of the individual College Councils. To instate the Articles of Association ratification by members of Assorted Students is necessary. Therefore:

Do you favor amending the ASASU constitution by adopting the Articles of Association?

- Yes
- No

Proposition 2.

The Associated Students Senate has recently voted to amend the ASASU constitution by removing Associated Women Students from the ASASU structure as an Executive Council entity. A faculty-student review committee was formed and has also voted to remove Associated Women Students as an Executive Council entity. To amend the constitution, as this would, ratification by members of Associated Students is necessary.

Be it enacted by the Student Senate of Arizona State University that the ASASU Constitution be amended as follows:

A) Article V, Section 2: Delete Paragraph B

B) Article V, Section 5: Delete in its entirety

C) Article VII, Section 1: Delete Paragraph C

D) Article VII, Section 2: Delete "and Associated Women Students"

E) Article VII, Section 4: Delete "and Associated Women Students"

F) Article VIII, Section 1: Delete "and Associated Women Students"

Do you favor amending the ASASU Constitution by removing Associated Women Students as an Executive Council entity?

- Yes
- No

Proposition 3.

Recently Arizona House of Representatives Bill 2101, providing for the issuance of beer and wine licenses to college or university student unions was defeated in committee. Seeing there is a high possibility for the introduction of the bill in the next legislative session, your opinion is necessary to determine student interest for the proposal at ASU. Therefore:

Do you favor the sale of beer and wine in the Memorial Union?

- Yes
- No

ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION ASSOCIATED STUDENTS

PREAMBLE

These Articles recognize that the real function of Associated Students is to provide an opportunity for student participation and service in the University community and to administer student programs in the most efficient manner possible.

ARTICLE I

Name and Responsibility

Section 1. This organization shall be known as the Associated Students of Arizona State University.

Section 2. The Associated Students shall be responsible for the effective functioning of student life within the framework of the established university policy, as determined by the President of the University and subject to the Regulations Governing Arizona State University.

ARTICLE II

Membership

Section 1. All students registered in any semester for seven (7) or more semester hours shall be members of the Associated Students during that semester.

Section 2. Members of the Associated Students shall be entitled to all rights and privileges granted in these Articles. The responsibility of membership involves the support of said Articles and voluntary participation in the affairs and activities of the Associated Students.

ARTICLE III

Officers and Structure

Section 1. The Executive Officers of the Associated Students shall be President, Executive Vice-President, Campus Affairs Vice-President, and Activities Vice President, elected annually by the membership.

Section 2. The Associated Students shall function through the following:

- A. Executive Officers
- B. First Council
- C. Executive Committee
- D. College Councils

ARTICLE IV

Executive Officers

Section 1. Candidates for election to executive offices and executive officers shall have and maintain the following minimum qualifications:

- A. The President and Executive Vice-President shall not have less than seventy-five (75) semester hours of Pomona College Theatre's Kabuki West, 8 p.m., April 5-6, ASU Music Theatre.

Kubuki not like Kung Fu

The rising sun came to the ASU campus last Friday and Saturday nights in the form of Japanese plays. The production was an introduction to the traditional Japanese theater called Kabuki.

After the recent deluge of oriental films depicting superhuman feats of strength and ridiculous heroism, it is a pleasant experience to view a quality production. Although Kabuki can sometimes be as fantastic as its movie cousin, it is more stylized and has been developed as an art.

The production at the ASU Music Theatre was put on by Kabuki West, a touring group sponsored by the Pomona College Theatre of California.

Each presentation was introduced by Leonard Pronko, the group director and a professor at Pomona College. Pronko explained the style and techniques of the Kabuki theatre and pointed out hand and body movements that would have been obscure to non-Japanese.

The lines were in English but Japanese intonation was used to create the proper atmosphere. Considering the sing-song pronunciation, the English came through clearly.

The lighting was a definite distraction. The curtain was not used but, instead, the lights were dimmed completely off between acts. This was a bad strain on the eyes.

Pronko also acted in several of the plays. One of the parts he played was a woman. It is traditional in Kabuki that female roles are played by adult males.

Pronko said he took the role as an opportunity to show how a man undertakes a female role. If this is the case, he failed to come across as the role demanded.

He played the role of a sorceress who disguised herself as a seductive woman. As a seductive woman he didn't come across. As the Evil Witch of the East he was great!

For those of you who missed this great presentation there is an old and wise American saying: You missed the boat.

Section 5. No person shall be convicted without the concurrence of at least three-fourths (3/4) of the current membership of the First Council.

Section 6. A direct proposition to impeach at once supersedes all other business of the First Council or may be brought before a special session.

ARTICLE IX Amendment

Proposals to amend these Articles shall originate by a vote of the majority of the current First Council membership. The proposal shall then be sent to the University President for his signature. When this is obtained, the proposal shall be scheduled for vote in the next general election. The text of the proposed amendment shall be published in the University paper during the week prior to the general election. If this proposal receives a majority of the votes cast in this election, the Articles of Association shall be declared amended.

ARTICLE X Ratification

These Articles shall become effective beginning 1975-1976 academic year. The first election provided for in these Articles shall take place in the spring of 1975.

REVIEW

Pianist David Burge, 8 p.m., April 7, Grady Gammage Auditorium, Special Events.

Pianist doomed to obscurity

There are some concert pianists who can hold an audience spellbound, who can conjure images with their music the way an artist does with his brush — David Burge, however, is not one of them.

Cartoonists always portray the concert pianist as an extremely thin, pale man with the silver forelock dangling in his face as he plays. Burge is all this and more. Occasionally he appeared to be hypnotized by his own fingernails; sometimes he gave the impression of a sleepy typist.

"Makrokosmos," twelve fantasy pieces after the zodiac for amplified piano, comprised the second part of the concert. These pieces which were dedicated to Burge by the composer distinguish him only slightly from scores of other pianists.

Parts of "Makrokosmos" were accompanied not only by the manipulation of the piano, the plucking and harp-like runs on the strings, but Burge contributed to the cosmic aura of the music with an almost ritualistic primeaval chant in Latin.

For the few present at the concert "Makrokosmos" was a unique experience, but the rest of the concert and Burge himself may be doomed to obscurity.

If many of us tried to run a mile, we would be walking and crawling somewhere between the start and the finish, and it might take the better part of a day.

But Steve Scott, of San Jose, rolled a mile in his wheelchair in 6:48.6 April 6-7 at the Arizona Wheelchair Games. He set a state record in Class 5 and was only three seconds from the national record. Athletes are classed according to the degree of their disability.

"I think this shows people that they (disabled persons) are not as disabled as some think," said Diana Polaski, ASU Disabled Student advisor.

Larry Anderson, an ASU law student, demonstrated his strength to more than 50 persons at the games Saturday, when he bench-pressed another state record of 375 pounds in the heavyweight class weightlifting.

ASU undergrad Roger Kronberg also set a new Arizona mark of 24' in the Class 3 shot put and qualified in two other events for the nationals in Chaney, Wash. in June.

Senior Kenny Carter qualified for nationals by placing second in table tennis.

Other exceptional performances at the games included: Bob Dunn, San Jose, in class 1b took firsts in table tennis, shot put, discus, and javelin. He was named the Outstanding Athlete at the games.

Harvey Martin, also of San Jose, won the Class 3 discus, javelin, and the middleweight class weightlifting. He received the sportsmanship award for the games.

Gymnastics team finishes second

The ASU gymnastics team became the first WAC squad ever to finish in the top three in the nation when it grabbed second place in the NCAA meet last weekend at Penn State University.

It was the first appearance ever for the Sun Devils in the tournament.

Coach Don Robinson credited the performance to team cohesiveness.

"People had never seen a team perform like this," he said.

Robinson said ASU didn't have the depth of some of the other teams at the meet.

The winning Iowa State team and third place

California both had five men per event while ASU had only three. The top three finishers per team have their scores count in each event so each ASU participant had to hit his routine.

"We made some people notice ASU," Robinson said.

"We were close to being number one and were considered the surprise of the meet, but when we left here I told them (the team) we could do it."

The team came home with four All-Americans: Gary Alexander, floor exercise for the third straight year, L. J. Larson on pommel horse, Greg Bian on parallel bars and Rick Curtis on still rings.

Robinson was named Midwest coach of the year for the third time and was also named President of the National Coaches Association at the tournament.

His squad will be intact next year with only Bian not returning, but Robinson will be recruiting in an effort to add depth.

"We plan on going back (to the nationals) next year and shaking the whole world loose," Robinson said.

Good arm

William Guthrie Packard threw out the first ball when ASU's new Packard Stadium was dedicated Sunday. The funds for the stadium were donated by Packard's sons Peter and Guthrie in his name. Inconsistency marks WAC beginning

By Roger Wittlin

The ASU baseball team began WAC play last weekend in El Paso with some unusual results.

The most outstanding was a Sun Devil opening game loss to UTEP, breaking a Sun Devil 14-game win streak over the Miners stretching back to April 1971. The last time ASU lost an opening WAC game was against New Mexico in 1970.

The Devils then swept Saturday's doubleheader by trouncing UTEP 36-10 and 11-5. The 36 runs scored in the seven-inning first game surpassed the old school record of 30 runs, also scored against the Miners.

Sun Devil hitters, led by first basemen Clay Westlake's 8-for-10 slugging, including a home run, three doubles and nine runs batted in, pounded out 46 hits in the doubleheader.

Westlake wasn't the only Devil who had a field day against the hapless Miner pitching. Catcher R.J. Harrison was 8-for-11, freshman outfielder Mike Colbern 7-for-11 and shortstop Jeff Oscarson 5-for-8 with six runs batted in.

ASU dropped one game behind Arizona, the nation's number one ranked college team, which swept a three game series from New Mexico.

"Basically it's a two team race and when you lose any games to UTEP or New Mexico you're putting yourself in a difficult situation," coach Jim Brock said. "We have to expect that Arizona is going to win all of its games against the other teams, which means we'll have to win four of the six games played against Arizona."

Sunday the Sun Devils opened their new baseball facility, Packard Stadium, by dropping a 6-4 score to the defending national champion, the University of Southern California. The loss dropped the ASU season record to 27-15.

The game really wasn't all that important to either team," Brock said. "We were pretty tired after arriving in Tempe late Saturday night. The most important thing is that we were able to play the game at Packard Stadium."

Second baseman Bump Wills had four hits against USC, raising his team leading batting average to .390.

The Sun Devils began a 15 game home stand against La Verne College yesterday. John Poloni is scheduled to pitch today's 3 p.m. game with Floyd Bannister throwing tomorrow.

Highjumper sets record

Paul Underwood finally got rid of the flu and celebrated by high jumping 7-3 to set a new ASU and Joe Selleh Track record.

It was an all-time best for the Glendale Junior College transfer who had jumped 7-2 1/4 indoors earlier in the year.

Underwood had been battling the flu for the past few weeks and had cleared only 6-10 1/4 outdoors this season.

The old school record was 7-2 by Barry Shephard who was jumping unaffiliated in the meet and was among the first to greet Underwood after the jump.

The record came on Underwood's first attempt at the height. He ticked the bar but it stayed up and the crowd of more than 2,000 people roared its approval.

It's a long way down

Paul Underwood is about to clear 7-3 in the high jump for a new ASU record. It was also a new personal record for the ASU junior.
