New architecture dean chosen

Associate professor from U of Hawaii takes over in July

An associate professor of architecture at the University of Hawaii was approved Saturday by the Arizona Board of Regents as the next dean of the ASU College of Architecture.

Hugh Burgess, who has been at the University of Hawaii since 1971, is currently serving as a visiting professor at Rice University in Houston, Texas, while completing requirements for his doctoral degree.

Burgess will assume his position as dean on July 1, succeeding James Elmore, who announced his resignation last summer.

Burgess served as acting chairman of the University of Hawaii's architecture department in 1970 and 1971.

Reconsideration asked on spending priorities

The ASASU Senate passed a resolution asking the University administration to reconsider its priorities on spending during its final meeting this year.

The meeting, conducted by first vice president-elect Bob Kenison, unanimously passed the resolution in regards to administration attitudes towards a proposed $5.5 million bonding issue presently before the Arizona State Legislature.

The bonding bill would provide money for improvements for either the Memorial Union, the residence halls or the sports facilities, said Gilbert Cady, vice president of business affairs.

The resolution, written by Kenison, quoted Cady as saying "... the MU is in good shape and the residence halls are in good shape. The stadium critically needs modification."

Kenison considers the residence halls to be in greater need of modification than Sun Devil Stadium. The Senate approved resolution requests the administration to re-orient its thinking towards student considerations.

The Senate's general feeling is student desired priorities are not served by stadium expansion.

Cady said there are no plans for the spending of the $5.5 million since the money had not been requested by ASU nor has the bill been passed by the state legislature.

Should money be funnelled into stadium improvements, it would probably be used for expansion of the west side — adding more seats, restrooms, and concessions — and closing the stadium's north end, said John Ellingson, director of planning and construction.

Also passed during the meeting was an amendment to the ASASU election statutes.

The amendment provides for a public speaking forum to be organized by the election coordinator for all candidates for ASASU executive offices and Associated Women Students prior to primary elections. An additional debate would also be organized on the day before the general elections.

Regents ratify program to aid credit transfer

A program designed to make it easier to transfer credits between Arizona's universities and community colleges was approved Saturday by the Arizona Board of Regents.

Under the program, a booklet called "Arizona Higher Education Equivalency Guide" will be published, listing courses in all the schools and the exact transfer equivalency of each course among the other schools in the state.

Copies of the manual will be distributed among counselors, libraries and admissions offices throughout the state.

Department heads from all the schools contributed to the booklet in an effort to avoid misinformation.

The new program indicates efforts are being made toward cooperation between the community college system and the state university system.

Regents establish environment center

The Arizona Board of Regents Saturday approved the establishment of a Center for Environmental Studies at ASU.

The center will focus and coordinate the total resources of the University — courses of study, research and laboratory facilities, and faculty expertise — on environmental concerns.

The research activities will be financed by grants, contracts or donations. No new funding or additional facilities will be required.

The major objectives of the center are to encourage and coordinate an interdisciplinary approach to the study of environmental problems, along with providing a public forum for discussion of environmental problems.

The Center will also provide a means by which information and data on the environment, especially that of the Southwest, can be accumulated, processed, and made available to the public.

It will act as a clearinghouse for information about environmental groups, programs, conferences and other related projects held locally, statewide, regionally or nationally that may be of interest to Arizona.

Committee after more tapes

The House Judiciary Committee is formally requesting more White House tapes beyond the 42 conversations it has subpoenaed for its impeachment inquiry Rep. Edward Hutchinson, a committee member, disclosed Monday. Hutchinson said if the White House does not deliver all relevant portions of the 42 conversations by Thursday's deadline and does not comply with the new request, the House committee should simply make its recommendation for or against impeachment on the basis of the material it already has.

SLA threats

A man purporting to be "General Pax" of the Symbionese Liberation Army vowed in messages to a Sacramento newspaper Monday that five California peace officers would be slain for any SLA member killed. The name General Pax has not appeared on any of the earlier SLA communications, the style was different from messages believed to be from the SLA and there was no reference to Miss Hearst. The FBI said it cannot assume it is not authentic.

Golda's replacement

The ruling Labor party named Yitzhak Rabin on Monday as Premier Golda Meir's successor. He is the youngest premier-designate and the nation's first "sabara," or native-born Israeli, to be given the task of forming a government. The choice of Rabin was seen as a victory for the dovish left wing of the party, which advocates greater territorial concessions to the Arabs than Mrs. Meir has been willing to offer.

Impartiality questioned

Court vacancy stays unfilled

The ASASU Supreme Court will have four members, rather than its usual five, for the remainder of the semester.

The fifth position on the court was vacated during the fall semester when Susan Clouse was disqualified because of her standing as a part-time student. Court justices are required to be full-time students.

Mark Kerrigan, ASASU president, refused to nominate John Durand, a recent applicant to the position, because of a possibility of his being bias against Ridgway. Durand has publicly supported Dunn during the election.

"His involvement with Dunn was strong enough that it inclined me to believe that he may have a problem in making a fair decision," Kerrigan said.

This Thursday the court will hear complaints concerning the recent election for ASASU activities vice president. The defeated candidate, Boyd Dunn, has filed complaints against his opponent, John Ridgway.

Auditions for "The Boys in the Band" will be at 2:30 p.m. Friday through Sunday in the ASU Lyceum Theatre.

The cast calls for nine men between 22 and 33 years old. The production opens June 6 and will play until at least June 16.

Cast members need not be students during the summer session.

Scripts are available in the reserve room of the Hayden Library.

Publisher talks on state laws affecting press

Scottsdale Daily Progress publisher Jonathan Marshall will speak at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Stauffer 207. His talk will concern the development of Arizona laws on freedom of information and open meetings.

The Progress publisher is a past president of the Arizona Newspaper Association and the current Freedom of Information chairman for that group.

Marshall has been the publisher of the Progress for the last ten years. During that time he has made a financial success of the newspaper and guided it to its current status as an award winner among the small newspapers of Arizona.

The talk is sponsored by the ASU Chapter of the Professional Society of Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi.

You're serious about photography. So is the Canon F-1.

To you, photography is more than a hobby. You may never want to become a professional. Yet, your photography is as important a means of self-expression to you as your speech. You demand the same excellence in your photographic equipment as you do of your photographic skills.

The Canon F-1 is the camera that can fulfill any photographic task to which you put it. It can stand up to your ability in any situation.

Naturally, a great camera like the F-1 won't ensure great results. That's up to you. Yet—it's nice to know that your camera can grow with you as a photographer.

Part of the reason for this is the F-1 system. Since it was designed in totality, it offers total performance. There is nothing "added on" in the F-1 system. Everything works as it was designed to, and integrates superbly with everything else. You'll spend less time worrying about operating the camera than in shooting. And that's what creative photography is really all about.

Controls fall into place under each finger. It's no accident. Professionals who depend on a camera for their livelihood have a deep regard for the F-1's handling. It's amazing how much a comfortable camera can improve your work.

Sharing these lenses and many of these accessories are the new Electronic Canon EF, with fully automatic exposure control, the FTb, now improved with all exposure information visible in the finder, and the TLb, great for a second camera body or for getting started in Canon photography. Canon. For serious applications. For serious photographers.

Isn't it time you got serious?

SAC secrecy

Monday the Student Affairs Committee met to discuss the allocation of over $800,000 in student activity fees. Once again, the committee refused to permit a State Press reporter access to the meeting.

While Dr. Hamm, vice president of student affairs and committee chairman, said a reporter would be welcome to question committee members before and after the meeting, this alternative is definitely not acceptable.

Asking questions before and after the meeting does not permit reporting the actual events of the meeting, and the atmosphere as expressed in discussions by committee members.

Hamm's alternative further takes excessive time from members and reporters, since the reporter could gather sufficient information by simply sitting through the meetings and clarifying any questions later.

It is a shame Dr. Hamm finds this meeting secrecy so important.

The money being allocated is for student activities and services, and students should know how these spending determinations are made.

Giving students and faculty members a greater appreciation of how budget decisions through additional reporting could at the very least make the final figures easier to accept.

Regent praise

Transferring from community colleges to ASU will be much easier from now on, thanks to a program recently approved by the Arizona Board of Regents.

A booklet will be published explaining the credit hours and transfer equivalency for all courses. It will be available for students, counselors, and as a library reference source.

The booklet has been needed for a long time. It should greatly eliminate the problem of seniors learning just prior to expected graduation that they are three hours short requirements because of credit transfer problems. It should also save junior college students both time and money, letting them know the value of their courses as they select them.

The State Press has had few occasions to praise the regents for their actions, particularly in a Billy Graham-pro football-semi-closed meeting semester.

This credit transfer program certainly merits some student appreciation, and provides a nice editorial change.

Presidential campaigns

My fellow students of Arizona State University. The situation has deteriorated far enough! Out of all the people running for student government office, not one, repeat, not one of the candidates reflects the general attitudes or interests of the students here at ASU.

So, in order to fill the void that exists, I hereby submit my name for President of ASASU.

I admit, however, that I might be just a little late in filing, but it was just one of those things that got put off until now.

Anyway, now that the campaign is finally underway, I will outline our platform.

The name of our party is the Peoples' Procrastination Party (PPP).

We promise you everything that everyone else promises you, except it usually takes us a little longer to do it. In fact, just as soon as we get around to it, we are going to do things like organize a massive student letter writing campaign to President Johnson to end U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Also, it is important we get behind Mayor Milt Graham and see that he is re-elected, because it is people like him that makes Phoenix what it is today.

Closer to home, I believe what this University needs most are bike paths. The students should mobilize and demand the slow moving administration put them in!

However, in this campaign, I believe the most important issue is the subject of classes. After all, that's what we're here for, right?

If elected, I promise to work for things such as classes not starting before noon. I mean, after all, it's not easy nor is it educationally sound to start a class early in the morning, especially after you've been up all night partying.

Lastly, I stand resolved there will be no classes on Monday. All Monday classes will start on Tuesday. Of course there wouldn't be any classes on Friday, either.

So in conclusion, my fellow students, vote for someone who has the best interests of the student at heart. Vote for someone who knows what the students really want. Vote for me for President of ASASU, just as soon as you feel like it.

Court treats charges to full hearing

By Mart Koivastik
Complaints aimed at activities vice president-elect John Ridgway by incumbent Boyd Dunn will receive a hearing in front of the Supreme Court of Associated Students Thursday night.

The hearing, which is open to the public, will be conducted at 7 p.m. in room 145 of the Armstrong Law Building.

Chief Justice Dave Crosby said the hearing would be a low-key affair. "It's a hearing, not a trial," he said. "We're kind of going to let them (the candidates) make their own presentations."

At the conclusion of the hearing, the court may exercise one of four options:

—dismiss the action, in which case Ridgway's 11-vote victory over Dunn would stand;

—disqualify Ridgway, in which case Dunn would be declared the winner of the election;

—nullify the race, in which case a special election would be staged;

—force Ridgway to give up all or part of his $20 deposit, which candidates are required to turn in prior to the primaries.

Both candidates will have the aid of counsel. Doug Christian, the court's legal adviser, will represent Dunn.

Christian is required by ASASU statutes to prosecute the complaint but Crosby said the court would interpret "prosecute" loosely to enable Christian to act more as a discussion coordinator than a prosecutor.

"Christian is going to have to ask questions about what Boyd (Dunn) wants him to bring out," Crosby said. "But Boyd's really going to represent himself."

Crosby said each candidate must submit a list of witnesses at least 24 hours before the beginning of the hearing. The court also has the power to call witnesses if it feels the need, he said.

Dunn contends an April 9 column by State Press reporter Kevin Gustafson did substantial damage to his campaign and speculates Ridgway, an alleged close friend of Gustafson, knew of the column which "could have been deliberately written and placed in the State Press to hurt my candidacy."

Elections coordinator Mike Arruda passed the complaint to the court.

Crosby: "We're going to let them (the candidates) make their own presentations."

Crosby said the court did not have to hear the case because it has original jurisdiction in all cases. "We felt like we should listen to it (the case)," he said. "It was a valid claim."

Once the court accepts a case, it is required by statute to conduct a full hearing, Crosby said.

The Court refused Thursday night to hear a complaint brought against Dunn by the State Press.

The State Press filed its complaint against Dunn for allegedly harming the reputation and credibility of Gustafson and the State Press in a campaign speech.

Crosby said the State Press complaint was not of sufficient consequence to merit a full hearing and felt the matter could be better handled by elections coordinator Arruda.

Opera opens for preview at 8 tonight

A student preview of Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman" plays at 8 tonight in the ASU Music Theater.

The opera, noted for its unique plot and music, is produced by the Lyric Opera Theater. The opera is based on the character of E.T.A. Hoffman, a versatile German author, lawyer, composer, literary critic and caricaturist of the 19th century.

Tickets for the preview are on sale at the Music Theater box office, 965-3398.

The presentation will premiere for the general public April 26-27 and May 1, 3 and 4. Bass-baritone Richard McKee will star in the production. McKee, an affiliate artist at ASU, has won acclaim for his operatic and concert appearances throughout the nation and abroad.

ASU students collect five regional awards

The State Press staff won three mark of excellence awards at the regional conference of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi (SDX) April 19-20 in Fresno, Cal. ASU broadcast major Mark David Sanchez also won two awards.

Sanchez' radio report on winning in sports placed third in the Best Radio Reporting category. Sanchez also won second place in Best Television Reporting for his report on the psychological effects of Christmas for Kool-tv, Channel 10 in Phoenix.

Journalism major Ken Phillips took second place in the Best Editorial Writing category for his State Press editorial on the energy crisis. His editorial has also won the national Hearst award for 1973.

Ann Mondo Herold, of the State Press photography staff, won third place for her dramatic photo of a dead student parachutist killed in mid-air last year when he collided with a fellow student jumper.

Herold's photo was picked up by United Press International wire service and run on the front pages of some national newspapers.

The second place award for Best Newswriting Under Deadline Pressure was given to the State Press staff for their coverage of the parachuting tragedy.

Library to hire more students

By Craig Coulombe
Part-time jobs for students will be on the rise at the Hayden Library in the future, said Dr. Donald Koepf, University librarian.

Some full-time positions are being phased out to make room for more student employees. The library administration is continually evaluating full-time library jobs to determine whether they can be done less expensively by students working part time, said Helen Mayhew, assistant University librarian.

By using students at more routine jobs, full-time employees can be moved to more demanding work.

The Hayden Library, which has operated on a total budget of $2,159,912 for 1973-74, has cut back on its hours and eliminated 10 clerical and library assistant positions to save money. The book budget, about $720,000, has remained static since last year.

Koepf said the library has a staff of 187, with 22 full-time equivalent (FTE) student employees. But, he added, this is going to change.

"We are heavily staffed with more full-time people than we need," Koepf said. "I believe a considerable amount of work should be done by students. My theory

The prints will be on sale 8:30 a.m. — 1 p.m. May 1 in the Art building courtyard. They will be sold from 8:30 a.m. — 1 p.m. May 2 on the mall across from Hayden Library.

Jack Stuler, associate professor of art, and Eric Kronengold, assistant professor of art, added their prints to those donated by graduate and undergraduate students.

Northlight Gallery, the official ASU center for light sensitive media, will receive all revenues from the sale. The gallery is in the Fine Arts Annex Rm. 116, next to Old Main.

A show by Bruce Davidson, along with faculty and student shows, has been exhibited in the gallery in the past year.

is to use as many students as possible."

A study of nine universities with similar operating expenses to those of ASU, including Tennessee, Arizona, Utah and Washington State, shows ASU distinctly lower in student library employment, Koepf said. The UofA, for example, has a library staff of 159 with 59 FTE student workers, he said.

Koepf said students need the work, are effective at the things they are trained to do, are willing to work flexible hours, and are willing to do jobs full-time employees find monotonous, such as shelf stacking and book check-out.

Koepf said he would eventually like to have about 60 student employees. Mayhew added that replacing full-time employees with students will take a while because vacancies must occur before the students can be hired.

Mayhew said by July 1, 10 full-time employees will be released and three full-time workers will retire.

(or How To Make Saturday Night Last Two Whole Days)

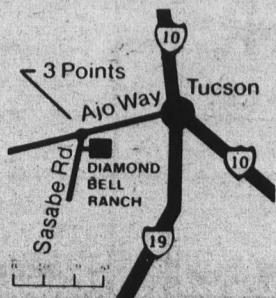

A weekend covered wagon trip at Diamond Bell $50 per person 10% discount for college groups

We'll be leaving the ranch at about 10 o'clock Saturday morning. You can either get in the saddle or ride the covered wagon as we set out across the desert in the cool morning air. We'll stop for lunch, then hit the trail till late afternoon when we'll pull up and make camp. You can do some hiking or rockhounding while the tents are going up. Then come and watch those big 16 oz. steaks sizzling on the open fire. There'll be liquid refreshments too! Later on, we'll sing some good old songs over the embers along with the strum of a folk guitar.

Next morning you'll wake up to the aroma of bacon and sourdough biscuits and cowboy coffee! We'll have eggs, pancakes...the works...then lunch on the trail before returning to the ranch at about four Sunday afternoon.

Get your group together now and make your reservations for any weekend between April 27th and May 19th. If you don't have a minimum of ten people, we may have some other people who'd like to join you.

Lost owners needed by found articles

By Tom Rock

The contents of the drawer could belong to a sentimentalist who over the years has saved momentos of the places he has been or people he has met. But this drawer is in the Lost and Found office in the Memorial Union and its contents belong to unknown owners.

Deloris Sperstad, MU receptionist, runs the Lost and Found Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Keys destroyed

Sperstad said many of the articles turned in to the office are in good condition and if not claimed they will be given to either the Salvation Army, Goodwill or Value Center in Phoenix.

Joyce Pelsue, director of the office, said jewelry estimated to be worth $25 or more is kept by the office for six months, then the finder can claim the item.

When several pairs of eye glasses have been accumulated, they are given to Gibbons Mortuary by the center. Gibbons forward the glasses to an aid-to-the-blind organization in New Jersey.

Given away

Unclaimed campus keys are turned over to the University key shop, and all other lost keys are destroyed at the end of the semester.

ASU ID cards are returned to West Hall if the owner is unable to be contacted.

Billfolds are another commonly lost item. If identification is present, the staff first tries to telephone the owner. If contact can not be established by phone, an attempt is made to contact the owner by mail.

Lost books loaned

A few years ago the MU started a lending library as a service to the students from the collection of unclaimed books turned in to

Lost and Found.

Students using the lending library fill out a simple form when checking out a book and return them to the library when they have finished using the book.

When articles are turned in, a description of where the item was lost is given in hope this will ensure finding the owner, Sperstad said.

"If students would put their names in books and notebooks, more often than not, their property could be returned to them," Sperstad said.

This confrontation occurred in the eighth inning of Friday night's ASU-Arizona game. The fight started when ASU second baseman Tom Sain was run into by Arizona baserunner Scott Norris on a double play. Words were exchanged following the collision and both benches emptied.

Devils fall behind

The ASU baseball team, which dropped two of three games to number-one ranked Arizona last weekend, continues in its role of underdog for the 1974 WAC championship.

The Devils dropped one game behind the Wildcats in the Southern Division, with nine conference games remaining. "I've said it since the beginning of the season and I'll stick to it now, the conference is going to be decided on the last game of the season," head coach Jim Brock said.

If the Brock prophecy is to come true the Devils will have to sweep their series with Texas-El Paso and New Mexico and win at least two of three games in Tucson.

This is based on the assumption that the Wildcats, 47-3, win their games with UTEP and New Mexico.

Brock said the showdown in Tucson May 9, 10 and 11 will have a different outcome than the past weekend's series.

"There's three reasons why

Golf results

The ASU golf team finished fifth in the 25-team All-America Intercollegiate Tournament in Houston last weekend.

The Devils held a one-stroke lead over the field after three days of competition, but finished eight strokes behind tournament champion Florida.

David Ishii of Houston had the low score in the tournament with 287.

ASU golfers' scores were Charles Gibson 291, Gary Jacobson 295, Brian Shanks 296, Rocky Waitt 297 and Doug Turner 307.

we should be an improved team the next time we meet," Brock said. "First, trying to adjust to the loss of (Bump) Wills is going to take time. Secondly, (Doug) Slocum is improving every time he pitches and the extra time should benefit him. And since we are a young team in comparison to Arizona I think we're going to improve with experience, while they won't."

Slocum was tagged with his second loss of the year Friday against Arizona. It was his third pitching effort since being operated on for removal of bone chips from his right elbow seven weeks ago.

In Thursday night's game, which was suspended due to a power failure at Packard Stadium, and continued the following night, the Devils found themselves handcuffed by the four-hit pitching of Dave Breuker. The UofA won 6-0.

Breuker earned All-WAC honors last season and is considered the top pitcher in the conference. He defeated Freshman Jim Peterson, who dropped his first decision of the year after eight wins.

Peterson remains the most impressive Devil pitcher on a staff which has a 3.84 earned run average. Last year's team ERA was 2.38. He leads ASU in innings pitched (86), complete games (5) and ERA (2.20).

The Devils lost the second game 6-4, but won the final, 6-3.

ASU, 32-20, opposes Grand Canyon College at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Municipal Stadium. Grand Canyon will be the home team in the contest.

A shot putter?

13-year-old Jackie Nelson of Orange County California belied the image of the typical shot putter as she performed her specialty during the Valle Del Sol Womens Track meet at Joe Selleh Track Saturday.
