CBS newsman Daniel Schorr discusses the right of the press to keep sources confidential during a Tuesday speech in Scottsdale. Wednesday, the House Ethics Committee voted 6-5 not to cite Schorr for contempt of Congress for refusing to reveal who gave him a copy of a classified report on American intelligence agencies.

To avoid future Watergates

Press must protect sources: Schorr

By Britton Bloom and Kathleen Shull

If the U.S. government forces newsmen to reveal confidential sources, it is inviting future Watergates, CBS newsman Daniel Schorr told a Scottsdale audience Tuesday.

Schorr, who faced charges of contempt-of-Congress for refusing to identify his source in obtaining a secret House report on CIA investigations, spoke to a crowd of about 500 at Scottsdale Community College.

Schorr had been under investigation by the House Ethics Committee after leaking a copy of the confidential report to the Village Voice newspaper in February.

The committee voted 6-5 in Schorr's favor Wednesday.

See Related Story, pg. 2

Schorr said if reporters are forced to reveal their sources, the confidentiality system will be destroyed.

Without that confidentiality, he added, Nixon would still be president, Watergate would be forgotten and the CIA revelations would never have come to light.

He said he wouldn't tell Congress where he got the CIA information because he would be "betraying future journalists and the function of the press in America."

"If you blow one confidential source, a lot of people lose a lot of confidential sources," he said.

Under the guise of national security, the intelligence community attempted to cover up official blunders and covert activities such as the assassination plans in Cuba, the Congo, the Dominican Republic and Chile, Schorr said.

The CIA and the FBI conspired to withhold information from the Warren Commission concerning the Kennedy assassination, he said.

Schorr said he saw a conspiracy in the intelligence community to manipulate public opinion and discredit the press in this country.

After being assigned to the CIA story, he said, "I felt it was the son of Watergate."

Three apparently unrelated incidents—two attempts on President Ford's life, the murder of the CIA's station chief in Athens and the bombing of LaGuardia airport—crystallized the importance of national security in the eyes of the public and discredited the motives of the press investigating intelligence agencies, he said.

Schorr said some senators felt the investigations had gone too far and were threatening to undermine national security.

Congressional and press investigations were deemed "in some way responsible" for causing the death of Richard Welch, station chief of Athens' CIA bureau, and the possible future deaths of secret agents, he said.

Although tradition is to keep agents anonymous, even after death, Welch was given a well-publicized military funeral which the press and members of Congress were not allowed to attend, Schorr said.

Around the Welch incident grew the backlash of public sentiment against press and congressional investigations, he said.

"If the press is manipulated you will discredit and lose that one institution that may have saved this country," Schorr said.

"We (the press) will observe national security when we are convinced it is national security," he said.

The alleged attack of a coed near a recently demolished section of Goodwin Stadium has spurred police and administrative action to improve safety in the area.

Silvia Centoz said she was attacked Sept. 16 while walking from Ocotillo Hall to Best Dormitory. A man tried to take her purse, and as she scuffled with him, he pulled a knife, stabbed her in the arm and fled without the purse, she said.

University Police Chief George Bays said police patrols of the area near Apache and College avenues have been increased.

"My crime prevention team is activated on that case. There will be concentrated patrol in that area. It's what we would call a target area," Bays said.

Bill Phelps, assistant vice president for business affairs, said one of two possible stopgap measures to improve safety in the area would be taken within a month.

Oleanders near a fence may be defoliated, allowing more light to shine on the area and eliminating a hiding place, he said.

"We're going to look at the cost of ripping those oleanders out and the cost of temporary lighting. We'll do one or the other within a month. I would hope sooner," Phelps said.

The interim action will be followed by a larger project in the Goodwin Stadium area.

"The demolition of the west end (of the stadium) is just about complete. As soon as they clean up the rubble we will ask for bids on the paving and lighting of the parking lot," Phelps said.

Once the stadium is torn down, more light will enter from the rest of the campus, he said.

Bays said night foot patrols have been increased on the whole west side of the campus. Police have a composite picture of the suspect from the Phoenix Police Department.

Centoz said Monday she and a group of dorm residents were starting a list of demands, including better lighting and priority for women in the parking spaces between Hayden and Best dorms.

Roger Wyer, a member of the ad hoc parking committee, which will propose changes in the University parking system, said Centoz is welcome to attend the group's meeting Friday and present her views.

"I'm more than willing to support her because she's got a cause," he said.

Bob Falls, chairman of the committee, said he is uncertain what action might be taken on Centoz's demand.

DEMOCRATS WIN RESTRAINING ORDER

PHOENIX — Democrats won a temporary restraining order today barring Eugene McCarthy's name from appearing on Arizona's Nov. 2 general election ballot. Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Yale McFate issued the order sought by the state Democratic party, state chairman Charles Pine; Genne Bullock, a leader in the Carter for President organization; and Lorraine Frank.

STATE FAIR BRIBE ALLEGED

PHOENIX — James L. Harris testified Wednesday that he agreed to a $2,500 bribe for former state fairgrounds director Jim Jones for an exclusive on tee shirt concessions during the 1974 fair. Harris' testimony completed the month-long state presentation against Jones, who is on trial in Maricopa County Superior Court on 53 counts ranging from bribery and embezzlement to forgery and grand theft.

PRISON ESCAPE CANCELS WORK

PHOENIX — The escape of a Fort Grant inmate, Herbert L. Shockey, serving a life term for murder, has canceled outside work privileges for 11 other prisoners. John Moran, state corrections director, said Wednesday, plans were in the works last month to make long-term inmates ineligible for outside work training.

FORD SIGNS RECORD DEFENSE BILL

WASHINGTON — President Ford signed a record $104.3-billion defense appropriation bill today that lets the winner of the presidential election decide whether to go ahead with full production of the B1 bomber. Ford said the pattern of increased spending in the bill "must and will be sustained in future years and I'm personally committed to it." Ford favors the B1. Democrat Jimmy Carter has said he would scrap the $21.6-billion program, while maintaining research and development on the supersonic aircraft.

BUSES COLLIDE — 20 INJURED

MIAMI, Florida — A school bus carrying children and a Greyhound bus with passengers aboard collided today on a busy highway about 15 miles south of Miami, injuring more than 20 persons, authorities said. At least five ambulances carried passengers to two area hospitals. An ambulance dispatcher said several of the injured were in serious condition.

House committee turns down contempt charge for Schorr

WASHINGTON AP — The House Ethics Committee today refused to recommend that television reporter Daniel Schorr be prosecuted for failing to give the panel his copy of a classified House intelligence report.

The committee voted 6-5 against a motion by Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., to cite Schorr for contempt-of-Congress. One member was absent.

The vote apparently doomed any effort to initiate legal action against the CBS reporter for refusing to turn over his copy of the document or reveal his source for the report detailing activities of U.S. intelligence agencies.

The committee also defeated by a 7-4 vote a motion by Rep. Thad Cochran, R-Miss., to recommend that Schorr be denied the use of the House radio-television galleries for the remainder of this session of Congress.

In an appearance before the ethics committee last week, Schorr said the First Amendment's free press guarantees protected him from having to reveal his source or relinquish his copy of the report.

Hutchinson, however, argued the report was the property of the House and that Schorr should be forced to return it.

Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said no valid purpose would be served by attempting to prosecute Schorr for contempt-of-Congress, a misdemeanor punishable by a fine or jail sentence.

Foley said the courts have been "extremely concerned" about interfering with constitutional guarantees protecting reporters.

"I would hope we would avoid a constitutional confrontation on this issue," Foley said.

Cochran said he didn't want to force Schorr to reveal his source, but thought the reporter should be punished for arranging to have the report published by the Village Voice, a New York City weekly newspaper, after the House voted to keep the report secret.

Ever Notice That Your Life Seems To Go In Cycles?

Scientists have found psychological and biological cycles in the human body. Now, an easy technique can help you adapt to YOUR BIO-RHYTHMS.

German scientists discovered three cycles which start at birth — physical, emotional, mental. Each cycle goes through periods of high (active) and low (recuperating) energy. The switching days between are called critical. These "out of touch" days may cause accidents or a variety of other problems. Indeed, the "trauma of birth" creates a triple critical day.

Major Organizations such as airlines, hospitals and police are now using Bio-Rhythms. Why... To help people understand daily changes, especially during vulnerable periods. Examples of research conducted by organizations.

- Safety consultant firm found 70% of industrial accidents occur on employee's critical day.
- Aviation Safety Center reported 80% of private plane accidents occur on critical day of pilot.
- Bio-Rhythm research found critical days significant in study of 2100 auto accidents.

Although accidents can be reduced using Bio-Rhythms, the major purpose is to help you perceive and adjust to your changing nature. If you get along better with yourself, you'll be more compatible with others. People often use Bio-Rhythms to understand compatibilities.

OUR SERVICE INCLUDES:

- Attractive, easy-to-read calendar of your cycles. (13 mos.)
- Complete description of Bio-Rhythms.
- Critical days and composite cycle for each month.
- Discounts for distributors of 10 or more or to organizations.

Psychology prof relates problems of sexual therapy

By Rosemary Schabert

A sex therapist sees some strange cases, like that of a couple who had been married for 14 years without consummating their sexual relationship.

The couple entered sex therapy and learned to have intercourse. They didn't like it.

"Now that they had done it, they were free to say, 'good-bye,'" said Leonard Goodstein, professor of psychology and chairman of the psychology department.

Therapy usually heals troubles

Goodstein has worked as a sex therapist for ten years.

He spoke Wednesday on "Advances in Sex Therapy and Sex Research" in one of a series of lectures sponsored by the Honors Program of the College of Liberal Arts.

The mysterious couple was an example of a case in which a sexual problem is actually holding a marriage together, Goodstein said.

But usually, sex therapy improves a relationship.

An individual's values and attitudes can affect his physical responses, and the two can be brought together through therapy, Goodstein said.

A lot of warfare

A couple's relationship involves a lot of warfare. The sexual act is a fertile field for maiming and hurting, he said.

"People sandbag their problems and bring them to the marriage bed," he said.

In sexual therapy, one male and one female therapist work with a couple. The patients learn to talk about sex, then learn exercises and discuss their reactions, building up a base of common experience, he said.

Couples are sometimes hooked up to physiological measuring equipment, which usually fails to distract them.

"I think what might be most surprising is that you get this kind of (sexual) performance. Somehow the human organism can turn its mind off and work at the task at hand," Goodstein said.

Sexual research

He also discussed research about sexuality.

He posed the hypothetical case of two infant survivors of a plane crash, one male and one female. If they grew up on different sides of an island and finally one day found each other, would they immediately have sexual intercourse?

Goodstein says it's a question to which we don't have an answer.

But researchers do know that male monkeys reared in isolation don't know how to perform sexually, even with experienced, trained females, he said.

"They never do it. They do get sexually excited," he said. "They do have erections. But they never figure out what to do. It just never comes together for them."

The monkeys can learn by observation, however.

Scientists don't know if isolated humans would have the same problem, Goodstein said.

Different viewpoints

He also discussed the different kinds of sexual behavior of humans throughout the world. What appeals to one group, another might find repugnant, he said.

He said natives of the Indonesian country Bali have interesting sexual practices. Lovers caress the face, warm their bodies against each other, and smell each other, he said.

'Playboy' interview upheld by Carter

By The Associated Press

Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter told reporters Wednesday he's not sorry he granted an interview to Playboy magazine and doesn't believe his remarks about lust and adultery hurt him.

Carter's running mate, meanwhile, let it be known he did not want to talk about the interview. But, when questioned at an informal news conference in Chicago, Sen. Walter F. Mondale said: "It's not a matter of central concern at all in this campaign."

Related stories page 5 and 10

"Gov. Carter is very open, very candid," Mondale added. "He expressed his personal point of view on a religious matter. It really doesn't matter."

Asked by reporters in Plains, Ga., if he was dismayed by some of the reaction to his Playboy interview, Carter replied: "No. I don't want to have a press conference this morning..."

Q. "Do you feel you were misunderstood?"

A. "I haven't been bothered by it."

Q. "Why did you grant the interview?"

A. "The same reason I grant you one..."

Q. "Are you sorry you granted it?"

A. "No."

In an excerpt from the interview made public earlier this week, the Democratic candidate said he would not attempt to impose his own religious beliefs on others. "Christ set some almost impossible standards for us," he said, adding that to sin is human and "God forgives me for it."

"I've looked on a lot of women with lust," Carter continued. "I've committed adultery in my heart many times. This is something that God recognizes I will do — and I have done it — and God forgives me for it.

"But that doesn't mean that I condemn someone who not only looks on a woman with lust, but who leaves his wife and shacks up with somebody out of wedlock."

"Christ says don't consider yourself better than someone else because one guy screws a whole bunch of women while the other guy is loyal to his wife. The guy who's loyal to his wife ought not to be condescending or proud because of the relative degree of sinfulness."

Cops are ahead on rape problem

Women worried about the threat of rape or assault while walking on campus at night should take heart about one fact: University Police are doing something.

They started a long time before the most recent incident, a stabbing and attempted robbery near the remains of Goodwin Stadium.

After Chief George Bays took over 14 months ago from his highly-regarded predecessor, John Duffy, he began to re-emphasize the danger posed by after-dark attackers.

Bays and his department have done everything they could to warn students, suggesting ways to avoid trouble.

Information on the problem has been provided freely to the State Press. Bays has urged fullest coverage.

His department has helped spread information through the newspaper, Associated Students and other means.

Bays has urged that the University provide more lighting on campus and eliminate other hazards.

A self-defense course for women has been started, at Bays' direction. More than 70 women are now enrolled.

More important than these services, however, is the way Bays is deploying his officers. More patrolmen are on foot, some in plainclothes.

Special attention is paid to the most hazardous areas.

Now University Police are searching for last week's stabber.

Bays is using the incident to prod the University into removing shrubbery near the scene that Bays believes has been a perfect hiding place for criminals.

The University owes it to those who walk there at night to follow Bays' suggestion.

For anyone concerned that some campus greenery will be eliminated, Bays has another idea — replace the oleanders with tall evergreen trees.

University Police tactics for reducing bicycle thefts follow in a similar vein, stressing education.

After publication of tips for avoiding bike thefts, police are going one step further — telling students when they have parked or locked bikes carelessly.

The red tag found on handlebars is a reminder that ASU's police department follows a policy of preventing crime as well as catching criminals.

Take trash with you

Please, a little respect for butte

Editor:

I am writing in regard to the disgusting amount of bottles, cans and other garbage that was littered all over the butte at the ASU-UCLA football game.

It was a sad sight for me to see that people threw trash on the ground without even thinking twice.

For myself and many other people, the butte is a beautiful formation of nature that was not meant to be scarred with piles of waste.

I went to the game with a friend of mine, along with a blanket, beer, and some snacks.

From a distance the mountain was a pleasant, forceful, and graceful figure. I had always respected it for cleanliness and natural beauty.

As we scaled the bold structure before us, I began to notice scattered sections of broken glass.

Optimistically, I thought maybe the higher levels would be free of crud so I journeyed forward with hope.

But to my dismay, the blanket of filthy debris continued, and I was unable to find a clean spot on any plateau.

Somehow, the dynamic, beautiful work of mother nature suddenly lost appeal and became extremely ugly.

As we cleared the ground of the jutting sharp glass, so we could put down our quilt without being cut to shreds, my feelings of kindness and appreciation turned into emotions of hate and disgust.

However, I nor anybody else can blame the butte for being cluttered with trash.

It has no say in the matter.

Rather the people alone who choose to sit on the mountain are the ones at fault.

We are the ones who spread the ground with decay and in turn we are the only ones that can remedy the situation.

My proposition to prevent further pollution is simple.

I would like to ask everybody that ventures to the butte for a football game, or whatever the reason, to please be thoughtful enough to merely collect their own trash, bring it back down with them, and dispose of it properly later on; as we did with ours.

In this way everyone can enjoy themselves more, the football games more, and most importantly enjoy the magnificent butte more.

Sexism in reverse to shift threat to men

Editor:

Re: Silvia Centoz

Hopefully, many people empathize with Ms. Centoz's recent assault.

People like myself, who have been subjected to rape and assault attempts, can understand the helplessness and frustration one feels over the lack of safety and ease of mobility that seems to dominate our metropolitan areas.

I must take issue with Ms. Centoz on priority parking for women students.

Her statement seems to suggest that campus authorities exchange the sex of the victims.

The likelihood of an attacker approaching someone the size of a football player seems remote.

However, the majority of people do not possess such physical stature and therefore are probable victims for a surprise mugging.

This type of reverse sexism, I feel, is what prevents the easy conviction of rapists.

The horror of rape is the intrusion upon and abuse of another's body. The same is true of any assault, where skulls are crushed, and various types of mutilation occur.

The human body is sacred, regardless of sex.

However, it is possible that the court system is reluctant to punish the assaulting rapist, since, if he had assaulted a man, his sentence would be so light in comparison.

This argument of course ignores the inherent sexism that still prevails everywhere regarding raped women.

Lightweight smoker asks cash

Editor:

I feel the time has come for me to speak out on a subject important to many of us at ASU.

I smoke a pack a day (I could quit whenever I want to, of course) and over the years this has made it difficult for me to walk from the perimeter parking lots all the way to class.

Also, since I weigh less than 140 pounds I have a great fear of being robbed by one or more of the 6 foot, 200 pound muggers that I see lurking in the bushes every day.

These facts have driven me to make two demands.

First, I would like a few thousand bucks from ASASU to promote "Lightweight Smokers" awareness week on campus.

Second, I believe that students who smoke and weigh less than 140 pounds should get special parking privileges closer to campus whether they be male or female, and regardless of whether or not they are members of the association.

Needs floor support

Groups raising money to renovate old church

By Tina Fesler

Two Tempe groups have raised more than half of the $30,000 needed to restore the 73-year-old Mt. Carmel Catholic Church at College Avenue and University Drive.

The Tempe Knights of Columbus and the All Saints

Newman Center, the ASU Catholic group, started the project in January to restore the church that has been closed to services for about 10 years.

"Now it's being used for small weddings and as a meditation chapel," said

Betty Snider of the Newman Center.

Snider said after two or three more projects the Newman Center should have enough money to start restoration.

"The major problem in restoration is the floor of the main sanctuary. It was originally constructed to hold 50 pounds of vertical weight, and Tempe building codes require it to hold twice that weight," Snider said.

Snider said the following repairs will be made:

New beams will be installed in the basement ceiling to support the church floor, which will cost anywhere from $15,000 to $20,000.

The electrical system will be rewired at a cost of about $2,000.

The bricks on the outside of the building will be repainted, which will cost about $2,000.

New exit stairs in the rear will be installed for $700.

Work will be done on the roof for an estimated $1,000.

The basement will be fire-proofed and a new concrete floor laid, which will cost about $4,000.

Architecture and engineering studies will cost approximately $2,000.

Carter's 'Playboy' interview fuels satirist Art Buchwald

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Columnist Art Buchwald says Jimmy Carter's interview with Playboy magazine is good for the political satire business.

"Every time I think I'm going to run out of steam

... Carter gives an interview to Playboy," Buchwald told University of Massachusetts students here Wednesday.

Buchwald quipped that the controversy over the Playboy interview, in which Carter said he had committed adultery in his heart many times, could cause voters to question the Democratic presidential candidate's relationship with God.

University Police to earmark improperly secured bicycles

By Rhonda Prast

Red tags will be placed on improperly locked bicycles on campus beginning next week, a University Police officer said Tuesday.

The red tag, however, is not a citation. It is advice to the bike owner, officer Gene Jones said.

"It's not a warning. It's an aid to keep from getting your bike stolen," he said.

Jones said the tags are a new public relations effort by the department to reduce the number of bike thefts on campus.

Tags will be placed on bicycles that need either a heavier chain and lock, are not locked to a bike rack, are locked up in unlit areas or do not have both wheels locked to the rack, Jones said.

The tags will be distributed on a selective basis by police officers. "Essentially, we'll put them on the bikes that stick out the worst," Jones added.

Jones admitted there was a possibility the red tags could attract bike thieves, but said the ASU crime prevention team will watch the racks closely.

He said the department will run the program for a short time, stop it and start it again later.

"The program could lose its effectiveness if it ran constantly," Jones said.

Jones also recommended bike owners obtain Tempe bike licenses to prevent thefts. He said they can be purchased at any fire station.

Swine flu shots may be offered to ASU students in November

By Nina Bondarook

Students who are worried about contracting swine flu will be able to receive free vaccinations at ASU, Dr. Richard Jones, director of Student Health Services said.

Plans will be made for an inoculation clinic after the Maricopa County Health Department learns when ASU will receive its share of the vaccine — probably sometime in November, Jones said. Tentative plans have been made to use the Activity Center for the clinic site, he said.

Jones would not say whether he recommends students take the shots because he said information on the vaccine is still too sketchy. "If they (students) want them, then they should get them," he said.

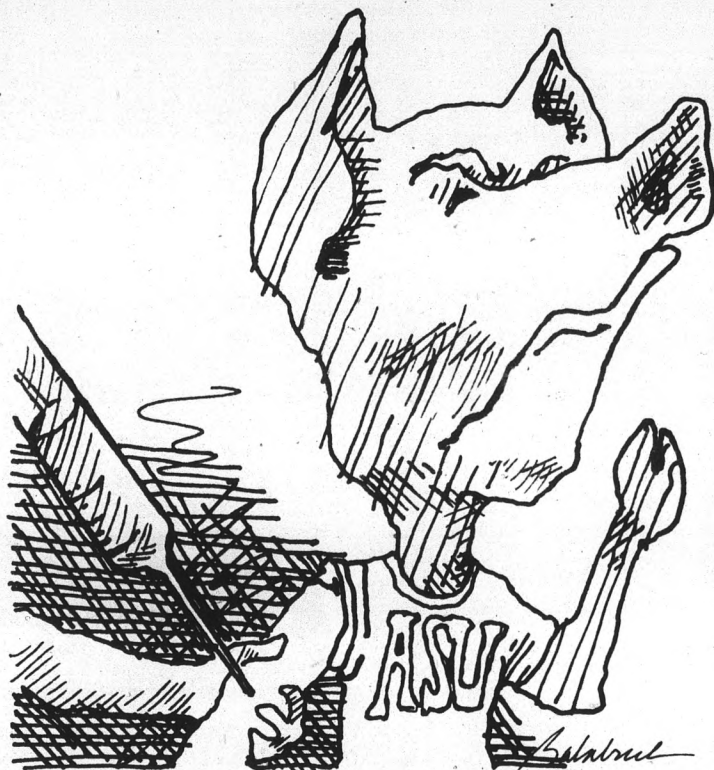

But Dr. Joseph Pinto, chairman of Maricopa County's influenza immunization program, and a member of the Bureau of Disease Control, recommends that everyone get a shot.

The only side effects, Pinto said, would be "a sore arm, maybe a little fever for an hour or two hours. Nothing an aspirin won't help."

The vaccine should be available to ASU sometime after Nov. 15, Pinto said.

Although the first shipments of vaccine will be in Maricopa County in early October, only elderly persons and persons also susceptible to another strain of influenza will be inoculated.

The first vaccine will immunize the elderly from two types of flu, while the November shipment is just for swine flu immunization. It will be administered to anyone 18 or older.

So far, Pinto said there has been only one reported case of swine flu in the United States. That case caused the death of a person in New Jersey.

"We don't know where it (swine flu) comes from," he said. "But, if we finish (mass public immunization) by Dec. 17, it should be all right," he said. "It takes two to three weeks to develop sufficient immunity against the flu. Our influenza season starts in mid-January."

"This is the first time a real preventative program has been presented (in the United States) for anything," said Pinto.

Bike paths help lower accidents, police say

University Police said Wednesday the green bike paths crisscrossing campus apparently are helping to lower the number of bike-pedestrian collisions.

Although no figures are available to determine the relationship between the amount of accidents and the increasing number of bike paths, police have recorded no bike accidents so far this semester.

"The best way to avoid such accidents is for the bikers to stay on the paths and the pedestrians to walk on the sidewalks," said Lt. Tom Godbehere.

Prostitution ring story creates controversy

The student newspaper at the University of the Pacific, in Stockton, Calif., reported last spring that a group of 21 freshman women were allegedly operating a prostitution ring from their dorm rooms to pay their sorority initiation fees.

One week later, the paper's editor, Ned Tolbert, was fired after three weeks on the job.

Tolbert feels the firing was a direct outcome of his decision to run the prostitution story. But student government officers contend Tolbert was fired because he refused to follow budgetary guidelines, and that the dismissal action had begun before the story appeared.

After Tolbert left the staff, the paper retracted the story, saying some sources had turned out to be unreliable. Tolbert admits the story may have been exaggerated, but insists it was "still basically true."

"They just retracted it because of the pressure and political skullduggery," Tolbert said.

After Tolbert's removal, a group of fraternity and sorority members filed a complaint with the judiciary board of the university charging Tolbert with "irresponsible use of the student newspaper."

"I don't see how they can say I was irresponsible," said Tolbert. "I followed all the guidelines and even checked with the editorial board before running it."

The complaint will be prosecuted by the university later this month and could result in Tolbert's expulsion. It also charges him with "negatively and unfairly representing the student body" and acting contrary to the "best interests of the school."

Tolbert said, "If they can make charges like that, it means the end of a viable newspaper on this campus."

TV news crew takes part

Filmed 'rapes' point out inferior campus lighting

By Dan Winkel

It was late night when Naida Axford finished her studies at Hayden Library and headed for home on foot.

The shadows from the few scattered lights that line Cady Mall cast an eerie sequence of black and white on the pavement. The mall was deserted, and Naida could feel the isolation.

As she passed beneath an overgrown tree of hanging branches, a man grabbed her and violently dragged her out of sight. Naida had become another victim of the plague of womanhood — rape.

This scene was not real — it was staged for local television cameras. At the request of a group of women law students, a film crew from KTVK-tv, Channel 3, dramatized the potential danger women face at night on the ASU campus.

Actor to speak to theatre class at Neeb Hall

Stage, screen and TV personality Tom Poston will speak at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Neeb Hall.

The Emmy-award-winning actor gained notoriety from TV's "To Tell the Truth" and from more demanding roles in several Broadway plays.

Poston will appear with his co-star in the Windmill Theatre production of "Plaza Suite," — Beverly Dixon.

The class will be open to the public.

Judy Sirkis, a second-year law student and member of Women in Law, said the mock rapes were filmed to draw attention to the problem of bad lighting on campus.

Several attacks on women occurred last spring in the student parking lot south of the College of Law, and prompted the students to ask the University for improved lighting, she said.

"Women should not have to deny themselves the educational opportunities on campus because of the unsafe conditions," Sirkis said.

Bill Phelps, assistant vice president for business affairs, said Tuesday, bids for a campuswide parking renovation, including new lights and asphalt repair, will be called for in a few weeks. The commuter lot south of the law building will be included in the project, Phelps said.

Sirkis said she believes University Police have not emphasized the seriousness of the problem. She said last year an incident in the lot was reported to police, but a car never arrived at the scene.

Sirkis said the inadequate lighting on the ASU campus could make it a source of future attacks.

"I don't want this to be a target place. If word gets out that it is dark here . . ."

Sirkis said lighting might not eliminate the problem, "but you can defend it better with lights."

Carter blew it in interview with 'Playboy,' pastor says

By Khambrel Marshall

Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter made a big mistake both politically and as a Christian by agreeing to a Playboy magazine interview recently, the president of the Arizona Southern Baptist Convention said

Wednesday. "He (Carter) has gained his tremendous following by projecting an image of high integrity, and Playboy magazine just does not represent that integrity," the Rev. Richard Jackson said.

"It wasn't very smart for a candidate for president of the United States to use a vulgarism in an interview for a national magazine," Jackson said.

The "vulgarism" Jackson referred to is Carter's statement, "Christ says don't consider yourself better than someone else because one guy screws a whole bunch of women while the other guy is loyal to his wife."

Jackson, who is pastor of the North Phoenix Baptist Church, said Carter made another mistake in not condemning the sinful actions of others.

"He (Carter) was right in his interpretation of his (Southern Baptist) beliefs that as a Christian he is forgiven for the sins he commits, but he shouldn't come out and say that the sinful actions others commit are alright."

Jackson would not endorse either Carter or President Ford but said, "If the election were held today, I wouldn't vote for Carter."

Clean air forum to hear opinions

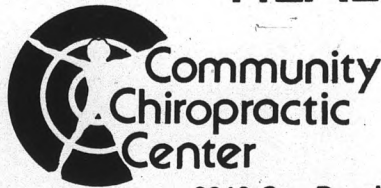

Maintaining air quality in the Phoenix metropolitan area will be the topic for discussion at an air quality forum Friday at ASU.

On hand to present their views will be Art Aymer, director of the Arizona Department of Health Services; Frank Bosh, assistant director of the Arizona Department of Transportation; Dave French, Maricopa Association of Governments; and state senator Stan Turley.

William Jenkins, mayor of Scottsdale, will moderate the forum, sponsored by Associated Students and the Center for Public Affairs.

The event, free to the public, is scheduled for 2 p.m. in the MU Pima Room.

Group helps members handle mental illness

By Steve Tripp

Tommie, an attractive middle-aged woman, is sitting in a closely knit group of friends, describing herself as a neurotic.

"I was born crying and never stopped crying until three years ago when I joined the program," she said.

Tommie is a member of Emotional Health Anonymous (EHA), a national organization designed to help people recover from emotional and mental illness.

The Phoenix chapter of EHA began in 1969 as Neurotics Anonymous and now is a self-supporting organization financed only by members' contributions.

Describing their problems as everything from neurosis to schizophrenia, participants of the small group are seeking one common goal — recovery. Professional therapists do not conduct the meetings. The program operates on group therapy.

"The group doesn't give advice, they just listen. I have to find the answers myself," said Maita, an EHA member.

The members work towards trying to live just one day at a time and being able to handle any problem that may occur in their daily lives.

Carol, another member, said, "Since I have come to the program I have done all sorts of things that I couldn't do a couple of years before . . . I just can't say enough for the program."

The basic philosophies that the group follows are outlined in a small pamphlet containing EHA's "Twelve Traditions" and "Twelve Steps" to recovery. Members also operate on mutual trust and honesty, and may phone another member who they feel they can identify with if a problem arises during the week.

"We draw energy from each other," said Tommie.

There is no age limit for EHA and some members are in their late teens. One EHA member, Jean, has had problems since she was 17 and says that EHA has given her something to hang onto. She was hospitalized nine times and attempted suicide prior to joining EHA.

EHA meetings are every Monday evening from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at St. Theresa's Catholic Church.

Geology expert to show slides of volcanic devastation

By Melissa Jones

An ASU professor who visited the recent volcanic eruptions in Guadeloupe, West Indies, will present slides and movies of the volcano at 3:40 p.m. Sept. 29 in Physical Sciences room F-166.

Dr. Michael Sheridan, professor of geology at ASU, was one of the few American scientists to observe the erupting volcano, located in a French island in the West Indies. France allows only five U.S. scientists to visit at one time, and Sheridan went to perform cooperative studies.

The volcano, La Soufriere, is considered significant because it is the first time volcanic activity has been predicted using a study of the earth's tides. Earth tides are forces that operate in a similar manner to the ocean's tides. The prediction method was developed by an Alaskan geologist, Jurgin Kinle, and has been very accurate.

Kinle predicted the eruption of Aug. 30, and expects another to occur on Sept. 28 or 29.

Sheridan, who has studied active volcanoes in Iceland, Hawaii and Japan, said that the La Soufriere devastation could be seen for three to four kilometers, with hot rocks and steaming ashes.

Mr. Blum [Michael Smith] begs Ruth Benson R.N. [Marilyn Sommer] to let him wear her nurse's cap in Terrence McNally's "Bad Habits." The two satirical comedies are the opening events in the ASU Theatre's "Main Stage" series. See story below.

Professor makes film for TV on 'Hitchhiking in America'

By John Dougherty

An ASU professor is making a film on safer methods of hitchhiking, to be shown on local television next month.

Dr. Willard Underwood, assistant professor of speech and theatre, is producing the film, "Hitchhiking in America." It will be shown in October, in two parts, on KPHO-TV, Channel 5.

Underwood said the first part of the film will deal with the different forms and reasons for hitchhiking. The second part of the film will show how to make hitchhiking a safe practice, he said.

"Females should not hitchhike alone, should not hitchhike at night and should wear clothes that disguise their figures while hitchhiking," Underwood said. Men should follow the same rules, he added.

Underwood said registration of drivers who pick up hitchhikers, and of the hitchhikers themselves, would improve safety.

"The main problem with crime associated with hitchhiking is that most of the crimes go unreported," Underwood said. The major crimes believed to be associated with hitchhiking in Arizona are the desert slayings of women over the past few years, he said.

There has never been a national study on hitchhikers, Underwood said. No reliable statistics have been compiled on the movement of hitchhikers or the general age and sex of hitchhikers or the drivers who pick them up, he said.

Hitchhiking is legal in Arizona except on controlled access freeways, a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety said. However, it is legal on the access roads to the freeways, but the motorist must not impede the movement of traffic in stopping for the hitchhiker, the spokesman said.

Award-winning plays to show in courtyard

Terrence McNally's "Bad Habits," two short award-winning comedies set on the patios of a couple of posh rest homes, will open the ASU Theatre's "Main Stage" Series with performances at 8 p.m. tonight through Sunday and Sept. 30 through Oct. 3.

The plays will be presented in the Dixie Gammage Courtyard at ASU, a grassy quadrangle enclosed by Gammage Hall and West Hall. Dr. William Dobkin, director, said the setting of the plays lends itself ideally to outdoor staging.

"Bad Habits," which won an Obie Award, has "nothing to contribute to the human dilemma, only serving to add to the confusion," said New York Daily News critic Douglas Watt. "But it couldn't be much more fun," he said.

Tickets for "Bad Habits" may be purchased at the Lyceum, Diamond's Select-A-Seat outlets and Dixie Gammage Courtyard on evenings of performances. The entrance to the courtyard is off Forest Avenue Mall.

Student undergoes treatment for rabies after bite by bat

By Brian Lindquist

An ASU student is undergoing treatment for rabies after suffering a bat bite while hiking in the Grand Canyon Sunday.

Robert Bendetson, a 22-year-old physical education major, was hiking alone near Phantom Ranch at the bottom of the canyon when he was bitten.

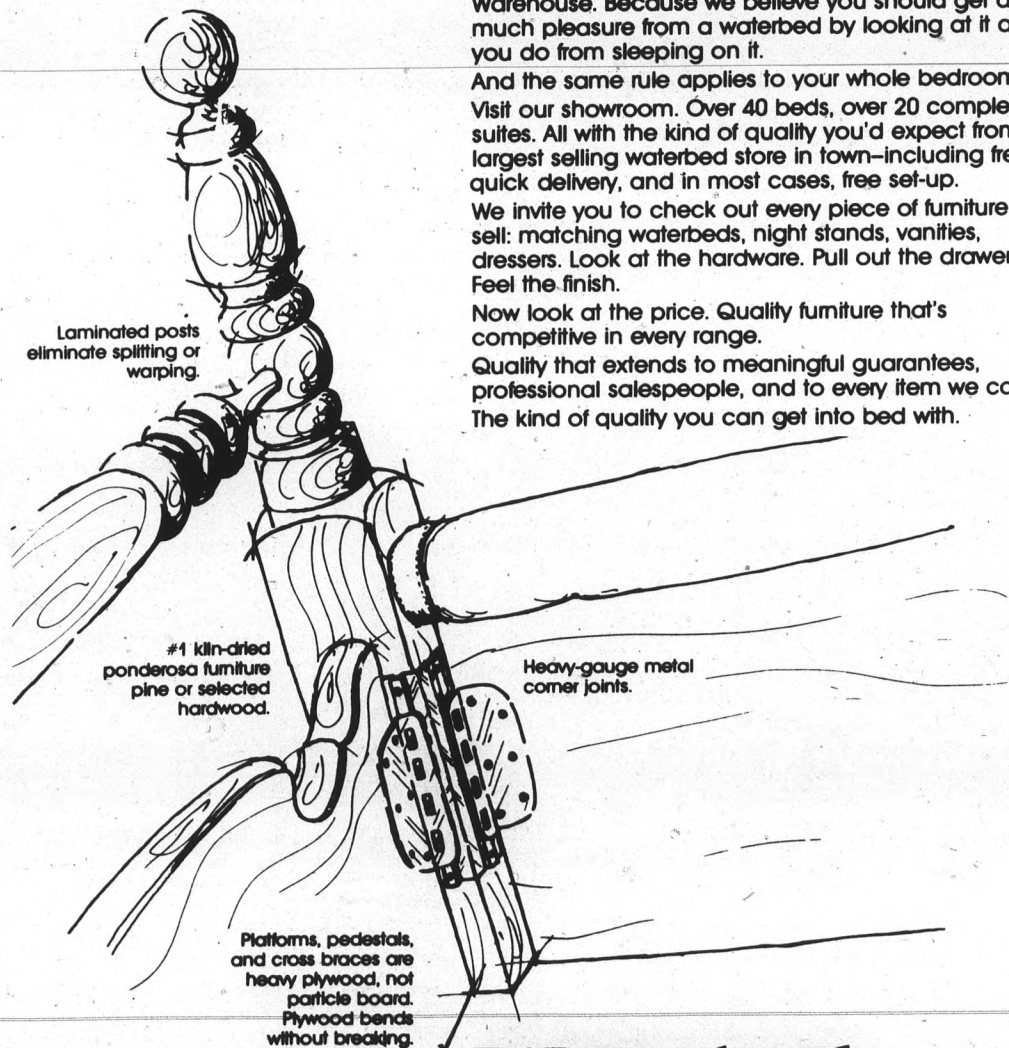

"I didn't even feel the bite at first," Bendetson said. "I saw him fluttering on my right side, and I brushed him away, but he kept following me."

Bendetson was bitten on his left elbow early Sunday evening and had to spend the night at Phantom Ranch.

"It was scary — I was so tired from walking, and it was getting dark. There were bats everywhere in getting to the ranch," he said.

Bendetson returned to Phoenix Monday and began treatment at Maricopa County Hospital immediately. He will receive 22 injections of duck embryo serum.

Sundancers to audition coeds for basketball season shows

The ASU Sundancers' precision dance team begins a second season of entertaining Sun Devil basketball fans by conducting tryouts for new Sundancers from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Oct. 5-7 in the Physical Education East Building, room 139.

The Sundancers, who perform at halftime at all home basketball games, seek women carrying at least seven semester hours with a minimum 2.0 grade average.

The team is directed by Sharon Mathias, a former Ohio schoolteacher with extensive experience in training women's precision dance and marching teams.

The final selection of 24 women will be at 10 a.m. on Oct. 9. Selections are based on appearance, personality and marching and dancing ability.

Allan Frazier, Associated Students coordinator, described the line as "not a pom-pom line which performs courtside during the games," but as strictly halftime entertainment.

The group also plans to take on other duties, such as becoming hostesses for various athletic events, and Applications and in-participating in other formation are available in athletic-oriented activities. MU-room 208A.

New pro draft ruling might not be good for game, Kush says

By Michael Padgett

ASU Head Football Coach Frank Kush said a new National Football League college draft system ordered by a federal judge earlier this month might not be good for the game. "Unless they (the NFL owners) come up with a better system than we have now, a lot of good players might not get to play football for the pro teams," Kush said Wednesday.

Federal Judge William Bryant ruled in Washington the existing college draft procedures are illegal and a "most pernicious" antitrust violation.

After presiding over the four-week, nonjuried trial, Bryant told NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle and club owners to limit their draft choices to two college players per team instead of the current system of each pro club choosing 17 players.

But Kush said a limit of two draft choices of the top football players would give the clubs in the warmer climates an unfair advantage.

"You know a player, if given a choice, would rather play in Miami or San Diego instead of Green Bay or Buffalo," said Kush.

Kush said the order by Bryant to the NFL has no immediate effect on ASU because college teams have no active part in the making up the NFL draft procedures.

"That's up to them (the NFL)," he said.

The judge gave Rozelle and football club owners until the end of the current football season to modify the draft, which has existed since 1937.

Bryant said the agreement in which teams do not approach a player already in negotiations with another team is a "group boycott in its classic and most pernicious form."

Sports Letters

Sportswriters didn't listen to Kush

Editor:

You guys on the sports staffs of the Arizona Republic, State Press and others who were placing the 1976 ASU football team on the almighty pedestal of invincibility throughout training camp, stop your sour grapes now about how the team and Frank Kush are suddenly so "hopeless," or how the entire season is shattered.

Sometimes, through the facade of brightly colored, artificial preseason football reports and gimmickry, repetitious photos of the players in practice, sportswriters fail to see reality.

Never once did they entertain the possibility of an ASU loss to UCLA. They failed to listen to Frank Kush when he quite frankly made quotes about the lack of maturity of his team, or about how his players are still basking in the glory of last season.

The writers, instead, were harping over UPI placing ASU

No. 7 in the preseason poll instead of No. 1 or 2, and buried Frank's warnings somewhere in their ridiculously gooey articles from Tontozona.

Now Frank gets the bad rap, just because the sportswriters have to find someone to point the finger at for their own ASU "walk-on-water" narratives of the last summer. And that's totally unfair and amateurish of supposedly professional writers.

Reader 'sorry' for columnist

Dear Mike Natter:

I can't help but feel disgusted and sorry for you and your attitude toward Arizona State's sports, in particular, football. "WAC is worse," you say. How can you judge a conference on one football game? How can you judge a football game according to its first competition? Why are you so hung up on the Pac-8?

The WAC is, according to nationally compiled statistics, the fastest-growing winning conference. The WAC is far from getting worse.

The football team competes against a team that beat Ohio State last year. UCLA lost only one starter from that team, the quarterback. UCLA was good, but why condemn a conference and a team for losing?

In Tuesday's edition, you said that Miller's "stovehouse of explanations" are to pacify. Pacify what, you? You say that the ticket holders rightfully deserve the best opponents and exciting games. What are UCLA and California teams to be ranked with . . . turkeys?

Mike, it's discouraging to think that you don't like "Fred," (are you on first name terms with him?), and his program. Look what he has done for the school, athletics, intramurals and the students. Why not help him, not condemn the conference. By going to Pac-8, is that going to help the WAC? Why not ask Dr. Miller to explain it to you? Listen this time!

Record number of entries to play ASU tennis open

A record number of entries will play in the sixth annual Sun Devil Open Tennis Tournament beginning Friday at 10:30 a.m. on Whiteman Tennis Center and Apache Boulevard courts.

Out-of-state and local players will compete in men's and women's singles and doubles in invitational, open and collegiate divisions.

Three of four seeded women in invitational singles are current or former ASU players. Seeded No. 1 is Claire Schmoeyer, ASU alumna; Ann Lebedeff, No. 2, San Diego; Chris Penn, No. 3, former No. 1 ASU woman, currently not enrolled in college; and Sue Boyle, No. 4, ASU senior, and No. 1 on the women's tennis team.

Seeded teams in women's invitational doubles are Claire Schmoeyer-Lebedeff, one, and Isa Ortiz-Kay Schmoeyer, two.

Men's invitational singles seeded players are Warren Eber, Arizona; Randall Clark, Arizona; Ted Williams, ASU; and Mike Wilkinson, former ASU player.

Men's invitational doubles seeded teams are Wilkinson-Glen Holroyd, ASU, and Williams and Ronnie Lerner, ASU.

Finals will be played Sunday at 2 and 4 p.m. at the Whiteman Tennis Center.

Seeded in the open men's singles draw of 44 are Dick McGaw, Doug Kerr, John Foulk, and Bill Simpkins.

The tournament is sponsored by the ASU women's varsity tennis team, holder of the Intermountain Conference title for the third consecutive year.

OLYMPUS OM-1 CAMERA and LENSES

If you're concerned with the size & weight of your camera, take a look at the smallest, lightest 35mm SLR system camera in the world. The viewfinder is 70% brighter and almost 1/3 larger than most others. Combined with open aperture metering it'll seem like you've been using your old camera with sunglasses on!

The OM-1 is built rugged to take a beating, engineered for a brutal 5 frames per second motor drive operation. It's remarkably quiet and has easily interchangeable focusing screens.

And, don't let the word "system" confuse you. All we're talking about are the over 280 system accessories backing up the camera, including 27 Zuiko lenses, macro and micro equipment plus the spectacular OM Motor Drive. You'll never be left wanting!
