Regents vote 3% increase

Schwada: Too little merit pay

By Lori Rabinowitz

Quality professors are being kept out of Arizona by the actions of the Arizona Board of Regents, University President John Schwada said.

The board voted Saturday to recommend a 3 percent merit pay increase to the Arizona Legislature for 1978-79. Schwada said the increase should be at least 5 percent.

"We must correct the inequities in teachers' salaries. We can't attract the bright, young people with Ph.D.s unless we do something about salaries," he said.

Rudy Campbell, president of the Arizona Board of Regents, said, "I agree that this increase is inadequate. However, we requested a 3 percent increase to the Legislature during the past two years and we did not receive it. If we do get this increase it will be more than previously given."

Top-notch people wanted

Last year, the Legislature voted a 1 percent merit increase for all state employees.

"We want to raise it up to the point so we can get the top-notch people to work at the universities," Campbell said.

"If we have 100 applicants for a position and we want to get the best, we will have to pay the top salary. Other states with higher merit increases will get these people," he said.

"We want to get someone with a Ph.D. who is effective in the classroom, has many years of teaching experience and has good research abilities," Campbell said.

Despite university officials' gripes, the Legislature probably will not approve the 3 percent merit increase, said Rep. Jim Cooper, R-Mesa.

The Legislature keeps providing token increases and believes that any substantial merit pay would be used improperly or wasted by the universities, he said.

Merits to good professors

"The Legislature tries to keep the merit increase small so we can encourage university presidents to give merit only to those professors who are doing a good job. If we appropriate the 3 percent increase, these presidents probably will divide just the merit increase among everyone," he said.

The ASU Faculty Association has gone on record as accepting the 3 percent merit pay increase which the Regents proposed with the stipulation that a 10 percent cost-of-living increase be appropriated by the Legislature.

"It is absolutely mandatory that we obtain an adequate cost-of-living increase this year to go along with the very modest 3 percent merit increase," said Vernon Gerlach, an ASU professor of English who heads the ASU Faculty Association.

Recoup the loss

"We are determined to do everything possible to recoup some of the loss in real income resulting from this year's disastrous increase in the cost of living," he added.

Last year, a 2½ percent cost of living increase was appropriated by the Legislature. However, the cost of living rose 9 percent, Gerlach said.

"We will request a 10 percent increase for next year based on an anticipated 9 percent inflation rate plus 1 percent to recover a small part of this year's loss. We expect to be working closely with the Legislature in an effort to achieve this goal," he added.

Doubt of success

But Cooper said he doubts ASU will be more successful this year than it has been in the past.

"If we approved a 10 percent cost-of-living increase for all state employees, this would cost the taxpayers approximately $35 million in addition to costs for the regular salaries. We have to consider the taxpayers who are on a fixed income and cannot afford any more taxes," he said.

The Legislature will vote on both merit and cost of living increases in late spring, Cooper said.

HOUSING BILL SIGNED
 WASHINGTON — The Carter administration's first new urban program was signed into law Wednesday, promising billions for ravaged American cities and their poor and out-of-work residents. The $14.7-billion housing bill will help an additional 345,000 families find housing at rents they can afford and will provide a half million jobs in construction and related industries where unemployment rates are the highest, administration officials estimate.

PANEL SHIFTS FOCUS
 WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations committee is shifting the focus of its Panama Canal treaty hearings to that country's human rights policies. Scheduled to testify as the hearings resumed Wednesday was Mrs. Rose Marie Aragon, wife of a Panamanian journalist who burned himself to death in Stockholm last month in a protest against Panama's dictator, Gen. Omar Torrijos, and the proposed American treaty to relinquish control of the waterway to Panama by the year 2000.

STABBING SUSPECT NABBED
 ELVATON, Md. — A teenage youth was arrested in the stabbing deaths of three young girls who disappeared while playing and were found lying by a stream near their homes in this Baltimore suburb, police said. An Ann Arundel County Police spokesman identified the suspect as Stuart Kreiner, 16, of the same Southgate community where the girls lived and where their bodies were found Monday.

RESTRICTIVE LAW OK'd
 PHOENIX — Federal and state laws effective Jan. 1 will restrict criminal information to the public, the Department of Public Safety said Wednesday. The department sought an attorney general's opinion on an apparent conflict between state and federal versions of the law, officials said. The federal law permits criminal justice agencies to release the criminal history of a suspect related to the offense for which he is being held, but state law prohibits such a release of information.

BAKKE CASE ANALYZED
 WASHINGTON — Former Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox told the Supreme Court Wednesday that a special admissions program at a University of California medical school is needed to help minorities because "the other alternatives suggested simply will not work." In oral arguments in the case of Allan Paul Bakke, Cox defended the so-called affirmative action program used by the university's medical school at Davis. He said the program aided minorities "long victimized by racial discrimination."

'President's club' ceases upon a VP appointment

By Mary Connell

The Arizona Students Association's "presidents' club" has been dissolved by First Council's election of a member other than ASU's student body president, an Associated Students spokesman said.

The election of ASASU Vice President Dave Crowley to the three-member executive committee in a First Council meeting Friday broke a long-standing tradition of the UA, ASU and NAU student presidents dominating the group, Jennifer Sharkey, First Council member, said.

"The executive committee has always been a presidents' club," she said. "This is the first time a non-president has been selected."

"In the past they kind of kept things to themselves. They made some pretty important decisions that affected three universities," she added.

"I hope in the future ASA will be more responsible," Sharkey said.

A 15-member board of directors makes most major decisions for ASA, Sharkey said, but the executive committee handles day-to-day matters, makes emergency decisions and generally influences the group.

"We feel that with Dave on the committee, ASA will have a more democratic tone. The organization had an autocratic tone prior to this," Sharkey said.

"First Council is very receptive to Dave's ability to lead and to look at all sides of the issue equally," she said.

ASASU President Mark Barnes said he wasn't disappointed at not being elected to the committee. He said he will still have sufficient input to ASA as a member of the board of directors and as ASASU president.

The board of directors, which is comprised of five students from each university, was expanded from a five-member board last spring.

ASU's appointees to the board also were chosen at the meeting. They are Tim Robertson, president of the Interfraternity Council; Lance Ross, director of the ASU legislative task force; Barnes, Sharkey and Crowley.

18 teen-age girls forced to work as prostitutes for N.J. couple

NEWTON, N.J. (AP) — As many as 18 teen-age girls, some of them runaways and others apparently searching for a father figure, were forced to work as prostitutes by a middle-aged New Jersey man and his young wife, police said Wednesday.

Frank Barone, 57, and his wife, Diane, 25, were freed on $2,500 bail each after being accused of operating a brothel at their home in Wantage Township, a quiet, tree-lined community of about 6,000.

None of the teen-agers who allegedly worked as prostitutes for the couple were charged because police said they were victims of a bizarre scheme.

Police said Barone, a cabinet maker in Bayonne, obtained customers by telling fellow workers they should come to his rural home if they wanted to have some fun. He allegedly picked up some of the girls as hitchhikers and lured others to the home as baby sitters for his two children, aged three and four.

Nine girls were involved in the clandestine bordello operation at the time of the couple's arrest, according to police. But they said as many as 18 unidentified girls, most of them students at a local high school that serves several communities, may have been involved at various times.

"They would take nude pictures of the girls and hold the photographs as leverage," an officer said.

"Most of these girls appeared to be looking for a father figure but their degrees of involvement varied," the spokesman continued.

"Some of the girls stayed for a couple nights, others would stay for a week and some for months. One girl even stayed for six months," he said.

An unidentified neighbor said she heard a girl run screaming from the house in August.

"We thought there was something fishy going on," the woman said. "No one knew them very well, but they did have a lot of cars coming and going all the time."

Last summer, an informant contacted state police, and an investigation was begun. Police said they also were investigating the men who patronized the small, two-story, red house.

Barone was charged with impairing the morals of minors, carnally abusing females under age 16 and maintaining a house of prostitution. His wife was charged with aiding and abetting him.

A MAN'S REACH SHOULD EXCEED HIS GRASP...

When you think about it— isn't the point of life reaching out? Only when people are secure, brave and open enough to reach out to others does life begin to yield the joy, the fulfillment, we expect from it.

Most of us think we are reaching out: for the job, the future, others in need, the ones we love. But, if we're honest, we aren't reaching out at all. We're simply grabbing for security: a life that's safe, predictable, and only goes so far... limited, and perhaps, limiting.

THE PAULISTS believe in reaching out: to people who need to hear The Gospel, people who are lonely and confused, people searching for truth, for something to believe in—in college dorms, on city streets, in slums, in suburbs, or wherever they may be.

We reach out because we're missionaries of the Catholic Church, a group of priests dedicated to proclaiming The Gospel in our times because we believe God is reaching out to every one of us.

If you think you can reach out as we do, if you think God may be calling you to a life of service as an inventive, modern, dedicated priest, write THE PAULISTS—a group of men who share a holy vision and live that vision in a free and friendly way.

Crime does pay. In contrast to the maxim advanced by schoolteachers and judges in B-movies, American ingenuity has turned the indictment into an investment.

Charles "Tex" Colson, the hatchet man of the Watergate era, happily went off to jail to serve his penance, secure in the knowledge he had been saved.

The man who claimed he would run over his grandmother to get his guy elected met the Lord, got "born again" and in the process got rich off the book he wrote about his sins and now is appearing on the Christian mashed-potato circuit with the former bad-ass nigger Mr. Eldridge "Born Again, Too" Cleaver, a one-time boogeyman and felon in flight who found God somewhere in Paris and came back to America to a new source of income as a professional Christian.

John Dean, the loose lips of the "Deep Throat" days, also went to jail, repented his crimes and now is also richer than he was before the whole mess began. From his book and lectures, Dean may end up richer than the man he shilled for — the former president who spilled it all on TV in prime time for a reported 600 Gs.

Last week, ASU was treated to the futuristic mumblings of another penal system retreat — Dr. Timothy Leary. Leary, the LSD apostle of the '60s who scared parents out of their split-level minds with his drug advocacy, took a fall for a small amount of marijuana found in his daughter's underwear at the Mexican border.

Leary went to prison, then went over the wall and found a new persona until he was brought back to the United States to serve some jail time.

Now Leary too is on the lecture trail, pushing some demented rap about space colonization, for generous fees.

With all these reformed crooks running around making bags of bucks off their pasts, one wonders what kinds of heavy deals two of the most important criminal celebrities — John Mitchell and Harry Bob Haldeman — have struck for the time when they launch their new careers in the "now it can be told" business.

The message to students seems to be clear — when you get out of school, start planning a crime. But make sure it is significant and of international impact. No rapes, murders, embezzlements or funky banking practices, please.

And be sure to take some instruction in public speaking. It will pay off if you can find the right crime.

Editor:

I read the column submitted by MEChA (Oct. 11) concerning the case of Allen Bakke v. California Regents Board with great interest. MEChA begins its column: "The U.S. Supreme Court is currently scheduled to hear a case whose effect will have far reaching implications rivaling the importance of the landmark Brown v. Topeka Board of Education decision that ruled segregated schools are unconstitutional."

This is absolutely true. I couldn't agree more with the statement. Here the U.S. Supreme Court has the perfect opportunity to reinforce the sane, temperate judgment that was handed down in that historic case, to prove unequivocally that the justice system in this country protects the rights of all its citizens, not just a favored few.

But here is where MEChA and I have a parting of the ways, for I support Allen Bakke and his case.

MEChA states: "A pro-Bakke ruling will undermine special admissions programs throughout the nation and hinder the implementation of effective Affirmative Action programs."

A pro-Bakke ruling would do nothing of the sort. It would merely mean that the particular method used by the UC Davis Medical School to select its candidates is discriminatory, and would probably mean that other such quota systems across the country would be challenged in court.

But is that such a bad thing? I would think it imperative that all students have the means of assuring themselves that the process by which they were chosen to, or rejected by, a school, is fair and just.

Affirmative Action, as I understand it, is a policy whereby qualified minority students are admitted in preference over equally qualified white students, for purposes of accelerating the flow of minorities into the professional and business world.

Not exactly fair, but a necessary evil for the time being. Okay. I can live with that. But that's not what the Bakke case is all about.

Let's look at some of the facts: The UC Davis Med School, before looking at any scores or grades, determined that 16 spots in its class would be reserved for minority students, who would be chosen independently of, and separately from, the other students in the class. Bakke was rejected by UC Davis (twice) because he didn't fit into this rigidly defined quota system.

Had he been black or Chicano, he most certainly would have been admitted. Bakke had a grade point average of 3.5. There were minority students admitted that same year with GPAs as low as 2.1.

To me, this says one thing: UC Davis Med School was not trying to pick the most qualified students, with extra encouragement and incentives provided to minority students. Its attitude was, well, we'll fill this class with warm bodies of the appropriate colors, and to hell with academic standards or quality.

Rather than downgrading academic standards at the university and graduate levels, concentration should be focused on education at the primary and secondary levels. Inner-city schooling is so bad in some areas (and so desperately in need of financial help from all sources) that hundreds of thousands of high school students are churned out of these sweatshops every year and handed diplomas — diplomas that many of these students find unintelligible, because in twelve years of public mass education, they were never taught how to read. In comparison, the fight the minorities have taken up to keep a 37-year-old white engineer from becoming a doctor seems downright ludicrous.

Bike thefts down

Police urge bike buyers to check serial numbers

By Chet Barfield

Although the number of bicycle thefts at ASU has decreased since last year at this time, a University police detective said he believes even one theft is too many, and has initiated a program to nab bike thieves.

"We want zero thefts. Anything over zero is too much," Bill Maughan said Wednesday.

Maughan said 24 bicycles were stolen from the campus last month, compared to 44 stolen in September 1976.

Maughan's program, dubbed "Operation Bicycle Check," urges prospective buyers to check the bicycle serial number with the Police department to determine if the bike has been reported stolen.

People who buy "hot" bicycles may think they are getting a bargain, but Maughan said stolen bikes are confiscated by the police and buyers lose their money.

"You can never acquire a clear title to stolen items. You have possession but you don't have ownership," he said.

Maughan said students need to bring the bike to the station, because he cannot run a check of the serial number over the phone.

"I can't take anything out of the computer files unless the item is in front of me," he said.

If the serial number does match the list of stolen bikes, the bicycle is confiscated, and police obtain a description of the seller, Maughan said.

Hopefully bicycle thefts will become fewer if thieves have a harder time selling the stolen bikes, and if they know there is a chance they will be identified to police by prospective buyers, he said.

Maughan said he believes his program is working.

"I've returned three bicycles to their owners today," he said.

"This is one of the first positive moves in the direction of prevention. What I'm trying to do is get the student involved in his own security," Maughan said. "I can't prevent crime at every turn, but the student can prevent crime."

Associated Students has been assisting the ASU police department by running serial number checks through the bike co-op, Maughan said.

He also attributed the reduction in thefts this year to the department's four undercover policemen who roam the campus afternoons and evenings looking for suspicious activity.

"They (the policemen) look like they're on their way to happy hour," he said.

Maughan said bicycle owners should use common sense and lock their bikes securely through both wheels and the frame to a rack or other immovable object to deter thieves.

He said the largest number of stolen bicycles are locked on one wheel only and rolled away. Only a small percentage of bikes are stolen by cutting through a lock or chain, he said.

Flying club offers 'high in the sky' with cheap rates

There is one campus organization dedicated to getting high — in the literal sense.

The ASU Flying Club offers students a chance to get flying experience without paying the usually high costs, the team captain said.

"We offer the pilot a means of building up flight time cheaply by getting reduced rates and by splitting expenses," Larry Howard said.

But Howard said the club is not just for pilots.

"Our purpose is to promote the growth and use of aviation," he said. "The club offers the non-pilot a means of getting into the air and getting an insight if they want to get a license."

Howard said there are two facets to the club — recreational and competitive.

The recreational trips include flights to different parts of Arizona and areas in neighboring states, Howard said.

"We are also trying to build a competitive team. We were second in the regionals last year and competed in the nationals," he said.

Howard said competitive flying is for both pilots and non-pilots and includes dead reckoning, where the pilot estimates the time and fuel needed to fly a triangular course, and target hitting.

More information about the club can be obtained by calling Howard at 968-6736.

Black widow spiders, known for the bright red hourglass on their bellies and poisonous bites, are actually shy, reclusive creatures that avoid daylight and activity. The spider hides in woodpiles, crannies, attics, sheds, and string webs inside the corners of ceilings and floors.

Black widow webs can be identified by being extremely irregular and far stronger than other webs.

The black widow bites by sinking fangs into its victims, which results in localized pain. If a person is bitten on the foot, there would be muscle cramps in the leg, for example. The cramps would be severe for about a day.

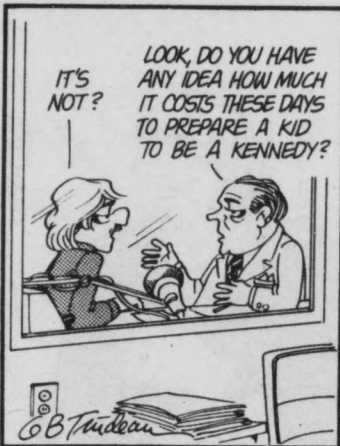

If a child had cramps in the arm or leg and then in the abdomen, it would be good evidence that it's a black widow spider bite.

There are few black widow spider bites reported and there is no treatment for the bite but victims are watched carefully for possible respiratory problems.

There is a severe problem with black widows, brown recluse, daddy longlegs and all spiders this year. If you become a victim and are having difficulties, the Student Health Service advises you to seek help.

Partial solar eclipse viewed by Arizonans

A partial eclipse of the sun was visible in Arizona Wednesday afternoon.

Starting at noon, the eclipse was seen until almost 3 p.m. The maximum eclipse occurred at 1:30 with approximately 35 percent of the sun blacked out.

State Press Photographer David Seibert photographed the eclipse through a heavily-filtered telephoto lens.

Seibert used a 1500-millimeter lens which brought the sun 30 times closer to the lens than normal human vision.

Walter Berry

Move over Ruth, Gehrig, ol' Reggie's on the prowl

The trouble with Reggie Jackson, which could be the title of a best-selling novel, may be summarized in the following quotation:

"I'm a good ballplayer and a good Christian and I won't be subservient. The Yankee pinstripes are Ruth and Gehrig and DiMaggio and Mantle. They've never had a nigger like me before, and they treat me like dirt."

Jackson was thus quoted in the New York Daily News two days after his celebrated spat with Yankee manager Billy Martin at Fenway Park in mid-June. His post-mortem remarks are by far the most incredible part of the whole preposterous episode.

Well, let's just say they don't add up, which is unusual for Sir Reginald, he of the 160 IQ. First things first, who is "they"? The Yankees of George Steinbrenner are not the Yankees of Jacob Ruppert, Ed Barrow, George Weiss or even CBS. And that's not merely because such discerning judges of talent wouldn't have treated Jackson to a five-year, $2.9 million contract, even at the prevailing price of real estate.

Furthermore, the Yankees have had quite a few black players, starting in 1955 with Elston Howard, who's now a coach. If Jackson is trying to establish a long tradition of racial prejudice by the Yanks, his case is as porous as his glove. So I have to presume what he's trying to do is compare himself favorably to Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Joe DiMaggio and Mickey Mantle. That's where his trouble begins. I believe it's known around the dugout as delusion of grandeur.

Jackson is a self-proclaimed superstar. He talks like one, struts like one, and is certainly paid like one. But he doesn't often perform like a Ruth, Gehrig, DiMaggio or Mantle, which is the basic reason why the Yankees are no longer world beaters.

Let's compare these five immortals in four critical categories — batting average, home runs, RBIs and strikeouts:

	BA	HR	RBIs	Ks	Yrs. Played
Ruth	.342	714	2204	1330	22
Gehrig	.340	493	1991	789	17
DiMaggio	.325	361	1537	369	13
Mantle	.298	536	1509	1710	18
Jackson	.267	281	824	1237	11

As Archie Bunker would roar, "Case closed," which means I won't bother to add that Jackson has struck out 100 or more times in each of the eleven seasons (1966-76) upon which his above statistics are based. He's led the American League in whiffs a record four successive years (1968-71, inclusive), which makes me wonder how many runners he's left stranded and how many potential rallies he's personally throttled.

As an outfielder, Jackson is a plumber compared to DiMaggio, Ruth and Mantle. Reggie's defensive wizardry was on display for all the world to see in a Monday night national TV game versus the Tigers in Detroit this season. He let a routine fly ball skip past him to set up the Tigers' winning run in the seventh inning of a 1-1 game.

I can't fathom how he could lose the ball in the lights as Howard Cosell alleged (speaking of delusions of grandeur), but I do suspect Jackson has let in half as many runs as he's produced over the years.

Jackson, in actuality, is a good ballplayer with exceptional power, a buckshot arm and the occasional capacity to lead by example, as when he personally demolished the Boston Red Sox for the Oakland A's in a three-game series at Fenway Park in June, 1969 (9-for-14), four homers, three doubles, a triple and 15 RBIs. Everybody, including Sports Illustrated, predicted Jackson would evolve into another Babe Ruth after witnessing the one-man onslaught, although Reggie, to his credit, has never said he is. He only wants to be treated like Ruth's reincarnation.

Yet the New York media refuses to discard Jackson. He is virtually the LAST "big name" they have left to publicize. Namath, Seaver, Frazier and Erving are gone. King and Csonka arrived at the Big Apple past their prime. Pele is on the way out.

So the media will continue to pay homage to Reggie Jackson, a disservice to all the wide-eyed children of the world who will line up by the thousands with quarters in hand to buy the forthcoming "Reggie, Reggie, Reggie" candy bar, unaware that their hero has only endorsed tooth decay.

Texas swamped with rivals

NEW YORK (AP) — The Texas Longhorns, out of the frying pan and into the fire, are playing their second undefeated and unlike rival in two weeks.

This week, Texas looks east to fight Southwest Conference foe Arkansas.

Throw all the data into the computer and the results stream out: Texas 31, Arkansas 21. The reason: Texas, which has won the last five matchups, just has Arkansas' number.

Wisconsin at No. 1 Michigan: The best of the Big Ten's little eight against the best of Big Ten's top two is really no match at all . . . Michigan 31, Wisconsin 14.

No. 3 Colorado at Kansas: The only undefeated team in the Big 8 keeps on truckin', easily driving through the Kansas plains . . . Colorado 28, Kansas 13.

Tennessee vs. No. 4 Alabama at Birmingham: Where is Tony Dorsett when Johnny Majors really needs him? . . . Alabama 27, Tennessee 17.

No. 5 Ohio State at Iowa: Another pair of Big Ten conference undefeateds tangle and learn the facts of life in the Big Two plus eight . . . Ohio State 38, Iowa 13.

Oregon at No. 6 Southern California: Oregon lost 54-0 to Washington last week. Southern Cal was upset by Alabama. The game is in Los Angeles. Could be another Southern California earthquake . . . Southern Cal 56, Oregon 7.

No. 7 Oklahoma at Missouri: Coach Barry Switzer said he hopes Texas gets to be No. 1. Maybe, then, Oklahoma could be No. 2 . . . Oklahoma 27, Missouri 10.

Iowa State at No. 9 Nebraska: I.M. Hipp & Co. hop over the Cyclones . . . Nebraska 24, Iowa State 17.

No. 10 Penn State at Syracuse: The Orangemen can get their revenge in the hoop season. The Lions have something to prove after a loss and a close game . . . Penn State 27, Syracuse 7.

Magazine's top 20 ranks ASU tankers

By Karen Andrus

Four ASU women swimmers hold 10 world rankings and half of those belong to freshman Cheryl Gibson from Edmonton, Canada.

Sue Sloan

The September issue of "Swimming World Magazine" lists two returning Sun Devils and two recruits among the top 20 in the world in their events.

Gibson, a silver medalist in the 1976 Olympics, is ranked fifth in the 100- and 200-meter backstroke, ninth in the 400-meter individual medley, 13th in the 400-meter freestyle and 15th in the 200-meter butterfly. She also attended the AAU Nationals in Mission Viejo, Calif. in August and placed second in the 100- and 200-meter backstroke events.

Another member of the Canadian Olympic Swimming Team, freshman Gail Amundrud, is ranked sixth in the 200-meter freestyle and eighth in the 100-meter freestyle. Amundrud, from Ottawa, was a bronze medalist in the Olympics in the 400-meter freestyle relay and won the 200-meter freestyle at the AAU Nationals this summer.

Two-time U.S. Olympian, junior Melissa Belote, from Springfield, Va. is ranked 11th in the 200-meter backstroke. Belote scored 90 points in the AIAW National Championships last spring.

Another Canadian, sophomore Sue Sloan, from Stettler, Alberta, is ranked ninth in the 100-meter butterfly and 19th in the 200-meter butterfly. Sloan contributed 60 points at the AIAW Championships last spring.

Looking ahead to the AIAW Championships this year at Duke University in Durham, N.C. Sloan said, "We're only missing a few from last year and we recruited really good, so I think we should win."

Coach Mona Plummer said, "With the addition of the two Canadians we should be on top for another year."

Plummer said to continue to have a winning women's swimming program a 50-meter pool must be built soon. "That (lack of a pool) alone will hurt our recruiting because we keep promising the recruits a pool and pretty soon they are not going to believe us."

Since other women's collegiate programs around the country are getting the scholarships and facilities to have a good program ASU will not be able to rely on its reputation anymore, Plummer said.

Returning from last year are sophomores Maura Campion, Mich Oliver, Kelly Rowell, Sue Sloan and Sandy Thompson; juniors Melissa Belote, Leslie Cliff, Jane Levings and Pam Rogers; and seniors Amy Betencourt and Stacy Joseph.

BASKETBALL TRYOUTS FOR walk-ons are scheduled for 6:30 to 8 p.m., Oct. 19, 20 and 21 at the Activity Center. All men interested in trying out should bring their own equipment.

MARIO ANDRETTI AND Tom Sneva have entered the Arizona Bobby Ball 150 USAC Indy car race at the Phoenix International Raceway Oct. 28-29.

GOING INTO SATURDAY'S football game against Air Force Arthur Lane leads ASU rushers with 336 yards on 74 attempts for a 4.5 yard average. Dennis Sproul is the leading quarterback with 40 completions in 83 attempts for 563 yards and four touchdowns. The Devils' top receiver is split end John Jefferson who has 18 catches for 297 yards and three touchdowns.

NOMINATIONS FOR SPORTSMAN and sportswoman of the year awards have been coming in with John Jefferson and Herman Frazier leading for the men. Melissa Belote and Danelle Richards have received the most nominations for the women.

Dodger bats beat Yanks; series 1-1

The Los Angeles Dodgers, backing the five-hit pitching of Burt Hooton with home runs by Ron Cey, Steve Yeager and Reggie Smith, evened the 1977 World Series at one game apiece with a 6-1 victory over the New York Yankees last night at Yankee Stadium.

The Dodgers jumped on New York starter Jim "Catfish" Hunter for five of their runs in the initial three innings. With two out in the first, Dusty Baker doubled and rode home on Cey's line-drive homer to left. Yeager slammed a Hunter fastball over the left field fence in the second and Smith unloaded a 430-foot, Ruth-like clout into the stands in center one inning later. At that point, New York manager Billy Martin "yanked" Hunter in favor of Dick Tidrow, who, along with Ken Clay and Al "Sparky" Lyle, kept the Dodgers in check until the ninth when they pushed across their final marker.

BYU caller goes out No. 1

(AP) — Above all else, this can be said about sidelined quarterback Gifford Nielsen of Brigham Young University: He went out No. 1.

Nielsen, victim of knee surgery last weekend, is lost for the season but still ranks this week as the top passer, according to NCAA major college statistics.

He concluded his abbreviated four-game senior season with 24.5 completions a game for 1,167 yards and 16 touchdowns.

He completed 96 of 156 passes, or 62.8 percent.

Nielsen's backup, sophomore Marc Wilson, will take over at Colorado State on Saturday, and he will be throwing to four of the top 19 receivers in the country.

BYU fullback Todd Christensen is eighth nationally with 21 catches for 208 yards, and flanker Mike Chronister is tied for ninth with 20 receptions for 247 yards.

They, along with teammates Roger Gourley and John VanDerWouden, have caught a total of 78 passes.
