

Stadium drawing attention, care

By Jim Austin
Staff writer

To accomodate Sun Devil football fans, 24-hour repair work on Sun Devil Stadium's north end zone is continuing in an attempt to re-open the more than 4,000 seats closed last fall.

The seats were closed because of several cracks found in the structure which resulted from a sinking foundation.

Whether the section will be re-opened for Saturday's game will not be disclosed until noon today, according to Paul McClellan, director of planning and construction.

Sun Devil Stadium has been waxed, polished and buffed in preparation for approximately 70,000 football fans entering the gates for Saturday's season opener against the University of Utah.

For the average football fan, preparation for a game takes no more than a few minutes — time enough to grab a favorite beverage and maybe something soft to sit on.

But to many ASU employees, it is a lengthy, complicated endeavor that begins long before the actual kickoff.

John Gotts, assistant supervisor of ground maintenance, said maintaining the field in Sun Devil Stadium involves mowing, feeding and fighting grass fungi requiring more than an occasional watering and mowing.

Other than being mowed every day year-round except Saturday, the turf is swept, trimmed, fed, patched and treated for diseases, Gotts said.

Concession stand preparations also begin well before the first hot dog is thrown on the grill.

Bob Clarke, concessions manager, said he expects to use 100,000 pounds of ice, 7,200 hot dogs, more than a half ton of nachos and approximately 8,000 to 10,000 gallons of soft drinks.

"We've been preparing for about a month now and so far everything has gone smoothly," he added.

To organize people as they arrive, ASU Police have the assistance of the Department of Public Safety directing traffic and parking control.

Lt. Richard Hydro said approximately 80 officers will be directing traffic and parking and working in the stadium.

"The biggest problem is the traffic flow of people arriving late," he said. "Generally the first game is always kind of hectic."

Ticket sales for the opener are moving right along with the rest of the preparations.

Of the 70,000 seats available, more than 65,000 tickets have been sold, with approximately 56,000 of them being season tickets.

Some professors displeased with MU bookstore service

By Mary Kaczmarek
Contributing writer

Some ASU professors have refused to order required textbooks for their classes from the University Bookstore because of its "arrogant and inflexible" attitude, the chairman of the anthropology department said Thursday.

Geoffrey A. Clark, said the members of his department voted in 1977 not to order their textbooks from the University Bookstore at the MU.

"The people who ran the bookstore were very unaccommodating," Clark said. "They would not take our enrollment estimates seriously and reduced our order requests by a certain percentage."

Doug Hanson, University Bookstore manager, said one of the reasons for reduced order requests was due to the brevity of some professors' assignments.

Many times a professor will require a textbook but only assign a few chapters to read in the book, Hanson said.

The students will then make a copy of the assignments and return the textbook, he added.

"My goal as new manager is to help the University community understand more of what is totally involved in this operation," said Hanson, who became bookstore manager July 1, 1981.

Clark agreed the function of any campus bookstore is to serve the university's students and faculty.

"We feel that in the past, at least, the University Bookstore did not do that in an adequate way," he said.

All operating expenses, such as salaries and rent paid to the MU, must be paid for by revenue generated in the bookstore. The bookstore is an auxiliary service and is not supported by legislative appropriations.

Hanson added the bookstore buys textbooks from publishers at 20 percent below retail and must also pay shipping costs. The shipping costs are not passed on to students, he said.

The anthropology faculty decided to place its textbook orders with the Student Book Center, 704 S. College Ave. in Tempe, Clark said.

"Relations with the Student Book Center are very satisfactory," Clark said. "They seem to value our business and are responsive to our needs and requirements and we appreciate it."

Robert Youngblood, an associate professor of political science, has been ordering his books from the Student Book Center for several years.

"I got very poor service from the University Bookstore, a lot of verbal flak and runarounds," Youngblood said.

Youngblood said he was informed by the University Bookstore that a book he had ordered was out of print when in fact it had been picked up by another publishing house and was available.

At that time, Youngblood started ordering textbooks from the Student Book Center.

"I am very satisfied with the service they give me," he said.

However, Louis C. Smith, an assistant history professor, said he is pleased with the way the University Bookstore handles textbook orders.

"The University community should be sympathetic and patient with the problems of ordering books for 38,000 students," Smith said.

O'Connor supports death penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sandra Day O'Connor, treading cautiously toward Senate confirmation as a Supreme Court justice, said Thursday she supports the death penalty for some crimes and is opposed to forced busing to desegregate public schools.

In her second day of testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Mrs. O'Connor said she twice spoke personally with President Reagan before she was announced as his choice to become the first woman justice on the court.

She declined to describe those conversations, but said no promises were made on how she would vote on any particular issue.

Silenced priest seeks alliance

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — The Rev. Hans Kung, the liberal theologian banned by the Vatican from teaching, was quoted Thursday as saying he hoped for an alliance of all groups seeking a renewal within the Roman Catholic Church.

In an interview published in the Zurich weekly Weltwoche, Kung also was quoted as saying he regretted the "mounting polarization and growing intolerance" of the church under Pope John Paul II.

"Even more, I regret the silent, mass exodus from our congregations, especially by the women," said Kung, a Swiss who runs an ecumenical institute in Tubingen, West Germany.

Bond set for suspects in record bank robbery

DENVER (AP) — Two suspects in the nation's largest bank robbery, a $3.3 million heist in Arizona last April, were apprehended because "they got a little too greedy," an FBI official says.

The suspects, arrested here Wednesday evening following an intensive interstate investigation, made their initial appearance in U.S. District Court on Thursday. Their bond was set at $150,000 each and they were ordered to return to court Tuesday for an identity hearing.

Jack Egnor, head of the Denver FBI office, said the suspects — Douglas Wayne Brown, 35, and David Lee Grandstaff, 38 — were arrested without incident at a hotel near the Denver airport.

Kleindienst takes the witness stand

PHOENIX (AP) — Former U.S. Attorney General Richard Kleindienst, a surprise opening defense witness in his perjury trial, said Thursday he was unaware of a key $1.8 million insurance dividend until two days before it was declared illegal in 1976.

Kleindienst also testified he subsequently advised that it be returned to the company which issued it.

Kleindienst, 58, was indicted on 14 counts of perjury in allegedly having lied under oath at disciplinary hearings conducted by the State Bar of Arizona.

Middle East to be guarded by U.S., Israel

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States and Israel have decided to undertake joint military measures to guard the Middle East against the Soviet Union and other "external threats," Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said Thursday.

Haig told reporters the two governments were drafting a memorandum to formalize the new ties set by President Reagan and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin during two days of talks at the White House.

"We are talking about joint planning, collaborative studies and efforts which focus on external threats to the region," Haig said. Specifically, he said, the United States and Israel might conduct joint naval exercises. After, Begin would discuss with William Casey, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, information gathered by U.S. spy satellites.

Additionally, Haig said, the United States might store medical supplies and other equipment in Israel for use by American forces in an emergency. But Haig and Begin, who held a separate news conference, stressed that American troops would not be used for the defense of Israel.

Western alliance slates war games

By the Associated Press

BRUSSELS, Belgium — The armies of the Western alliance, faced with the growth of the Soviet navy and cuts in their own budgets are holding large-scale war games this month in the muddy fields and cold seas where a real battle for Europe would take place.

More than 400,000 North Atlantic Treaty Organization soldiers, sailors and airmen are taking part in the maneuvers, which include the airlift of 17,000 U.S.-based soldiers to Europe in the annual "Reforger" reinforcement exercise.

The NATO maneuvers, which will reach a peak of activity in mid-September, are designed to test how well allied troops work together and how quickly the United States could come to the aid of Western Europe if there were a Soviet attack from land and sea.

"In a few short years we've seen the steady growth of the Soviet navy from a coastal force to a deep water navy that could pose a real threat to shipping lanes," said an allied briefing officer involved in war games' planning. "More than ever we have to test if we can withstand that kind of threat," the officer said.

The point was illustrated by current Soviet naval exercises in the Baltic, involving eight troop landing ships, the 30,000-ton aircraft carrier Kiev and more than 50 other vessels. The ships were supporting land maneuvers that rank among the biggest staged by the Soviet Union since World War II.

Watt's approach sows discontent

Managing Editor

Jeff Sellers

When President Reagan chose James Watt as his secretary of the interior, the reaction from most environmental groups was negligible. "Wait and see," they said.

Having waited and seen, the National Wildlife Federation has asked for Watt's resignation.

It didn't take long for the press to begin "picking on" Watt, as he called it, and he has been the butt of scores of caustic editorial cartoons. What has he done to deserve all this?

As it turns out, Watt has done very little; it's what he wants to do — and the way that he goes about getting what he wants — that has left environmentalists and conservationists exasperated.

The main thing Watt wants to do is unlock 546 million square acres of federal land for mining, timbering and grazing.

With Watt's blessing, Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nevada, has introduced a "Strategic Minerals Act" that would use a big part of those lands for the mining of — you guessed it — metals with which to make war.

"Strategic" is a funny word, I think.

These strategic metals are currently imported from Canada and other nations friendly to the United States.

Watt has already been thwarted in another of his pet projects — offshore oil and gas exploration in California waters. A potential 194 million, 42-gallon barrels of oil were sought. That would have met U.S. needs for about 12 days.

Luckily, California Sen. S.I. "Sam" Hayakawa, a Republican who usually sides with the Reagan crowd, screamed loud enough to have the Interior Department withdraw those plans.

Watt, a former Denver attorney who headed a pro-development organization, says he favors a "multiple use" concept regarding federal land that stresses both development and preservation.

Valley environmentalists note a much heavier emphasis on development and mining, which violates the environmentalist notion of sustaining as much land as is exploited for commercial gain.

More than one said Watt is saying a lot of things in public that he needn't say — abrasive, anticonservationist rhetoric that should be said behind closed doors or not at all.

One Phoenix environmental leader said Watt is "antagonistic when he doesn't have to be" and that, as much as anything, accounts for Watt's unpopularity.

Moreover, he added Watt should not stand alone to take criticism for an anti-conservationist stance.

"It's the whole damn government," he said.

Indeed, the Reagan administration has proposed cutting $3.9 million from the Environmental Protection Agency, or 74 percent of Jimmy Carter's proposed budget.

Even Arizona Wildlife Federation Executive Director Tom Sullivan, who for his own preservation doesn't like to publicly criticize Watt, conceded Watt is guilty of the same hotheaded approach that so-called radical environmentalists were accused of in the early 1970s.

"He's trying to change things overnight," Sullivan said.

The Arizona Wildlife Federation, whose members constitute a varied group that includes pro-Watt members with fat wallets, was one of only seven state chapters that did not join in the national organization's petition for Watt's neck.

"We're taking a wait-and-see attitude," Sullivan said.

"Marxists" disrupt Moslem students' table

Editor:

On Sept. 3, the Moslem Student Association (MSA) set up an information table on the ASU mall. A group of Iranian Marxist students came up to the table, tore up literature, knocked the table over, and threatened to bring bombs and guns if the Moslem students ever set up a table on campus again. This is the third time these Marxist people have tried to keep the MSA from setting up an information table on campus. These same Marxist students have also physically attacked three Moslem students.

Obviously, these people who call themselves Marxist-Leninists are trying to suppress the majority of Iranian students and the Moslem people in general. After they murdered more than 70 people in the Islamic government of Iran, including the new prime minister and the president, they thought the Islamic government would collapse. This will not happen, no matter how many people are murdered. As the martyred Dr. Beheshti said before he was murdered, "The U.S. should know that it is not reckoning with only a person or a government, but with an uprisen nation." The Marxists should realize this also. The people of Iran have tasted freedom now and will not be oppressed again by anyone.

Islam believes in the freedom of the oppressed people of the world and makes no discriminations on the basis of race, country, color, language, etc. Every minority group is free to talk or write, Islam belongs to the oppressed people of the world. The Islamic government in Iran is not perfect yet, but the ideas it is striving for are perfect.

The main question I want to ask is: Do these so-called Marxist people really understand the writings of Karl Marx? The Iranian revolution was truly the rising of the masses that Marx wrote about. The Marxists are now a small minority of the Iranian people, backed by foreign powers, and they are trying to force their will upon all the people. They claim they are speaking for the people. This is not true, the Iranian people spoke for themselves when they won their revolution against the Hitler-like terror of the shah's reign. I have heard these Marxist people speak of "unjust" executions in Iran. This is also not true. The criminals who have been executed in Iran have received fair trials and have been convicted. Is there any government in the world that allows the assassins of its leaders to go free? Can you honestly say these murderers should be allowed to continue to kill people, including innocent bystanders, with their bombs?

These Marxists evidently do not understand the real meaning of what they say they believe in. A true man does not hide behind bombs. If the majority of the Iranian people had believed in Marxism, then Marxism would have been their choice of government when they finally rid themselves of the corrupt shah. What do the teachings of Marx have to do with cowardly murders and with trying to oppress a newly freed people?

The MSA will continue to have a table on campus. As a long-neglected American revolutionary once said, "Give me liberty or give me death." There are still no other choices for all freedom-loving people. The United States obviously forgot this when they backed the shah's government. Please don't forget, as they did, that all Moslem people are willing to die for their freedom.

Widlic's racial tension column "half-baked"

Editor:

I feel it necessary to set the record straight regarding Kevin Widlic's article in the Sept. 9 issue concerning "racial tension" on the ASU football team.

The charge that the coaches are racist because Ron Washington only caught 12 passes last year is ridiculous. One reason for Washington's relative inactivity is that he didn't even start most of the games! Melvin Hoover (a black) was the starting flanker.

No, Kevin, it doesn't "seem amazing to me that a pro club would pick a player who only caught 12 balls so high in the draft." Washington has much more pro potential as a kickoff returner than as a wide receiver. John Mistler ran much more precise pass routes and is a better receiver, which is why he was drafted higher than Washington.

Maybe you don't recall, Kevin, but a few years ago Washington quit the ASU football team and transferred to Nebraska. After some time there he returned to ASU. You quote a player, "Kush" "was tough, but regardless of color, the best working players would play." Therefore, Kush was fair, but Washington was still in and out of his doghouse and finally transferred. Possibly Rogers had the same problems with him that Kush had. Sometimes mental toughness is just as important as physical talent. The possibility exists that Washington was lacking in the former.

As far as walk-on Eric Redenius (a white) starting ahead of Jerome Weatherspoon and Kevin Moffett (both black), could the reason be that Weatherspoon and Moffett are often injured? Redenius may not have blazing speed, but he is a possession receiver (yes, like Mistler), leaving the fast routes for split end Bernard Henry.

Please, Kevin, don't try to start an unwarranted controversy without doing your homework first. True sports fans don't appreciate a half-baked supposition without any facts to back it up — we don't care for that kind of "interesting" reading.

Regents discussing tuition today

By John Donovan
Staff writer

Tuition will be the main topic of discussion today as the Arizona Board of Regents holds its monthly meeting in Flagstaff.

The nine-member board will be at Northern Arizona University today and tomorrow, setting tuition rates for Arizona's three state universities.

The regents will also be asked to consider a list of items to be excluded from the University Bookstore under the Free Enterprise law, which prohibits University competition with local businesses.

But tuition will be the centerpiece of discussion as the regents establish rates for the 1982-83 school year.

The Audit and Budget subcommittee will recommend to the regents a $710 in-state and a $3,100 out-of-state annual tuition rate at the three state universities.

The subcommittee's decision followed a proposal made by the three state university study body presidents on Sept. 2.

The students' proposal, which asked for an increase of $702 for in-state students and $3,061 for non-residents, was formed with student Regent Shannan Marty.

Denise Dreiseszun, ASU's Associated Students president, said the subcommittee's recommendation may be voted down this weekend in favor of a higher out-of-state tuition.

Dreiseszun said the subcommittee's proposal probably will not withstand political pressure from the regents and the governor.

"I was convinced when I left the (Audit and Budget subcommittee) meeting that it was fine — that the proposal would pass," Dreiseszun said.

But Dreiseszun thinks the chances of the regents passing the proposal are slim.

"I'm deeply concerned about what is going to happen this weekend," she said. "My concern lies with the out-of-state students."

If the regents decide to dismiss the subcommittee's recommendation, tuition for out-of-state students could reach as high as $3,310 per year, Dreiseszun said.

In-state students pay approximately 14 percent of their cost of education, while out-of-state students assume most of the burden, paying approximately 84 percent.

The subcommittee's recommendation keeps the percentage of the cost of education in-state students will pay at the same level.

However, out-of-state students will pay only approximately 80 percent of their cost of education, or approximately 4 percent less, if the subcommittee's recommendation is passed.

Regent William Reilly, chairman of the Audit and Budget subcommittee, said if the real cost of education was computed, then tuition would be higher.

"The (cost of education) formula is very generally favorable to the student," he added.

If the regents decide to have out-of-state students pay the same percentage of their cost of education they paid this year, non-resident tuition would rise to $3,310.

Dreiseszun said the subcommittee members were impressed by the show of strength the student committee showed during the subcommittee meeting last Wednesday.

Reilly said he expects the regents to pass the recommendation for resident tuition with little trouble.

However, he expects considerable discussion over the out-of-state recommendation.

Mock killers recruited with University's OK

By Jim Austin
Staff writer

With no opposition from ASU's administration, Killing as Organized Sport (KAOS) is currently recruiting students for a "killing" spree scheduled to begin Sept. 18, the organization's administrative vice president said.

Mike Mahon said KAOS is composed of registered members who stalk and assassinate each other with non-lethal weapons according to specific rules established by the organization.

Mahon said KAOS, which exists on various campuses throughout the nation, abides by all requirements mandated by the university for legitimate student organizations.

"We go by all the campus laws and so far have had no problems with the administration," he said.

The Tempe syndicate of KAOS was founded in January 1981 by president, Bruce Gubser, who got the idea from reading an article about the organization.

Gubser said KAOS began at the University of Florida which is now the national headquarters for the organization.

Mahon said the game is played wherever the person can "make the hit," whether it be on or off campus.

Manuel Figueroa, campus organizations coordinator, said the administration has not forbidden KAOS from playing its game on campus, but would like to establish more communication with the organization.

"There has been no position prohibiting the game from being played on campus," Figueroa said. "However, this office (dean of students) has some reservations and concerns if this game is going to be played on campus."

Mahon said the game has grown in popularity judging by the disappearance of all fifty registration forms for this month's game from the MU.

Figueroa said his biggest concerns with the playing of the game on campus are disruption of classes, non-member injuries and campus security mistaking a "stalk" with the toy gun for an actual assassination attempt.

"If it is played on campus it should not interfere with the rights of others," he added.

George Bays, director of campus security, said if the game becomes a public nuisance, security will have to intercede by taking appropriate action such as filing a criminal complaint against the offender.

However, he said as long as the game is played without alarming others or interfering with safety, ASU security will tolerate the games.

"So long as it is contained and doesn't create problems it's alright," he added.

During last semester's game, Mahon said KAOS had no problems with security.

Students, local singers picked to accompany Barry Manilow

By Tory Bull
Staff writer

The sweet voices that will be heard in the background of the Barry Manilow concert will be those of local and ASU concert singers, an ASU associate professor of music said Thursday.

Dave Stocker, coordinator of the background group, said Manilow asked the Department of Music for a backup singing group for his concert Sunday, Sept. 13 at the University Activity Center.

"They contacted us a month ago about a backup group to perform 'One Voice' with Barry," Stocker said.

Stocker said the group, consisting of singers he chose from various vocal groups, will be provided with concert attire and will surround the stage for the song.

The choir has mixed reactions about performing with Manilow, he said.

"Some of them aren't acquainted with his middle-of-the-road style, but others are frothing at the bit," he said.

It is not unusual for a performer to make a request for background vocals, Stocker added.

"Performers usually request backups because it is cheaper than bringing their own," he said.

In the past, Stocker said, backup groups have been requested by such performers as Tony Bennett and Jane Morgan.

The group, which will practice twice before the rehearsal with Manilow, will receive a $300 donation from the Manilow Corp., he said.

"The donation will be used to pay for a trip to Pasadena, (Calif.) by the men's and concert choirs to attend the Choral Directors Association Conference for three days in February," he added.

Stocker said rehearsing with Manilow should run smoothly and he should be very easy to work with.

"The stronger and more famous the performer, the easier he is to work with," he added. "The less popular ones are harder to work with, so we don't expect any complications with Barry."

Stocker said the backups will benefit from seeing the "efficiency of how a concert is put together" by the lighting and technical crews and the music directors.

"It's a fun thing to have contact with a major entertainer such as Barry Manilow," he said. "It will be a fun thing for the group and a good experience."

Heidi Robinson, a road manager for Manilow, said it is better he is giving the opportunity to a college group rather than using professionals.

"I've seen the show done with choirs before, and the sound of all those voices together in that song ('One Voice') is just so beautiful I can't explain it," Robinson said.

Temporary coordinator handles ASASU monies

By John Hendricks
Staff writer

He is directly responsible for the financial integrity of ASU's Associated Students, he supervises student operations, he reports directly to the administration, and every weekend he drives more than one hundred miles to see his wife of six years.

He is Bob Fallows — the new coordinator of ASASU.

"My wife is an art teacher at NAU," Fallows said. "We only get to see each other on weekends."

Fallows, 43, came to ASU in 1978 to pursue a doctorate in higher education.

"These days you need a Ph.D. to advance in administration at a university," Fallows said.

From 1971 to 1974, Fallows served as coordinator and director of NAU's University Union before serving as the director of student affairs there until 1978.

However, previous experience is not his only qualification.

Robert J. Fallows

He obtained a bachelor's degree in psychology/sociology from the Oregon College of Education ("I just couldn't make up my mind, so I majored in both."), and a master's degree from Oregon State University in college student personnel administration.

Fallows, the father of two, said there have been no problems with ASASU so far this year.

A personable man, Fallows is temporarily replacing former coordinator Gary Kleemann until May, 1982.

"He (Kleemann) did a tremendous job, but wanted to complete his doctorate in higher education and found it necessary to take a one year leave of absence," Fallows said.

Kleemann will return to his post on May 14.

Leon Shell, dean of students, said of all the applicants Fallows was the most qualified and best suited for the position.

Tom Fulcher, ASASU activities vice president, said the process of selecting a new coordinator is not a simple one.

A committee composed of the executive officers and four staff members of ASASU selected three applicants for recommendation to the dean of students. The applicants were then interviewed by Gerald Snyder, associate controller, and final selection of the coordinator was made by Shell, Fulcher said.

Devil's former punter enjoys life in Nevada

By Phil Roth
Staff writer

Former ASU punter, Kevin Rutledge, is enjoying his second year at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas both academically and athletically.

Gordon Rutledge, a Phoenix insurance agent, said his son Kevin, 22, expects to complete a degree in hotel management at UNLV this year and has returned as the football's team starting punter.

Kevin Rutledge could not be reached for comment.

Gordon said things have settled down for his family since the two-year-old lawsuit controversy involving former ASU football coach, Frank Kush.

The lawsuit alleged Kush struck Rutledge, who was a punter for ASU, during a football game in Washington on Oct. 28, 1978.

Kush was fully exonerated in Maricopa County Superior Court last April.

Gordon said their attorney has filed a motion for a new trial in federal court on grounds of violation of Kevin's civil rights, and the case is being appealed on the state level.

"The appeals...look favorable," he said.

Kevin has since married and bought a home in Nevada and both him and his wife are working despite Kevin's classwork and football practice schedules.

The elder Rutledge said Kevin has had a good experience at UNLV, as compared to ASU.

"Those people up there are honest, decent people," he said.

Rutledge added it takes a lot out of a person "to take on the universe."

Kevin was fighting the state, the "establishment" and the community, he said.

Tony Knap, head football coach at UNLV, said Kevin performed moderately in the season's opener against San Jose State University.

Knap said Kevin punted about eight times and averaged 41.5 yards for the game which UNLV won 16-6.

He added Kevin's leg is stronger, his punts are higher and quicker than in the past and he seems to be enjoying playing for UNLV.

"Nobody's punched him out," Knap said.

Though the lawsuit was highly publicized by the local media, Kevin chose not to talk about it with his coaches, Knap said.

"We didn't ask about it either," he added.

Rutledge said his son has no definite plans after he graduates.

"He's just concentrating on his last year of football and school," he said.

Classes held for managers this month

ASU's Center for Executive Development is offering two management seminars this month. A "Supervisory Management" seminar will be held from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., Thursdays from today through Nov. 5.

The sessions, open to both new and experienced front-line managers, will meet at the ASU Executive Development Conference center, 2200 S. Priest Rd. in Tempe.

Increasing leadership effectiveness, setting goals, analyzing problems, motivating employees and organizing team efforts are among topics on the program.

Course fee is $265. Those attending will receive 2.25 continuing education units.

An introductory and review seminar on "Personnel Management" is scheduled for 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Mondays from Sept. 14 through Nov. 16 at the Center for Executive Development.

The 10-week class is aimed at managers new to positions in personnel departments.

Course fee is $330, including materials. Those completing the program will receive 2.5 continuing education units.

Advanced registration for each course is required through the Center for Executive Development, 965-5738.

Serum may combat Valley fever

By Laura Stahl
Staff writer

A vaccine being developed by an ASU graduate teaching assistant may help reduce the cases of Valley fever.

Karl Clemons, of the Department of Botany and Microbiology, said the disease-causing organism thrives in dry, alkaline and dusty environments.

Clemons, who is continuing research first begun in 1972, said the disease is similar to tuberculosis.

"In about 1 percent of the population, the organism disseminates to other organs of the body," Clemons said. "This 1 percent usually has had another disease before contacting Valley fever."

He said once the disease is introduced into the body it can lead to tissue death.

Clemons is currently performing tests on mice, using his vaccine to try and find which ingredients in the serum will achieve maximum protection.

"A couple of months ago I gave a control group of mice 2,000 spores each, and not all the animals died," he said. "I later gave another group of mice 10 spores and they all died. We do not know why."

Although there is no commercially available vaccine, one is being tested in California. It has been in the developmental stages for almost 20 years.

Clemons became interested in disease-causing organisms after receiving his undergraduate degree in medical microbiology at Ohio State University.

Clemons, who is studying fungi at ASU, became involved in host/parasite relationships and how the host (body) reacts and responds to infection.

"We have found there is a higher incidence of cases reported after dust storms," Clemons said. "The disease can be transmitted by man-made or natural disturbances."

An area may become populated with the fungus through different means of transmission, but this information is still only speculation, he added.

The Sonora Desert, which includes parts of Arizona, California, New Mexico and Mexico, are prime areas for the disease, Clemons said.

"The rodent population of the Southwest may be carriers," he said. "It may kill the animal and the organism may survive through decomposition of the animal and through this, seed an area."

He said approximately 60 percent of the people contracting Valley fever are without symptoms and do not know they have the disease until formal tests are taken.

The remaining 40 percent experience symptoms which are similar to the common cold or flu, he said.

"Some evidence states certain groups of people may be more prone to dissemination, such as blacks and Philipinos — this may have to do with tissue type," he added.

But researchers are still unsure of why people have immunities to the disease, he said.

Proliferation of spiders cre

By Nora M. Bayly
Staff writer

They hang around doorways, crawl under bushes and spin from concrete pillars at ASU.

Their petite, shimmering, black bodies often repulse even the bravest.

At night, moonlight reflects off the red hourglass painted on their abdomens, as ASU's black widow population silently waits for unsuspecting victims.

Larry Nienaber, Animal Resource Center caretaker, said everywhere one looks black widows can be found.

"This time of the year there are a lot of eggs that have hatched and are starting to grow," Nienaber said.

He said an increase of rainfall in Arizona and two consecutive warm winters with few days of freezing temperatures has significantly increased the Valley's insect population providing a surplus of food for the black widows.

Nienaber said potentially dangerous situations arise at ASU because the spiders spin their webs up to two feet in unsuspecting locations such as campus planters, benches and crevices.

He added that often pedestrians and roller skaters brush

"It is hard to spray the black widows. You have to get the spray directly on the spider," Nienaber said.

ASU grounds and buildings are routinely sprayed with insecticides, he said.

Joyce Bradley, spokeswoman for St. Luke's Hospital Control Center in Phoenix, said the black widow is common in Arizona, but only on rare occasions

"The last two winters have been very warm. Black widows have been hatching and not dying from frost," Bradley said.

Last June, St. Luke's received 57 reports of bites, but there were no fatalities, she said.

"The symptoms depend on the person. Some people require hospitalization."

She said the initial pain from the bite is a prick, followed 15 to 30 minutes later by a burning and possibly muscle spasms.

Bradley added headaches, dizziness, nausea, sweating and vomiting can also occur.

The female black widows, identified by the red hourglass on the abdomen, are more dangerous than the male which rarely bite.

"It is the female you have to worry about giving you a good bite," Bradley said. "She will strike if irritated, especially if she's guarding her egg sack."

Bradley said black widows are normally found in storage rooms, garages, woodpiles, and outside the home.

She added the spiders are most common in the late spring through the early fall.

Estelle Fidler, an ASU Student Health Center nurse, said black widow bites are not common at ASU and there has not been one reported in many years.

Lorin Honetschlager, ASU Animal Resource Center curator, said he has collected more than 40,000 black widows in the last two years for an anti-venom serum company.

Honetschlager said he receives 75 cents apiece and ships the spiders live.

He said he could catch up to 100 spiders a night anytime of the year in the Valley.

Solar workshop ebbs utility bills

By Phil Daschner
Staff writer

An ASU workshop can provide homeowners with the answer to high utility bills by teaching them to install their own solar water heaters.

The workshop, sponsored by the College of Architecture, began as a project for graduate students in 1978. That year the Department of Energy's small-scale technology division gave architecture Professor Stanley Mumma a $10,000 grant to start the workshop.

The two-session workshop, directed by Mumma, is now totally self-supporting through a $75-per-person tuition.

Scott Lynn, graduate research assistant and one of the workshop instructors, said since 1978 approximately 1,500 to 2,000 people have attended the workshop.

"People who have gone through the workshop ranged in age from 12 to 80," Lynn said.

The workshop consists of one presentation session, where the students learn the principles of the solar heating system, and a second session for building, in which students assemble the solar collectors.

Students buy the collectors as a kit for approximately $550 from a number of Valley businesses specializing in solar heating units.

"We teach them how to install the system on their roof, and how to hook it up to their water heater," Lynn said. "They can use their existing heater with the system, so that saves money."

The entire system consists of a collector panel, copper tubing and a small electrical pump.

"It's a very simple unit to install," Lynn said. "The novice can usually install one in 20 hours."

The savings gained from installing a solar water heater are substantial.

"It's one of the best dollar investments going," Lynn said.

According to Salt River Project figures, the average family spends about $300 a year for hot water. Lynn said a solar water heater can eliminate about 90 percent of this cost.

Coupled with federal and state tax credit incentives, which pay for 75 percent of each kit's cost, Lynn said the system can pay for itself within a year.

This fall, an ASU mechanical engineering professor began researching the efficiency of the solar water heating systems.

Byard Wood has a $50,000 contract with the Arizona Solar Energy Commission to test different solar water heating units.

Ron Balon, Wood's graduate research assistant, said the system being used by Mumma's workshop has done very well in testing so far.

"For the month of August, that system had a 97 percent efficiency rating," Balon said.

The only system to fare better than Mumma's was one that cost more than twice as much, Balon said.

"This is mainly a consumer research project," Balon said.

"We can let consumers know which solar system is best," Carol Jennings, Salt River Project press representative, said SRP is very supportive of ASU's solar research projects.

"Solar energy provides energy at a time of day when it is most difficult and expensive for us to provide energy," Jennings said. "It's in our interest to develop as many energy sources as possible."

Prices contrast in Saga meals on two state cafeterias menus

By Phil Daschner
Staff writer

A meal of hamburger, fries and a soda costs a total of 15 cents more at ASU than at NAU, although the same food service operates at both schools.

Saga Food Service charges $1.27 for a quarter-pound hamburger at ASU and $1.21 for the same size hamburger at NAU.

A 16-ounce soda costs 55 cents at NAU and 61 cents at ASU. A 2½-ounce bag of french fries costs 50 cents at NAU and 53 cents at ASU.

Randy McNeal, a food service manager at NAU, said the price difference for hamburgers is probably because Saga can buy its beef cheaper in Flagstaff.

Saga, which buys its food wholesale, must bid against other local food services and restaurants.

Bill Phelps, ASU associate vice president of business affairs, said that by contracting with Saga rather than providing its own food service, ASU is keeping prices down.

However, UA charges $1.45 for a one-third pound hamburger, 73 cents less per pound than what Saga charges at ASU.

Phelps also said UA, which has its own service, raised prices twice during the last year.

"The prices are pretty much fixed (at ASU) for the entire year once the contract is made," he said. "When a contractor runs the service, he takes the risks."

Last year Saga recorded six-figure losses at ASU, Phelps added.

Then, a one-third pound hamburger at ASU sold for $1.45.

Dick Calbow, Grand Marketplace food service manager, said factors other than a reduction in hamburger size caused the price-per-pound increase for this year.

"Price increases simply maintain profitability," Calbow said. "Inflation has caused increased costs for food, labor and general expenses."

Ron Tjorden, ASU Saga food service director, said portions are smaller so that prices can be more affordable for students and faculty.

Calbow added that customers don't notice the ratio between the portion and the price.

"The customer looks at price first and portion second," he said.

Bill Cooper, NAU food service director, said NAU granted Saga a 12 percent price increase this fall.

"Due to the installation of our new meal ticket program, we projected considerable savings for our food service," Cooper said.

These savings were passed along in the form of less inflationary increases in the Saga contract, he said.

Phelps said ASU also granted Saga a 12 percent increase.

REGISTRATION OF STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS AND POLICIES GOVERNING THE USE OF UNIVERSITY FACILITIES

Registration of Campus Organizations

I. POLICY

- Every campus organization, i.e., a student, faculty, or staff group of at least ten members which operates or wishes to operate within the University structure shall register with the University. Student organizations shall follow the registration procedures prescribed by the Vice President for Student Affairs. Faculty and staff organizations shall follow such registration procedures as are prescribed by the Academic Vice President and the Vice President for Business Affairs, respectively. Registration shall be necessary before the facilities of the University are made available to any campus organization.
- The Office of Dean of Students shall administer the registration of student organizations, and shall maintain a listing of all currently registered student organizations.
- Registration shall be permitted unless the University finds that an organization seeks to accomplish its local or national objectives, goals and purposes or activities by the use of violence and advocates and incites immediate action which will probably materially and substantially interfere with the discipline and normal activities of the University and the rights of others, constituting a clear and present danger to the property, personnel and orderly function of the University. In determining whether an organization shall be permitted to register, the University, through the Office of Dean of Students or the office of the appropriate Vice President, should make proper inquiry as to the past conduct, declarations and stated objectives of the organization. Inquiry should also be made as to whether the organization advocates the violation of the law and the disregard of University regulations and whether there is a probability that such advocacy has incited or will incite and produce closely related lawless action.
- If registration is denied by the Office of Dean of Students, the Office of the Academic Vice President, or the Vice President for Business Affairs, the organization may appeal the decision to the University Review and Advisory Board.
- Each student organization shall have a University advisor whose assignment shall be to assist the organization membership in developing a constructive program within the framework of University policy. An advisor shall be a member of the faculty or staff at Arizona State University.
- Registration of an organization by the University does not constitute University endorsement or approval of the policies and activities of the organization. It does, however, signify the willingness on the part of the organization to comply with the policies of the University and the Arizona Board of Regents.
- A registered organization shall neither represent nor imply, in any manner, in its contacts with the public that it speaks for or in the name of the University.
- A registered organization shall not use the name of Arizona State University, nor abbreviations, nicknames, or other familiar forms thereof, as part of its own name.
- The Office of Dean of Students shall assist registered organizations with the scheduling of a special use of a University facility under the policies of the University and the Arizona Board of Regents.

II. REGISTRATION PROCEDURE

- INITIAL REGISTRATION
 - A student organization with at least ten members may seek registration at any time during the school year by submitting a completed Student Organization Registration Form, together with the organization's constitution and by-laws, if any, to the Office of Dean of Students. If no constitution has been adopted, a statement of purpose, signed by the University advisor and the student president of the organization, may be substituted.
 - The registration form shall include the following:
 - Name of the organization.
 - Date of application for registration.
 - The signature of the presiding officer, i.e., the highest elected or appointed officer of the organization, such as President or Chairman, and his/her address.
 - The signature of the University advisor.
 - The Office of Dean of Students shall notify the organization in writing of its completed registration.
- REGISTRATION RENEWAL
 - In order to retain its registration, a student organization shall complete and submit each year a Student Organization Registration Form to the Office of Dean of Students not later than the end of the fourth week of each spring semester. The registration form shall be accompanied by a copy of the organization's constitution and by-laws or statement of purpose, if not previously filed, and any additions, deletions or alterations to the constitution or statement of purpose previously submitted.
 - The Office of Dean of Students shall notify the organization in writing of its completed registration renewal.
- TERMINATION OF REGISTRATION

The registration of a student organization may be terminated for the following reasons:

 - Failure to renew registration in the manner specified shall result automatically in termination of registration.
 - By written request of a student organization signed by the presiding officer and the University advisor, the registration of an organization may be terminated at any time.
 - The Dean of Students may, after investigation of a complaint against a student organization, direct termination of registration as a sanction for violation of University regulations. The decision of the Dean of Students may be appealed to the University Trial Board.

III. MEMBERSHIP

- Membership in a registered organization shall be limited to members of the University community, i.e., students, faculty, staff and their spouses.
- Membership shall be extended to qualified members of the University community without regard to race, color, creed or religion, sex, national origin, age, or physical or mental handicap.
- An officer of a student organization shall be enrolled for at least one semester hour of University credit.
- A guest of a registered organization shall not assume the role of membership or exercise any privileges derived therefrom, nor serve on any of its committees.
- A student on academic probation is not eligible to hold office but may continue as a member of an organization.

IV. CONDUCT

- Registered organizations and their members are subject to all state and federal laws and to the rules and regulations adopted by the University and the Board of Regents. Violations shall be handled in accordance with the procedures set forth in the Code of Conduct.
- In the event the majority of the members or the officers of a registered organization shall vote in favor of, actively encourage, join the preparation of or directly take part in the commission of an offense specified in the Code of Conduct, a complaint may be filed against the organization. The complaint or statement of charges shall be processed against the president or someone appointed by him/her to represent the organization and, in the event of a trial, the organization shall be entitled to the same procedural due process granted to an individual. The sanctions which may be imposed against an organization include probation, denial of the use of University facilities for a definite period of time or permanent cancellation of registration. The filing of a complaint or statement of charges against an organization shall not affect, in any way, the filing and processing of a complaint or statement of charges against an individual member of the organization.
- The Dean of Students shall process all complaints filed against registered student organizations. After an investigation of the matter, the Dean of Students shall report his findings in an oral conference with the representative of the accused organization and shall advise the representative what sanction, if any, he intends to impose on the organization. If the accused organization accepts the findings and recommended sanction of the Dean of Students all action on the complaint shall be considered closed. In the event the accused organization refuses or fails to accept the findings and recommended sanction, the decision of the Dean of Students may be appealed to the University Trial Board. Appeal from a decision made by the University Trial Board may be made to the University Review and Advisory Board (see Code of Conduct, II. The Maintenance of Order with Justice; Administrative Procedures).

C. DEFINITIONS

Fees and costs are defined as follows:

- 1. Extraordinary Costs. Those costs associated with the special use of a University facility beyond the minimum ordinary costs incurred when the facility is used. Extraordinary costs are always applicable.
- 2. Costs. All minimum normal and ordinary operating expenses incurred by the University as a result of the use of the facility. Ordinary costs are as follows: facility prepared and operable for use, minimum supervisory personnel, cleanup and waste removal.
- 3. Base Rental Fee. The fixed minimum rental fee established for the use of a particular facility. The base rental fee includes and is greater than the minimum ordinary costs associated with the special use of that particular facility.
- 4. Admission-Charged Fee. The fixed minimum rental fee established for the use of a particular facility when admission is charged by non-University organizations. The admission-charged fee includes the minimum ordinary costs associated with the special use of that particular facility, and is generally expressed as a fixed dollar amount (greater than the Base Rental Fee) or a percentage of the gross receipts, whichever is greater.

D. APPLICATION OF FEES AND COSTS

Category shall be determined by the University Scheduling Board and the appropriate fees/costs shall be applied in accordance with the following:

1. Units in Category 1 shall not be assessed a fee for the special use of a facility, unless there are extraordinary costs associated with its use.
2. Units in Category 2 shall be assessed all extraordinary costs associated with the special use of a facility. If admission is charged, costs shall be assessed.
3. Units in Category 3 shall be assessed all costs associated with the special use of a facility. If admission is charged, a base rental fee shall be assessed.
4. Units in Category 4 shall be assessed a base rental fee associated with the special use of a facility. If admission is charged, an admission-charged fee shall be assessed.
5. Units in Category 5 shall be assessed a base rental fee associated with the special use of a facility. If admission is charged, an admission-charged fee shall be assessed.

Merit sanction or endorsement of any non-University activity by a University affiliated group or individual shall in no way alter category. University Scheduling Board may consider requests to alter category when made by units in Categories 1 or 2, provided that such co-sponsorship of a non-University activity has direct and legitimate relevance to the educational interests of the University, and that:

1. The co-sponsoring unit assumes full budgetary responsibility for all assessments and liabilities resulting from the special use of the University facility.
2. The co-sponsoring unit has a participatory role in the decision-making process in determining the time, place, and manner of the non-University activity.
3. A full accounting is made available to the University Scheduling Board by the co-sponsoring unit of all funds expended and received as a result of the non-University activity.
4. The non-University activity be consistent with the normal and specific function or purpose of the co-sponsoring unit.

E. GENERAL POLICY

1. The University Scheduling Board shall receive all requests for the special use of a University facility, determine the fee category, and apply the appropriate fee/cost for that category.
2. Neither the director of the facility nor the University Scheduling Board shall assess a fee other than the one applicable under this policy. Any applicant dissatisfied with the fee applied may appeal to a committee of the President and Vice Presidents in accordance with the policies of the University Scheduling Board.
3. Each facility director shall be responsible for a facility use fee schedule using language consistent with this policy to describe the fees and costs associated with the special use of the facility and shall submit the schedule to the University Scheduling Board for review and application.
4. Any unit requesting a donation before the event or at the door, or in any other manner wherein such donation is a prerequisite for admittance shall have its use treated as one for which admission is charged and the appropriate fee applied.
5. The current application of the policy, IV. Application of Facility Use Fee Schedule, may be amended by the University Scheduling Board subject to review and authorization by the President of the University.
6. Authorization for the use of a University facility by the University Scheduling Board shall not mean that Arizona State University, nor any of its constituent agencies, departments, or divisions in any way support, sanction, or agree with the policies/activities of the applicant.

V. SPONSORED EVENTS

- A. COLLEGE-SPONSORED EVENTS
Academic units of the University sponsor addresses, seminars and colloquia at the institution involving off-campus speakers. Such undertakings will be coordinated with the University Scheduling Board for purposes of scheduled convenience. However, responsibility for the events — including invitations to speakers — shall remain with the deans of the respective colleges.

- B. SPECIAL GUEST LECTURES
Special guest lecturers may speak on scholarly or scientific topics before classes, seminars or other academic meetings solely at the invitation of the faculty members responsible for the academic content of the occasion.

- C. PERFORMING ARTS BOARD
The management of Gammage Center for the Performing Arts in conjunction with the Performing Arts Board is responsible for presenting to the University community and the general public a full session of concerts, plays, dances, popular attractions and special entertainment events. The management of the Center determines ticket prices, University discounts, and contractual arrangements with the respective performing artists.

D. EVENTS SPONSORED BY REGISTERED ORGANIZATIONS

- 1. Sponsoring of Off-Campus Speakers
 - a. A request to invite an outside speaker to the campus will be considered only when made by an officer and a University advisor of a registered student organization or an officer of a faculty or staff organization.
 - b. A request to invite an outside speaker to the campus must be submitted in writing by an officer of the organization to the University Scheduling Board. To assist the University in providing a suitable forum for the speaker and to avoid any conflict with academic functions and the normal activities of the University, the request shall contain the following information:
 - (1) The name of the sponsoring organization.
 - (2) The signature of an officer and a University advisor of a registered student organization or an officer of a faculty or staff organization.
 - (3) The proposed date, time, location and anticipated attendance of the meeting.
 - (4) The name of the speaker and the topic of the speech.
 - c. A request to sponsor a speaker must be submitted not later than seven calendar days prior to the date of the proposed speaking engagement. The Board shall render a decision within four days from the receipt of the request.
 - d. The sponsoring organization will not publicize the appearance of any outside speaker until approved by the University Scheduling Board.
 - e. The fact that the speaker may be provocative and strike at prejudices or preconceptions and may hold views contrary to and disliked by the campus and the surrounding community is not a permissible basis for the denial of the right of the faculty, staff or student organization to hear him. (See Code of Conduct, IV, D. "Outside or Off-Campus Speakers," page 23.)
 - f. A request may be denied if the University Scheduling Board determines, after proper inquiry, that the proposed speech would probably constitute a clear and present danger to the normal activities and the essential purpose of the University (see Code of Conduct, IV, D. Outside or Off-Campus Speakers, pages 23 and 24.)
 - g. When a request to invite an outside speaker is denied, an appeal may be made by the sponsoring organization to the University Review and Advisory Board for de novo consideration. The Review and Advisory Board shall have the power to grant or deny the request, and its decision shall be final. If the request is not acted upon by the Board within three days following the filing of the written application for appeal, it shall be deemed granted, and the speaker's invitation shall be issued.
 - h. The extension of an invitation to speak on the campus shall not constitute endorsement of a speaker nor approval of his views by the University or the sponsoring organization, and no speaker or sponsoring organization shall represent nor imply, in any manner, that the speaker has been endorsed or that his views have been approved by the University. The University may require that the meeting be chaired by a member of the administration or faculty.
 - i. A speaker is subject to all state and federal laws and all University rules and regulations. By his acceptance of the invitation to speak, he shall assume full responsibility for any violation of such laws or rules committed by him while on the campus.
 - j. The University shall assess the sponsoring organization all applicable fees and costs associated with the use of a University facility for the appearance of an off-campus speaker.
 - k. Sponsoring organizations are subject to all state and federal laws and to the rules and regulations adopted by the University and the Board of Regents. Violations shall be handled in accordance with the procedures set forth in the Code of Conduct.

2. Sponsoring of Entertainment

- a. A request to sponsor entertainment on the campus for the University community and/or the public will be considered only when made by an officer and the advisor of a registered student organization, or an officer of a faculty or staff organization.

- b. A request to sponsor entertainment must be submitted in writing and accompanied by all supporting documents to the University Scheduling Board at least seven calendar days prior to the date of the proposed entertainment. The Board shall render a decision four days from the receipt of the request.

- c. Approval by the University Scheduling Board will be contingent upon the receipt and review of the following:

- (1) The completed University Facility Request Form.
- (2) The availability and suitability of the requested facility.
- (3) Entertainment will not be scheduled which will interfere with the pursuits of the classroom, library, offices, on- and off-campus living areas, or the Health Service.

3. Performance or Entertainment Before an Audience

- a. All members of the University community have the right of freedom of speech and the right to assemble and to petition for redress of grievances, in a peaceful and orderly fashion. However, the exercise of these rights carries with it the responsibility not to interfere with nor obstruct the rights of others to use University facilities for their normal activities and functions.

- b. There is no absolute right on the part of any organization or on the part of individual members of the University community to assemble and hear a speech at any particular time or place and under any and all circumstances.

- c. No non-member of the University community may speak, perform, or entertain before an audience on the University campus except as a result of an invitation by a registered organization, and the written approval of the University of the time, place, and manner of such appearance.

- d. Non-members of the University community are required, while on campus, to observe and comply with the rules and regulations adopted by the University or the Board of Regents, and with all state and federal laws.

VI. OFF-CAMPUS ORGANIZATIONS

- A. State or federal agencies, charitable or civic organizations, or commercial organizations may use University facilities at the discretion of the University, subject to availability and all applicable fees and costs.

- B. A request to use University facilities must be submitted no later than fourteen calendar days prior to the date the facility will be utilized. The University Scheduling Board shall render a decision within ten days from the receipt of the request.

- C. Facilities will be scheduled for off-campus organizations on the basis of availability, provided that such use does not conflict with the normal activities of the University community, and subject to all applicable fees and costs.

- D. Off-campus organizations are responsible for facility use fees and other costs to be incurred as a result of the event, including, but not limited to, guarantees, insurance, security, and staging arrangements.

- E. The off-campus organization assumes full responsibility for any loss or damage resulting from such use and agrees to hold harmless and indemnify the University as to any loss or claims arising out of the use of such facility.

Failure and/or refusal to present proof of legal age shall constitute a violation of this policy.

6. The unit director of a residence hall and/or the president of a fraternity shall be responsible for developing and enforcing appropriate and necessary controls (including police security) for ensuring that an activity involving the consumption

ASU looks for win No. 1; Rogers for No. 100

By Jeff Fries
Sports writer

If the ASU football team does to the Utah Utes in this year's home opener Saturday what it did to the Houston Cougars in last year's, the season will be off to a smashing success.

In last year's season opener, the ASU football team manhandled the then nationally ranked Houston Cougars at Sun Devil Stadium, 29-13.

If it turns into an aerial show, ASU's senior quarterback Mike Pagel will be in the thick of things. Pagel set six school passing records in 1980: most attempts (334); most completions (184); best completion percentage (.551); least interceptions (9); and most completions per game (16.7).

"Our number one returnee is quarterback Mike Pagel," ASU mentor Darryl Rogers said. "He's had a year with the system and he's the man who will move our offense."

"We were confident last year that he would be the leader we need at that position," he added. "But the accomplishments he made last season were extraordinary considering his general lack of experience going into last year."

"He's one of the most underrated quarterbacks in America and among the five best in the nation."

But Pagel isn't the only offensive weapon the Devils can boast. With tailbacks Willie Gittens and Robert Weathers and fullbacks Gerald Riggs, transfer Mike Cade and fifth-year man Newton Williams, the Devils are nothing short of stacked in the backfield.

"By far our most talented area on offense is our running backs," Rogers said. "We could conceivably shuttle our backs in and out."

Rogers said the only place the Devils may be lacking on offense is at wide receiver.

"Our offensive line is in good shape, but our big trouble spot is at wide receiver where we graduated two supers in (John) Mistler and (Ron) Washington," he said. "We have no real experience at the position."

"We have some freshmen coming in who have outstanding ability and some older players who haven't had much playing time yet."

Rogers will either go with senior Bernard Henry or sophomore Jerome Weatherspoon at split end, senior Jerry Bell and junior Ron Wetzel will battle for the tight end spot and senior walk-on Eric Redenius and sophomore Kevin Moffett will be the flankers.

On defense, the Devils won't be trying anything fancy, according to Rogers.

"We believe in 'bend, don't break,' with the ability to Coach Darryl Rogers is looking for victory No. 100 this weekend when the Sun Devils meet Utah.

Friends sometimes question your taste in movies. But they'll see them with you anyway.

It sounded fantastic in the newspaper. But only to you. Still, you had to see it, and with a little arm-twisting your friends agreed to see it too.

You've already heard a barrage of jokes about your taste in movies since the curtain came down. And, knowing your friends, it'll go on for weeks.

So, to make it up to them, and show them your taste isn't bad in everything, you do something a little special. Tonight, let it be Löwenbräu.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.

Stanford, Chargers selected as grid 'lock' picks of the week

Rick Peters

This Saturday the Sun Devils finally get to show if they are worthy of their No. 7 ranking by Playboy, or their No. 6 Pac-10 rating in Athlon, against the lowly Utah Utes. If the Sun Devils don't defeat Utah by more than two touchdowns, I'll be very surprised. Plus, head Coach Darryl Rogers is gunning for win No. 100. He'll get it easily — in a route — ASU 38, Utah 7.

It seems that wherever Darryl Rogers goes, good kickers seem to follow him around. At Michigan State, Rogers coached Ray Stachowicz, who led the nation in punting in 1980 and placekicker Morten Anderson, who is being billed as one of the top placekickers in America. At ASU, Rogers has two very fine kickers in punter Mike Black, the leading punter in the PAC last season, and freshman placekicker Luis Zendejas, who is said to boom the ball through the posts from 60 yards-plus.

Speaking of Rogers, he went to the same high school as Utah's head Coach Wayne Howard. The two attended Jordon High School in Long Beach, Calif. Howard said, "I bet we are the only major college coaches from the same high school. And our high school would be the one you would least expect to produce two coaches."

ASU head basketball Coach Ned Wulk is still in favor of raising the basket to 11 feet. He said there have already been experiments conducted with an 11-foot basket and, after shooting for about 20 minutes, players adjusted rapidly. But wouldn't we miss all those rim-ripping dunks?

So much for the Oregon Ducks as legitimate contenders for the Pac-10 race. In fact, Fresno St. sent the Ducks back to Eugene quacking, as they soundly whipped them, 23-16. The California Bears also were beaten in their first game by the Texas A & M Aggies, 29-28.

With the football season

now getting into full gear, many of us will spend numerous hours in front of the boob tube watching on the weekends. With this in mind I decided to rate the best broadcasting teams, so when they are on keep the sound up, otherwise just watch — especially when Howard Cosell is blabbing. Best collegiate broadcasting team, without a doubt, is ABC's Keith Jackson and Frank Broyles. As for the pros, there is no beating Dick Enberg and Merlin Olsen. Except when Enberg gets a tad too excited and starts screaming. The worst part of the football season is the pregame shows. The only choices are Brent Musberger, the king of the words "of course" and Bryant Gumbel, who screams too much. But with all the good features and

Devils journey to NAU for cross country debut

The ASU women's cross country team opens its 1981 campaign today against NAU in Flagstaff. The Sun Devils will be led by senior Sabrina Peters, winner of the 1980 Stanford Cross Country Invitational, and by junior Maria Trujillo, defending Western Collegiate Athletic Association 10,000-meter champion. "The meet should provide a good test for us," said ASU head Coach Roger Kerr. "We have had some key injuries and therefore some of our prime people are not in top condition." The Devils will return to action on Sept. 19 against the University of New Mexico in their only home meet of the season. The 14th-ranked ASU women's volleyball team is in Las Cruces, N.M., to compete in the Roadrunner Classic hosted by New Mexico State University.

The tournament starts today with the championship game slated for Saturday. To date, ASU owns victories over Mesa Community College (twice), the University of San Diego, and Grand Canyon College. The Devils also captured the MCC Invitational.

Entries must be turned in to the State Press by 3 p.m. Friday in the Matthews Center basement. Only one entry per person. The top three entries will be listed in Tuesday's paper. The ASU-Utah game will be used as the tie breaker, so just predict the score. Place an "X" in both boxes to predict a tie in any game with the point spread taken into consideration. The teams on the left are the favorites, and the points shown will be subtracted from their final score.

create the big play and put the opposing offense in a hole," he said. "We won't try a lot of gimmicks, we'll play basically hat-on-hat."

There is no question to who ASU's defensive leaders will be — junior safety Mike Richardson and junior outside linebacker Vernon Maxwell. After pilfering eight passes last season, Richardson is after the school record of 10 set by the New England Patriots' Mike Haynes.

Maxwell, who was named first-team All-Conference and All-America honorable mention, led the Devils in sacks (7), forced fumbles (10), unassisted tackles (50), and blocked punts (20).

"Richardson is a bonafide All-America choice and we couldn't be prouder," Rogers said. "He has the uncanny ability to be where the ball is or will be."

"Barring injuries, Maxwell could likely become the finest linebacker ever at ASU," he added. "He is a powerful tackler and this is only overshadowed by his quickness."

"He simply has all the tools."

Rogers said the Utes may be a little better prepared for Saturday's clash since they already have a game under their belts.

"It's a great advantage for Utah to have played a game already," he said. "By opening early, they've had one more week of practice and already have game experience this season.

"They should come in here with more confidence knowing what they can do," Rogers added. "We're still wondering about ourselves."

"After game one there will be room for improvement. No matter what happens the season will not have ended."

previews, one can learn to stomach those two for a half-hour.

It seems that former ASU star Ricky Peters has hit a sophomore jinx for the Detroit Tigers. Peters, who was a top candidate for Rookie-of-the-Year honors in 1980, has been slowed by injuries and his batting average has dipped from around .290 to the middle .200s.

Ex-ASU baseball walk-on Brett Butler was recently voted MVP of the International League. Butler, who spent only one year here before transferring elsewhere, batted .335 with 44 stolen bases. He's now patrolling leftfield for the Atlanta Braves. Also, ex-ASU standouts Ed Irvine and Bob Ferris enjoyed successful minor leagues seasons this past summer. Irvine, playing in the Texas League (Double A), batted .286 with four HR's and 42 RBI. Ferris batted .299 with 14 HR's and 65 RBI for Fort Myers of the Florida State League before being promoted to the Kansas City Royals' Triple A club in Omaha, Neb.

My two picks last week turned out to be just .500, as the Raiders were upset by the Broncos, 9-7, and the Chargers mauled the Browns, 44-14. The two locks for this week are: Stanford, even, against the Purdue Boilermakers, and San Diego minus seven against the Lions. But if you do bet your meal money, don't come complaining to me.
