Greeks approve of possible move

By Wayne Baker
Staff writer

A proposal to build a 40-house, $45 million fraternity/sorority complex near the Salt River would help ASU's greek system expand, according to the ASU Interfraternity Council President.

Mike Murphy said the plan, presented to the Tempe City Council Thursday by a group of developers, would allow new fraternities and sororities to come to ASU.

Tempe attorney Karl Wochner, head of the development group, said his investors researched to see if the project was needed.

At the City Council's study session before the meeting, Wochner said the project was needed because ASU's sororities are housed in a dormitory and the fraternity houses are in poor condition.

"They have houses that are falling down. They should be condemned," he told the Council.

The project would provide for 40 houses of close to 15,000 square feet each.

According to Wochner's proposal, the land for the project would be located on 40 acres of city and private land between Mill and College avenues on the north bank of the Salt River.

Murphy said the current housing situation at ASU does not allow for growth of the Greek system.

He said fraternities and sororities located off campus have trouble recruiting new members and raising funds.

ASU currently has 20 fraternities and 13 sororities with on-campus space for only 15 fraternities and 12 sororities.

Murphy said "three or four" Greek organizations a year attempt to establish themselves at ASU but have difficulty due to space limitations.

He said others in the Greek system also would be in favor of the project because it would allow for expansion.

Wochner said one member of the development group is a former IFC vice president and is interested in making the Greek system more cohesive.

"We believe the Greek system would be stronger if sororities had houses and everyone was all together," Wochner said.

He said the proposal would allow the fraternities and sororities to buy the property.

However, Wochner said the project still is in the "conceptual stage" and is subject to adjustment.

Tempe city officials were unavailable for comment.

ASU to pull out of lobby group

By M.K. Reinhart
Staff writer

After a history of conflict, culminating with recent tuition disagreements, ASU's Board of Directors for the Arizona Students' Association has decided to withdraw its membership from the ASA, according to ASASU President Walter Batt.

The University's ASA board has submitted a proposal to the Arizona Board of Regents, and sent copies to its counterparts at NAU and U of A.

The proposal outlines the board's reasons for withdrawing from the association, the future formation of an ASU Student Association and resolves to form a Task Force on Alternative State Student Associations.

According to the proposal, "at the adjournment of the Dec. 3, 1983, board of directors meeting, Arizona State University will be officially withdrawn and the board will be dissolved due to . . . the absence of a quorum in the event a future meeting is called."

A quorum consists of at least two members from each of the three universities.

Batt, who heads the ASU board, said that while he "planted the seed" for the board's ASA withdrawal, all five board members agreed there was a need for a stonger ASU lobbying body.

The reasons for withdrawal cited in the proposal include: the lack of compromise on issues; the lack of commitment and responsibility of the member schools and individual board members; the lack of pertinent issues compatible to each university; and the inability to sidestep the tendency toward regionalism.

Batt said ASA members from the other two universities agree there needs to be restructuring within the ASA to make it more effective, but they disagree with the decision to pull out.

"None of them can say 'Yes' when asked if ASA is effective, but all of them disagree with the method I'm taking," he said.

Efforts to reach Michael Proctor, president of U of A's Associated Students, were unsuccessful.

ASA Chairman Brian Casey acknowledges problems within the association, but thinks Batt is making the wrong decision and does not view the board as unproductive or overly regionalistic.

"I would like to see ASU stay on the board. I don't agree with the decision they are making," Casey said.

"Admittedly, there are some issues that are local issues, and granted each president will have his school's interest in mind . . . but there is still plenty of reason to have ASA. There is still an important lobbying job to be done," he said.

According to Casey, "the inconsistency of opinion centers almost entirely on the tuition issue."

The three universities differed on tuition hikes last month, "frankly because (ASU) needed more money," he said.

Casey said ASA is likely to continue even if ASU's board insists on pulling out.

According to the proposal, the ASA two-member central staff would continue to operate after the ASA is dissolved by serving both the proposed ASUSA and task force.

The task force would consist of three regents, the three university presidents and the three Associated Students' presidents.

The proposed task force would research other state organizations, identify common concerns among the state's university students and present their recommendations at the regents meeting in March.

ASU prof driven to serve during president's visits

By Deanne Hutchison
Staff writer

When President Reagan comes to town, most Valley residents would be thrilled just to catch a glimpse of him. But an ASU communications professor actually helps him get where he's going.

William Arnold has worked as a volunteer with chauffeur services for the presidential motorcade for two years as a driver and a coordinator.

Arnold said a member of the White House staff notifies him about two months in advance of a presidential visit.

He then begins to work on coordinating drivers and cars to carry members of the presidential staff and media personnel.

The bullet-proof limousines used by the president and his Secret Service men are flown from Washington, D.C., to Phoenix, Arnold said.

"The presidential limousine has 24 inches of plate steel on the bottom and 18 inches on the sides," he said.

The limousines used for the media and staff are rented or donated by a local company.

The Secret Service works with the local police to set up times and routes to be followed by the motorcade. Arnold then coordinates his cars with those times and routes.

"I help work with the logistics of getting the cars to the right place at the right time," he said.

Although Arnold usually is involved in coordinating the motorcade, he has driven cars in the procession in the past, though not the president's limousine.

"They have Secret Service men driving the president and the first lady," he said.

The first lady, Nancy Reagan, was in town to see her mother for about 24 hours this week and Arnold was involved in the coordination of motorcades for her visit, which ended Monday.

Arnold said he met the president about one year ago when he was working with the motorcade.

Whenever the president goes anywhere, the security is tight, and the motorcades are organized in a way that will provide maximum security, Arnold said.

"The Secret Service has set up a 'secure package,'" Arnold said. "It consists of the presidential limousine, two support cars with Secret Service agents and a lead car usually provided by the police. Then there are about 20 cars for staff and media people."

Arnold said he started out as a driver two years ago but now works mostly on coordinating the cars and motorcades.

According to Arnold, anyone can volunteer to drive cars for presidential and first lady visits to Phoenix, but his name would have to be cleared with the Secret Service in Washington, D.C.

"I call the local Republican party office staff in Phoenix," he said. "They give me volunteer drivers' names, which I send to the Secret Service. The night before (the president arrives), I meet with the drivers."

Arnold said volunteers are average citizens ranging from loyal Republicans to those interested in it just for the excitement.

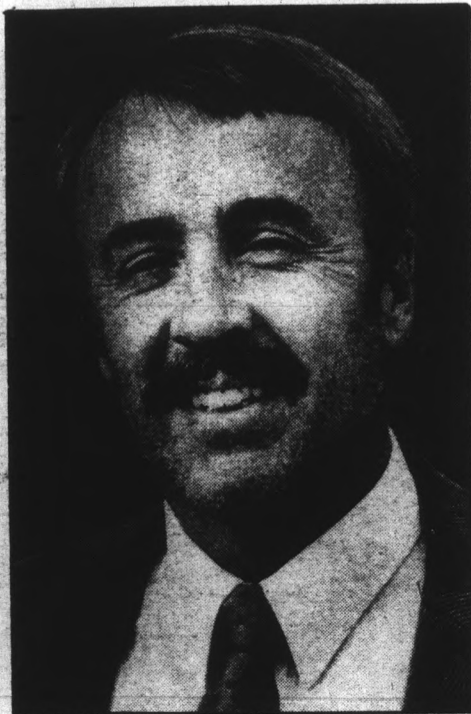

"They are just citizens, from M.D.'s, to lawyers, to college students," he said. "Once you have volunteered and done a good job, they will probably call on you again."

Arnold said even though he likes being involved, he would not want to do it as a full-time job.

"It's exciting, but it is strictly an avocation for me," he said. "I wouldn't want to be involved with all the traveling that it takes (as a full time worker)."

Arnold said he has done some traveling as a volunteer chauffeur-coordinator, and with the presidential election campaigns coming up soon, he expects there will be more traveling involved.

The last presidential visit was in May for a National Rifle Association speech. It is not known when Reagan will come to Phoenix again. The first lady is expected to come to the Valley again in January, but the trip is still unconfirmed, Arnold said.

Anti-nuclear activists march in West Germany

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Thousands of anti-nuclear activists defied riot squads firing water jets Monday, and marched outside Parliament as the government reaffirmed its pledge to deploy new U.S. missiles. Police jailed at least 163 protesters.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl, opening a parliamentary debate on the medium-range missiles, said some of the weapons would be operational on German soil "by year's end" unless U.S. and Soviet negotiators in Geneva break their deadlock.

"We are not wanderers between East and West," Kohl said. "Between democracy and dictatorship there is no middle road. We stand on the side of freedom."

The debate, scheduled to end Tuesday night with a vote, is considered largely symbolic because Kohl's conservatives have a 58-seat majority and are determined to approve the deployment. Kohl had agreed to the debate because of public pressure.

Bonanno, with a two-day beard and clad in a tan shirt and slacks, told Ingram, "I have nothing to say. I thank you very kindly."

Bonanno's attorney, Alfred S. Donau III, said his client could be free in six months after time already served is figured into the sentence.

Palestinian guerrillas invade Tripoli

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (AP) — Rebel Palestinian guerrillas backed by Syrian tanks invaded northern Tripoli Monday, routed PLO chairman Yasser Arafat's backers from several neighborhoods and pushed to within 1,000 yards of his office.

The rebels, seeking to drive the Palestine Liberation Organization leader out of Lebanon, proclaimed a unilateral cease-fire. But Arafat said he knew nothing about a truce, and that his fighters were being besieged from land and sea. Artillery fire and gunbattles went on all day.

In Beirut, U.S. Middle East envoy Donald H. Rumsfeld completed his first Middle East tour, and state radio said he conferred with President Amin Gemayel of Lebanon before leaving for Washington. Rumsfeld made no statement.

Judge reduces Bonanno's sentence

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Reputed Mafia boss Joseph Bonanno Sr. was sentenced Monday to a year and a day in federal prison, a reduction in the five-year term originally levied for his conviction for obstructing justice.

U.S. District Judge William Ingram reduced the sentence in the wake of medical tests on the 79-year-old Bonanno.

Faculty Senate approves committee to investigate federal research control

By Jim McCleary
Staff writer

The Faculty Senate on Monday unanimously approved development of an ad hoc committee to investigate possible government control of research and publications conducted at ASU.

The proposal, introduced by George Paulsen, professor of history, was passed without discussion. Appointments to the committee should begin before the end of the semester, according to John Evans, chairman of the Faculty Senate.

"The government has taken the position that research funded by the government or the private sector which has bearing on national security may be subject to censorship," Paulsen said, after introducing the proposal at the last Senate meeting.

Paulsen broadly mentioned alternatives to government censorship at Monday's meeting, including guidelines by which the ASU Office of Grants and Contracts would accept government-sponsored research grants.

He said the possibility of research censorship "leaves the national government to determine what is sensitive material."

He did not rule out the likelihood that state agencies are involved in screening professors' material. However, he said, "The situation is serious nationally."

In other Senate activity, President J. Russell Nelson mentioned the Arizona Board of Regents study session on the west-side campus, saying the issue is not the feasibility of such a branch but funding problems.

"I cannot predict how they (the regents) will deal with it," he said. "The validity of a campus on the west side is not a major issue. That may be the wrong impression but that's the impression from the board."

Nelson also referred to the University merit pay committee, saying it has the function of "implementation of merit pay policy expected to be (used) on this campus."

Jack Kinsinger, vice president for academic affairs, also addressed the Senate on the relationship between ASU and community colleges in the state.

His office is meeting with officials at community colleges in the area to "establish a new understanding" of operations at the two levels.

Kinsinger indicated several issues are being discussed, including the problems of "transferability from the college to the university system."

Other issues presented at the Faculty Senate meeting included:

- The consideration of increased fines against students who lose ASU library books. Currently, the fine includes a charge of $15 and a $10 fine, according to John

'Research censorship leaves the government to determine what is sensitive material.'

Larimer, chairman of the University Services Committee. The new fee could run as high as $70, he said.

- A recommendation by Walter Batt, president of Associated Students, that ASU pull out of the Arizona Students Association because affiliation with the organization is "not in the best interest of ASU students."

Batt also voiced his support for production of the ASU yearbook, possibly by next year. Evans pledged his support to examine the possibility of a campus forum on nuclear war and said, "I intend to do something about it." He indicated that the issue may be turned over to the Student Policy Committee. Evans received no comments from the Senate when he requested discussion on the issue.

Camelot

Political ideals of Kennedy's New Frontier were illusory

Matthew Scully
Opinion Editor

"Nothing is more sad than the death of an illusion," wrote Arthur Koestler, recalling his own disenchantment with some of this century's early "progressive" causes. Koestler's illusion had been a common one: that modern man could, through the mere application of reason and his benevolent instincts, usher in an era of peace, equality and social justice. Then came Stalin, Hitler, appeasement, and a world war that finally disabused him of his utopian expectations. Instead of progress, the 1930s brought a rapid succession of those upheavals that remind man of his real condition — the limitations of his worldly aims and his vulnerability to whatever calamities fortune may inflict on him.

So, to a lesser extent, did the 1960s, beginning with the death of John F. Kennedy twenty years ago today, which shattered the illusion of "Camelot." In the wistful tributes to Kennedy one observes a pathetic effort to piece that illusion together again. There have been the familiar reminiscences about his vision, his unfinished programs, his promise, the ambitious idealism of his New Frontier. For Arthur Schlesinger, Ted Sorenson, Pierre Salinger and others who served J.F.K., the anniversary has been an opportunity to recall for us those Thousand Days of exciting change and high political endeavor, that "time for greatness" in which their leader "summoned the best in us."

Anthony Lewis writing in The New York Times lamented the "void in political leadership since Nov. 22, 1963"; unlike his most recent successor, says Lewis, Kennedy gave us "hope" and "a sense of possibility." "He urged America to follow his youthful adventure," observes Hugh Sidey of Time magazine. "That is why John Kennedy lives among us yet today." All agree that Kennedy gave people the conviction that "government could work for them," that through his stirring rhetoric he awakened us to the near-boundless possibilities of government to improve the quality of our lives.

And yet, what could more starkly dramatize the opposite lesson than the manner of John Kennedy's death? What more convincing demonstration could be imagined of the inability of political power to affect, in the long view, the real quality of life? To watch the rending sequence of his assassination on film is to gain a heightened awareness, not only of the unyielding finality of death, but of the impermanence of all political triumphs and achievements. In a few seconds, that scene of order and stately charm became one of horror and confusion. Here was a man on whom the hopes of a nation rested, who enjoyed the adulation of millions — gunned down in a city street; the most powerful man in the world, helpless before an individual act of malice.

With his rhetoric of motion and change, Kennedy himself encouraged — however sincerely — the superstition that society needs only political "progress" of one kind or another to secure its happiness. The irony is that all the ideas and programs of the New Frontier, once institutionalized in the Great Society, only engendered the bitterness and resentment of the Welfare State; they arose from no genuine need but from inflamed political imaginations.

All purely political hopes are delusive, and usually self-serving. "However enraptured I became (with politics)," observed Malcolm Muggeridge after 40 years as a journalist, "I could never shake off the feeling that the spectacle was Theater rather than Life — entries and exits, words spoken, postures adopted, all previously rehearsed, with a prompter handy to help the players with their lines." That was Camelot — a transitory political drama bearing no relation to real life.

Of course there is an element of drama in politics (one thinks of Churchill's experience), but it is not the contrived drama of New Frontiers or Great Societies. Modern politicians who promise vast reforms, who exalt themselves as leaders of utopian causes they can never fulfill, are only slightly less ridiculous than the ancient Roman emperors who insisted on being worshipped as deities. They simply misunderstand the possibilities and nature of politics.

On November 22 we should remember not only a graceful man who passed through our midst with style and refreshing vigor, but the inability of John Kennedy or any other political leader to bring lasting reform. Those who expect more, who invest all their energies and hopes in politics, are searching for something it cannot give them.

Campus paper a place for 'free and open discussion'

Editor:

During my one year here at ASU, I have read the editorial page of the State Press with a growing sense of detached amusement. However, the current discussion about the editorial policy compels me to comment.

I would like to take issue with Jay Heiler. While I certainly understand Mr. Heiler's desire to defend his former paper, I question many of his hastily drawn conclusions.

My political leanings are to the left but I prefer to read well structured and well supported discussions rather than diatribe from either the left or the right. Mr. Heiler constantly attacks "the liberals" in various ways. To call those who seek a change in editors "buffoons" is to seriously demean his own objectivity. Disagree certainly, but surely these students have the same right to their opinion as Mr. Heiler does.

Mr. Heiler further attacks the New Times yet offers no substantiation to his charges. Does Mr. Heiler so casually dismiss the many journalistic awards won by the New Times staff because he disagrees with their opinions? Would he prefer that all journalists report simply that which lies on the surface of events? It is my belief that part of a reporter's job is to research a topic, to probe, and even to investigate. This includes items which the public may find unpleasant.

I do not mind conservatism in the ASU newspaper. While I do not agree with all these views, I welcome new presentations of issues. However, a point comes to mind. When I first came to ASU, I was under the impression that the State Press was a campus newspaper. Yet most editorials dealt with national or foreign policy. While I understand the importance of these issues, I feel that there is much work to do right here at ASU. Though Mr. Heiler may not like the label of "milquetoast" newspaper for the State Press, surely no story so far is likely to be named as top story by journalists as happened during Mr. Tulumello's tenure at the ASU paper. I agree with Mr. Heiler that Mr. Tulumello may be somewhat biased; perhaps the record of the State Press during his tenure was indeed something to be proud of.

In conclusion, arguments without evidence are simply fluff. They are unimportant and serve mainly for people to vent their own didactic philosophies. I would much rather see a campus newspaper dedicated to free and open discussions of issues from both the left and the right. Reporters who will investigate issues regardless of whose toes are stepped on are indispensable. Attacking another publication in the manner of Mr. Heiler smacks of childish name-calling. I hope that was not his purpose. New Times can proudly stand on its journalistic record. Can Mr. Heiler do the same? His writing would seem to indicate he cannot.

Protest registered

Editor:

We the undersigned officers of Local #2050 of the American Federation of Teachers chartered here at ASU wish to register our protest against the editorial of Oct. 27, which either politically attacked or badly misunderstood the concept of academic freedom. The A.F.T. has consistently and wholeheartedly supported the concept of academic freedom as traditionally defined. We consider it to be the heart and soul of a free open and democratic university and consider the defense of academic freedom as a top priority. We in the A.F.T. consider the defense of academic freedom as resting at least in part on First Amendment rights which we deem sacred. Each of us has the right to build our belief on our own discoveries of the past and should not have these depend upon a controlled press or classroom.

Tenants' group may help commuters

By M.K. Reinhart
Staff writer

Since the majority of ASU students live off campus and often have different needs than campus residents, the Associated Students Senate will vote tonight on expanding the Tenants Association to serve the unique needs of commuter students, the executive vice president said.

Ray Burnell said Senate Bill 46 will amend the purpose of the Tenants Association to deal with commuter students, thereby increasing their duties.

According to the bill, the Tenants/Commuter Students Association would "represent commuter students and express their needs and concerns to the appropriate departments."

Burnell said if the bill is approved, the association will eventually need to increase its budget to facilitate expansion.

Senate pay will be an issue again this semester as Mark Downs, senator from the College of Law, will introduce a bill tonight that will create a budget line for that purpose.

In past years, the Senate has considered measures to pay its members. Last year's Senate approved such a bill, overriding a veto by the ASASU president. However, Vice President for Student Affairs Betty Turner Asher refused to sign it.

Downs was not available for comment, but according to Burnell, the bill would "make it possible to pay senators in the future."

"It is not the intention of this (year's) senate to receive pay," Burnell said, adding that if passed, the bill would allow next year's Senate to include senate pay as part of the budgetary process.

Senators could then vote next year to pay the following year's senators for the 1985-86 school year, Burnell said, a process which would require administrative approval.

The Senate will also hear a bill which introduces the repeal of all Arizona Students Association provisions and establishing the ASU Students Association.

The new association, ASUSA, will serve the same lobbying purposes as ASA but will be independent from the other two state universities, concentrating instead on issues pertaining only to ASU.

The Nigerian Students Association has presented a bill that has generated a certain amount of emotion among some senate members, Burnell said.

Senate Bill 41 originally called for the funding of a cultural event which included the purchase of two live goats, at a cost of $120, to be slaughtered and then eaten as part of a Nigerian custom.

The bill was amended in committee to delete the goats and other food expenses. The total request is $188 for office supplies and advertising for the upcoming event.

police report

An ASU student was treated and released from Tempe St. Luke's Hospital after being hit by a car that failed to stop for a red light at the intersection of Rural Road and Terrace Drive early Monday, Tempe police reported.

Tempe police spokesman Karl Auerbach said Mary Rigg was crossing the Terrace crosswalk on her 10-speed bicycle at 8:25 a.m. when she was struck by a 1965 Chevrolet driven by Preston Baker, who failed to stop for a red light while traveling northbound on Rural.

A spokesman for the hospital said Rigg was treated for a broken arm sustained in the accident and later released.

Auerbach said Rigg was thrown into a pedestrian, Keith Vlastros, who was walking in the same direction, but his condition is unknown.

In other activity, ASU Police reported the following incidents occurred between noon Thursday and noon Monday:

- An Alpine stereo receiver valued at $320 was stolen from a 1977 blue Camaro while it was parked in Lot 63 Friday.
- ASU student Yng Long Lee was conducting an experiment in the Physical Science laboratory when a beaker exploded in his hand Thursday. Lee was taken to Tempe St. Luke's hospital for treatment and brought back to campus.
- An ASU student incurred $500 worth of damages to his Honda while he was driving northbound on Packard Drive, turned west into the parking area and ran into a light pole. The car received damage to its bumper, grill area and hood, but there was no damage to the light pole.
- Four hubcaps, valued at $200, were stolen from a Mercedes while it was parked in the Sun Devil Stadium parking lot during the ASU football game Saturday night. There are no suspects.

- One hubcap, valued at $40, was stolen from the driver's side of an ASU student's Chevrolet while it was parked in Lot 46 Sunday.

- An AM/FM cassette radio valued at $100 was stolen from a locker on the third floor of the Art Building Sunday.

- An ASU student reported the rear plastic window in the canvas top of his Jeep was broken while it was parked in Lot 17 Sunday, causing estimated damages of $100.

- A lock was broken off the fire alarm at the Sigma Chi Fraternity house Saturday. ASU electricians were notified, and the amount of repair is unknown.

- A Sony Walkman and a Levi jacket, valued at $85, were stolen from an ASU student's room at the Cholla Apartments Saturday.

- A Toshiba five-inch black and white television set, valued at $100, was stolen from an ASU student's room in Sahuaro Hall B-wing Saturday. The student told police he will aid in prosecution.

- An ASU student reported that he was assaulted by an unknown number of suspects who took his pizza, valued at $5, which he was delivering from Long Island Pizza of Tempe at the south doors of the Palo Verde West Building early Saturday morning. The student, who is a delivery boy, sustained injury to his knee and shoulder and was advised to seek medical attention.

- An ASU student reported criminal damage at the Palo Verde West Building, in which a window was broken, causing $80 worth of damage Friday.

- A Centurion men's 10-speed bicycle, valued at $65, was stolen from the east side of Delta Sigma Phi Thursday.

- An ASU student reported her purse and its contents, totaling $70, stolen from the fourth floor of the Hayden Library Thursday.

- A Schwinn Varsity men's 10-speed bicycle valued at $150 was stolen from the Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity Thursday.

Program assists low-income university students

Upward Bound allows access to post-secondary education

By Asha Nathan
Staff writer

ASU senior Irene Martinez plans on working for the foreign service.

But she had not actually figured on attending college when she was in high school — not until Upward Bound.

Irvin Coin, coordinator of the program, said the main emphasis of the program is encouraging students to graduate from high school and enroll in college.

The program provides academic and overall university survival preparation.

He explained that the emphasis of Upward Bound has expanded to include studies at the graduate level.

In order to qualify for the program, he said a student must either come from a low-income family or be the first-generation college student in the family.

He said two-thirds of the students enrolled in the program satisfy both requirements.

Originally an extension of President Lyndon Johnson's war on poverty, Coin said Upward Bound has been at ASU since 1966.

Local high school students are usually contacted through their counselors, he said, after which they are selected on the basis of a variety of criteria.

Schools involved in the program are South Mountain, Carl Hayden and Central.

During the academic year, Upward Bound students participate for 26 Saturdays in college-oriented study. The program also includes a six-week residential program held on the ASU campus, according to Coin.

Martinez, who is in the scholarship program, said, "Upward Bound has helped me for seven years. It's hard for me to explain just how much it has done for me."

Broadcasting junior Sally Ordaz said, "I would have been lost on this campus without the preparation of Upward Bound. But I came to ASU knowing where resources were located and how to use them."

Martinez and Ordaz are student workers in the Upward Bound office.

Ordaz said the program also introduced her to members of the faculty and staff before she actually became a student at ASU.

Oscar Celaya, a senior in business, said Upward Bound taught him to adjust to university life.

"We're giving a lot of focus to what needs to be done for a student to survive an undergraduate course of study," said Coin.

In most cases, he said, the program seeks to provide an awareness of what higher education is all about to both the students and the parents involved.

"In excess of 80 percent of our students' parents have a 10th grade educational level," he said. "Very few of them graduate from high school."

He said the program is now planning to target 70 students for the next academic year.

"Even though our funding over the last decade has not dwindled, our cost factor has increased," he said.

Coin added that incoming students with specified GPAs receive a renewable tuition waiver as part of the program.

ASU prof remembers day of assassination; history class analyzes conspiracy theories

By Ken Sain

Assistant sports editor

As students emerged from their classes, a chill overtook the campus.

Students crowded around television sets in the Memorial Union. Some cried openly. Anyone with a radio attracted masses of people. All who had heard the news were dazed. The president was shot and killed.

The reaction at ASU 20 years ago today was one of despair. No one could believe that a lone assassin would kill their beloved president, John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

"The feeling on campus was the same as all over the country — shock and sadness," said Paul G. Hubbard, an ASU history professor who was chairman of the department at the time. The following Tuesday more than 7,000 people gathered in old Goodwin Stadium to hear Hubbard eulogize the fallen president.

Hubbard was driving to Tucson to attend a meeting of the Arizona Historical Advisory Commission. He did not hear the news until he arrived at a Tucson hotel.

"Everybody was standing around looking worried. The word was the president had been shot in Dallas," he said. "About one o'clock we got the word that indeed the president was dead. It was a terrible time."

Most afternoon classes were canceled that fateful day. The next day, the State Press published a special one-page Saturday extra edition.

ASU President G. Homer Durham canceled all classes and activities. The state high school championship football playoff game was canceled. The only event that went on as scheduled was the ASU-Idaho football game.

The following Tuesday classes resumed. Durham sent telegrams to the slain president's family and to President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The alumni director at the time was Jim Creasman, currently director of special events and programs. He said he was devastated and mesmerized by the events of that day.

"I was at my office, which is currently the Archives building, when one of the secretaries came up the stairs and said, 'Quick, come down, something terrible is going on,'" Creasman said. "Someone announced the president was dead. We didn't do any more work that day."

"We just watched TV. It was a shattering event."

The news of the assassination shocked not only ASU, but the world. Twenty years after the tragedy in Dallas, controversy still surrounds the JFK assassination.

Lee Harvey Oswald is the man history has recorded as the killer of Kennedy. Perched on the sixth floor of the Texas School Book Depository Building in Dallas, Oswald shot three times at Kennedy with a high-powered rifle.

The controversy of whether Oswald acted alone is studied in the "Presidential Assassinations" class offered by the history department at ASU.

William Phillips, who teaches the course, said he hoped to spend five weeks on the Kennedy assassination.

Today his class will see a slide presentation arguing that Oswald was not part of a conspiracy.

In two weeks, another presentation will attempt to prove that the assassination was a conspiracy.

"All of the conspiracy theories have been put to bed, except for three," Phillips said. "Some of the first theories said Texas oilmen did it, Jackie (JFK's wife) did it, LBJ did it, or the Russians did it."

"The only ones that have stood the test of time are that Cubans, either pro- or anti-Castro, conspired to kill the president, or the one that seems to have the most credence, is the theory the underworld did it."

Phillips' class, History 494, examines the four assassinations of U.S. presidents, and the seven other attempts on the lives of the United States' chiefs-of-state.

The four presidents killed by assassins were Abraham Lincoln in 1865, James Garfield in 1881, William McKinley in 1901 and Kennedy in 1963.

According to Phillips, the Kennedy assassination was the end of the increasing optimism Americans have had since the beginning of the country.

"We have been a nation of rising optimism. With each generation, Americans have become more optimistic," he said. "The Kennedy assassination was the trigger event in a recent series of things that have declined that typical optimism."

Other events cited by Phillips were the Vietnam War and the assassinations of Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King, Malcolm X, George Lincoln Roswell and Federal Judge John H. Wood.

The attempt on presidential candidate George Wallace's life and the Watergate scandal made this the second most violent period in American history, according to Phillips.

More than 20 political figures were killed between 1865 and 1877 during the reconstruction era in American history, Phillips said.

"The 10 years from Kennedy to Watergate stripped America of its buoyant optimism. We became skeptical, no longer certain of our future."

According to Phillips, Americans learned that their government attempted to assassinate Cuban leader Fidel Castro, which helped foster skepticism.

When Sarah Jane Moore came to trial for her attempt to kill former President Gerald Ford, she asked how a nation that uses assassination as part of its foreign policy could be surprised when the same tactics are applied to America, Phillips said.

Phillips believes Oswald was the lone assassin in the Kennedy murder.

"Historians are obligated with the evidence they have. The only hard evidence we have is that he acted entirely alone."

But Phillips said there are gaps in the evidence, and as long as those gaps exist, there always will be controversy surrounding the death of John F. Kennedy.

Shocked Students -

'Just Can't Believe It Could Happen Here'

"I can't believe it — things like that aren't supposed to happen in the United States!"

The tragic news of the assassination of the President of the United States stunned students Friday as they came from 11:30 classes.

Shocked and upset, students crammed into the MU lounge and campus TV rooms; some had tears in their eyes as they listened to reports.

Several commented, "It can't be true. This just couldn't have happened."

"It's not only a tragedy to lose him as a President, but it's a horrible example of a free country," it reminded me of a situation in Viet Nam several weeks ago when I thought actions such as assassinations don't happen in the U.S.," were other comments.

Activities Cancelled

ASU President Dr. G. Homer Durham cancelled all classes and activities for the week-end after consultations with University and student leaders at 2 p.m. Friday.

It is anticipated that the University of Idaho-ASU football game in Sun Devil Stadium at 8 p.m. Saturday will be played as scheduled, however.

Two Saturday events were cancelled. Senior Day and the High School Dance Symposium. The ASU production of the play "Lysistrata" and a faculty wives theater party to the Phoenix Little Theater Friday night were also cancelled.

Make-up performances for Friday and Saturday nights; cancellation of "Lysistrata" will be Dec. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7. Patrons may transfer tickets or get refunds.

Also cancelled were: the after-game dance Saturday night and the high school football championship play-off game Friday in Sun Devil Stadium.

Administrative offices will remain open.

ASU President Dr. G. Homer Durham, dispatched the following telegrams on behalf of the entire University, to Mrs. Kennedy and family and to President Lyndon B. Johnson, Friday afternoon:

MRS. JOHN F. KENNEDY AND FAMILY
THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON, D.C.
FACULTY, STUDENTS AND ALUMNI OF ARIZONA STATE UNIVERSITY SEND LOVING REGARD AND SYMPATHY AT THE LOSS OF OUR PRESIDENT, JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY. WE PRAY THAT A KIND PROVIDENCE MAY BRING COMFORT TO YOU AND ALL OF US IN OUR SORROWING COUNTRY.

University Stunned By Tragic News Of Dallas Shooting

The President of the United States, John F. Kennedy, was slain by a single shot fired by an unknown assassin as he rode in a parade through the streets of Dallas, Tex., shortly after noon Friday.

Three more shots gravely wounded Texas Governor John Connally who was riding in the same car.

The President was rushed to a Dallas hospital where two Roman Catholic priests administered the last sacraments as he received blood transfusions in a futile attempt to save his life.

At approximately 12 noon Phoenix time, ASU students listened with the world as network broadcasters announced the death of the President.

Campus laughter and excitement ceased as the flags were lowered to half-mast.

JOHN W. RYAN, academic vice president, said, "In President Kennedy's death we feel, as citizens, a profound sorrow and sense of loss. Our shock is the greater at the brutality of the deed. Its indelible mark shall never leave our minds and hearts."

"To Mrs. Kennedy and the children we offer sympathy and comfort. As his surviving countrymen, let us draw courage from President Kennedy's life. Let us hope that we shall be judged not by the fact of our resurgence, though numb with shock and sadness, to carry on."

DR. ROY C. RICE, head of the Extension Service, called the occasion "a tragic period in the history of our country when such a thing takes place. I think all people are saddened that such a thing has happened in our country."

Associate Professor Ruth C. Boyer, speaking for the Graduate School of Social Service Administration, said: "President John Fitzgerald Kennedy was the first President of the United States to send to Congress a message aimed toward the improvement of conditions of youth, the elderly, mentally ill and mentally retarded."

"The loss of such a man to all citizens — those whose very survival and health are dependent on the adequate functioning of health and welfare programs and those whose future is dependent on the health of our country as a democracy — is inestimable."

ASASU PRESIDENT Daryl Winn, speaking for the student

Remember Him

A few hours ago the President of the United States of America was shot to death by an unknown assassin. John Fitzgerald Kennedy, leader of the American people, lives no more. Tragic is a poor adjective to apply to this situation. It's hard to believe — and even harder to overcome the shock — that the President of the United States would or could be assassinated — in our society of abundance.

But it happened — this is where tragedy applies. A fanatic has destroyed a man and rocked the nation. One unsatisfied, miserable human has snuffed out a life that shaped history.

A President, husband, father and molder of opinion will not live to fight another day.

What can we say? We only hope John Fitzgerald Kennedy is in your prayers tonight.

Devils turn back Elway's Spartans in late going

By Tom Blodgett
Sports writer

Having its back against the wall has become a weekly occurrence for the ASU football team. But now the outcomes are changing.

This time the Sun Devils held onto their lead Saturday, beating San Jose State 24-17.

It had seemed like the Devils could not stop three things this season — fake punts, back-up quarterbacks and two-point conversions.

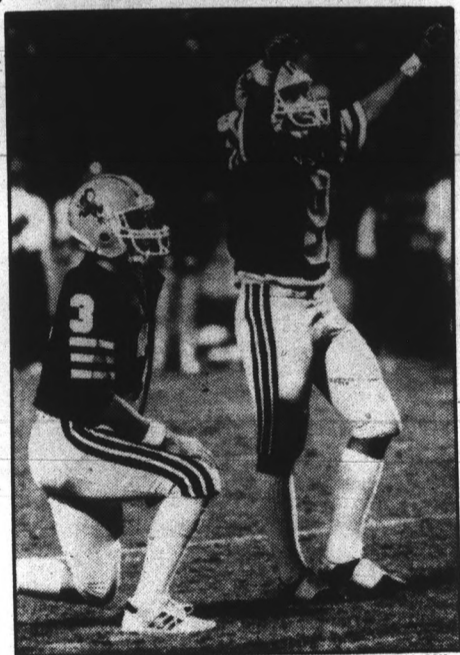

Although the first one did not enter into this game, the latter two looked like they would doom the Devils once again.

San Jose State back-up quarterback Bob Frasco drove the Spartans 68 yards in 12 plays to the ASU 12-yard line, but his fourth-down pass into the end zone, which was intended for Eric Richardson, was batted away.

Spartan fullback Dave Criswell dived in a last-ditch effort to salvage the pass, but the ball fell through his arms, giving ASU the ball with just 19 seconds remaining in the game.

If the Spartans had completed the pass, a two-point conversion, which could have won the game for San Jose State, would certainly have followed.

"On the last play, they dropped a linebacker and we thought we had a slant, but we threw the backside," San Jose State coach Jack Elway said. "We've had a tough year."

Luis Zendejas and Tom Onofrio look at an NCAA-record breaking field goal. Zendejas now owns most of the career marks for a field goal kicker, and he still has a year to play.

Three times this season the Devils have failed to protect late leads, resulting in two losses and a tie.

"It was the first time our defense has had some success in the last minute of the game," ASU coach Darryl Rogers said.

Despite the victory, which raised ASU's record to 6-3-1, the Devils will go without a bowl this season.

Washington's loss to Washington State sent the Huskies to the Aloha Bowl.

There was some speculation that Notre Dame would turn down a Liberty Bowl bid because of its 6-5 record. ASU was a prime candidate to replace the Fighting Irish, but Notre Dame school officials announced yesterday they would send the team to the game.

The Sun Devils looked for ways to eliminate themselves from the game early, losing three of five fumbles and throwing two interceptions.

But the team staged a second-half rally, getting a big boost from kicker Luis Zendejas, who kicked four field goals in the game.

Zendejas established two new NCAA records, one Pac-10 record, and two school marks. In addition, he tied two more NCAA standards, and one conference and school record.

"I don't even know what each record is," Zendejas said. "What makes them more special is that most of them are Chuck Nelson's (of Washington, now playing with the Los Angeles Rams). Chuck is a great kicker. It makes you realize you are playing to your potential."

The most prominent record broken was the NCAA career standard for field goals in a four-year career. Obed Ariri of Clemson held the previous record of 60. Zendejas, who is only a junior, was given a standing ovation after breaking the record.

Despite Zendejas' record-breaking performance, ASU had a good share of problems in the first half.

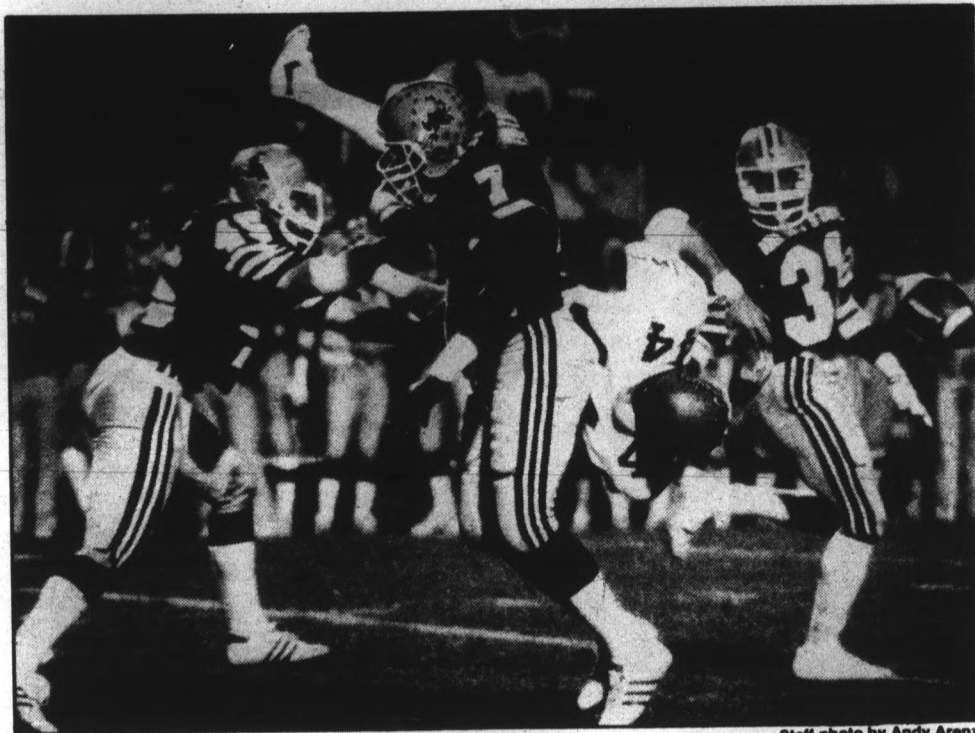

The Devils had a chance to establish a lead immediately when the Spartans bobbled a handoff on the first play from scrimmage. The fumble was recovered by David Fulcher at the San Jose State 26-yard line.

Four plays later, the Devils attempted a 32-yard field goal, but the snap was mishandled by Tom Onofrio. Onofrio tried to pass, but the ball fell incomplete.

Midway through the quarter, the Spartans got on the scoreboard. Frank Witherspoon intercepted a Todd Hons pass and returned it 25 yards to the ASU 19-yard line.

One play later, Art King burst through a hole for a 14-yard touchdown run.

But on the last play of the quarter, a bad snap from center sailed over Spartan punter

Freshman star David Fulcher dislodges the ball from a San Jose State player in the fourth quarter. The Devils defeated the Spartans 24-17.

Phillipe Rebboah's head, and the ball was recovered at the ASU 16. That set up Zendejas' first field goal, a 38-yarder.

The Devils took the lead later in the quarter on a two-yard run by Darryl Clack, but Onofrio again bobbled the snap on the extra point and his pass for the two-point conversion failed.

The lead was short-lived. Clack later coughed up the ball at the San Jose State 47-yard line. Spartan quarterback Jon Carlson drilled a 57-yard scoring pass to Richardson.

Another turnover helped the Spartans pad the lead before halftime. Sherman Cocroft picked off a Hons pass and returned it six yards to his own 37. San Jose State converted it into a 38-yard field goal by Luis Comesana.

"The tempo was slow in the first half," Rogers said. "Every single phase of the game was just pathetic. We got after them pretty good at halftime."

Whatever Rogers did at halftime to liven up his lackluster team worked.

The Sun Devils threatened the first two times down the field, but failed on a 46-yard field goal try and fourth-and-two in Spartan territory.

They finally broke through after Mario Montgomery intercepted a Spartan pass and returned it to the ASU 48. Zendejas connected on a 37-yard field goal, closing the margin to 17-12.

The Devils wasted another chance when they recovered a fumble on the ensuing kickoff, only to give the ball away two plays later.

On their next possession, the Devils drove in for the go-ahead touchdown, capitalizing on a 23-yard pass interference call which nullified an interception.

Tex Wright, who had turned in his best performance in a Sun Devil uniform, scored the touchdown on an 11-yard run. The Devils tried a legitimate two-point conversion this time, but Mike Crawford was tackled short of the goal-line.

Zendejas added field goals of 47 and 38 yards later in the quarter to cap the scoring.

Frasco took over for Carlson, who was having a sub-par day, on the last two series and performed admirably, but without success.

The domination of ASU's defense in the second half was the source of frustration for the Spartans.

"We should have run the football a couple more times," Elway said. "I'll have all the answers after my three martinis."

With Clack (99 yards) held in check much of the night, the Devils went to Wright more often. The Sun Devil fullback gained a career-high 127 yards on 19 carries.

"Tex Wright had an exceptionally fine game," Rogers said. "He stormed the gates. That means people were finally blocking ahead of him."

ASU sports have successful weekend

By Vicki Serna
Sports writer

Some Arizona State sports teams fared well last weekend, but others were not too impressive.

During a full schedule of athletics, ASU prevailed in areas such as volleyball, football, wrestling and swimming. However, the men's basketball team did not bounce its way to victory Sunday night against Athletes-in-Action at the Activity Center, losing 76-69.

•The WOMEN'S BASKETBALL team, on the other hand, split two games in the Converse Classic basketball tournament.

The lady Devils defeated Florida State in the first round 85-70, advancing to the championship game against Colorado State.

And CSU was ready, trouncing the Sun Devils by a 95-73 score to earn the championship.

The Converse Classic opened the season for the nationally-ranked ASU's women's team.

•The WOMEN'S SWIM team competed exceptionally well last weekend and one member of the team gave a number of outstanding performances.

Freshman Cheryl Gillett set school records, broke records and acquired NCAA qualifying times. She led the Devils to a 94-44 win over Brigham Young University, ASU's first-day opponents.

On Saturday when the lady swimmers faced BYU Gillett was first to cross the finish line in the 1,650-yard freestyle swim. Her time of 16:23.17 was an NCAA qualifying time. She broke the old record of 16:41.28.

In this meet she was part of the 800-yard freestyle relay team that came in with an NCAA qualifying time of 7:35.20.

Gillett set a new school record in the 1,000-yard freestyle with a time of 9:52.97, which was also an Olympic trial cut time.

Her 200-yard freestyle swim time of 1:55.12 proved once again she is one of the best swimmers in the nation.

The day before the Sun Devils defeated Long Beach State 110-30.

Gillett swam the 1,000-yard freestyle race in a time of 9:58.45, easily breaking the school record.

Even though it is early in the season, Gillett has performed with experience and will probably be one of the best 1,650-yard swimmers in the NCAA.

The lady swimmers will face UCLA on Dec. 2 at the Aquatic Complex and will host USC the following day.

•The WRESTLING team opened its season Friday night as it played host to Cal State-Fullerton.

The Sun Devils beat their opponents with a score of 34-12 and won eight out of their 10 matches.

Three of ASU's freshmen defeated their Titan opponents.

Paul Bronstein, weighing in at 142 pounds, beat his opponent 13-6.

Dennis Roberts pinned Mark Torres in 4:29 in the 167-pound weight class.

The other freshman, Rod Severn, won through injury default.

ASU's Tom Riley defeated Ed Valenzuela with a score of 22-7 at the 134-pound weight class.

Gary Barrios of ASU beat Joe Solis 13-5. Their weight class was 126 pounds.

The 156-pound weight class was won by ASU's Chris Bodine, who defeated Scott Lawson of Fullerton 16-12.

Tom Kolopus, 190 pounds, defeated Duke Murphy 11-6.

ASU's Bob Barnes, 177 pounds, beat Ty Penbleton 4-2.

•In WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY, ASU's prized runner Lynn Nelson competed Monday morning at the NCAA National Meet in Bethlehem, Penn.

Nelson, who has a long list of running victories, came in 61st in the race with an unofficial time of 17:55.

Coach Roger Kerr, who has been impressed with Nelson's performances all through the season, said she ran a very average race.

•And of course, the Sun Devil FOOTBALL team, behind the foot of Luis Zendejas, defeated San Jose State 24-17.

The Sun Devils face their rival, the Arizona Wildcats Thanksgiving weekend in what promises to be the game of the season.

ASU moves in on NCAA bid; sweeps UofA in home finale

By Tom Blodgett
Sports writer

Call them the "survivors." Led by its three seniors, the ASU volleyball team has lived through a schedule full of top-notch opponents, and Friday night evened its season record by sweeping arch-rival Arizona in its final home match of the season, 3-0 (15-11, 15-10, 15-12).

If the Devils play well next weekend in the Louisiana State Invitational, they should receive a berth to the NCAA tournament.

That possibility looked slim as recently as three weeks ago when ASU's record was 5-11. But led by seniors Terri Edison, Heather Forbes and Lisa Stuck, the Devils (14-14 overall, 6-8 WCAA) have won nine of their last 12 games.

The three seniors, who were honored before the match, represent this team well.

"Lisa, Heather and I call ourselves 'the survivors,'" Edison said. "There were eight of us when we were recruited and now there are just the three of us. We made it and we're proud of that."

A standing-room only crowd, which included many Arizona faithful, saw a match in which ASU did not walk over the Cats (16-12, 7-7) in any of the three games.

The Devils had as much as a four-point lead late in the first game, but U of A closed to within two, 13-11, before an Edison-Stuck block of Anita Moss clinched the set, 15-11.

The Wildcats promptly jumped on ASU in the next game with strong serving and the Devils' poor passing.

But Arizona's 6-2 lead collapsed under the weight of eight consecutive points by ASU, helping the Devils to their easiest win of the night, 15-10.

The Wildcats sprang quickly into the lead again in the final frame, 5-0. The Devils tied the score quickly and then the game saw-sawed until 11-all.

ASU took command from there for its ninth sweep of the season, and its fifth in the last eight games.

The game was as intense as expected. Extra effort could be seen on both sides of the net.

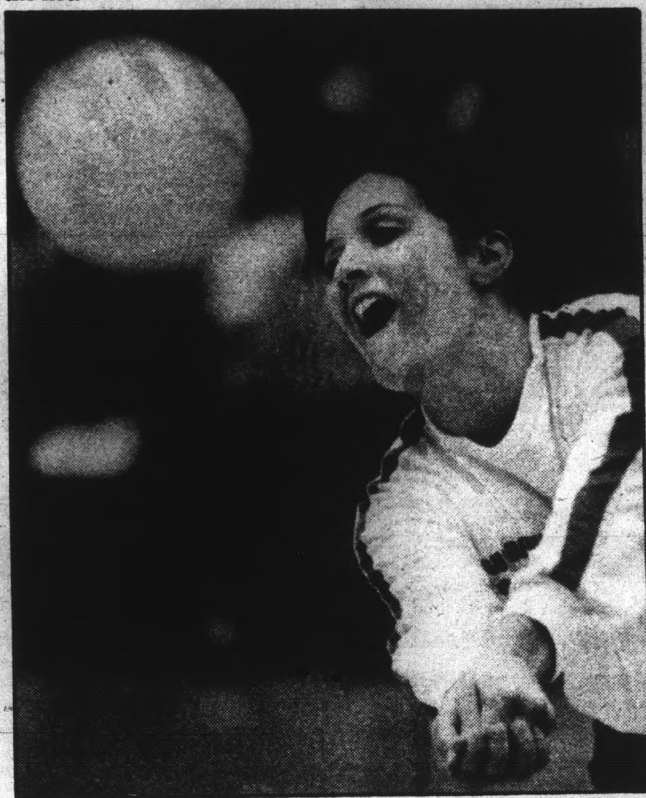

Wildcat middle blocker Caren Kemner once went as far as knocking her assistant coach out of his seat in an attempt to save a ball.

The ASU defense picked up balls that it might not have reached in other games.

"On most of the rallies, the girls were ready to fight until the ball was down," ASU coach Debbie Brown said.

But for Edison, who had one block solo and seven block assists, it could not be intense enough.

One factor may have been that ASU had more at stake than the Cats, who are virtually assured of a tourney berth.

"I think they weren't as motivated as we were," Brown said. "It felt like they didn't really believe they could beat us."

The three seniors were honored before the game with flowers. But the best going-away present was beating Arizona.

"I think this game was similar to the USC game (last month, a 3-2 victory for ASU)," Forbes said. "This was our last chance to beat U of A. It gave us some extra incentive."

Stuck saw the match as another boost for the Devils in their drive for the playoffs.

"It will be real good for our confidence," she said. "But it doesn't mean we can glide on through the rest of the season."

ASU got a game-high 12 kills from Valentina Vega. Stuck added 11 and had a .500 hitting percentage.

Arizona's top hitter was Melissa McLinden with eight kills. Brooke Saunders had 39 assists to lead both teams.

Memories add to ASU-Arizona game

Ken Sain
Asst. Sports Editor

I remember . . .
Living in the Phoenix area for more than 20 years, I have seen the ASU-U of A rivalry grow into one of the best in the nation in recent years.

I remember "the game" in 1975 that featured "the catch" by John Jefferson. ASU was undefeated and the Cats had suffered only one loss, to New Mexico. The winner would be invited to the Fiesta Bowl.

Right before halftime Jefferson made a reception people will talk about for ages. A Dennis Sproul pass was too far in front of Jefferson in the end-zone . . . J.J. leaped for the ball, and caught it while in a horizontal position just a foot above the ground.

ASU defeated the Cats 24-21 before going on to the Fiesta Bowl against second-ranked Nebraska. The Devils knocked off the Huskers 17-14 and finished the year with their highest ever post-season ranking and a 12-0 record.

Once-beaten Oklahoma stole the national championship away from ASU, as the Devils finished the year second nationally.

I remember the meaningless year in 1979. ASU football had gone through its worst scandal ever. Frank Kush, the beloved coach of 22 years, was dismissed by the University after a former player accused Kush of striking him.

Five victories that year were forfeited because players who received bogus credit hours were playing on the team. ASU finished the year 6-6, but officially it is marked at 1-11.

Still, the U of A game was "the game." The best thing the Devils could do to salvage their season was to beat the Cats at Sun Devil Stadium. It was likely the Wildcats would attend the Fiesta Bowl if they could get by ASU.

The game came down to the final seconds and the score was tied 24-24. The U of A's Bill Zivic, the regular field goal kicker, was benched in favor of a walk-on who would try and win "the game."

In 1978, Zivic missed a last-second field goal try and ASU walked away with a 18-17 victory and a berth in the Garden State Bowl.

Brett Weber, a freshman, came in to attempt a 37-yard field goal for a win. Weber's attempt was wide as time ran out, and it looked like the series had its first tie.

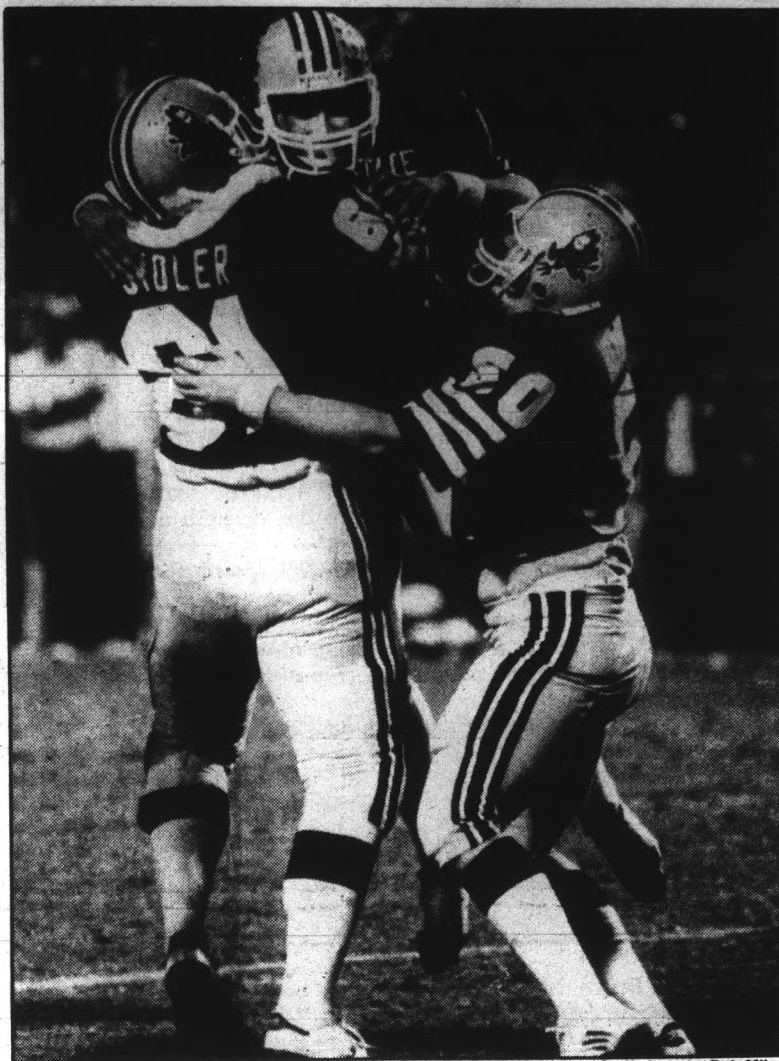

But ASU defensive back Ron Brown was flagged for roughing the kicker. Weber tried another field goal from 27 yards with 0:00 remaining in the game. This time it was good, and the Cats walked away with a 27-24 win.

I remember Vernon Maxwell playing the best game of his career as the Devils killed the Cats on regional television 44-7 in Darryl Rogers' and Larry Smith's debuts as head coaches in "the game."

But most of all, I remember "the game" last year. ASU had been handed a reprieve from Washington State. WSU defeated Washington and knocked them out of the Rose Bowl race. ASU could claim its first trip to Pasadena with a win over the Cats.

The Devils had lost the previous week to Washington, their only loss of the year. "The game" would decide whether ASU would play Michigan in the Rose Bowl, or Oklahoma in the Fiesta.

I remember ambitious U of A fans driving to Tempe to paint the "A" on "A Mountain" blue and red. I remember the excitement fans in the Valley showed at the thought of going to the Rose Bowl.

ASU players plan on celebrating a lot after this Saturday's game.

I remember Tom Tunncliffe, the Cats quarterback, throwing two bombs, one for a 92-yard touchdown.

It was the first time the ASU blitz was burned that season.

I remember the pain in the eyes of the Devils after the game. Tears were just a moment away. ASU had blown a second chance at the Rose Bowl with a 28-18 loss.

I remember the Wildcats' fans tearing down the goalposts and parading around the field — the same fans who were joyously screaming "Fiesta Bowl" earlier.

A friend of mine in Tucson was eating pizza after the game, courtesy of yours truly. The same bet, pizza and beverages, is on again this year.

And finally there is this year's version of "the game." Never have I wanted to win a game more. This year I plan on the reverse happening.

"The game" has become the Pizza Bowl to me. With a large sausage-and-extra-cheese pizza riding on the outcome, it could be called nothing less.

Pizza Bowl II is this Saturday at 1:47. It will be televised regionally by CBS-TV. And there will be a large number of U of A faithful in town for the game.

ASU has no chance for a bowl game this year. The whole season will rest on one game. And you can bet your maroon and gold underwear that Arizona would like nothing more than to beat the Devils this year.

After all, this was suppose to be the year the Cats challenged for the national championship. By the way, Larry, where are the Cats ranked this week in the polls?

Devils will play last game against Cats

By Jay Taylor
Sports editor

When ASU takes the field Saturday afternoon against the U of A, the only thing at stake will be pride.

But when those two traditional rivals get together, pride is more than enough.

And according to Wildcat football coach Larry Smith, the game may be even better because there is less riding on it than there has been in past years.

ASU's last chance for a bowl bid was eliminated when Notre Dame, despite its 6-5 record, accepted a bid to the Liberty Bowl. The Devils were leading contenders for the berth had the Irish declined.

"The pressure is off both teams," Smith said. "We can both go out and play football. It will be a good old-fashioned football game between two teams who don't have anything to lose. Bowls, championships, none of those things are a factor this year. We'll be able to just go out there and do it."

"After what happened in our game last year, I'm sure they'll be ready for us," Smith said, "but that's the way it should be."

The Cats have plenty of weapons to strike with, led by senior quarterback Tom Tunncliffe, the Pac-10's total offense leader and second-leading passer.

Tunncliffe has connected on 172 of 325 passes for 2,340 yards and 10 touchdowns this year and is fourth on the Pac-10's all-time passing yardage list with 7,484 yards.

Tunncliffe has two outstanding targets to throw to in Jay

Dobyns and Brad Anderson. Dobyns has grabbed 47 passes this year for 650 yards and one touchdown. Anderson has hauled in 40 tosses for 643 yards and three scores.

The Wildcats are leading the conference in scoring with 33.6 points per game.

But scoring is not all the U of A can do. The Cats are also at the top of the Pac in rushing defense and total defense.

The Wildcats' defense is led by the Hunley brothers at inside linebacker. Ricky, a nominee for the Outland Trophy, is a sure bet for post-season honors. Lamonte has also had a good year.

ASU coach Darryl Rogers has great respect for the talented brothers, Ricky in particular.

"We know where he (Ricky) is going to stand," Rogers said. "The problem is the guy standing there is tough to stop even when you do know where he is."

"Ricky Hunley is an all-American, and Lamonte isn't much different. Their defense is probably the strength of their team. They've proven it."

Smith thinks the Cats will have their hands full with the Devils' diverse offense.

"They are very good in terms of how they mix things up," Smith said. "They have a good possession offense. They average about six or seven minutes more possession time than their opponents do."

"They keep their defense off the field, and that's the best defense you can have."

More about

Pizza Bowl

Arizona has no future. They are serving a two-year probation and are ineligible for a bowl bid.

Come Christmas vacation they will be sitting home playing solitaire while other schools are playing football.

But the question is not whether sports writers are fired up about the Pizza Bowl. How do the players feel?

Offensive tackle James Keyton: "R-E-V-E-N-G-E. The Arizona bowl is the only one on my mind."

Quarterback Todd Hons: "That game will be bigger than any bowl game. It will be a heck of a game."

Cornerback Bruce Hill: "This is 'the game' because of the rivalry. I don't particularly like the U of A."

Cornerback Mario Montgomery: "We hate them because they beat us last year. It is one of those games that you talk about at the beginning of the season although it is the last game of the year."

The series record is still in the favor of Arizona 30-26. Perhaps the largest crowd to see a football game in the state of Arizona will gather in Sun Devil Stadium.

And in 10 years, this game may be the one worth remembering most.

In its last two games, the Sun Devil defense has allowed its opponents only 186 yards per game.

But despite the recent success, Rogers is concerned about the defense's tendency to give up the big play.

"We have to stop the home run ball," he said. "It seems like they're hitting us with a big play in the passing game every week."

This week's game time has been moved up to 1:47 p.m.

HELP WANTED: PART-TIME EVENINGS

National Marketing Company has openings for sales-minded people interested in part-time employment. Openings are available on the evening and weekend shifts. Our sales people work in a modern, comfortable business environment contacting established customers on long distance WATS lines. Earnings, which include salary and bonus, average $4-$6 per hour, paid weekly. These are permanent positions with no seasonal layoffs. If you have a good, clear speaking voice, proper grooming for a business office, enthusiasm and competitive spirit, our experienced management team will train you to sell our nationally recognized products (while being paid, of course). Our Tempe office is located approximately five minutes from campus.

Please call DIALAMERICA for details.
