Local union to lobby against merit pay plan in Legislature

By Wayne Baker
Staff writer

The American Federation of Teachers, Local 2050, at ASU is planning to oppose the Board of Regents' merit pay plan when it is introduced in the Arizona Legislature, according to the union president.

Chris Smith, an ASU history professor, said the union would lobby against the regents' policy, which will be presented before the House Education Committee in February.

Smith said the union is opposed to the plan because it separates University employees from the remainder of the state's employees.

In addition, AFT is opposed to a clause in the policy which would give the University administration the responsibility of distributing the merit pay monies, he said.

"Giving appointed officials that kind of power over that much money is something the Legislature shouldn't do," Smith said.

Smith said the regents' policy is stated in general terms and could lead to an inequitable distribution of merit pay funds.

"I think the Legislature should ask for a more specific plan before adopting it," he said.

Gary Huish, research director for the Arizona Public Employee Association/American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, said his union also will lobby in the Legislature against the policy.

"We're going to take a position that goes against the administration of the policy," Huish said.

Regent Executive Director Robert Huff said the board is in support of the policy but would not lobby the Legislature for its approval.

Huff presented the plan to the Senate Education Committee earlier this month in response to legislation requesting the board to formulate a merit pay plan for salary adjustments.

He said a specific date has not been set for the plan to be presented to the House Education Committee in February.

Unless the Legislature turns down the plan, it will become effective July 1, 1984.

Sen. Anne Lindeman, R-Phoenix, Senate Education Committee chairman, previously said the committee was "pretty satisfied" with the board's presentation of the plan and could foresee no action that would defeat it.

In addition to lobbying against it in the Legislature, members of AFT will attend a series of ASU faculty Merit Pay Committee open meetings, which will begin at 8 a.m. today in the MU. The committee is seeking faculty and staff input to create a plan to implement the regents' policy.

Although AFT has taken no official stand on merit pay, Smith said the issue cannot be dealt with fairly.

"I have a lot of personal doubts about the equitable administration of a merit pay plan," he said.

Smith said the AFT submitted a list of guidelines for the committee's consideration which calls for an equitable distribution of merit pay funds, written guidelines for meritorious service and an elected and independent grievance committee at each level of the appeals procedure.

Phoenix is expected to be the second fastest growing city in the country during the remainder of the 1980s, a new study shows, but an ASU research specialist said the University population is not likely to increase proportionally.

The study, published in the February issue of American Demographics, predicted the population of Phoenix by 1990 will increase by 27.1 percent — second only to Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood-Pompano Beach, Fla., at 27.9 percent.

The metropolitan Phoenix population is approximately 1.5 million, according to the 1980 census.

Tom Rex, research specialist for the Bureau of Business and Economic Research at ASU, said the University will experience a similar population boost, but not nearly as great a percentage as that of Phoenix.

"ASU is likely to grow with this increased population... but we shouldn't expect ASU to grow quite as fast (proportionally), due to the baby boom," Rex said.

Since many of those born during the baby boom have now completed college, the number of college-aged people has declined considerably in recent years, Rex said.

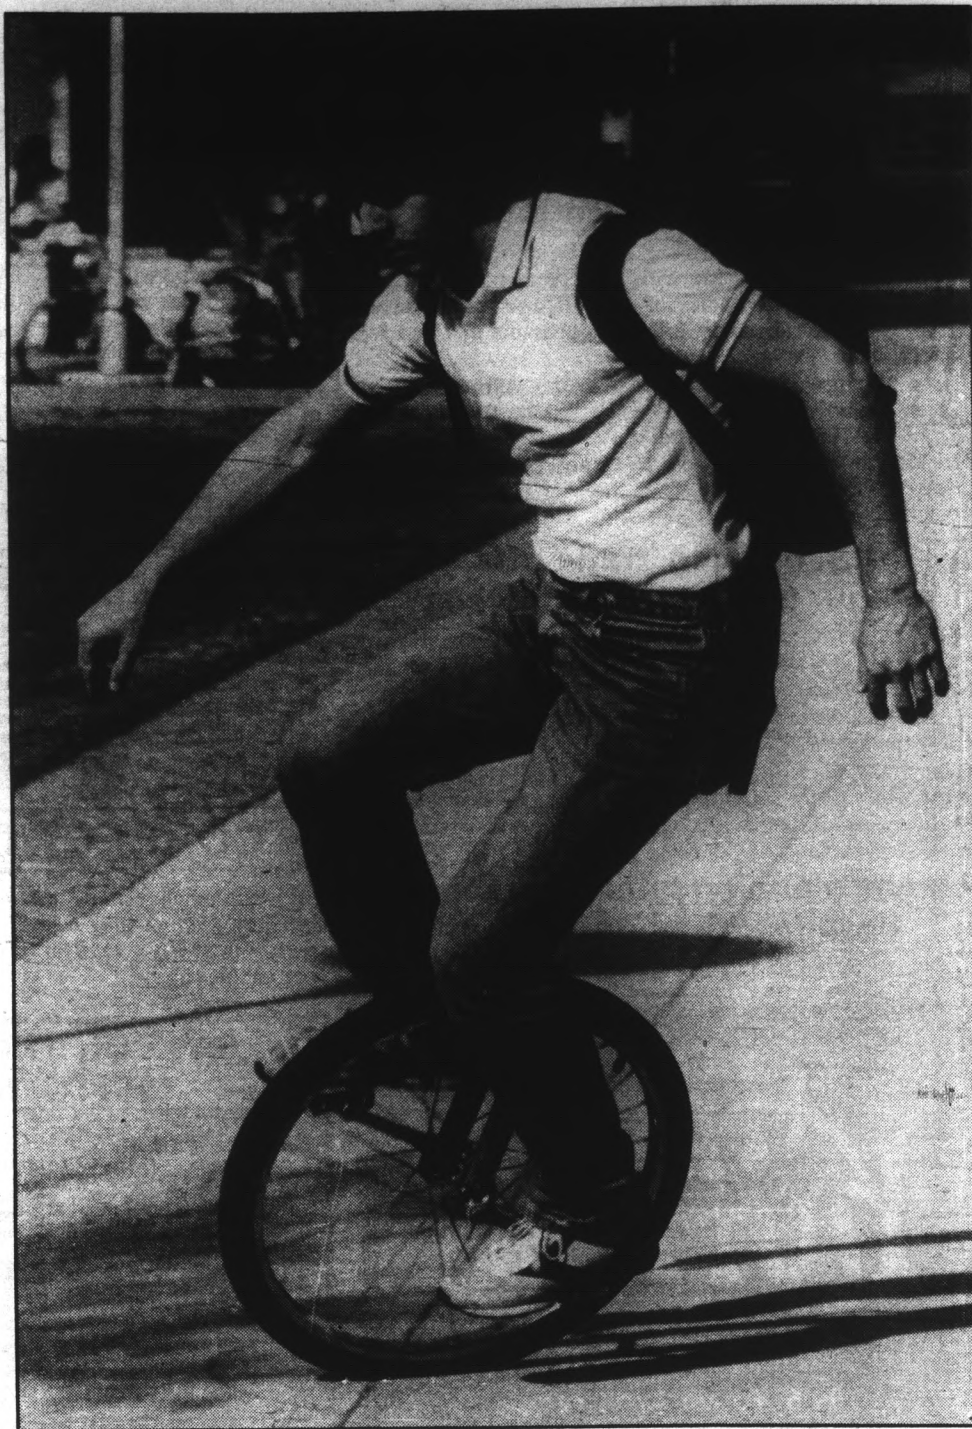

In addition, about 59 percent of Valley newcomers in 1982 either had no children or moved here without their college-aged offspring, Rex added.

Of those newcomers, 10 percent considered themselves students, Rex said.

During the 1970s, Phoenix realized close to a 55 percent growth rate, which Rex said should significantly drop during the 1980s.

According to the study, the third fastest growing city should be Houston, Texas, with a predicted increase of 25.2 percent.

By 1990, New York City still will be the nation's largest area, even after an expected population decline. The second most populated area will be Los Angeles-Long Beach, Calif., the study indicated.

Vicious cycle

Larry Koch, a junior psychology major, uses his unicycle for short trips around campus. Koch thought he had found a loophole in the ASU policy prohibiting bicycle riding on Cady Mall, but was told that he would be "intimidating the law" and would be ticketed if caught.

Grassy, tree-speckled lawns on the outside give way to an exotic blend of paintings, sculpture and ceramics on the inside.

The setting: Arizona's only state-owned "university house" — the home of ASU President J. Russell Nelson and his wife Bonita.

Built more than 20 years ago, the house stands diagonally on a two-acre lot on College Avenue across from McKemy Junior High School.

"One of the really nice things about living here is the opportunity to have access to the art collection at Matthews Center," Mrs. Nelson said, pointing out the paintings in her living room.

She has managed to create a comfortable atmosphere by arranging University property alongside the Nelsons' own furniture and decor, such as a piece of pottery that "we bought in Okinawa when we were there last, visiting our son."

Mrs. Nelson said she enjoyed remodeling the house in 1981, just before they moved in. The house was re-carpeted and wallpapered, the kitchen upgraded and the pool refurbished.

The state allocated $41,000 for alterations to the house, at 2400 S. College Ave., according to previously published reports.

The presidential home is the only one of its kind in the state. The NAU and U of A presidents live in their own homes.

Mrs. Nelson said, "We've done it both ways. When we were in Colorado, we lived in our own home and entertained at the president's home."

Marine, three civilians die in Beirut fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Marines battled Shiite Moslem militiamen Monday with tank cannon, mortar and machine-gun fire in a daylong series of clashes that killed one Marine, U.S. fire reportedly killed a 9-year-old girl and two other civilians.

Three Marines and two school children were among 29 reported wounded during the three battles that broke out at 9:10 a.m. and lasted past nightfall.

The Marine who died was the 259th American serviceman to die in combat in Lebanon since the Marines were sent to Beirut in September 1982.

U.S. offering 'trade-offs' to spur dialogue with Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. negotiator Edward Rowley said Monday the United States would consider any serious Soviet proposals, including curbs on new U.S. nuclear missiles in Europe, in an effort to work out a strategic arms control agreement.

After a half-hour meeting with President Reagan, Rowley told reporters he has a number of U.S. approaches or "trade-offs" to present if the Soviets agree to resume discussions in Geneva, Switzerland.

Reagan planning primary campaign despite lack of opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is planning an active campaign outside the Rose Garden this spring, although he faces no opposition for his party's presidential nomination, and he said Monday that he favors a debate with his Democratic opponent.

Reagan, who will battle for many of the same labor votes that helped him win the 1980 election, argued that his tax cut program benefited a wider range of Americans than did an extensive tax reduction offered by President John F. Kennedy 22 years ago.

"Our tax program was fair," said Reagan. "It was fair across the board."

House passes Agent Orange bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military veterans suffering from certain diseases presumably related to exposure to the herbicide Agent Orange during Vietnam service or radiation from open-air atomic tests would be eligible for temporary compensation under a bill given House passage Monday.

The measure, approved by voice vote without dissent and sent to the Senate, is intended as a stopgap until the federal Centers for Disease Control completes a full study, expected in 1987 or 1988, on the possible links between Agent Orange and later health problems.

Budget increase for next year up for vote in student senate

By Rosanne Dupras
Staff writer

The Associated Students Senate tonight will consider a proposed 1984-85 budget that represents a 10.9 percent increase over current funding, ASASU Vice President Ray Burnell said.

The Senate met last Tuesday night in a special session to discuss portions of the budget after it had been introduced by the Finance Committee.

"There is a possibility that (ASASU President Walter Batt) might not veto it," said Burnell. "We're actually in pretty good shape."

Batt was unavailable for comment Monday afternoon.

Burnell said the 10.9 percent increase is within the Senate's goals.

"We've got a really good group (the Senate), but this even shocks me," Burnell said.

He said things had been "confused" at the end of the last Senate meeting.

If Batt line-item vetoes any part of the bill, the Senate will act on it, according to Burnell.

Once the budget bill is finalized in the Senate, Batt and Burnell will defend it before the University Budget Committee Thursday and Friday.

In other business, the Senate will elect a new Executive Committee representative and hear reports from the Parking and the Auxiliary committees.

Bills that will be assigned to committees tonight include Senate Bill 62, which proposes to give senators absentee votes if they cannot attend Senate meetings, and Senate Bill 63, which proposes to obtain a fund for the Devil's Advocates, according to ASASU Senate secretary Shari Tims.

In addition to this, the endowment fund bill will be coming up for final approval, said Brian LaCorte, senator from the College of Public Programs.

"The main thing is the budget, though," LaCorte said.

New tax laws contribute to increase in corporate donations to colleges

By the College Press Service

NEW YORK CITY — Due largely to a change in tax laws, some new promotional techniques by campus fundraisers and perhaps even shrewd marketing by computer companies, corporate gifts to colleges amounted to a record high of $1.3 billion in 1982, according to the Council for Financial Aid to Education.

CFAE Vice President Arthur Kammerman said new tax laws played a large role in the increase, which amounts to $220 million.

"We know for one thing there was a considerable increase in gifts-in-kind because of the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981," he said.

The tax act lets companies deduct more of the value of a gift as a charitable contribution.

Apple, IBM, Zenith and other computer companies have been making deals with a number of schools to give computers to the schools and their students.

The companies get tax deductions, but also get students familiar with using their particular brands, an important step in securing long-term customers.

Kammerman said another reason for the increase is "colleges are doing a better job of selling themselves to corporations. Most colleges in the country now have promotion departments."

Whatever the specific reasons, the 20 percent jump in corporate giving was the biggest single-year leap since 1975-76, when the surveys began.

At last, a good idea

The ASASU Senate will vote tonight on a proposal to establish a $1 million Centennial Endowment Fund designed to bring renown scholars to campus. That proposal, if approved, will signify a new direction for student government at ASU.

According to Senate Bill 59, the Centennial Endowment Fund will be started with a $137,000 gift from an unspent emergency fund. For the 90 percent of you who don't follow student politics on campus, the Senate has been bickering over how to spend the emergency fund ever since the school year began. Ideas for spending the money have ranged from installing TV monitors in each building to replacing the banners on the malls with flashing neon signs. For that last stroke of genius credit goes to President Walter Batt. Two years ago, when student leaders last found themselves with a little extra pocket money, they set a shining example of public service by paying over $12,000 to have their offices redecorated.

Such ideas are what we have come to expect of Associated Students. They explain why so few students pay attention to student government — we just can't take it seriously.

Here, at last, is a chance for these earnest junior politicians to be taken seriously. In the endowment proposal they have the opportunity to make a real contribution to the academic reputation of ASU.

According to the proposal, once the endowment is set up, a $10,000 subsidy will be used to bring a full-time professor to ASU. As interest on the fund compounds, it will be used to support an additional visiting professor. When it reaches $1 million, a Centennial University Chair will be established. The positions would be rotated yearly among the 10 colleges at ASU, thus spreading the benefits across every discipline.

Rather than spending the emergency fund on short-term pet projects, the Senate can establish a lasting contribution to be increased yearly with interest on the initial investment and unexpended Senate funds. The endowment would be permanent and self-perpetuating — for ASASU, a first step toward respectability.

Unequal pay at ASU

Editor:

In the words of the French, shall we say your paper has made a faux pax? In fact, I would go so far as to say a boo-boo. Tracy Fletcher enlightened us on the fact that women are paid the same as men for the same jobs.

Then, reporter Lisa Phillips wrote that on the average, women faculty at ASU were making 23 percent less than the male faculty of ASU. I, for one, would be very interested to see how many women are in the same position as some of the male faculty of ASU. I would be really interested in seeing if there is equal pay for equal jobs. The statistics that were given do not support this.

But, alas, since the machinery doesn't exist to give us this kind of study, it cannot be done.

Tracy, aren't you curious?

The real choice

Editor:

Anybody who justifies abortion based on physical handicaps or abusive conditions does not know the facts. Most abortions are simply the destruction of babies due to social whims put on the mothers by "friends," family and the devastating propaganda of Planned Parenthood. Almost all child abuse cases occur in families where the babies are planned, and very rarely is a child aborted due to physical or mental handicaps. Fifteen million bodies have been torn from the womb in the U.S. since 1973. Each body was destroyed at the whim of selfish minds.

We pro-life people have every available person working to counsel, financially support and help the mothers of unwanted babies even if it means adoption into qualified homes. The truth is that little minds choose death over adversity, but only adversity leads to reconciliation and restoration in any society and for any cause. Where are our priorities? The solutions are here for those who truly want them! Please, let us kill the slow and hypocritical bureaucracy, not the babies.

West-side campus won't do; new state university needed

Jim McCleary

Staff writer

Although still in its infancy, ASU has found itself the sixth largest public university in the country. That sudden growth has forced University and Board of Regent officials to solve today's problems and let tomorrow's slide. Phoenix, now the nation's ninth largest metropolitan area, is facing the same problem. State bureaucrats are trying to control the growth of what was once the epitome of the wild, wild West.

Such rapid growth has led to shortsightedness on the part of both ASU and Phoenix. This affliction is most evident in the plans for a west-side campus.

The justification for the west-side campus is that western Maricopa County, where the branch will be located, will be the only area of its size in the United States without a four-year university. According to a study conducted by Frank Sackton, former vice president for business affairs, the population of the area, currently 330,000, will probably triple within 20 years.

Considering the delay in planning, it could easily be 20 years before the branch would ever open. The Board of Regents, which is all but committed by its mission and scope statement to support the branch, initially approved ASU's planning request of $4.3 million. However, it appears even the regents may be losing interest in the branch. They recommended in December that the request be slashed to $1 million. Robert Huff, executive director of the regents, said the board recommended the cutback because the $4.3 million made them appear to be "buying into the whole project."

Even with the $3.3 million cut, approval of the funding is questionable. Gov. Bruce Babbitt will be in no mood to shell out more funds after just signing a prison bill that forced him to raise taxes to finance it. And in the hands of some legislators, the merits of the issue have been obscured by political considerations.

Other problems with the proposal must be taken into consideration. Proponents of the branch have not acknowledged that the drop in enrollment at ASU's off-campus locations during the past four years may indicate a trend for the branch in the future. Paige Mulhollan, executive vice president, has said off-campus enrollment is "directly related" to the number of courses offered — which has also declined. If this correlation is correct, why did the U of A realize a similar drop in off-campus enrollment although the number of courses offered has remained fairly constant? A closer look must be taken at this drop in off-campus enrollment before those in charge mistakenly assume that the same thing would not happen at a branch campus.

Branch-campus enthusiasts have also failed to answer many other questions about the expansion. If the population in west Phoenix triples in 20 years to nearly a million people, the area still will be without a four-year institution. The branch campus is designed to handle only the immediate problem of the absence of upper-division courses in that part of the Valley. The branch is not designed to offer those nearly one million people lower-division courses in the future.

The west-side campus is not the solution to the educational problems of west Phoenix. It is time for Arizona lawmakers to develop an inkling of foresight and begin planning a fourth state university.

There is little evidence that the growth of the Valley will slow in the future. Both Mulhollan and Sackton have said the branch could possibly develop into Arizona's next university. Of course, for that to happen adequate space must be available. However, the chunk of land reserved for the west-side campus, a 300-acre parcel near 54th Avenue and Thunderbird Road, is not the right space. A housing development located along the parcel would have to be acquired by the state through eminent domain if the branch were to expand to a four-year university.

'In the hands of some legislators, the merits of the issue have been obscured by political considerations.'

There is, however, an intelligent alternative to the branch. Any plans for a west-side campus should be filed away and lawmakers must instead look at developing a four-year university in an existing structure with plenty of surrounding space for expansion.

One possible location would be Glendale Community College. Hundreds of empty acres north of the college could provide room for future expansion.

Educational leaders in this state must realize that ASU's main campus has reached its enrollment capacity, but the cure is not the proposed branch campus. Certainly construction of another state university would be costly, but it would not be nearly as expensive as following through on a shortsighted, poorly planned west-side campus.

Faculty committee approves women's studies degree plan

By Jerry Brown
Staff writer

The Academic Affairs Committee of the Faculty Senate narrowly approved a recommendation to the full Senate to institute a bachelor of arts/bachelor of science degree in Women's Studies Monday.

The committee also unanimously approved a center for the study of law and technology, which will now be directed to Academic Affairs Vice President Jack Kinsinger. The proposal does not need full Faculty Senate approval to be instituted.

The Women's Studies proposal was approved 5-4 (with three abstentions) and included much discussion from both proponents and challengers.

Rose Weitz, professor of sociology and sponsor of the request, said the present policy of the University, which offers only a certificate in Women's Studies in addition to a degree in another area, is "behind the times and in need of change."

"A few years ago, students in the (liberal arts) college would come to an adviser and ask why a degree in Women's Studies was not available," Weitz said. "We would tell them that we felt the need was not there."

"But now more students than ever before want the degree, and the advisers agree that their argument is legitimate," Weitz said. "Many of the major colleges now offer degrees where previously only certificates were offered."

However, opponents felt that the role of women is always changing and that requirements for a Women's Studies degree would have to change with them.

Committee member Keith Vanwagenen failed to see the long-term profit of the plan, calling the proposal "faddish."

Weitz, in answering a question from Faculty Senate Chairman John Evans on whether students would be better off with a degree than a certificate and a degree in another area, said the student support proves it is warranted.

"The need for the degree is shown in the job market," Weitz said. "There is definitely a market, and a definite response to that market."

Committee member Raymond Padilla felt the time had come for the degree, saying, "if the people who are paying tuition — the students — want the degree, it won't hurt anything to give it a chance."

Kinsinger called the proposal, "a well-put-together plan" but warned that if put into effect, the new degree would have to be well understood by college advisers.

"There has been enough written in a scholarly fashion in Women's Studies to give the proposal merit," Kinsinger said. "But a student would have to be prepared for what the discipline offered, and must be carefully advised of his options."

Bill would exempt University from use tax on certain items

By Robert S. Beamesderfer
Staff writer

A bill which would make money earmarked for library, research and educational materials go further will be considered this morning by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The measure, H.B. 2201, sponsored by Rep. Sam McConnell, R-Flagstaff, would exempt ASU, other state agencies and local governments from paying use tax on items purchased for library, educational or research purposes.

The University paid $262,000 in use taxes to the state last fiscal year, most of which was paid on library and research materials, according to Gerald Snyder, University comptroller.

The 5 percent tax is charged on tangible personal property including books, educational and scientific equipment, computers and furniture, Snyder said.

The University must pay the tax on items purchased from out-of-state vendors, while in-state vendors are responsible for paying the tax related to purchases by state or local governments, he said.

But, Snyder added, in-state vendors typically add the cost of the tax into the price they charge.

ASU paid more than $100,000 in taxes on library materials, the largest single category, because few educational publishers are located in Arizona, Snyder said.

Sahuaro Hall plans mock olympics

By Cathy E. Burch
Contributing writer

Sahuaro Hall residents will get a chance to "go for the gold" during the Sahuaro Olympic "Mistrials," Feb. 4-10.

Pam Antoine, 24, a Sahuaro Resident Assistant who organized the mock event, said she got the idea from Dakota State University, where she was a student and RA for two years.

"I want people who live here to be excited," said Antoine, an RA for almost four years. "I want (residents) to recognize that Sahuaro Hall can be a fun place to live—it's not a dull hall."

"Olympic" events include a trivia bowl, scavenger hunt and a Mr. and Ms. Sahuaro competition. Gift certificates ranging from $5 to $50 will be awarded to winners.

Demonstrations from the gymnastics and fencing teams are scheduled for Feb. 7 and 9. The games are open only to Sahuaro residents.

Seminars to bring attention to available aid programs

By Andrew Reese
Contributing writer

The Student Financial Assistance Office wants you to know what it is and what it does — before it's too late.

During Financial Aid Awareness Week, slated for next week, the office will be holding seminars to publicize programs available to eligible students at ASU.

The awareness week will "bring to students' attention the kinds of aid available" and encourage students in need of aid to apply soon, according to Linda Segal, a spokesman for the financial aid office.

Most of the seminars scheduled during the week will be held at the MU and include such topics as "Meeting College Costs/Budgeting Money," "Student Loans, Debt Management" and "Student Employment."

The presentations are open to all students. Additional sessions will be held at some dorms at times to be announced.

The office also will station a table on Cady Mall to answer students' questions and advertise the seminars, Segal said.

"This is the time" to seek aid for the 1984-85 school year, Segal said. "If it's going to be tight, students should apply."

The office encourages students to apply in January for loans for the following school year, although guaranteed student loans usually do not become available before May.

Scholarships have variable deadlines and grants should be applied for between January and March.

Despite fluctuations in the economy and reductions in government spending, private donations and federal allocations for student aid have not decreased, and the need for those loans has not substantially increased at ASU, Segal said.

About 20,000 students — half of the student body — received financial aid totaling $37 million at ASU. Most of the money, $19 million, was accounted for in student loans.

The awareness week will be the first such event held at ASU, but it will be held annually from now on, Segal said.

Information about Financial Aid Awareness Week can be obtained in the Student Financial Aid Office in Matthews Center.

A lecture on "General Information" will be held on Feb. 6 from noon to 1 p.m. in the MU Pinal Room, and on Feb. 8, from 11 a.m. to 12 p.m. in the MU East Cochise Room.

The "Meeting College Costs/Budgeting Money" seminar will be held on Feb. 6, from 11 a.m. to 12 p.m. in the MU Pinal Room, and on Feb. 9, from noon to 1 p.m. in the MU East Cochise Room.

The "BIA Financial Assistance Workshop" will be held on Feb. 7, from 11 a.m. to 12 p.m. in the MU East Cochise Room.

The seminar on "Scholarships" also will be held on Feb. 7 from noon to 1 p.m. in the MU East Cochise Room.

The lecture on "Student Loans, Debt Management" will be held Feb. 8, from 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. in the MU Pima Room. The "Student Employment" seminar will be held on Feb. 9, from 11 a.m. to noon in the MU East Cochise Room.

police report

Two Phi Gamma Delta fraternity members told ASU Police Thursday afternoon approximately $4,650 in property had been stolen from their house at 406 Adelphi Drive.

According to one student, 40 Phi Gamma Delta trophies worth a combined total of $2,000, two fraternity picture composites totaling $1,800 and $500 worth of fraternity plaques were taken.

Another Phi Gamma Delta fraternity member called police 10 minutes earlier to report the disappearance of a 19-inch portable RCA television, valued at $300, and an inoperative 25-inch color console television valued at about $50.

Fraternity members have indicated they will aid in prosecution.

In other activity, ASU Police reported the following incidents in the 24-hour period ending midnight Sunday:

•A Phi Sigma Kappa member informed police a Sylvania color television was taken from the house's lounge at 609 Alpha Drive early Sunday.

•The Phoenix Fire Department and ASU Police responded when a man broke his ankle while playing racquetball Sunday afternoon and had to be transported to Desert Samaritan Hospital for treatment.

•A man who had been preaching on the Palo Verde lawn was arrested and charged with loitering Sunday. Several complaints concerning the man were filed by Palo Verde residents.

•ASU Police dispatch received a call Sunday afternoon informing them of a fight in progress at the MU. When police arrived, they talked with two ASU men who allegedly had been fighting but said they would settle the matter in civil court. No police action was taken.

•A woman was transported to Tempe St. Luke's Hospital Sunday evening after she fell down the stairs of portal no. 8 at Gam-mage Center, injuring her nose and mouth, according to police reports.

•A Mesa doctor cut his forehead in the Gam-mage Center parking lot late Sunday on the way to his car. When Tempe Fire Department paramedics arrived, the man refused treatment and refused to sign a waiver for the fire department. He informed them he was a doctor and would have his son drive him to Desert Samaritan Hospital.

•Two ASU students pointed out two men, one student and one non-student, who they said were responsible for kicking a hole in the door of Room 21 of Hayden Hall. The two men were questioned by police, but the two students could not positively identify them.

•A fire alarm in the Cholla Apartments was set off Sunday evening by students cooking in their room.

•An ASU custodian told police a man was in an unauthorized area of the MU late Sunday. Police escorted the man out of the building.

•Police issued a citation to Thomas Pfister for failure to stop at a red light early Sunday.

ASU police officer helps keep the Old West alive

By M.K. Reinhart
Staff writer

Neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom of night can keep an ASU police officer from challenging the Arizona wilderness, keeping the Old West alive and getting the mail to the Scottsdale Post Office on time.

Officer Steve Reynolds and 20 others mounted their horses this morning and began the 26th annual Arizona Pony Express ride, carrying 15,000 pieces of mail from Holbrook to Scottsdale. Their arrival will officially kick off the yearly Parada del Sol festivities in Scottsdale.

Reynolds and the rest of the Hashknife Gang are traveling along the only Pony Express route in the country that is still sanctioned by the U.S. Postal Service.

"The ride is a constant challenge," said Reynolds, who is riding for the eighth time. "It's man against time, against the horse and against the elements."

Each year the Pony Express ride is dedicated to a person or a cause. This year the ride is dedicated to Karen Green, a Mesa postal worker who was killed while delivering mail on her route in 1981.

Former Deputy Sheriff of Navajo County, Reynolds, 34, has been with the University Police for two years as an officer training instructor.

It is the Navajo County Mounted Sheriff's Posse which makes up most of the Hashknife Gang, along with several members of the Scottsdale Jaycees and a few guest riders, Reynolds said.

The trip covers 200 miles through the rough terrain of the White Mountains and the Mogollon Rim and then crosses the Verde River. Depending on the snow conditions, Reynolds said actual riding time will be about 14 to 16 hours.

"It's tough and it's a firm commitment," to get the mail to each destination on time, while battling often unpredictable winter weather, Reynolds said.

The three-day journey began at 8 a.m., after Laura Nez, post office administrator at Holbrook, had sworn in the riders.

Roughly following state routes 377 and 260, the riders are scheduled to arrive in Payson at 4:50 p.m., picking up mail along the way in Heber, Merzville and Pine.

On Wednesday, they will leave Payson at 9 a.m., pick up more mail in Sunflower and set up camp along the Verde River in the afternoon.

Thursday morning the gang will ride together for a 22-mile sprint from their Verde River campsite into Scottsdale, a ride Reynolds said, which will take only 90 minutes.

In Scottsdale, the riders will receive a police escort as they make their way down Scottsdale Road and deliver the mail to the Scottsdale Post Office at 7242 E. Osborn Road.

Each rider will ride about 10 to 15 miles throughout the three-day journey, alternating riders every few miles depending on their experience and the kind of terrain they are riding on.

According to Bridwell, the horses never slow down, even as the mail is being handed to the next rider.

The Pony Express service was available for anyone interested in sending a letter to any location in the world. Each letter is validated with an official collector's edition Pony Express stamp.

Reynolds said he keeps riding every year because it is a unique and rewarding experience. "It's a colorful event," he said.

"One of the key reasons I ride is for the kids. We have a massive following of young children," Reynolds said.

But the kids aren't the only ones who enjoy the Pony Express ride. Reynolds said he rides because he enjoys it.

"Why do people climb Mt. Everest? Why do people go skiing?"

She added that living in the presidential home gives it a "homier touch."

The Nelsons do "quite a bit of entertaining" at the house. Mrs. Nelson said she counted 5,000 people in and out of the house the first year they lived there.

The house is staffed with a gardener and two cleaning ladies. And according to Herb Miller, ASU physical plant director, the University looks after regular maintenance of the house, which includes the heating and cooling systems, and the lawns. The house was also re-roofed recently.

The quiet, earth-toned interior leads to a backyard complete with pool, fruit trees, rose garden and an impressive steel sculpture on loan from the University art collection.

Mrs. Nelson said her contribution is the rose garden she put in a year ago, adding that the variety of fruit — figs, dates, oranges, lemons and grapefruits — attracts all kinds of visitors, not all of whom are welcome.

She said the few problems they have had with security have consisted mainly of people wanting to steal fruit. The house has its own security system and ASU police officers make routine checks.

Goodwin said the house is "all tied up in the state," because of its historical designation, but that it has received little financial upkeep from the state.

Sun Devil outfield may be fastest in ASU history

This is the second of a three-part series previewing the top-ranked ASU baseball team. Today the State Press analyzes the outfield and the designated hitters.

By Dean Obenauer
Sports writer

One reason that Baseball America and Collegiate Baseball have ranked the Sun Devil team No. 1 this year is because they sport one of the fastest outfielders in college baseball history.

"It certainly is the fastest that I've seen since I have been here," ASU coach Jim Brock said. "I used to watch ASU quite a bit before that and I don't remember any outfield being as fast and I don't know if we've ever played against one in college baseball that is as fast."

Oddibe McDowell

The outfield is led by senior center fielder Oddibe McDowell. McDowell has been called this year's top collegiate baseball player. He was one of three players unanimously selected by coaches during one of the tryouts for the U.S. Olympic team.

"He is one of the more complete players that I've had in 13 years," Brock said. "He does an outstanding job defensively at one of the team's key positions."

Last year McDowell hit .352 with seven home runs and 50 runs batted in. He also was a thief on the base paths, stealing 36 bases in 39 attempts.

"He is a threat on the bases as much or more than anybody on the ball club," Brock ed into a solid player, hitting .306 and tallying 11 home runs with 54 RBIs by the time of the NCAA tournament.

"He was certainly one of the major factors when the club got going good in the last month of our season last year," Brock said. "He has the ability when he is going well to be really outstanding."

Bonds, who was named all-Pac-10 and all-College World Series, has brought a lot of excitement to the Sun Devil outfield.

"Barry is a very exciting player," Brock said. "He probably creates an atmosphere of electricity more than anyone else on the ball club."

Although it will not affect the team this

Barry Bonds

"It (the outfield) is certainly the fastest that I've seen since I have been here," Brock said. "I used to watch ASU quite a bit before that and I don't remember any outfield being as fast."

said. "He has power and is a high-average hitter."

Last year McDowell was injured quite a lot and his absence was felt.

"There were periods of time that he didn't play and that has had very strong negative effects on the team," Brock said.

The Devils are hoping that McDowell will have a healthier season this year because his leadership and play are so vital to the team.

"From the stat angle he is a major factor," Brock said. "But it certainly goes further than that because of his quiet leadership ability."

McDowell lets his bat and glove do the talking.

In left field the Devils have the presence of second-year starter Barry Bonds. Bonds started last year as a freshman and emerg-year, Bonds, who hit .416 while stealing nine of 10 stolen base attempts in the fall season, could go to the major leagues before his four-year eligibility is up.

"We always feel that they are able to sign at the end of their junior year," Brock said. "If they come back then it is a plus but it is not something that we depend on."

At the right field spot replacing Steve Moses, who left a year early to play professional baseball, will be junior college recruit Mike Devereaux, who hit .406 during the fall exhibition season for the Devils.

"He has been a successful player in a good junior college conference," Brock said. "He played well for us in the fall."

"He has outstanding tools. He runs real well and appears to be a good defensive right fielder," Brock said.

Devereaux, who runs a 6.2 in the 60-yard dash, adds more speed to the already established Bonds and McDowell twosome.

"He is certainly more of a question mark than the other two," Brock said.

As far as depth the Devils are relatively secure with Todd Brown, who was injured after one appearance last year, and Charles Scott, who is a returner from last year's varsity club.

"Both Todd Brown and Charles Scott are the next two outfielders," Brock said. "Both are big, strong power-hitter types but neither are polished outfielders yet. By next year they should be good outfielders; they have been working hard at it."

When Brown and Scott are not seeing duty in the outfield they will be swinging the bat hard as designated hitters.

"They will both see a lot of duty at the designated hitter spot," Brock said.

Sun Devils do it all in 15-2 thrashing of alumni Saturday

By Tom Blodgett
Assistant sports editor

The ASU baseball program has quite an illustrious history, full of performers who went on to fame in the major leagues.

But the ghosts of ASU's baseball past could not touch the Devils of present in Saturday's alumni game; the 1984 squad demolished the alums, 15-2.

The current Sun Devil squad dominated this contest in every phase of the game, including a number of familiar names.

The alumni squad featured very few of the big-league players which ASU has produced. Ironically the alumni's biggest name player, Mike Pagel, won his fame as an NFL quarterback.

Three players from last year's squad showed up to challenge their ex-teammates — Greg Steen, Bert Martinez and Steve Moses.

Four ASU pitchers combined to hold alumni hitters in check. The oldtimers managed only four hits, none after the second inning of play.

Meanwhile the Devils knocked five alumni pitchers around for fifteen hits, including five home runs.

The alumni's only productive inning was the first. Alvin Davis, a member of the Devils' 1981 championship squad, walked, and Ken Phelps blasted a home run off ASU starter

Jeff Roberts to give the alumni the early lead.

The Devils answered right back in the bottom of the first Oddibe McDowell belted a two-run homer with Mike Devereaux aboard. Devereaux had been hit by starter Jim Boudreau.

The Devils broke open the game in the fifth inning on two-run home runs by Devereaux and Luis Medina off loser Mike Hogan.

ASU pitcher Doug Henry silenced the alumni guns for three innings after giving up back-to-back singles in the second frame.

Box score, photos, p.17

Gilbert Villanueva followed Henry on the mound, allowing just a solitary base-on-balls while striking out five during his three-inning stint.

While the alumni's lumber slumbered, the Devils' offense had a hitting explosion.

ASU piled another four runs each in the sixth and seventh. Todd Brown's two-run homer highlighted the sixth-inning outburst.

McDowell hit his second shot of the afternoon in the seventh to cap the scoring.

His three-run blast sailed out over the 400-foot mark in right-center field.

Beavers, Ducks deal Sun Devils hoop losses

By Jay Taylor
Sports editor

Although the ASU basketball team lost a pair of tough road games last weekend, extending its losing streak to four games, coach Bob Weinbauer refuses to give up on his young crew.

The Devils fell to Oregon State 67-62 Thursday night in a game that was close all the way, then dropped an 80-69 decision to a vastly improved Oregon club Saturday.

Weinbauer was able to find positive aspects to the weekend's journey, which dropped the Devils' record to 7-10 overall and 2-5 in the Pac-10.

"We lost two games, but we are playing well," he said. "We just keep running into teams that are very hot. We played some of the best basketball we've played all year."

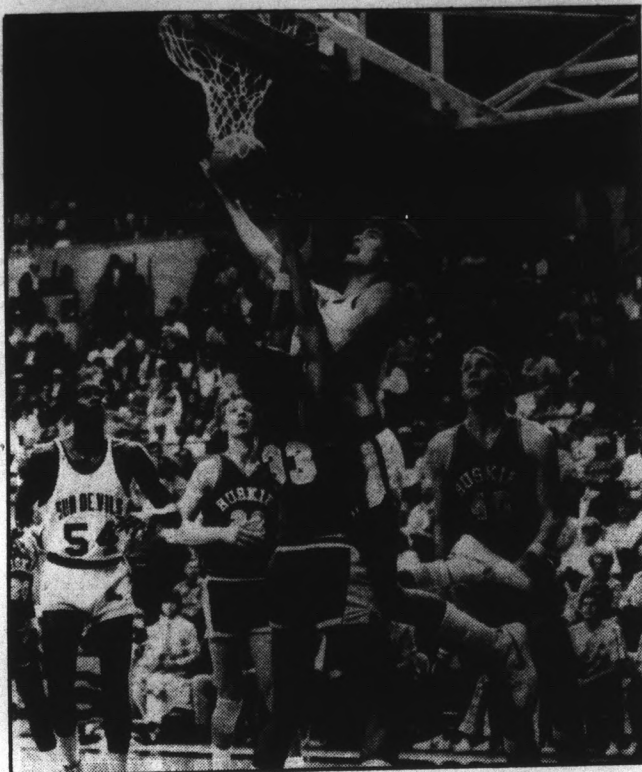

Against Oregon State, the Devils appeared to have broken out of their shooting slump in the first half, shooting 50 percent from the field and nearly 80 percent from the free-throw line. But they slumped a bit in the second half, allowing the Beavers to grab the win.

ASU also managed to outrebound the Beavers, quite an accomplishment against OSU's strong front line of forwards Charlie Sitton and A.C. Green and center Steve Woodside.

Jim Deines was the big rebounder for the Devils, sweeping the boards for a career-high 14 rebounds to go along with his 14 points.

"We've been anticipating that kind of play all year from Jim," Weinbauer said. "He's taking the ball to the hoop and hitting the boards hard. Not only that, he put on his usual strong defensive performance."

Unfortunately for the Devils, guard Chris Beasley could not break out of his shooting slump during the Oregon trip. He was only four of 13 from the field against the Beavers, netting 13 points.

ASU's Jim Deines was the Sun Devils' biggest bright spot during last weekend's trip to Oregon. Deines had 30 points and 27 rebounds on the two-game swing.

"I've never gone through a stretch like this," said Beasley, who is only 18-for-68 (a .265 percentage) in his last four games. "I've had poor games before, sure, but nothing prolonged like this."

"I'm getting good shots. I've forced a few, but that's nothing unusual. It's starting to bother me because I haven't snapped out of it yet. I guess I just need to hit my first couple of shots to regain my confidence."

On Saturday, the Sun Devils traveled to Eugene to meet the Ducks, and Beasley's slump continued as he hit only five of 22 shots. His teammates, most notably Steve Beck, picked up the slack early, but the Ducks made some adjustments and slowly pulled away to their 11-point win.

Beck scored a career-high 20 points and was the early spark for ASU, scoring 10 of the Devils' first 16 points.

Deines turned in another stellar performance against the Ducks, scoring a career-high 16 points and pulling down 13 boards.

Center Phil McKinney also turned in a good game against Oregon with eight points and nine rebounds, and Weinbauer attributed it partially to the play of Beck.

"With Steve doing the kind of things he did, he really opened up the middle for Jim (Deines) and McKinney," Weinbauer said. "Phil did a good job underneath for us against Oregon."

Center Blair Rasmussen was the catalyst for the Ducks with 23 points, 17 in the first half.

Weinbauer said the team has been getting good production, just not enough to win.

"We have to get to the point where we hate losing," he said. "When you hear people saying that you're young and so on, it gets to the point where you can get used to losing."

"But if you ever get to the point where you are able to accept losing, then you are in the wrong game."

OUR SCHOLARSHIP COMES WITH A COMMITMENT
YOU'LL LIKE

It's pretty hard not to like an Army ROTC Scholarship.

Just look at what it covers: full tuition, books, lab fees. Plus, it pays you up to $1,000 each school year it's in effect.

But what we think you'll like best about our scholarship is the commitment. Because it leads to a commission in the Army Nurse Corps (ANC) after graduation.

As an Army nurse, you'll belong to one of the largest, most comprehensive health care teams in the world. Training on state-of-the-art equipment. And using the latest techniques.

An Army nurse is an Army officer, too. So along with professional recognition, you'll also receive all the prestige, privileges and respect that go with being a leader in today's Army.

And don't forget, the Army Nurse Corps is part of a worldwide organization. Which means you'll have the opportunity to work in different cities around the country. And different countries around the world. Without losing seniority or benefits.

So make your commitment to nursing really pay off. Begin your future in the Army Nurse Corps. And that begins with Army ROTC.

Oregon tragedy affects ASU wrestlers

By Vicki Serna
Sports writer

The ASU wrestling team, which sports a well-deserved 12-6 record, added two wins this past week against NAU and Athletes in Action.

According to coach Bobby Douglass, the Sun Devils are enjoying their best season since 1980 when they finished first in their conference.

However, a note of sadness has touched the team.

On Saturday, Jan. 21, a van carrying 10 wrestlers and two assistant coaches from the University of Oregon crashed. As a result, two 20-year-old wrestlers were killed.

"That has drastically affected the conference," Douglass said.

Instead of driving, the Devils will fly this weekend to Bakersfield, Calif., for a match. The change in transportation will hinder the wrestling recruiting funds.

"The tragedy has had an impact on our program," Douglass said, "not only financially but emotionally."

"It cuts into our recruiting funds, and that hurts because we could have a great year recruiting. So we'll have to raise other funds for that."

Although Douglass knows the potential effect this could have on ASU's recruiting, he said he hopes they can still have a good recruiting season.

Against NAU Saturday night in Flagstaff, the wrestling Devils performed to perfection. They slashed the Lumberjacks 39-6, winning nine out of 10 matches. The only loss was a forfeit.

"We're wrestling better as a team," Douglass said. "We had to forfeit the 142-class against NAU. That's our weakest weight class."

Paul Bronstein in the 142-pound weight division had to miss the NAU match because of a skin infection.

World-class wrestler Mike Davies, weighing in at 190, was the only Devil to pin his opponent.

Jim Lefebvre, 118-weight class, handed his opponent a 6-3 loss, and 126-pound Gary Bairos won 13-6.

"We were up for NAU," Douglass said. "Our guys performed exceptionally well. We are a much better team than NAU."

Tom Riley, a 134-pound senior, grabbed victory against the Lumberjacks with a score of 9-7.

Co-captain Eddie Urbano, 150 pounds, racked up his opponent 17-4, while ASU's other captain Tom Kolopus, 177 pounds, destroyed his opponent 18-7.

Freshman Dennis Roberts, 154 pounds, defeated his opponent 6-0. And Chris Bodine, a 167-pound senior, won his match 14-2. Bodine just came off a separated shoulder injury that kept him out of play for quite awhile.

Heavyweight Rod Severn, a Sun Devil freshman, took care of his opponent 11-1.

Douglass said, "We are capable of wrestling a lot better and many of our matches were better than they indicated. We're definitely a much better team than we have been in the last four years."

Against Athletes in Action last Thursday night, the Devils wrestled their way to victory in the Sun Devil gym with a score of 23-18.

"As a team, we're making good progress," Douglass said. "The road trip obviously helped us a great deal."

Next on the schedule for the Devils is a long stay in California. ASU will compete daily Feb. 1-4 against Cal State-Bakersfield on Feb. 1, Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo on Feb. 2, Long Beach State and Stanford on Feb. 3 and the Biola Tournament on Feb. 4.

Lost Library Books Policy Revised

STATE PRESS articles in the past semester have raised the issue of lost Library books, an important problem that the University Libraries are addressing. While on the whole these articles have been informative, the focus has narrowed to only one type of lost book — that which is taken without being checked out. While stolen books are a problem, there is another type of lost book that represents an equally serious financial and educational loss to the University.

These are books that are checked out but never returned. Current Library policy states that if a book is not returned within 30 days of its due date (with the due date counted as the first day), the patron who borrowed the book is billed the cost of the book and a $10 overdue billing fee. If the book is subsequently returned, the bill for the cost of the book is cancelled. However, if the book is not returned, the full bill remains due.

Although the policy states that the Library bills for the "cost of book", this statement was not entirely accurate prior to February 1, 1984. The patron billed for a lost item was assessed only the cover price of the book, an amount which fell far short of the actual cost of purchasing the replacement and preparing it for use.

Effective February 1, the Library implemented a new billing policy intended to recover the real "cost of book" for lost items. If a book is not returned within 30 days of the due date, a bill will be issued for:

- the $10 overdue billing fee (as before)
- replacement costs

(a flat charge covering purchase price and processing costs)

For most library books, the replacement costs will be $45, with the total bill amounting to $55 per lost book. (Provisions have been made for a lower replacement charge when a book is much less expensive than $45, and a much higher charge when a book is much more expensive. Provisions have also been made for 'non-book' materials, such as musical scores, tapes, and maps.)

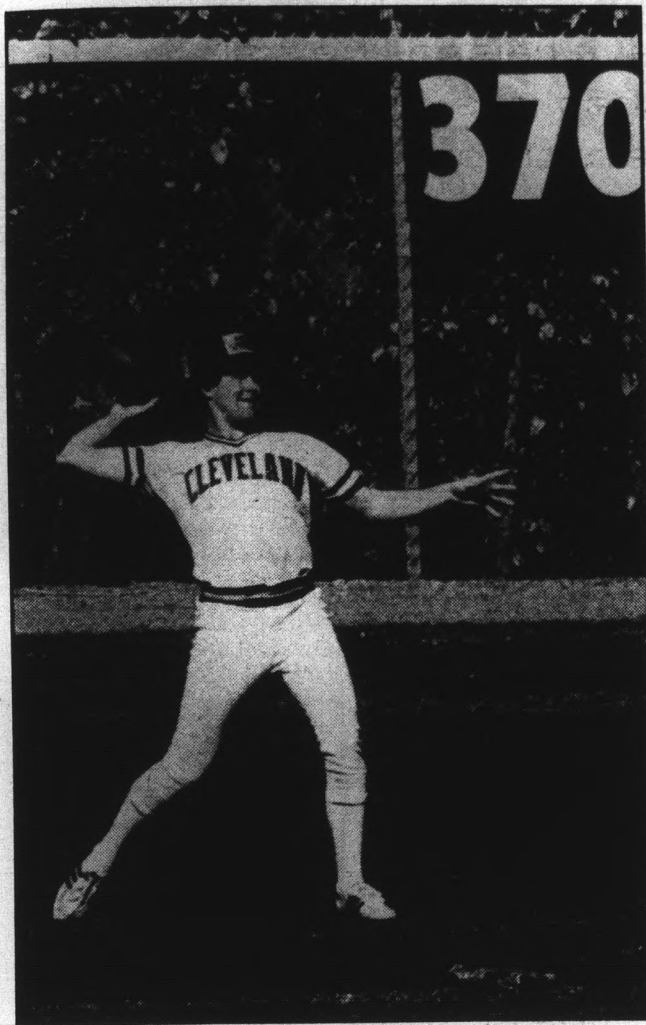

Please note that this change in billing for replacement cost will not affect library users who return and renew items on time, nor is the overdue fee or policy changed. Only users who fail to return materials will be affected. These users will now accept the full financial responsibility for making replacements available to the rest of the University community.

The benefits to the ASU community are many. The University will not suffer a financial loss when a patron loses a book. Also, the policy will either encourage users to return items promptly, or will ensure sufficient funds are available to purchase replacements for lost items. In either case, and most importantly, students and faculty will not be denied access to books needed for teaching, learning, and research.

Grads bring fun to alumni game

The ASU baseball alumni may have had a rough time competing with the current squad in last Saturday's game, but they never let it show. Clockwise from left, Mike Pagel reminds fans where his true talent lies. Pagel is the starting quarterback for the Baltimore Colts. Mike Colbern, formerly of the Chicago White Sox, exhibited how to enjoy the great American pastime in right field between innings. The alumni did have their serious moments. In one of the team's few highlights, Seattle Mariners third baseman Jamie Allen tags out ASU's Oddibe McDowell attempting to steal. When the score tallied up, the Sun Devils had beaten their alumni 15-2.

Swimmers finish in third spot against strong field in Dallas

By Jay Taylor
Sports editor

The ASU men's swim team was split this weekend, with one half in Las Vegas and one half in Dallas. But both groups turned in very successful performances.

The top-nine members of the Sun Devil squad went to Dallas for the Dallas Morning News Classic. The field consisted of six of the top-seven ranked teams in the nation, and the Devils finished a strong third.

Stanford won the meet with 287 points, followed by SMU at 267 and ASU with 259½. UCLA was fourth with 256, Texas fifth at 242 and Alabama rounded out the field with a 206½ score.

Sun Devil coach Ron Johnson said the field was very strong, and was a big confidence-builder for the team. He said they believe they are one of the best teams in the country.

Johnson was very pleased with the way his team swam in Dallas.

"The conditions were not conducive to fast times," he said. "The pool was very shallow, and it was only six lanes, which created a lot of turbulence."

"But we swam very well overall. The races were all very competitive and the guys were up to it."

Johnson singled out freshman Paul Easter as the top ASU swimmer in the meet. Easter won the consolation 500-freestyle in a time that would have won the championship final (4:27.2), finished second in the consolation 200-freestyle and the 200-butterfly, and anchored the Devils' 800-freestyle relay team which set a meet record in a time of 6:39.7.

Jeff Holshevnikoff, Neil Cochrane and Scott Brackett were the other members of the record-breaking relay.

"Easter was definitely the top swimmer for us this weekend," said Johnson. "His swim in the 500-freestyle was really a great swim; it would have won the championship final over what were supposed to be the best guys in that event."

"He has really been coming on fast for us and is getting better every day."

In the championship heat of the 500-freestyle, the Devils' Scott Brackett lost an extremely close race to defending national champion Jeff Cosdoff of SMU. Cosdoff finished in 4:27.3 while Brackett was clocked at 4:27.5.

Mike Orn also had a good meet for ASU. He finished second in the 100-freestyle, his best finish ever in that event at a major meet. He was also third in the 200-individual medley.

But the biggest news Orn made was in the 200-freestyle, an event he was favored to win.

The starter held the swimmers at the start for quite a long time. Orn thought the race had been held up, stood up and leaned back, looking at the starter, who then fired the gun to start the race.

Although he was the last swimmer in the water by a full body length, he was disqualified for moving before the start.

The meet had a no false-start rule, disqualifying an entrant on the first false start rather than the second.

Orn's disqualification cost the Devils second place in the meet, because even if he had finished last, he would have garnered nine points, enough to push ASU past SMU.

Johnson protested the decision to no avail. "I've never seen anything like it," Johnson said. "He was leaning back in the blocks. I don't see how it could be a false start if he was the last one in the water."

Orn agreed with Johnson, saying he didn't think he should have been disqualified since he was standing up and leaning back when the gun went off, not actually ahead of the field.

Although Orn's disqualification was a disappointment, the results of the Las Vegas meet were definitely not.

The Devils outdistanced a field of 13 teams to win the meet, much to the surprise of Johnson.

"I didn't think we would win without our top nine guys," he said. "We won the meet on depth. I was really surprised that we beat the U of A."

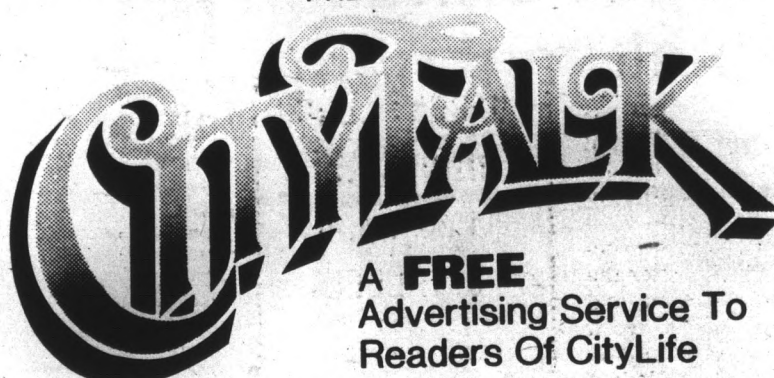

Brett Rose and Chip Martoccia stood out for ASU. Rose won the 200-individual medley and was third in the 400-individual medley and the 200-backstroke.

Martoccia won the 400-individual medley, finished second in the 200-individual medley and grabbed fourth in the 200-backstroke.

Base

In Brown's first at bat as a Sun Devil he hit a home run while tallying five RBI's in that contest. Last fall season, Brown managed to hit .300 with 15 RBIs.

Scott, who is also a pitcher, hit .228 last season for the Devils. During the fall baseball schedule he hit .341 while pitching almost five innings in addition.

Perhaps the most successful designated hitter the Devils have is pitcher and possible Olympic team member, Doug Henry. Henry hit .321 as a DH last year while compiling a 9-7 win-loss record with his arm.

"Doug Henry did an excellent job down the stretch last year," Brock said.

This season's outfield is very versatile. They can play good defensively, knock the cover off of the baseball and steal as well as any other outfield they will face this year.
