

Proposed parking revisions would raise 1984-85 fees

By M.K. Reinhart
Staff writer

Proposed parking fee revisions for the 1984-85 school year have been released which suggest doubling the cost of VIP parking in Lot 12, nearly doubling resident rates in lots 51 and 53 and providing for two types of reserved parking.

The proposed fee increases are designed to provide a "limited revenue source" for possible construction of a multi-level parking structure as well as maintenance of existing lots, according to the proposal, released last week by the Parking and Transit Service.

Victor Zafra, vice president for business affairs, said, "Clearly, parking is only going to get worse," and there is "general agreement" among the administration that multi-level parking is a necessity.

"If we're ever to make a dent in the parking system . . . the only way to go is up," Zafra said.

Fees for reserved parking may be divided into two categories: seven-day, 24-hour assignments, or five-day, 12-hour reserved spaces, in order to enable holiday, weekend and after-hours use of these spaces.

A proposed increase from $300 to $315 for the limited reserved spaces indicates a 5-percent cost-of-living increase, and the 24-hour spots will be increased from $300 to $400, the proposal states.

Decals for Lot 12, located behind the Administration Building, will increase from $120 to a proposed $240 due to the lot's controlled access. The lot is open for public use after 7 p.m.

While most ASU residents may see only a $7 cost-of-living increase in their fees, the proposal suggests an increase from $30 to $55 for north campus residents who use lots 51 and 53.

Residents utilizing lots 51 and 53 are asked to move their cars during home football game nights in order to make room for Sun Angel Foundation members. These lots are controlled access, however, so the proposal reflects a compromise between the $37 resident rate and the $80 controlled access fee.

Next year's proposed fees would differentiate between open and limited parking. The limited areas, lots 40 and 42, would reflect a $5 plus cost-of-living increase from $40 to $47.

An open parking decal is valid in almost all perimeter, limited and controlled access lots and is considered by parking officials to provide closer parking and more parking options. Disabled parking will be almost doubled, according to the proposal, from $30 to $55, due to its controlled access privileges.

The proposal suggests ASU department vehicles be required to pay decal fees based on the type of parking they require. Emergency and services vehicles, such as Physical Facilities and Department of Public Safety emergency vehicles, will not require decals.

Faculty, staff and students are asked to comment on the proposals in writing by Wednesday, March 28 to C. Russell Duncan, ASU police chief and director of parking and transit services.

Measure would allow selling alcohol at Sun Devil Stadium

By Robert S. Beamesderfer
Staff writer

Beer and wine sales at professional sporting events in Sun Devil Stadium could become a reality if an amendment to a bill allowing alcohol sales at Arizona Veterans Memorial Coliseum becomes law.

Jim O'Connell, ASU interim vice president for public events, said the change could provide the University with a "test case" for alcohol sales on campus by allowing beer and wine to be sold at Arizona Wranglers football games, in addition to providing revenue for the state from license fees and taxes related to sales of alcohol and tickets.

The amended bill would allow the Arizona Board of Regents to grant the universities permission to sell beer and wine in their stadiums during professional athletic events. Currently no alcohol may be sold or consumed at state facilities, including the Coliseum and Sun Devil Stadium except in private clubs.

Rep. Tony West, R-Phoenix, offered the amendment to H.B. 2426 during a Senate Finance Committee meeting last week. The bill currently is awaiting approval from the Senate Rules Committee, prior to action by the full Senate.

Coliseum officials want the additional revenue alcohol sales would generate and team owners say ticket sales would increase if beer and wine were sold.

The Phoenix Suns and Arizona Wranglers are the only teams in their prospective leagues without alcohol sales at their home facilities, according to a Wranglers' official.

Although ASU officials have taken no position on the measure, O'Connell said the change would not create any problems.

"It's not something the University or Public Events either opposes or supports, we're just sitting back and watching," O'Connell said. "Either way, it presents no hardship.

"If it works, it makes a good test case for alcohol on campus," he said. "But it doesn't mean it would be extended to that.

"The Suns and the Wranglers see the lack of beer sales as one of the things that has prevented them from reaching attendance goals," O'Connell added.

Sales would be handled by Saga Food Corporation under its concession contract with ASU for Wranglers' games.

According to Gary Prosper, director of ASU Support Services, the University receives 41 percent of concession sales at Wranglers' games from the Saga contract and an alcohol provision would have to be added to the contract if the measure became law.

The amendment prohibits beer and wine sales during intercollegiate athletic events, musical concerts, religious or other events which the Board of Regents deems inappropriate.

Eight candidates vying for four offices in ASASU elections

By Julianne Holroyd
Staff writer

The fact that only eight candidates are running for Associated Students offices this year represents "a pretty poor turn-out," according to Elections Coordinator Mike McCoy.

Two candidates running for each of the four offices is the lowest total number in years.

The candidates are: Raymond Burnell and Mike Lubitz for president, Brian LaCorte and Walter Von Kampen for executive vice president, Eddie Goitia and James Norton for activities vice president, Joseph Justice and Nancy Parks for campus affairs vice president.

Candidates began campaigning Sunday, as allowed by the ASASU election code, for the election on April 3 and 4.

If any elections result in a tie a run-off election will be held one week later.

"Unless there are write-in candidates, there probably won't be a tie since there are only two candidates per office," McCoy said.

The candidates were required to pay a $20 campaign fee, turn in 750 signatures, meet certain grade requirements, and must have been enrolled for at least seven hours the last two semesters.

The election will be organized by McCoy and his staff, which includes a communications manager, a poll manager, a security manager, a community communications aide, a poll equipment aide and a tabulation security aide.

The duties of McCoy and his staff include advertising the election, establishing polling sites, securing voting machines, policing the voting and counting the ballots.

McCoy is also compiling an election policy so that future election coordinators will have some guidelines with which to organize the elections.

The Air Force ROTC will provide half of the people needed to work the polls; the other half will come from other groups, McCoy said.

The Maricopa County Elections Department will lend their voting equipment to ASU for the election.

The Minority Affairs Board will be sponsoring a forum for the candidates on March 27 and 28. Candidates for two of the offices will speak and answer questions on Tuesday and the candidates for the other two offices will speak on Wednesday.

Prime rate highest in 14 months

NEW YORK (AP) — Banks raised their prime lending rate Monday for the first time since August, pushing the key business-borrowing rate up one-half point to 11.5 percent — its highest level in 14 months.

Analysts were sharply divided on whether the increase would be the first of several, or whether rates would now level off. Economists said a continued rise would cool the economic recovery.

Wall Street reacted sourly. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials had dropped 13.40 points to 1,170.96 midway through Monday's session.

Meese inquiry hindering confirmation, Baker says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker said Monday a new inquiry of White House counselor Edwin Meese "doesn't help" his chances of being confirmed attorney general, while one Democrat said some senators would prefer to see Meese's nomination withdrawn.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said President Reagan still supports Meese, his top policy adviser, and "wishes he will be confirmed" when the probe is ended. Speakes said he thought Reagan was willing to wait months for Meese's confirmation if necessary.

Democratic candidates vie for Illinois prize today

CHICAGO (AP) — As the Illinois primary neared, Walter Mondale suggested Monday that Democratic presidential rival Gary Hart may be unable to control his own campaign, while Hart accused Mondale of being too quick to advocate use of U.S. military force.

A public opinion survey pointed to a narrow Hart lead, with Mondale No. 2 and Rev. Jesse Jackson far behind. Illinois is the biggest prize so far on the primary calendar.

Mondale came out swinging at Hart in stops in Peoria and Chicago, saying his rival was "naive on foreign policy," and late in coming to civil rights battles and then "offering to shoot the wounded."

In St. Louis, Hart said Mondale's position on U.S. forces in Honduras goes further than the Reagan administration policy, "saying he would leave our forces" there.

Court to consider reinstating 'all necessary means' rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court said Monday it will decide whether police may shoot suspects fleeing non-violent crimes if that's the only way to stop them.

The court will consider reinstating a now-invalidated Tennessee law that allowed police to use "all necessary means" to arrest a fleeing or resisting suspect. A federal appeals court struck down the law last year, saying it authorized an "unnecessarily severe and excessive police response." About half the states have similar laws.

Baltimore Colts may relocate to Phoenix, use ASU stadium

By Wayne Baker
Staff writer

If all goes well, football fans may be able to see the Baltimore Colts play in Sun Devil Stadium next fall.

Colts owner Robert Irsay is expected to make "a prompt" decision on whether to move his team to Phoenix, Indianapolis or remain in Baltimore.

According to Eddie Lynch, president of the Phoenix Metropolitan Sports Association, the decision might be made in three to four days or could be stretched out to April 1, the unofficial deadline imposed by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

The group of private investors has reportedly offered Irsay rent-free use of Sun Devil Stadium until a domed, all-purpose sports arena could be built in downtown Phoenix.

However, the Arizona Board of Regents, which must approve all leases on the stadium, has not been consulted.

Regent A.J. "Jack" Pfister said, "No proposal has come to the Board of Regents for the use of Sun Devil Stadium."

He said the board will wait for Irsay's decision before discussing any details of a possible lease.

Jim O'Connell, ASU director of public events, said no proposal has come before the board because an agreement with Irsay has not been reached.

"Until there is someone to negotiate with, the details of a lease cannot be worked out," O'Connell said. "It's a detail whose time hasn't come yet."

However, he said the University would not allow rent-free use of the stadium and, if Irsay did not pay, the private interests would.

"Somebody's going to have to pay for Sun Devil Stadium," O'Connell said. "Whoever's been promising use of the stadium is probably willing to pay."

Jim West, Gov. Bruce Babbitt's press secretary, said use of the stadium "would have to be a deal that was in the best interest of ASU."

West said a lease on the stadium also would have to be "financially equal" to any held by the Arizona Wranglers of the United States Football League.

He said Babbitt's position did not rule out the association paying the rent, thus allowing Irsay "rent-free" use of the stadium.

"They can do whatever they want so long as ASU gets the money," West said.

He said the governor was unable to guarantee use of the stadium but would support any proposal "if it is in accordance with the regents and the University."

He added that the regents have a policy allowing the use of the facility by professional sport franchises if it is in the best interest of the University.

ASU prof, five others contend for liberal arts dean position

By Deanna McCormick
Staff writer

The search for a new dean of the ASU College of Liberal Arts has narrowed the number of candidates to six.

Among the candidates being interviewed for the position is Henry C. Reeves, an ASU professor in the department of botany/microbiology.

The other five finalists are Harmann K. Bleibtreu from the U of A department of anthropology; David J. Cox, head of the Kansas State University department of biochemistry; Lois B. DeFleur, dean of humanities and social sciences at Washington State University; Samuel A. Kirkpatrick, head of the political science department at Texas A & M University and Henry Snyder, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Louisiana State University.

Maurine Frye, ASU assistant academic vice president, said a decision will probably not be made until further interviewing of the candidates can be completed.

Guido Weigend, the dean of the College of Liberal Arts for eight years, announced his resignation in April 1983 and stepped down from the position in January.

Weigend said he resigned because he thought he had done all he could during his time in the position. After a six-month sabbatical leave, Weigend will return to the University as a professor in the geography department.

The College of Liberal Arts has the largest enrollment of any college at ASU.

Until a new dean is chosen, Associate Dean Paul Hubbard is serving as acting dean of the College.

The essence of man is humanity. —Thomas Aquinas

Value of life gives way to convenience

Tracy Fletcher Editor

Modern man prides himself on his ability to discard the superstitions of the past and openly embrace new ideas.

This same twist of reason allows members of American society to rank abortion as one of its great modern freedoms.

With recent advances in medical technology, physicians and many of their patients are discovering that abortion is not so convenient or easy after all.

Abortions performed between 23 weeks and the Court's legal limit of 28 weeks fremake their own deception more palatable. Some are using a new procedure for late abortions which so badly dismembers the unborn child in the womb there is no chance it could be born alive.

Others ease their consciences by telling the mother that the child she wants to abort may be born alive. If it is, every effort will be made to keep it alive.

The article reported that one administrator at a major New York hospital detailed an aborted infant's survival and the traumatic effect it had on the hospital staff.

They sense something is amiss, but they are unable or merely refuse to see what it is. In endless worship of personal freedom, our society has been conditioned to abandon the most fundamental of human principles — that all human life has value.

When the Supreme Court swallowed the muddled ideals of the sexual revolution, it made "progressives" into purveyors of truth. As a nation, we were led away from common sense and told to conform our beliefs to these new "truths" as if they were natural and inarguable.

As a nation, we support an industry that rakes in an estimated half billion dollars quently result in live births. In 1973, only 50 percent of those babies born would have survived. Today that figure is nearly 100 percent.

We have allowed those who worship sexual freedom to redefine human values to fit their own weaknesses.

The "progressives" in the medical profession, men and women who ostensibly devote their lives to saving lives, fail to grasp this hideous contradiction before them: the same fetuses which they refuse to acknowledge as human life are being born alive during the abortion.

Rather than admit that the Court made a mistake by arbitrarily redefining the start of life, physicians are treating the symptoms of that mistake, turning upside down the very principles they are committed to upholding.

In a recent New York Times article, physicians agonized over this new moral "dilemma" of whether to treat an infant born of an abortion. Technology has enabled the medical community to once more divert attention from the real problem, which is not late abortion but abortion itself.

The physicians' reactions show them to be far better practitioners of rationalization than moral or ethical medicine.

They have devised a number of ways to each year. Fetuses are sold for medical research and for use in many consumer products such as shampoo and soap. The medical community is stuffing its pockets under the pretense that the "right" to an abortion is one in which every woman should be free to partake.

We, like the medical profession, have become masters of rationalization. We have allowed those who worship sexual freedom to redefine human values to fit their own perverted weaknesses and "needs." Lost in the confusion between conscience and social convenience, our society justifies placing the right of "choice" above that of preserving human life.

Many well-meaning men and women have fallen prey to this grotesque contrivance of the modern imagination. One physician remarked in the New York Times article, "The area of late abortions is one of our most difficult areas . . . there are no easy answers."

On the contrary, there is one answer and it is quite simple. It is time to place the value of human life above absolute personal "freedom," where it belongs in any civilized society.

Len Munsil News Editor

Life and death. Conservatism and liberalism. Two methods of thought, two approaches to the social issues that dominate our times.

The traditional conservative protests vigorously against abortion — the slaughter of thousands of unborn children each day. Yet he is just as adamant in advocating a criminal justice system that sends citizens to their deaths.

The traditional liberal argument makes less sense. It promotes a woman's "right" to kill the feeling, living being she has conceived. But a child who is born, then grows up to become a murderer, deserves the right to live simply by virtue of his birth.

The evidence exists for those with a conscience to make a clear decision on abortion. We now know that the 4,000 unborn children who are terminated daily feel pain as their lives are snuffed out.

But there are questions. What of incidents of pregnancy due to rape or incest — what of the emotional scars a mother would bear when forced to have the child? What of cases when the child is certain to have a birth defect?

We lose sight of the basic issue when we get caught up in individual tragedies. An occurrence of pregnancy by rape or incest is a tragedy. But of more importance is the value of a human life.

Which leads us back where we started: Life or death. The choice is yours.

possibility of a birth defect is also no reason to end a life.

Abortion has become the easy solution for those who are not mature enough to take responsibility for their actions. When compared to other rules of common sense, the "pro-choice" argument is revealed for what it really is — a lie.

Abortions are too easily obtained and accepted by a public which has lost sight of the simple moral issue involved.

Capital punishment is more a symbolic issue. It affects relatively few people, but those few are the focus of much more attention than any single aborted baby.

No matter what the crime, no matter how brutal the murder, our society does not have the right to condemn a man to death. By committing murder, a criminal does not forfeit his right to live.

The age-old argument of capital punishment as a deterrent to murder has been proved false. Obviously, someone on the brink of killing does not, before pulling the trigger, take into consideration 1) that he might be caught, 2) that his state may allow capital punishment, and 3) that he will be convicted and sentenced to die.

The proponents of capital punishment say our tax dollars should not pay for the food, housing and care of a convicted murderer. But money should never be a factor in determining whether someone should live.

And if the murderer is eventually paroled and kills again? Are the opponents of capital punishment to blame? Of course not. The problems lie within our criminal justice system.

The greatest punishment our justice system should be allowed to deal out is imprisonment. Beyond that, we dabble in realms better left to the gods.

In a caring society, a certain value should be placed on human life — all human life. If we cannot even write and adhere to laws that consistently show respect for life, our society is headed in the wrong direction.

Life or death. The choice is yours.

Was 'Playboy' right?

Editor: I am appalled that ASU still refers to itself as an institution of higher learning. How can it, when the Hayden Library is closed for one entire weekend and then has limited hours the week of spring break?

Perhaps these "powers" do not realize that some students actually planned to use the time to catch up on work they have been unable to keep up with during the rest of the semester due to conflicting employing schedules.

I find it extremely ironic that the university officials did all they could to refute the negative hype surrounding the myth that ASU was nothing but a "party school" (as cited in the November, 1982 issue of Playboy), while effectively reinforcing it with limited library services.

No place for Scully in Party of Compassion

Editor:

It's unfair to the students of this university to have a newspaper that represents the opinions of only one political faction.

Matthew Scully may believe that the "hour has passed" for the Democratic Party (State Press, March 9), but there are many students who would rather adhere to a political party whose "very grim principles" include abortion, gay rights and feminism, to a party which places credence in the rape of our natural resources, unchecked industrial waste, and the death of our country's young men in the political wars of other countries.

Who decided that sentencing a man to death (i.e. the draft) is less an act of murder than abortion? When did pacifism become a grim principle? What is so shockingly pornographic about, say, "The Grapes of Wrath"? Is it the book's sensuality or the disgusting fact that millions of people were left to starve by an uncaring government? Why has the word feminism become so appalling? Isn't it more appalling that my mother, who is over sixty years old, should have to scrub floors for minimum wage while her male counterparts at the same institution merely push brooms and earn twice as much an hour?

I call on the State Press to begin representing all sides of political issues, or at least to try to attempt to view the conditions of this country from another standpoint. Our republic is based upon the representation of all the people, and our newspaper falls short of that ideal.

Theory of evolution an 'article of faith'

Editor:

Geology professor Robert Dietz recently criticized creation science (State Press, March 9), but he carefully omitted mention of the growing number of prominent scientists who are rejecting evolution.

Sir Fred Hoyle, a life-long atheist and scientist, also knighted for his contributions to science, has now admitted that evolution is untenable. Hoyle, like Nobel Prize winner Francis Crick, no longer believes that life originated on earth through evolution. Hoyle is not a Christian or a believer in Genesis. He simply recognizes that evolution violates one of our most fundamental laws of science, the second law of thermodynamics which has no known exception. The fossil record demonstrates that orders of life appeared abruptly without transitional forms. New evidence constantly forces evolutionists to revise and modify their theories.

Professor Chandra Wickramasinghe, another life-long atheist, testified at the Arkansas trial that "evolution is as unlikely as a tornado passing through a junk yard and assembling a Boeing 707." The probabilities approach the statistical absurd. But Judge Overton listened instead to his own bishop. The ACLU brought clergy to testify for evolution. The State of Arkansas called scientists for the creationist position. The clergy won because of a clearly biased judge who should have disqualified himself. But evolutionists are afraid of a fair debate, and even more afraid to allow students to hear the opposing evidence in a classroom. If evolution were factual, its proponents would not so fearfully resist testing it against an alternative theory.

Evolution is worse than merely a poor or false theory. It forms the conceptual basis for racism and other anti-social philosophies which treat human beings like animals. Evolution led to Herbert Spencer and capitalist exploitation. "Survival of the fittest" led to Hitler and the Holocaust. Darwin, Huxley and all early evolutionists were highly racist. After Darwin, pictures of blacks were drawn to resemble apes. (Read the subtitle of Darwin's "Origin of the Species"). Darwin predicted the British would soon exterminate the Turkish people, and on his voyage of the Beagle he proudly wrote how the natives admired his white skin. Even recently, the prominent evolutionist Simpson stated that "race is the fundamental category of the evolutionary process." William Shockley reminds us that evolutionists still believe that a "superior race" is evolving.

It should be self-evident that all of us were created equal. We founded this country on that belief. While evolutionists seek to repress alternative views and academic freedom, creationists only want equal time and fair treatment. Simply allow students to decide for themselves on the basis of the evidence without evolutionist dogmatism. Let us stop treating evolution like an article of faith or a sacred cow.

College of Law

First things first

Editor:

I write in with regard to the article concerning the "wandering" musician named John Bowen (State Press, March 2). Quite frankly, I was angered that the ASU Police have so much time to enforce the laws prohibiting panhandling, while female students are left to protect themselves from being raped. I can definitely see that this crime is of minor importance when compared to that of panhandling. The number of articles on this occurrence is increasing while there was only one or two on the rape that occurred when a girl was abducted while walking to her car.

Mr. Bowen may expect money for his performance, but no individual is forced to donate. Students and faculty passing by him are never approached, and he does not block traffic. So what is the problem? Even though I don't advocate panhandling, I am certainly not bothered by his presence on campus.

I wonder — would ASU officials and campus security prefer the illustrious downtown Phoenix transients? They probably wouldn't sing or beg for money, they'd just drink liquor from paper bags and sleep on campus benches.

Family Studies to launch full-time day-care center

By Rosanne Dupras
Staff writer

The Center for Family Studies at ASU will open the University's first full-time 12-month day-care program beginning in September.

Kathleen Ritchie, director for the Child Study Laboratory programs, said the full-time program was set up with the community in mind.

"It is open to anybody. However, it may not be real conducive to parents who want to leave their children in a drop-in program. It may be more conducive to people working in the community 12 months out of the year," Ritchie said.

At any point, she said, a person could give 30-day notice to take their child out of the program, but if the child came back into the program two months later, the vacancy would most likely be filled.

The hired staff will include a staff coordinator, and during the academic year, graduate and undergraduate students from the child development classes in the department.

Ritchie said the new program will give the students a chance to work in a "more realistic" day-care setting. "Now they can have training right on campus," she said.

A typical day in the program includes a developmental preschool program in the morning. "The children are grouped by age in the morning, so that their developmental patterns and motor skills are similar," Ritchie said. The program also will include field trips and walks to different spots of interest on campus.

She said parents are invited to evening meetings, special projects in the classroom and teacher conferences.

"We welcome people to use the observation facility. It's always open to the public on a daily basis." She said the observation facility is free of charge.

Jan Thies, teacher at the Child Study Lab, said the program, which will accommodate 45 children, will be beneficial in the area of research and teacher training.

"The day care will facilitate ideas for establishing a quality day-care center. It can serve as a model," Thies said.

The center's hours will be from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday year-round. It will be closed the week between Christmas and New Year's Day and all major holidays.

Tuition is $242 a month per child. All children will be enrolled on a monthly basis.

Children ages 2½ through pre-kindergarten 5 will be enrolled. The programs are designed and filled according to the research and training needs of the University as well as the parents' needs for services.

ACLU to represent apartment owner arrested at KAET fair

By Tisa Striegler
Staff writer

The Arizona Civil Liberties Union has taken up the legal battle of a man who was arrested while soliciting signatures on petitions at Channel 8's Great Fair held at Fountain Hills last month, according to the group's executive director.

Louis Rhodes called the incident a "classical First Amendment issue" and said the ACLU "will pursue the case."

"We are in the process of finding an attorney to represent him," he said, adding, "the group has no staff attorneys."

Roland James, 38, who pleaded not guilty to trespassing charges in connection with his arrest on Feb. 25 at the fair, sponsored by KAET-TV, Channel 8, is scheduled for a pre-trial hearing in Mesa Justice Court Wednesday.

Although an attorney may not be available in time to appear at the pre-trial conference, Rhodes anticipates "having an attorney by the trial date." The trial date will be set for sometime in the next 40 to 50 days.

The ACLU agreed to assist James after voting on the matter at its board meeting this month.

James, owner of an apartment complex, was soliciting signatures for two petitions when he was asked to leave the property.

Charles Clark, KAET corporate underwriting manager and co-director of the fair, said station officials did not want it to appear the TV station was condoning the petition's purposes.

James was circulating petitions for Protect Arizona Ratepayers and the Arizona Coalition for Cost-effective Quality Health Care. The PAR proposal would prohibit

The incident is a 'classical First Amendment issue' and the ACLU 'will pursue the case. We are in the process of finding an attorney to represent him.'

utilities from charging for construction work-in-progress and the ACCQHC proposal was for hospital-cost containment.

Clark explained KAET "did not file any charges" and had not "asked for him to be arrested. We simply asked him to take his booth down."

Clark added that KAET is not going to pursue the matter any further and said, "It's closed as far as I'm concerned."

Laura Watson, Fountain Hills Chamber of Commerce coordinator for the fair and consultant to MCO Properties, which owns the land, said, "Initially I removed him from a space he was occupying because all those spaces are paid for and he was occupying another patron's space."

There were 260 craft booths costing artists $125 and all were leased prior to the weekend of the fair.

James said he moved his table near the portable restrooms because he thought it would be a highly trafficked area.

Watson said James was again asked to move off the private property so he moved to the street.

James was told he could not be stopped from circulating through the crowd and gathering signatures, according to Clark.

"He demanded to be arrested before he would take his booth down and the deputy accommodated him," Clark said.

The ACLU and James contend that since KAET invited the public onto the property for the fair, it was not private property for that period of time.

Rhodes explained if the property is ruled to be public property during the time of the fair, James's right to free speech will apparently have been violated.

ASU conducts spring blood drive, seeks award

By Deanna McCormick
Staff writer

Last semester Arizona Blood Services gave ASU an award for its participation in the blood drive for having the highest number of blood donors from a group of more than 2,000 people.

Monday marked the beginning of the spring semester blood drive which will be held all week. The Student Health Advisory Committee of ASASU is hoping to win the award again this semester by encouraging ASU to participate in the blood drive this week.

To donate blood, a person must weigh at least 100 pounds and have a blood pressure of 50 beats per minute, said Matt O'Shea, a health science major and member of SHAC. O'Shea said some people are afraid to donate blood because they think it is painful and time consuming. But he said it takes only 45 minutes maximum to donate and the process is painless.

The blood donated is sent to hospitals where it is used in different ways for transfusions, said O'Shea.

Arizona Blood Services will be at various locations this week, including the MU Coconino Room, 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday; Physical Education Building West, 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday; Tyler Mall/Palm Walk, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday. They will also be at various residence halls throughout the week and also next week.

Further information on locations and times is available at 965-3161.

police report

An ASU woman was sexually abused while she was studying in Hayden Library late Sunday, she told police.

The suspect was described as a heavy-set man in his mid-20s with dark skin and eyes. The woman said the man was sitting underneath her study table but she did not notice him until he made physical contact with her. She then ran downstairs and asked for an escort, she said.

Items totaling $2,000 were taken from an ASU student's Ocotillo Hall room on March 12, he told police early that morning. The student said a TRS-80 computer, a micro line printer, a watch, rings and some after-shave lotion were taken from his locked room.

In other activity, University Police reported the following incidents in the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Monday:

•An ASU student told police early Monday someone entered his Palo Verde West room last week and took $1,130 worth of items, including a black and white television, a 24-inch gold chain and $40 in change. There were no signs of forced entry, according to police.

•An Ocotillo resident said articles totaling $362 were taken from his room, but he did not specify what the items were. The items were taken over spring break, he told police late Sunday.

•Motorcycle side covers valued at $100 were taken from a student's motorcycle in Lot 38 over the weekend, he told police Sunday.

•The fire alarm for the Engineering Research Center was activated early Sunday and police were notified by a student working in the building. The alarm panel indicated smoke in a basement duct, but officers responding found no sign of smoke or fire in the area. An electrician was called to reset the alarm because police do not yet have keys for the center.

A few hours later, a fire alarm went off in the A-wing of the Engineering Center and appeared to be a malfunction. The area was checked by officers, and an electrician was called to reset the alarm. The alarm was activated again an hour later and the electrician had to be notified again to reset the system.

•A woman was picked up by ASU police on an outstanding Avondale traffic warrant Sunday afternoon. She was transported to Avondale, where she will post her $80 bond.

•An electric cart was damaged while in use Sunday afternoon. The vehicle is still in service and the value of the damage is unknown.

•An ASU student told police her license plate was taken from her car while it was parked in Lot 8 during spring break.

Ex-student dies; malpractice suit pending

By Jim McCleary
Staff writer

Wendy Angus-Witenstein, 21, a former education student at ASU who filed a pending malpractice suit against the University Health Service, died March 13 at Desert Samaritan Hospital in Mesa.

Angus-Witenstein, who had suffered from a malignant tumor in her chest, filed the suit in January, claiming she had been misdiagnosed at the Health Service as having "everything from hepatitis to fatigue," according to the suit.

During her initial visit to the Health Service on Aug. 24, 1982, an X-ray was taken which indicated the presence of a malignant tumor, but Angus-Witenstein was not informed of the tumor, according to the suit.

Another X-ray was taken at the Health Service nine months later and the results led ASU doctors to refer Angus-Witenstein to an outside doctor.

According to the suit, that X-ray indicated the same tumor apparent on the first X-ray had "progressed markedly."

The suit, which was filed in the Maricopa County Superior Court, asked for reimbursement for damages and pain and suffering.

John Lyons, the attorney representing the Angus-Witenstein malpractice suit, could not be reached Monday for comment.

A spokesman in Lyons's office said the woman's death has altered the wording of the suit but declined to give specifics.

Angus-Witenstein, who was on the ASU gymnastics team in 1981, was admitted to Desert Samaritan Hospital on March 8.

On Jan. 29, 1984, Angus-Witenstein was married to Daniel Witenstein, a former assistant coach for the ASU women's gymnastics team, at Desert Samaritan Hospital.

Survivors include her husband; mother, Grace Angus; sister, Leslie Angus; and two brothers, David and Cullen Angus.

Depositions from doctors at the Health Service and Angus-Witenstein's doctors at Desert Samaritan Hospital are expected to be made public this week.

ASU microbiology major Kristi Rechlin rehearses for an upcoming Tempe Dance Academy production.

On her toes

Studying microbes and dance

By Asha Nathan
Staff writer

ASU sophomore Kristi Rechlin danced in Los Angeles last summer with Marine Jahan, the girl who performed the actual dances for Jennifer Beals in "Flashdance."

Rechlin was in Los Angeles taking classes at the Dupree Dance Academy, as was Jahan.

During the rest of the year, however, Rechlin juggles microbiology labs with dance sessions.

Rechlin said she has attended Dupree the past two summers and plans to go back again this year.

She is among a group of dancers at Rechlin explained that when she was training for the 1980 Olympics, she missed making the Olympic team by four places. She placed 24th in the national meet, where the first 20 were chosen for the Olympics.

So she started concentrating on ballet, but ran into problems with a weak ankle for three years.

Rechlin didn't quit dancing, although she had to take it easy with ballet.

She danced jazz, tap, lyrical jazz and contemporary styles with the Academy.

After surgery last summer, she said she has been slowly easing her feet back into ballet.

A native Arizonan, Rechlin has won

'My parents want me to get a college education, but I just want to dance. I understand their point of view, but I'm at the peak of my dancing career.'

the Tempe Dance Academy who will be performing in 10 European countries for three weeks this summer.

It has been 13 years since Rechlin first started dancing at the age of 6.

She dances with the Academy about 20 hours each week, and is preparing for upcoming performances with the Academy this week.

But this won't be her first time in Europe.

She said the pageant operates along the lines of the Miss Arizona pageant, except that all the participants are dancers.

Rechlin said she doesn't have any real interest in the theory of dance, explaining why she was a microbiology major rather than a dance major.

She said she is ready to take the step that will lead to a professional dance career.

She hopes to audition for a scholarship this summer if she attends Dupree. The scholarship would entail dancing full time and going to school part time.

Rechlin said she is also looking into private ballet lessons.

She toured with the Arizona Metropolitan Ballet last December as a Carrying 14 credit hours at ASU and dancing 20 hours a week doesn't leave Rechlin much time for much else.

She said she belongs to a bowling league Wednesday nights because it's the only night of the week she isn't dancing.

Rechlin said she is satisfied with what she has achieved in her dancing career so far.

But she is ready to move on.

ASU scientist solves mystery of extraterrestrial compounds

After 18 months of research, an ASU scientist has discovered how organic materials formed in extraterrestrial objects 4.5 billion years old.

The analytical process, devised by chemistry professor George Yuen, also confirms the non-biological origins of carbon compounds extracted from meteorites.

The conclusions are open to speculation, Yuen said.

"The big question is whether this is evidence of life elsewhere in the universe," Yuen said.

"There is no way to prove it now, but it is exciting to think about."

Yuen, who has published his findings in the British journal, Nature, experimented with samples of the Murchison meteorite which fell in Australia 15 years ago.

The samples are part of 1,200 samples in ASU's meteorite collection, the largest university collection in the world.

Yuen spent a year and a half perfecting a complex process that involves sealing chunks of meteorite and water in vacuum containers, removing the air, then breaking up the meteorite samples by repeatedly freezing and thawing the water.

He then extracts from the samples measurable quantities of organic acids and gases such as carbon dioxide, methane and butane — all substances found on earth.

However, the carbon compounds composed of those acids and gases contain isotopes, atomic variants which are different from their earthly counterparts. The presence of the isotopes suggest motion, rather than heat, is involved in meteorite formation, with smaller particles bonding together into larger groups.

Differences between meteoritic compounds and their modern geochemical equivalents prove carbon compounds, basic to all organic matter, could have evolved before the beginnings of life as we know it today. But the extent to which the older compounds resemble the younger ones points to a common evolution theory that scientists have debated for more than 20 years.

While scientists may be years from the answer, it was only 14 years ago when two other ASU chemists, John Cronin and Carleton Moore along with colleagues of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced their discovery of amino acids, the building blocks of protein, in meteorites that held them intact for 4.5 billion years.

Night dance planned at Cady Mall

ASU will host a "moonlight frolic," complete with dancing under the stars, from 7 to 11 p.m. at the fountain area in Cady Mall Saturday, March 24.

Music will be provided by "Thunder and Lightning," a local disc jockey entertainment production company and will feature videos and a light show.

The event, which is free and open to the public, is sponsored by the special events committee of the Memorial Union Activities Board and Associated Students.

James M. Buchanan, professor and director of the Center for the Study of Public Choice at George Mason University, Fairfax, Va., will discuss his economic model of government growth in a free public lecture at ASU on March 28.

The presentation, "Secession, Sharing and Dynamics of Government Growth," will begin at 3:30 p.m. in Room 286 of the Business Administration Building.

Buchanan's lecture is part of a lecture series sponsored by the Barry Goldwater Chair of American Institutions.

Baseball team gets mixed results during break

By Steve Richman
Sports writer

The ASU baseball team, ranked No. 1 nationally by Collegiate Baseball and Baseball America, takes to the road this weekend to face the University of California's Golden Bears.

The Devils, 24-10 overall and 5-1 in the Six-Pac, leave for California leading the conference, with Stanford and USC tied for second at 4-2, UCLA at 2-4 and California and Arizona tied for last with a record of 1-5.

California lost two of three to UCLA last weekend.

ASU got off to a great start in conference play as it swept a three-game series from the Arizona Wildcats two weekends ago.

In the first game of the series, the Devils won by a score of 7-4 behind the strong pitching of Kendall Carter (5-0). Carter pitched seven and one-third innings, allowing seven hits. He struck out six Wildcats and only allowed one base-on-balls.

Dave Graybill pitched the final one and two-thirds innings to record his sixth save.

Luis Medina led the offense as he went four-for-four, including two triples and four RBI.

In the second game, the Devils exploded for an 11-1 victory. Medina again supplied the power with two hits, including his fifth homer of the season.

Jeff Roberts started but was relieved by Doug Henry in the fourth inning. Henry gained his sixth victory against only one defeat.

In the series finale, the Devils completed the sweep with a 7-2 drubbing of the Wildcats.

Gilbert Villanueva (2-1) pitched six strong innings for the Devils, giving up five hits and one earned run. He also recorded six strikeouts while only walking two.

Graybill recorded his seventh save while pitching three innings.

Barry Bonds went three-for-four including his fifth home run of the season to lead the offense.

The Devils then traveled to Austin, Texas, to face the defending national champion Texas Longhorns.

In the first game of the series, the Devils were unable to rebound from a five-run first inning for the Longhorns, and lost the game 6-5.

Jose Rodiles went the distance for the Devils, giving up six runs and 10 hits. Greg Swindell won the game in relief for the Longhorns.

The ASU offense collected nine hits, which included two by Bob Grandstaff, who also had two RBI.

In the second game, the Longhorns again won a close game by defeating the Devils 3-2. In this game, the Longhorns jumped out to a 3-0 lead with a run in the second inning and two in the third inning.

The Devils came back, but the rally fell a little short. They scored single runs in the fifth and seventh innings, but Eric Boudreaux was able to put out the fire and record his fifth save for the Longhorns.

Randy Rector, in a rare start for ASU, pitched six strong innings, giving up only three runs and six hits.

The series was a repeat of the Devils' trip to Austin last year. The Devils lost the first two games, but had the third game rained out.

ASU coach Jim Brock held his top pitchers out of the Texas series so they would be ready for the three-game set against USC the following weekend.

The strategy paid off for Brock. With two victories, the Devils took over sole possession of first place in the Six-Pac.

In the first game, the ASU offense stole the show exploding for nine runs and 11 hits. The hot-hitting Medina again led the offense as he collected three hits including, his sixth and seventh homers of the season. Oddibe McDowell added his fifth home run and Ted Dyson cracked his third of the season.

Carter was able to dominate one of the best hitting teams in college baseball. The Trojans came into the game with 29 home runs, but that fact only served to keep Carter sharp.

Carter pitched six and two-thirds innings, giving up no runs and three hits while striking out seven. He ran into trouble in the seventh inning and was relieved by Graybill, who finished up the game.

The second game was very much different from the first as the Trojans defeated the Devils 8-3. In this game, Jeff

To hit for the cycle during a game is a tremendous feat, but Brown was able to do it in the first four innings.

Roberts was unable to get out of the first inning as the Trojans scored four runs. Henry pitched the final eight and two-thirds innings, surrendering four runs.

The Sun Devil offense managed only four hits, including Brown's seventh homer of the season. Brown drove in all three Sun Devil runs in the game.

In the series finale, the game was offense-flavored as the Devils outlasted the Trojans 15-12. The Devils built a 14-4 lead through five innings, due mainly to an incredible hitting performance by Todd Brown.

To hit for the cycle during a game is a tremendous feat, but Brown was able to do it in the first four innings. He tripled in the first, doubled in the second, singled in the third and capped the performance with a fourth-inning homer.

The Devils hit three home runs (Brown, Bonds and Medina) and several players had multiple hit performances. McDowell and Brown had four hits apiece. Medina had three and George Lopez, Grandstaff and Bonds each added two each.

The big outburst for the Trojans came in the sixth inning as they exploded for seven runs. Rodiles gave up four runs on four hits before being relieved by Graybill. Graybill pitched the final four innings to gain his eighth save despite giving up four runs on nine hits.

A series sweep over archrival Arizona helped ASU fans forget previous losses to the Wildcats in football and basketball. ASU won its first four conference games.

Beasley named Devils' top cager

By Dean Obenauer
Sports writer

For 53 Division I basketball teams, making it to the NCAA Tournament was the fulfillment of a goal. For the ASU Sun Devils it was a goal unrealized this season, but last night at the annual awards banquet the team accentuated the positive.

In recognition of this season's contributions, senior guard Chris Beasley, an all-Pac-10 selection, received the team's most valuable player award in addition to the outstanding senior accolade.

Freshman guard-forward Steve Beck, an all-Pac freshman team choice, received the outstanding newcomer award while freshman point guard Bobby Thompson received the academic award for the highest grade point average.

Junior forward Jim Deines earned the most outstanding defensive player honors and senior guard Kenny Vaughns gained the most inspirational player award.

For coach Bob Weinbauer, in his second year as court general at ASU, the banquet was a way to wrap up a successful second half of the season campaign.

"We saw a team that in the second half of the season became extremely competitive," said Weinbauer. "In the last nine league games we were in the position to win each of them."

Weinbauer: 'We saw a team that in the second half of the season became extremely competitive.'

In that second-half spurt, the Devils (13-15 overall, 8-10 Pac-10) landed a fifth-place spot in the Pac tied with Stanford and the U of A.

One big reason was the maturity of the freshman class. Rated as one of the ten best in the nation by Basketball Times, the class sported as many as three starters at times.

"The value or worth of a recruiting class is not decided after the first year," Weinbauer said. "Those dividends will be counted down the road."

Beck, a 6-foot-3, 186 pounder out of Detroit, Mich., earned an A-minus in his first season as a Sun Devil. Taking the team's second-highest scoring honors and finishing fourth overall in rebounds, he played the impossible role of a 6-3 forward in the Pac-10.

"Steve Beck is a total athlete," said Weinbauer. "He was fighting the odds every game because of his size."

Point guard Thompson, 6-0, 165, earned a B with his ball handling and play calling this season. Thompson led the conference in steals at 1.8 per game in Pac-10 play. But he will have to improve on his scoring average (6.4 points per game).

"You take Bobby Thompson. He is a freshman No. 1, and then you put him in the starting lineup and he turns the ball over rarely," Weinbauer said. "What more can you ask from a freshman?"

Holloway, 6-7, 215, had an up and down freshman season. In becoming the Sun Devils' fourth-highest scorer and third-place rebounder he tallied a C-plus on his freshman season.

"Eric showed the ability to rebound in traffic," Weinbauer said. "His best years and playing days are ahead of him."

Greg Attaway, Michael Burns and Tee Williamson will all see more action down the road.

"All of them contributed at times," Weinbauer said. "Each of them had their moments this year and will continue to in the future."

Next season the Devils will be without Beasley, this year's leading scorer, and Vaughns.

"Both helped tremendously," Weinbauer said. "Vaughns was a great inspirational leader for the younger people while Beasley returned as the leading scorer from last year's team and picked up from there this year."

Beasley became only the 11th player in ASU history to score over 500 points as he tallied 512 for the year.

"We are thankful to the type of leadership both Beasley and Jim Deines gave us," Weinbauer said.

Junior forward Deines managed to compile 7.6 points and 6.8 rebounds per outing. He also managed to block 23 shots leaving him behind Sam Williams, Kurt Nimphius and Alton Lister on the all-time Sun Devil eraser list.

"It is safe to say that Jim Deines has gotten everything out of his God-given talents as a basketball player," Weinbauer said. "Jim is one of those people who gives 110 percent in practice and every game. He was our best defensive player this year."

Junior Phil McKinney is another veteran due back next season.

"Phil had an up and down season," Weinbauer said. "Phil needs to be more consistent next year."

McKinney grabbed 130 boards, second only to Deines, while registering 17 rejections and a 3.5 point per game average.

Senior forward Warren Everett had his moments this year.

"Everett contributed a great deal this season at times," Weinbauer said. "His last five games were good with his 10 rebounds in the USC victory being a key to the win."

Everett has one year of eligibility left and it is not certain whether or not he will return next season or not.

Weinbauer has already received written letters of intent from Scottsdale Saguaros' Mark Carlino and Phoenix South

Mountain's Vernon Johnson. Both players have been recognized as the finest in Arizona this season.

In addition a verbal commitment has been struck with Chris Sandle of Long Beach Poly High School. Sandle is rated as one of the finest players in California and was instrumental in his team winning the state championship recently.

"You can always make room for good players," said Weinbauer. "We still need a center and a couple of guards. I'm not satisfied with the center or back-up guard positions. That is where we need the help most."

Lady golfers finish third at Betsy Rawls tourney

By Vicki Serna
Sports writer

ASU's lady golfers finished in the top five at the recent Betsy Rawls Invitational, where some of the nation's best golf teams gathered for the competition.

The Devils also had two top-10 finishers individually. Tina Tombs came in eighth place while Heather Farr took ninth.

ASU finished third, behind first-place Tulsa and Texas in this well-recognized event held in Austin, Texas. Eighteen teams participated.

"I was pleased to finish in the top three," coach Linda Vollstedt said. "It was a tough field and the top teams in the nation were there. For us to have a good showing was important."

ASU took five golfers to the tournament. Tombs, a senior, had scores of 82-77-72-231.

"Tina played very consistently," Vollstedt said. "She was able to put together a final round of 72. I'm really pleased to see her score so well in the final round. It was nice to finish eighth in a field as tough as this one."

Farr, the sophomore who was selected for the Curtis Cup team, had scores of 80-73-79 for 232.

"Heather was also consistent," Vollstedt said. "She didn't play as well as she would have liked. But she was able to score and help the team. She had a real good second round under the weather conditions. In fact, she had the second-best score that day."

Freshman Danielle Ammaccapane accumulated scores of 79-80-78-237.

"Danielle scrambled during the tournament," Vollstedt said. "She didn't hit a lot of greens, but she was able to get up and down.

She didn't care much for the weather conditions either."

Libby Akers, a freshman, had two good rounds of play and came home with scores of 79-77-84-240.

"The second day she (Akers) had a few problems," Vollstedt said. "And the last day she had a bad hole. But as a freshman I'm pleased with her. She's a real competitor who really understands competition."

Junior Nancy Moen didn't have as good a first day as the others, but made up for it during the final two days of the tournament. Her scores were 87-81-81-249.

"Nancy had a poor first day," Vollstedt said. "But she was able to come back the last two days for respectable scores. She has been having problems with her short game, but she'll be ready for her next tournament."

"I was real pleased with the performance of the team as a whole. Their attitudes are excellent," Vollstedt said. "I think they can win anywhere but they have to be consistent three days in a row."

ASU's next scheduled tournament will be held March 28-30 in Dallas at the Lady Mustang Invitational. The Devils' lineup is still uncertain, but the two golfers that will definitely be making the trip are Farr and Tombs. The other three spots are up for grabs, but Vollstedt said the rest of her team will be competing against each other this week to fill those positions.

According to Vollstedt, the Lady Mustang is a very prestigious event in which a team must be invited in order to participate. Twelve teams were invited and Vollstedt has high hopes for her team.

"I would like to win it because the kids realize they can beat Tulsa and Texas; it's just a matter of doing it," Vollstedt said.

Merchant paces Lady Devil swimmers at NCAA's

By Jay Taylor
Sports editor

The ASU women's swim team, paced by three All-America performances by junior Michelle Merchant, placed 15th at the NCAA Championships held last weekend.

Stanford, which was heavily favored going into the meet, was upset by Texas for the national title. Florida, led by Tracy Caulkins, finished third.

Merchant's best finish was a fourth in the

Michelle Merchant

200-yard breaststroke in a time of 2:17.31, a career best. She qualified for the championship finals in 2:19.21, gaining the last spot in the championship heat.

Merchant also finished ninth in the 100 breaststroke (1:04.10) and the 200 individual medley (2:04), another career best.

A swimmer must finish in the top 12 to achieve All-America status.

"Michelle has had a great season," ASU coach Bob Gillett said. "This is the first year she has really put it all together. She did well in the dual meets, then at conference, and capped it off with a great performance in the NCAA's."

"It's been a thrill to watch her swim this year, and if she wants it and gets on a good training program the next couple months, she'll be in the thick of it this summer (for a berth on the U.S. Olympic team)."

Two other Sun Devils claimed All-America honors.

Freshman Beda Leirvaag won the consolation finals in the 400 IM in a time of 4:21.69. She also narrowly missed making the consolation finals in the 200 IM, coming up .21 seconds short.

According to Gillett and assistant coach Jim Puleo, Leirvaag has had trouble adjusting to having to swim well in the mornings. In her home country of Norway, she could go out and swim just about any time and make the finals. But in the United States, she must swim top times to make the finals.

"Europeans generally don't swim well in the mornings," Puleo said. "And here, if you don't swim well in the morning, you're a spectator in the evening."

If Leirvaag had swum the same time in the morning as she did in the afternoon, she would have made the championship finals of the 400 IM.

Gillett said Leirvaag has improved her morning times this year.

"It was a big adjustment for Beda to be able to swim well in the morning. But she has done a good job of it. With the experience she will gain staying here this summer, she will improve even more."

The third Sun Devil to gain All-America status was freshman Cheryl Gillett in the 1,650 freestyle. She finished 11th in a time of 16:36.17 despite a knee injury which almost caused her to be scratched from the WCAA conference meet.

"If Cheryl's knee problems hadn't interrupted her training for the last two weeks, she would have qualified for the big finals," Gillett said.

Stephanie Lister, another freshman, finished 15th in the 200 backstroke. Her time of 2:05.23 was her best this year.

The Devils' relay teams failed to score any points. Gillett said the individuals would have placed 10th, but without support from the relays, they finished 15th.

"If we had made the consolation finals in a couple relays, we would have moved up quite a bit," Gillett said. "But our lack of depth hurt us as it has all year. We had to use distance people in the relays, and people who should have been specialists had to be used in the freestyle relays."

Hampton closes career by breaking own record

By Tom Blodgett
Assistant sports editor

Kym Hampton closed out her ASU women's basketball career in the style fans have come to expect from the 6-foot-2 senior center. She scored a school record 44 points and grabbed 22 rebounds in leading the Sun Devils to 85-75 victory over archrival Arizona.

Hampton's previous best was 42 points against Utah State two years ago. She also holds the school record for rebounds in a game with 28 against Washington three years ago.

For her heroics, Hampton split honors as the WCAA athlete of the week with San Diego State's Tina Hutchinson.

The Sun Devils finished the year with a 17-11 record overall, but just 6-8 in the WCAA. They tied with UCLA for fifth place. The Devils were not invited to participate in a post-season tourney for the first time in the last four years.

Hampton finished the year as the conference's leading rebounder at 12.7 boards per game and third-leading scorer with 21.1 points a contest.

However, Hampton only was named as a second team all-conference choice. Teammate Jodi Rathbun received honorable mention honors.

USC, who won the conference title, placed three players on the first team: Cheryl Miller and Pam and Paula McGee. Rounding out the squad were Hutchinson and Long Beach State's Kirsten Cummings.
