

Students to simulate U.N., address world problems

By KATY MCGREGOR
Staff Writer

Twenty-two ASU students will act as diplomats and take on current world problems at the Model United Nations Conference in Sacramento, Calif., according to one of the participants.

ASU will be one of 95 universities participating in the event, scheduled for April 10-14, said David Kim, an ASU graduate student in political science.

The conference is "exactly like the United Nations in New York," he said. Participating students must invent their own ideas for solutions to problems facing the world.

Resolutions will be proposed by delegates and those passed will be sent to the United Nations in New York, where they have been accepted in the past, he said.

Kim said ASU has a reputation among participating universities as having the most prepared delegates.

Every year a school is assigned different countries, he said, and each individual from a university is then assigned to a committee.

ASU will represent Syria and Belgium in this year's conference.

Kim said he is serving on Syria's "special political committee which deals with the situation in Central America."

Each delegate spends about nine months researching his or her country and must represent that country's point of view at the conference, he said.

Resolutions made by delegates will be voted on by the 2,500 participating students, he said.

Kim said in view of poor relations between the United States and Syria, his delegation will propose the condemnation of the U.S. role in Central America.

"Syria is radical in the U.N. and our delegation must play the role of the radical," Kim said.

ASU delegates will also offer a resolution to put U.N. military forces on the Honduras-Nicaraguan border because of anticipated conflict between the two countries, he said.

Delegates gather data from actual U.N. speeches and major U.S. newspapers, Kim said.

The goal of the program is "to educate students in playing roles as diplomats," he said.

A survey completed five years ago indicated that about 93 percent of participating students go into public service after college.

Universities will also be coming from Canada and Mexico, Kim said.

Some other PAC-10 schools included in the conference are U of A, NAU, UCLA, Oregon State University, and USC, he said.

The final resolutions passed at the conference will be filed at the United Nations in New York and a copy will be available at Hayden Library.

The model United Nations started 35 years ago, as did the United Nations, Kim said.

A class offered through ASU's political science department assists students in preparing their projects, he said.

Kim said ASU hosted the annual event in Scottsdale in 1983, and will try to host the conference again in 1987.

Regents need better student relations, says new appointee

By VICKIE CHACHERE
Staff Writer

Students from the state's three universities need better communication with the Arizona Board of Regents, according to Nora Colton, newly appointed student regent from ASU.

"What's most important is being the liaison between students and the Board of Regents," Colton said.

"My approach is that I am not representing ASU, but I am representing the university system as a member of the Board of Regents," she said.

Colton, an economics graduate student, will go before the Arizona Senate Education Committee today in a preliminary conformation hearing. Her term begins May 15.

She was appointed to the post by Gov. Bruce Babbitt and will replace Paul Julien, a U of A law student.

Colton said she will prepare for the appointment by attending sessions of the Legislature and the Arizona Students Association. She said she also plans to meet with administrators from the universities.

Colton said she also plans several visits to NAU and U of A within the next few weeks to discuss issues with students.

"There will be forums at each of the universities where students can voice their concerns about things that are not being brought up," Colton said.

"There is a lot of concern with financial aid and tuition (rates) are always a problem," she said.

The quality of undergraduate education will also be an issue, Colton said.

"I know that the Board of Regents has already begun addressing these issues, but it is something that needs to be looked into next year," she said.

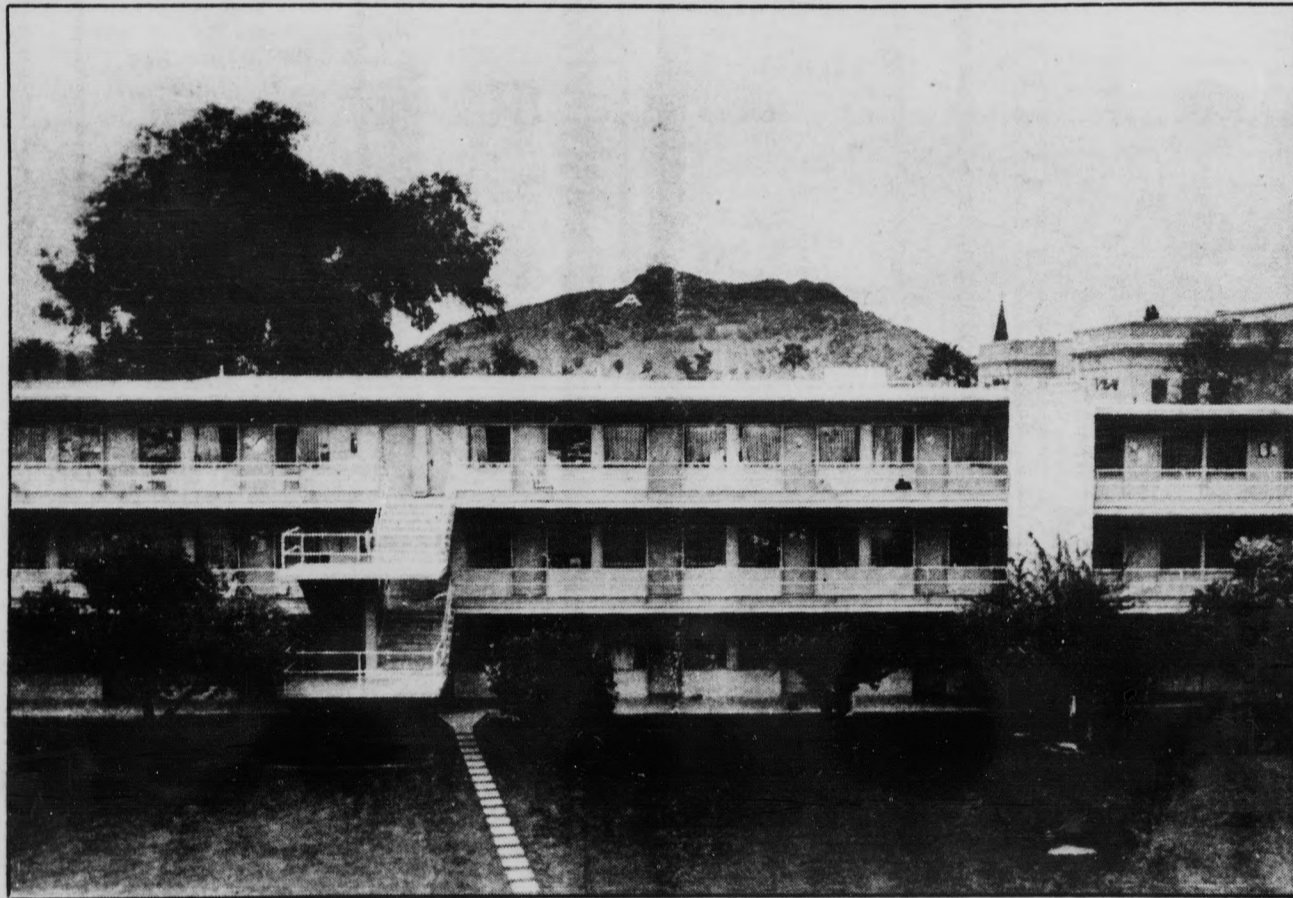

"I would like to see input from students on these issues."

Colton said her "long-term goal" is to gain a vote for the student regent.

"I want to represent the students, that's the whole purpose of why I am there," Colton said. "I want to be treated as an equal because I am an equal."

"I don't want to make (the student regent vote) one of my number-one priorities. I do think it is something that needs to be continually lobbied for," she said.

Dorm may be used for classrooms

Conversion not likely soon, official says

Staff Writer

Despite McClintock Hall's convenient location as a residence facility, the building may be altered and used as classroom space, according to the director of residence life.

Cliff Osborne said the possibility of McClintock becoming a classroom facility has been discussed recently by University administrators.

The object is to make the best possible use of the complex for the University, he said.

Osborne said no changes will occur in the immediate future. The hall already has student assignments for the fall semester and is still needed as a residence facility, he said.

"If and when the hall were closed, a replacement option would have to be made available," Osborne said. "The University would have to either build or acquire another building."

According to William Cabianca, associate vice president for student development, there was some discussion last year concerning the hall's future, but no new information has been presented on the subject.

"I am assuming it will remain a residence hall," Cabianca said.

He said the building underwent some remodeling last summer and no plans have been made for the destruction of the building.

"The University wants to maintain its buildings since it is so short on space already," Cabianca said. "I believe McClintock will be around for a long time."

McClintock Hall is composed of two different sections. The smaller section, McClintock A, was built in 1951. The B section was established in 1956, said Robert Stephenson, assistant director for facilities at residence life.

The hall is among the oldest residence facilities on campus, Stephenson said.

He said the remodeling, which was done last summer, was completed to improve the strength and structural support of the concrete walkways.

"There was some minor cracking in the sidewalks," Stephenson said. "But there were no additions or anything added to the building."

According to Joseph Apel, of facilities management-planning, McClintock has been discussed as a future office facility, but a decision on the building's future has not been made.

"This office is about to begin long-range master plans for ASU," Apel said. "We will discuss which older buildings will be replaced or assigned a different purpose."

He said McClintock will be brought up at these meetings since it has been discussed before.

"We will study its possibilities and make recommendations for its future," Apel said.

Israeli prime minister announces acceleration of Lebanon withdrawal

NEW YORK (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres said Sunday that his country's military withdrawal from Lebanon, plagued by terrorist attacks, is being accelerated and should be completed in eight to 10 weeks.

"The real problem is of an operational nature — namely, how long will it take our Army to withdraw from Lebanon in an orderly manner. I think it is a matter of weeks, no more," he said on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation."

Peres said the Israelis have nothing to do with uprisings by Lebanese Christians against the government of Lebanese President Amin Gemayel.

"Absolutely not," he said. "We are on our way out, not only from the land of Lebanon but from the politics of Lebanon."

Israeli attacks in response to terrorist actions by Shiite Moslems in southern Lebanon are not an "iron fist" policy, he said, but merely a way to "defend the lives of our soldiers."

Union survey finds policemen dissatisfied with Chief Ortega

PHOENIX (AP) — A survey that finds many Phoenix police officers apparently consider Chief Ruben Ortega ineffective has been dismissed by Ortega as labor contract skirmishing that "goes with the job."

Spokesman Mike Petchel, head of the Phoenix Law Enforcement Association, said they dislike his handling of disciplinary matters and believe he does not support them or communicate well with them.

Ortega said "I would describe any police department in which the chief is rated as good by 50 percent or more of the officers as in trouble," he said. "Any department like that would be one in which the chief ignores citizens' complaints, gives only written reprimands for discipline and gives the officers all the money they want. A chief like that could be very popular."

The survey was undertaken primarily to help union leaders formulate positions for contract negotiations with the city, he said.

Besides Ortega, the survey addressed wages, benefits and working conditions and asked for opinions on various police policies that affect the public.

Indian tribe asserts claim to lake; supports protection of bass fishing

NEEDLES, Calif. (AP) — The Chemehuevi Indian tribe, apparently fed up with a long-running controversy over water-skiing interests and the need to protect bass fishing, has asserted a jurisdictional claim over portions of Lake Havasu in support of the fish.

At issue in a three-year dispute has been the California Department of Fish and Game proposal to place manmade habitat protection in selected coves of the lake, a plan water-skiing enthusiasts have opposed.

The skiers would be prohibited from riding the cove waters once the bass shelters are built.

San Bernardino County officials had been arbitrating the matter but say, in light of the claim staked by the Chemehuevis, it's out of their hands.

Fish and Game Department officials said the numbers of largemouth bass in the lake have been dwindling, dropping from more than 80 percent of the fish population there in 1965 to less than 25 percent now.

Close vote predicted for Senate approval of MX missile funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both sides are predicting extremely close votes this week when the Senate decides whether to approve $1.5 billion to build and install 21 additional MX missiles. Supporters say the approval is needed to strengthen the U.S. bargaining position in the nuclear arms talks in Geneva.

In the midst of heavy lobbying, a count showed 41 definite or leaning votes both for and against the MX.

Senate Armed Services Committee chairman Barry Goldwater said earlier this year he had decided the flaws built into the MX could never be corrected, and so he would vote to kill it.

More recently, he has been echoing the argument of the Reagan administration that denying funding for the missile as the arms talks get under way would encourage the Soviet Union to refuse any serious proposals for mutual reduction of the nuclear arsenals held by both countries.

There will be two votes in the Senate, with two more to follow in the House.

police report

A file cabinet containing five Motorola HT 90 two-way radios, a telephone, a radio antenna and a box of identification badges belonging to the ASU Safety Escort Service was reported stolen from Room 107A in the MU between Monday, March 11 and Friday. A student told ASU police it is possible that the file cabinet had been moved rather than stolen. Total value of the cabinet was estimated at $3,080.

An electronic message center valued at $1,200 was stolen from the University Activity Center west lobby between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. Friday, March 7, police said.

In other activity, University police reported the following occurrences in the one week period ending at 6 a.m. Sunday:

• Donald Leroy Curtiss was arrested late Saturday for driving while intoxicated. Witnesses observed him driving in an erratic manner, police said. Curtiss and his 1977 Ford Pinto were found in the dirt planter at Lemon Street east of College Avenue. Curtiss was taken to the Tempe City Jail where he was given a breath test. He was released to his employer, who also took charge of his car and his dog.

• A man was arrested for attempted theft March 9, when he tried to steal a woman's purse outside of the Mariposa Residence Hall. He was booked by the Tempe Police Department.

• ASU students Christopher Tidball and Robert Gruhn were arrested early March 8, in connection with bicycle thefts in the courtyard of Manzanita Hall, police said. They were released on their own recognizance.

• Daniel Fred Vigna was arrested for reckless driving when he overturned his 1985 Toyota pick-up in the southeast corner of the east practice field early March 10. Damage to the truck was estimated at $500. There was no damage to the practice field.

• Darryl A. Palermo was arrested for filing a false police report Monday, March 11, police said. Palermo falsely reported that thieves broke into his car while it was parked in a Sun Devil Stadium parking lot and caused it to roll into a parking block damaging the front fender. When inconsistencies in his story were pointed out to him, he admitted that a friend had lost the items and damaged his car. He told police he filed a false report to make it easier to "get my car fixed."

• Kevin Ann Kelly was arrested for theft and fraudulent schemes after parking in Lot 27 with a stolen decal inside her car Thursday, March 8, police said.

• Police stopped a man on the south lawn of Sahuaro Hall March 7, police said. The man was intoxicated and armed with a knife. Police advised him to leave the area.

• Someone smashed the rear windshield of a 1984 Volkswagen while it was parked in Lot 53 sometime Friday, March 8, police said. Damage was estimated at $500.

• A blue nylon bag containing clothes and camera equipment, valued at $480 was stolen from the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity house on March 5, police said.

• A delivery car was damaged Thursday, March 7, when someone shattered the front windshield while it was parked in front of the Cholla Apartments at 909 S. Terrace Road. Damage was estimated at $250.

• Two backpacks were stolen from the shelves at the ASU Bookstore March 8, police said. A blue Camp Trails backpack, which had been left unattended for five minutes, contained four textbooks and a calculator. Total value of the theft was $140. A light tan backpack with dark brown straps valued at $154 contained three text books and a calculator.

• A grass trimmer valued at $165 was stolen from inside a storage area north of Mariposa Hall Sunday morning, March 10, police said. There were no signs of a forced entry.

• A woman reported that someone threw objects at her car from the second floor of Ocotillo Hall as she drove through Lot A17. The vandals scratched and dented the rear wheelwell. Damage was estimated at less than $100.

• Someone threw a 3-by-35 inch metal pipe through a window of the Student Health Center causing $90 worth of damage between Tuesday and Wednesday.

• An unknown amount of money was stolen from the Sharp Copy machine in the Noble Science Center between March 7 and March 8, police said. Damage to the exterior coin box was estimated at $40.

Sexuality class unfairly evaluated in column

Editor:

How dare you, Mr. Scully? How dare you insult thousands of students, tell bare-faced lies, and assume you know better than thousands of others? You are reprehensible! Your "article" is so full of inaccuracies, lies, and slander that I could take all day pointing each one of them out; but I'll address only the most glaring problems.

First of all, O.M. is Professor Morgan's initials and should have been capitalized throughout the article. Didn't your parents teach you to respect your elders? You continue your cheap jabs at the professor by stating that you don't see him much "except sometimes on campus carrying his films to and from class," obviously insinuating that all he does is show sexual films. I was in Professor Morgan's class last semester and we saw four films, two of which dealt with touching, loving, non-sexual, family relationships! The third film dealt with the solution to a sexual dysfunction and the fourth was on childbirth (how perverted).

About your lies — yes lies. You wrote that O.M. tells his students that "they can do it all — love without responsibility" (that's a lie), "reap joy without effort" (that's a lie), "sin without guilt" (that is a lie also). From the very first day, Owen states that responsibility does come with sex, good sex takes lots of effort, you should feel guilty if you hurt someone, and that, far and away, a hug always beats mindless, emotionless intercourse.

You complain that morals are not taught in the class. Whose morals, may I ask, need to be taught in order to meet with your satisfaction? Yours? "Brother" Jed's? It seems to me that if "good morals" were taught in Human Sexuality, many of those 883 students would not hang around. By the college age, people have already formulated their own opinions and morals and are not likely to sit still to be told that they're wrong — by Professor Morgan or "Brother" Jed.

Speaking of those many students who have taken Human Sexuality over the years, how do you justify the implication that we all speak in sentences like, "He's just, like, I mean, so special." Surely you can't expect anyone to take you seriously after such a sweeping generalization. Owen's ex-students are not the glassy-eyed, cult-like, congregants that you attempt to portray. You obviously took a statement by Owen ("My people don't hurt one another") and blew it out of context and proportion.

In reference to "Brother" Jed you said, "Speak a word of truth to the crowd and you're a religious fanatic." Whose truth? "Brother" Jed's? I'm Jewish and his "truths" are not mine. "... Relying on your wits to draw an audience" — hadn't you noticed most of "Brother" Jed's audience was there to laugh at him? I'm not a big fan of Greek life, but the one time I hesitated to listen to Jed, he made the absurd comment that there are red light districts all across the campuses of America — they're called Sorority Row. Come on, give me a break!

Before you sit down at your typewriter to spew out more venomous garbage make sure that you try to omit your lies, generalizations, and holier-than-thou attitude.

David Sussman
Junior, General Business Administration

Look, I'm really sorry if I hurt you, Dave. But like, cut me some slack. Look at the syllabus, man. I mean, "o.m." is what the dude calls himself — no caps, man, just "o.m." Like, most dudes, man, they capitalize their initials, but if o.m.'s not into that, well then, I mean, who are you to say he should? He's not into rules, man. That's what makes the guy so, you know, special, so unique. I mean, hey, like anything it's a matter of preference, man. You're just, like, so hung up on societal constraints. Take Sex again, dude. You just don't know what o.m.'s all about. — m.s.

Club offers ideas of career choices in the travel industry

By DOUG NEWMAN
Staff Writer

The Travel and Tourism Student Association is taking steps to acquire a new image and educate ASU students about careers in the travel industry, according to the group's adviser.

Victor Heller, director of the Travel and Tourism Studies program in the department of leisure studies, said the program offers a practical approach for students interested in finding out about the travel industry.

"The club provides an excellent opportunity for students interested in making linkages with people in the travel industry here in Arizona," said Heller, who has been at ASU for a year and a half.

Although the club consists mainly of leisure studies majors, Heller said students from all majors are welcome.

He said the club is a good opportunity for anyone interested in a career related to tourism and travel, including marketing, advertising, management and journalism majors.

The TTSA is involved in several projects in the field of tourism, Heller said.

The group's initial project was the Travel and Tourism Information Center on the lower level of the MU, said Heller.

"The center's function is to provide information to students, faculty and staff about what there is to see and do around Arizona," he said.

"If someone wants to know what's going on in Scottsdale this weekend, we supply that information," he said.

Heller said brochures from chambers of commerce, hotels, airlines, tour companies, restaurants and night spots throughout the state are available at the center.

The center also has Amtrak and airline schedules, he said. Tourism and commercial recreation senior Wendi Wagner, who serves as the club's president, said the center is a handy information source for students going on vacation and for visiting parents.

"I don't know of any place on campus with so much travel information," she said.

TTSA members also work with travel bureaus, tour companies, trade shows, hotels and airlines on a volunteer basis, said Heller.

He said that Travel and Tourism majors must complete a one-semester internship and the center is a good place to volunteer.

"Leisure studies majors who major in Travel and Tourism must work 200 hours on a volunteer basis," said Heller. "This is an absolute requirement for a degree."

Wagner said, "(The TTSA) is an excellent way for students to acquire a first-hand knowledge of the travel industry."

"We want to develop the travel industry into a profession," she said.

"Tourism is the second largest industry in Arizona," said Heller, who is the former director of marketing for the Arizona State Tourism Office. "In 27 states, it is either number one or number two.

"As we go from being an industrial to a service society, tourism is becoming more important," he said.

"We need to look at how tourism affects our quality of life, and how we can use it to improve our quality of life."

Another project the TTSA is working on is a travel fair at ASU, to be held April 17, Heller said.

"We are inviting travel agents, tour operators and different people in the travel industry to ASU," he said.

"They will distribute brochures and travel information to students," he said.

"I can't believe the amount of support we have had from the industry," said Wagner.

The TTSA is also selling Arizona travel posters on Cady Mall in order to raise money.

Management department declines to re-evaluate recent business test

By PATRICK J. KUCERA
Staff Writer

The ASU management department has no plans to reevaluate a recent Management 301 exam, despite petitions filed by students in the class, according to the acting chairman of the department.

William Ruch said the investigation into the exam's validity and fairness has been completed and he did not find any problems with the test.

"I have gotten back a very complete statistical analysis of the test," he said. "I do not see a real problem with the test."

Ruch said he does not doubt the statistics presented to him.

"When you're dealing with that large a number of students, you have a high degree of confidence . . . The exam holds up well," he said.

The investigation of the exam stemmed from petitions signed by a number of students who said the test contained questions that were ambiguous and had multiple answers.

Dan Jentzsch, a marketing junior, printed and circulated the petition asking for the management department to review the test.

Ruch said all exams will be adjusted, or curved, at the end of the semester if it is necessary.

"We don't want to try and curve each individual exam," he said, adding that students would complain if the test was curved down because of a higher than normal mean.

The mean for the first test of the semester was "lower than normal," Ruch said, but the grades will be adjusted.

"The distribution should be bell-shaped and the mean will be a 'C,'" he said.

Ruch said that regardless of the difficulty of the test, a number of students would have expressed dissatisfaction with their respective grades.

"I am always going to have students who are going to argue about some questions," he said. "What is happening (with this test) is the same phenomenon."

Ruch said the number of students who signed the petitions seems large at first, but in relation to the number of students in the three sections of the class, the number is not overwhelming.

Approximately 1,000 are currently enrolled for the class and more than 180 signed the petition.

The remaining problem facing the management class is that one section is in a classroom in the Life Sciences Building, Ruch said.

"In one of those classes, I am very dissatisfied with the physical facilities," he said. "I hope to have that corrected in the fall . . . (so) all classes will be held in the business buildings."

Ruch said he plans to discuss the statistics from the exam with all sections of the class next week and explain the distribution of the scores.

The Latin American film series at ASU will present a documentary focusing on Puerto Rico at 3:30 and 7 p.m. Thursday in Room C-57 of the Language and Literature Building. There is no admission charge.

The one-hour documentary, "Manos A La Obra: The Story of Operation Bootstrap," examines Puerto Rico's history from the 1930s to the 1950s when the island was a model for economic development under the Operation Bootstrap Program, and through the 1960s when the United States proudly displayed Puerto Rico as the "showcase of the Americas."

The documentary concludes with the 1980s when Fortune magazine labeled Puerto Rico's economy "Operation Welfare."

City council approves lakes proposal

By MELISSA SMYTH
Staff Writer

The Tempe City Council has tentatively approved a proposal by developer Jay Fraser to build two water ski lakes in Indian Bend Wash behind Big Surf.

The approval came during a study session Thursday night. The proposal still must be discussed during a full council meeting.

Fraser said if the lakes are built he will recommend to University officials that water ski classes and a competitive team be established at ASU.

The council initially rejected the plan to build the two lakes, one 2,400-foot long and the other 1,200-foot long, because they would use too much of the city's water.

Assistant Public Works Director Bill Pederson said the council reconsidered the proposal because Fraser offered to buy the water rights from a privately owned "grandfathered" well and transfer them to the wash.

This would enable him to drill his own well near the proposed lakes.

A "grandfather" well is one that was operating before the 1980 state groundwater law which called for a reduction in city water consumption to its 1980 level of 253 gallons per person.

Councilman Frank Plencner said Fraser had intended to use run-off from the Salt River to fill the lakes and Tempe water as a back up source in the event of a dry season.

Plencner said run-off from the river could not adequately meet Fraser's water needs.

"That was the real hangup," he said. "You can't depend upon that."

Pederson said buying the water rights from a private individual would technically conserve water in the city's reservoir.

"It depends on your philosophy," he said. "We live in a desert and we have a problem with a decreasing amount of groundwater."

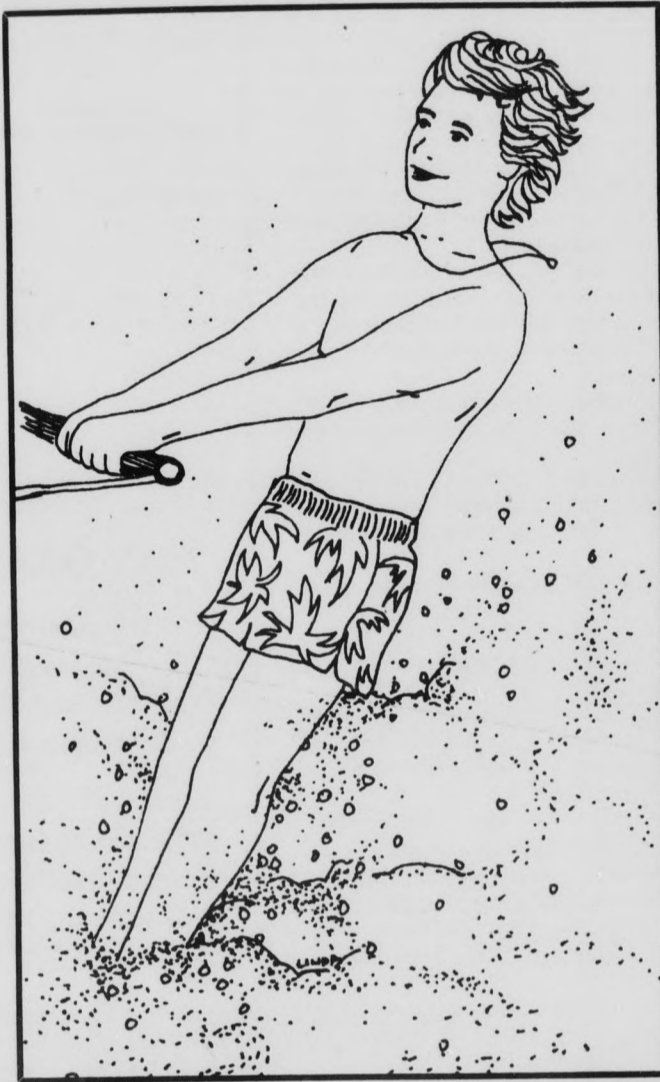

Pederson said the proposal raises the question of whether water ski lakes in Arizona are appropriate ways to use water.

"That's a moot question because the council has given him tentative approval," he added.

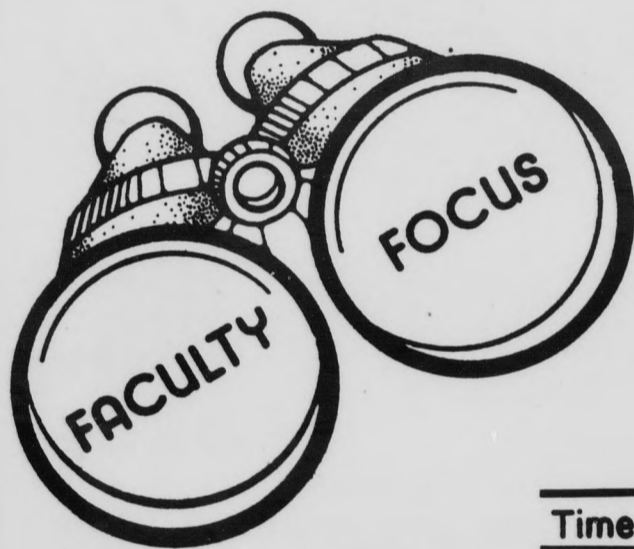

Pederson said he does not know who is selling water rights to Fraser.

"That's a private matter between Mr. Fraser and the owner of the well," he said.

Plencner said at least four council members gave Fraser approval to continue his development plans but "a couple of council members shook their heads no."

Federal Reserve Board, others review America's international fiscal state

By JOHN CONWAY
Staff Writer

America's international financial situation was discussed at ASU recently by the Federal Reserve Board, International Monetary Fund members and university professors from across the United States.

Don Schlagenhauf, associate professor of economics and co-organizer of the conference, said the speakers addressed the foreign debt problem because "it has reared its ugly head again."

"The leading experts on international finance and risk issues are (at the conference)," he said.

The group also discussed the effects that loans to foreign countries have on the American economy and reasons why the dollar is strong compared to foreign currencies, Schlagenhauf said.

ASU's department of economics sponsored the conference, which was organized by Schlagenhauf and Michael Melvin, an economics professor.

Schlagenhauf said he believes legislators will be interested in the data presented during the speeches.

Speeches and comments made during the conference will be published in the Journal of International Finance and Money, he said.

The Barry Goldwater Chair of American Institutions provided most of the money needed to conduct the conference.

According to Albert Karnig, assistant vice president for academic affairs, the Goldwater Chair, which was formed in 1977, is privately funded to bring speakers and temporary faculty members to ASU to inform the University on domestic institutions.

Karnig said the Goldwater Chair's private funds are presented to the Goldwater Board of Trustees and then given to the ASU Goldwater Chair Recruitment and selection committee for two primary purposes.

One reason for the grants is to give Goldwater Chair holders a temporary faculty position so they may interact with students and faculty by giving outside speeches and teaching classes, Karnig said. The money is used in this case to provide for the Chair holder's salary.

Four persons have been named as Goldwater Chair recipients: the late Herman Kahn from the Hudson Institute, followed by the current chair holder, Carol Wise, a Harvard college professor who will be replaced in the spring of 1986 by Arrel Gibson, a historian at University of Oklahoma, he said.

Sen. Barry Goldwater will occupy the chair for the 1987 spring semester, Karnig said.

Economic club to host former Reagan adviser

By CARRI L. MITCHELL
Staff Writer

Martin Feldstein, a former chief economic advisor to President Ronald Reagan, will be speaking at the inaugural dinner of ASU's Economic Club, said Brian Thomas, club coordinator.

The club was formed in January and is designed to enhance the discussion of economic and business ideas among the academic, business, labor and public sectors in the Phoenix area, Thomas said.

The dinner, which is being held at 6:30 p.m. tonight in the Grand Ballroom of the Arizona Biltmore Hotel, is open only to members of the club.

The club plans to have two major speakers per year and six informal forums that will be open to the public, he said.

Thomas said a forum will be held March 28, with Carol Carroda speaking about decision-making at the Federal Reserve Board.

The forums are held in conjunction with one of the academic departments in the College of Business.

"The forums are informal. They're held in the late afternoon so students and business people can attend," Thomas said.

Feldstein will be discussing "Critical Choices for Economic Policies" during the dinner.

Thomas said Feldstein is a noted economist with important ideas on public economic policy and the national debt.

Feldstein is a professor of economics at Harvard University and president of the National Bureau of Economic Research, a private, non-profit research organization.

Feldstein served as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers and President Reagan's chief economic advisor from 1982 until the middle of last summer, according to Thomas.

"He has been on the front line of policy making," Thomas said.

To become a member of the Economic Club, a person must submit a request for membership and pay the $500 annual dues, he said.

"The membership is made up mainly of business education people and community leaders," Thomas said.

The club is sponsored by The Dean's Council of 100 and is headed by a 14-person board of directors. The board is chaired by John Cotton, chairman of Maricopa Partnership Inc., he said.

The club also has named Robert Eggert, president of the Eggert Economic Enterprise of Sedona, Ariz., honorary chairman of the club, he said.

Thomas said Eggert publishes an economic newsletter that forecasts trends in the economy.

Proceeds the club receives will be allocated toward graduate research projects, Thomas said.

The dinner is also being sponsored by the Pulte Home Corporation.

"We're pleased with their support. It shows a commitment to serve a broader aspect of the community," Thomas said.

Priest to give talk on human rights

Father Robert F. Drinan, a law professor, Jesuit priest, former U.S. Congressman and human rights activist, will speak on "The American Lawyer and the Future of International Human Rights" at the Great Hall of the ASU College of Law at 8 p.m. Friday.

Drinan has been a professor of law at the Georgetown University Law Center in Washington, D.C. since 1981 and served as a Congressman in the House of Representatives from the 4th District in Massachusetts from 1971 to 1981.

"Father Drinan is very principled and outspoken, and was considered the conscience of the Congress," said ASU law professor Michael Altman, who was a member of the faculty at Boston College Law School while Drinan was Dean there.

The ASU College of Law and the Newman Catholic Center are sponsoring Father Drinan's appearance in Tempe.

Baseball team sweeps Bruins; Nebraska up next

By JERRY BROWN
Assistant Sports Editor

If the UCLA baseball team has any open dates on its schedule, Arizona State would probably be happy to fill in.

The Devils continued their dominance over the Bruins by sweeping a three-game series over the weekend at Packard Stadium. ASU has now won 12 consecutive games over UCLA.

ASU (12-21, 4-5 conference) opens a three game set with Nebraska tonight at 7 p.m.

Senior Jeff Roberts got the Devils off to a good start Thursday night, scattering five hits over eight innings in a 9-2 win.

Second baseman Rick Morris and first baseman Brent Hahn had three hits apiece for ASU, who totaled 15 on the evening.

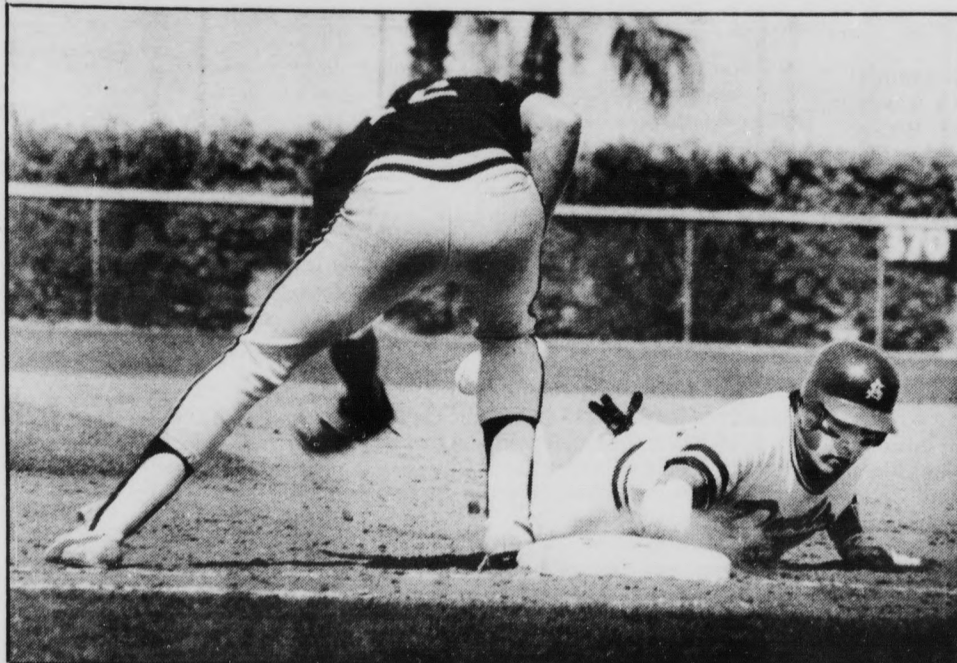

Coach Jim Brock said Roberts has been the most consistent starter for some time and has assumed the role as ace of the staff.

"Roberts has been a rock for us," Brock said. "He is pitching better right now than at any other time. He is our No. 1 guy right now."

Roberts, who has been a slow starter throughout his career, loaded the bases in the first inning against the Bruins but escaped unscathed.

"That is happening less and less to Jeff," Brock said. "He is starting to settle down early. It seems no matter how carefully he warms up, it still happens sometimes. It is just a mental thing."

ASU got all the runs it needed in the first when Hahn singled home Barry Bonds and scored on a double by third baseman George ASU's George Lopez dives back into first base during Saturday's game with UCLA. The Devils defeated the Bruins, 8-1, to complete a three-game sweep at Packard Stadium.

Lopez. Lopez came home on catcher Don Wakamatsu's single to put ASU up, 3-0.

Roberts protected the lead, giving up single runs in the third and eighth before yielding to Bill Dodd, who set the Bruins down in order in the ninth.

The Devils made it two in a row Friday night by coming from behind and dumping UCLA 7-6 in a 10-inning, four-hour marathon that included a 22-minute rain delay.

UCLA picked up a pair of unearned runs in the second and fourth innings and two more on catcher Todd Zeile's double in the third off starter Doug Henry.

Henry was relieved by Charles Scott after he walked the first two batters to open the fifth. Scott worked out of the jam and proceeded to shut out the Bruins on four singles the rest of the way.

ASU began their comeback with a run in the fourth and cut the lead to 6-3 on a two-run double by shortstop Keith Bennett.

ASU tied the score during the rain-delayed seventh inning, the final two coming on Wakamatsu's two-run double.

The Devils won the game in the tenth when Hahn beat out a double-play ball with the bases loaded as Bennett scored. Bruin coach Gary Adams argued the call, the play stood and ASU had an opportunity to record their first conference sweep of the season.

They did not waste it.

Freshman Kurt Dempster became only the second ASU pitcher to go the distance this season, giving up only four hits as the Devils won easily, 8-1.

"Dempster really was great," Brock said. "It was a big lift to see him go all the way. We only gave up four earned runs in the whole series, and that shows this staff is capable of overpowering people."

Brock said he will use the same three starters again unless unusual circumstances arise.

"Unless someone tries to stack a lineup with left-handers against Dempster (a left-handed pitcher) or something like that, we will stay with these guys," Brock said. "They have been doing the job."

Urbano wins NCAA wrestling crown; Sun Devils finish 6th

By MICHAEL KONZ
Sports Writer

Senior Eddie Urbano defeated Jim Heffernan of Iowa 4-1 in the final round of the 150-pound class to become the first ASU wrestler to win a national championship in 18 years, leading the Sun Devils to a sixth-place finish with 50 3/4 points in the national wrestling tournament in Oklahoma City.

Heavyweight Curley Culp won an NCAA title in 1967. Iowa won its eighth consecutive NCAA team championship with 145 3/4 points. Oklahoma finished second with 98 1/2 points.

Coach Bobby Douglas praised the team's and Urbano's performance.

"It was an outstanding performance," Douglas said. "It was the highlight of my career as a coach."

"Eddie Urbano is the greatest wrestler I've ever coached. He proved that. He's a very unique guy."

Urbano was one of five Sun Devils to earn All-America status by finishing in the top eight.

"Out of nine wrestlers, four guys were out," Douglas said. "We didn't wrestle like we were capable of. After the first day, I wasn't sure if we'd make the top 10."

But the Sun Devils recovered the second day. "Our conditioning started to show the second day," Douglas said. "We began to wear people down. We came from behind in seven matches to win."

Douglas gave several reasons for Park's weight problem. "It could have been a situation where we miscalculated the time he had to get it down," Douglas said. "Then we had a problem with dehydration. Making weight is a problem. He was in a strange environment. It was a different situation."

Douglas said there would be several long-range benefits from ASU's finish at the national meet.

"It's a big shot in the arm for recruiting," he said. "It lifted the image of ASU wrestling in America's eyes. It's not so much where we finished as how we finished. After it was over, people respected the way we wrestled."

Junior Gary Bairos finished eighth in the 126-pound class. He forfeited the 7th-place match to Rob Johnson of Louisiana State because of an injury.

Senior Tom Draheim (158 pounds) took fifth place by defeating Ernie Blaziff of Michigan State, 3-2. Senior Tom Kolopus (177) lost to Rico Chiapparelli of Iowa, 10-7, to finish sixth.

Heavyweight Rod Severn defeated Al Sears of Southern Illinois, 10-6, to finish seventh.

Douglas said Tom Draheim wrestled better than expected. "Everyone was surprised with Tom Draheim's performance," he said. "He, in my opinion, is the most improved wrestler on the team. He picked up the slack and picked up the momentum after the first day."

ASU's position was shaky after the first day. Freshman Chip Park (118) was disqualified because he didn't make weight. Jim Gressley (167), Bairos and Severn lost matches.

Men cagers drop last game to Cats

Round-up

The ASU men's basketball team dropped its final game of the season March 9 to Arizona in Tucson, 68-48. The Wildcats' victory helped propel the U of A into the NCAA tournament. The Sun Devils finished the season 12-16 overall and 7-11 in Pac-10 play. The loss was ASU's fourth in a row to the Wildcats, and the second straight 20-point loss in Tucson.

Women cagers end skid — The ASU women's basketball team broke a five-game losing streak March 8 with a season-ending 80-66 victory over U of A in Tucson. Seniors Beckie Smatana and Barb Smith, playing their final games as Sun Devils, led the Devils with 23 and 12 points respectively. The win lifts ASU into sixth place in the final WCAA standings with a 3-11 conference mark, 11-16 overall.

Golfers fall — The ASU women's golf team rallied to finish in a second-place tie with Florida International in the Betsy Rawls Invitational in Austin, Texas. Tina Tombs' eighth-place score of 77-71-76—224 led the Devils to a three-round score of 913, well behind Tulsa's 891. The Devils finished only three strokes out of fifth place.

Netters drop three — Struggling through the most difficult week on schedule, the 14th-ranked ASU women's tennis team fell to three Top 10 teams. Despite Sheri Norris and Carol Coparanis teaming for doubles victories against top-ranked Stanford on March 9 and No. 2 Southern California on March 10, the Devils dropped a pair of 7-2 decisions on their homecourt. Thursday ASU traveled to the coast and suffered the first shutout of the season, 9-0 against No. 7 San Diego

State. The Aztecs, who have beaten the Devils three times this year, dropped ASU's record to 11-7 overall and 1-5 in the WCAA.

Gymnasts rally — Jackie Brummer's all-around victory led the ASU women's gymnastics team to victory in a four-team meet March 9 at the Activity Center. The second-ranked Sun Devils rallied in the final event to overcome a slight lead held by No. 5 Alabama. ASU's 187.45 topped the Crimson Tide (185.60), Arizona (182.60), and Minnesota (180.30).

Women tracksters dominate — Although no team scores were kept, the ASU women's track team easily outperformed smaller colleges in the Sun Devil Open on March 9. Tam Foster won the 400-yard dash in 56.28 and Theresa Barrios and Sarah Krumme finished one-two in the 5,000-yard run. Krumme finished the race in 18:33, a lifetime best, while Barrios won in 18 minutes.

Men's tennis team wins three — The ASU men's tennis team scored easy victories in three non-conference matches. The Sun Devils defeated Regis College 9-0 on March 7, NAU 9-0 on March 8 and Idaho 6-0 on March 11.

Baseball team wins first conference game — The ASU baseball team snapped a five-game conference losing streak March 10 when they defeated California, 16-6, at Packard Stadium. The Sun Devils managed to win the game without coach Jim Brock, who was ejected after an argument with an umpire during the game.

ASU earlier lost two games to the Golden Bears, 8-3 and 13-5.

The Devils then traveled to California for a two-game series with Cal-Santa Barbara, losing 9-1 and 7-5.

Devil swimmer, diver named all-conference

Two ASU women swimmers have been named to the all-WCAA swimming and diving second team.

Freshman swimmer Caroline Cast and sophomore diver Tracy Cox were the two Sun Devils honored.

Cast currently has the conference's second-best time in the 200-yard butterfly at 2:00.84.

Cox finished second in the conference diving championships.

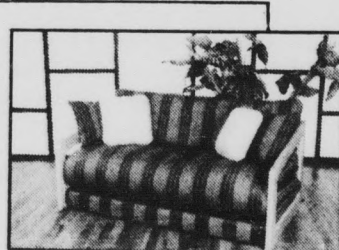

Stanford headed the all-conference team with four women — Stacy Shupe, Patty Gavin, Kathy Smith and Jean Meyer.

USC's Sue Habernigg and Annis Andersson and UCLA's Diane Graner round out the first team.

Men netters drop 2 Pac-10 matches

By MICHAEL KONZ
Sports Writer

The ASU men's tennis team lost Pac-10 contests to USC, 8-1, and California, 5-4, at the Whiteman Tennis Center Friday and Saturday.

The Trojans dominated the Sun Devils by sweeping the singles matches.

Only Andy Roediger and Jim Baumann took their opponents to three sets. Roediger lost 4-6, 7-5, 7-6 (8-6) to George Lozano, and Baumann lost to Rick Leach 1-6, 6-3, 6-3.

The doubles team of Roediger and Keith Thomas kept ASU from being shut out. They defeated Leach and Tim Pawsat 6-7, 6-3, 7-5.

But two straight-set defeats ended ASU's rally.

ASU was tied at three matches after the singles competition against California, but the Bears won two of the doubles matches for the victory.

ASU fell behind early as Thomas lost to Steve DeVries 6-4, 6-1, but Roediger beat Chris Shoop by the same score.

Stan Perry defeated Brian Flowers 7-5, 3-6, 6-3 to put ASU up by one.

After Dewey Grattan lost to Peter Wright in three sets, Brien Sullivan defeated Don Leone 6-2, 7-6.

California tied the score as Doug Winter defeated Jeff Karp 6-3, 6-3.

Thomas and Roediger lost the first doubles match in straight sets. Baumann and Perry won by default after winning the first set 7-6 to set up the final and deciding match.

The Sun Devils were not up to it. Flowers and Ted Sherman beat Mike Holten and Karp 6-0, 6-3.

ASU plays Weber State today at 1:30 in a non-conference match at the Whiteman Tennis Center.

Men tracksters 'hammer' school record in opener

By BRAD HALVORSEN
Sports Writer

The ASU men's track team set two school records on its way to a successful performance in its outdoor season-opener, a non-scoring meet against Kansas State and Brigham Young Saturday at Sun Angel Stadium.

"I'm very pleased with everybody in the field events and on the track," said coach Mike Gray, making his debut as the Sun Devils' head man. "I'm happy. We've got some work to do, but we're going to be very competitive."

Terry Payne opened the day with a record-breaking 185-foot hammer throw in the meet's first event. Minutes later, the Devils' Dave Ryer shattered Payne's mark with a toss of 197 feet, 4 inches.

ASU's Jim Camp won both of his events, recording 61-2 $\frac{3}{4}$ feet in the shot put and 174 feet in the discus.

Other ASU winners included Kenny Robinson in the 100-meters, Eddie Davis in the 800-meters, Treg Scott in the 1,500-meters, and the 4x400-meter relay team of McArthur Osborne, Gary Geyer, Davis and Bernard Mathis.

Women show track strength

By MICHAEL KONZ
Sports Writer

The ASU women's track and field team defeated Kansas State but lost to Brigham Young and Southern California in a multiple dual-meet at the Sun Angel Stadium Saturday.

"I'm delighted," coach Roger Kerr said. "In the field events we were devastated but we made up for it on the track. We are going to be very good on the track this year."

The mile relay team came from behind in the last leg to defeat USC with a time of 3:46.80, the fastest time in four years according to Kerr.

Marbella Washington's time of 23.77 in a third-place finish in the 200-meters was the fastest ASU time in five years.

Cathy Miller finished third in the 100-meter hurdles in a time of 14.58.

"She ran two excellent hurdle races," Kerr said.

Tamika Foster's time of 55.70 in the 400-meters was half a second better than her previous best.

Smatana named all-WCAA

ASU's Beckie Smatana, a senior forward, has been honored as an all-WCAA honorable mention choice in basketball. Smatana, whose .538 field goal percentage ranked fifth in the WCAA, is the only Sun Devil to win all-conference honors.

USC's Cheryl Miller was named the conference's most valuable player. Joining Miller on the first team were Kirsten Cummings and Cindy Brown of Cal State-Long Beach, Meg Gallagher of Cal State-Fullerton and Jackie Joyner of UCLA.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER

To protect you, calls charged to your number will have to meet with your approval.

We want to protect you from fraud or mistakenly having long distance calls billed to your number. So we require verification on all pay phone calls billed to a third number. That means if your number is to be billed, an operator will ask either you or someone at your home or business to approve each call when it's made. If the line is busy or nobody answers, the operator won't complete the call.

If you place a third number call yourself, you do have billing alternatives. You can call collect or pay for it in coin. The fastest, easiest way, however, is to charge the call to a Mountain Bell Calling Card.*

But should someone want to charge a call to you, we'll make sure it meets with your approval. That way, calls you don't want to pay for aren't made at your expense.

For the way you live.
