

Election coverage starts today

The State Press begins coverage today of the 1985 Associated Students of ASU administrative elections. Coverage begins on page 8 with profiles of the four candidates running for the office of activities vice president. Coverage continues throughout the week with articles on:

- Candidates for the office of campus affairs vice president Tuesday.
- Candidates for the office of executive vice president Wednesday.
- Candidates for ASASU president Thursday.

Scores higher on new teacher test

By VICKIE CHACHERE
Staff Writer

The number of students successfully completing the Arizona Teacher Proficiency Exam has increased since a second version of the test was implemented in January, according to the assistant state superintendent of education.

Dave Bolger said an ASU College of Education study concludes that the number of students passing the exam increased 20 percent.

Naomi Wamacks, assistant dean of the College of Education, conducted the study but could not be reached for comment.

Bolger said 316 students who have taken the test since January were included in the study.

"During that particular time period, the passing rate has increased from 60 percent to 80 percent," Bolger said.

In a study completed by the State Department of Education last year, 56.5 percent of the prospective teachers passed the grammar portion of the exam, 79.9 percent passed the reading test, and 87.2 percent successfully completed the math portion.

Students must correctly answer 80 percent of the questions to pass.

The second version of the test is similar to the original ATPE and is scaled in the same manner, Bolger said.

He said the questions were drawn from the same source as the questions on the original test and there is no indication the revised exam is easier than the original.

Bolger not know if students retaking the test accounted for the better scores.

Chemistry professor honored by Taiwan group

By NICOLE MASSIE
Staff Writer

ASU Professor Sheng Hisien Lin has been chosen as a member of The Chinese Academy of the Republic of China, which recognizes achievement in the field of science.

Lin, a chemistry professor, said he was quite surprised at being chosen to the Taiwanese organization.

Of the 50 people nominated from the United States for membership in the academy, he said only three were chosen.

According to Lin, the academy consists of three divisions of study: the humanities; biological and medical sciences; and engineering and physical sciences.

"Chinese scientists and scholars all over the world are eligible for election as members of the Academia Sinica," Lin said.

He said members are elected every two years. The academy has approximately 100 members.

"My main research interest is concerned with the theoretical investigation of fundamental processes related to the interaction between light and molecules," Lin said. "The mechanism regarding the conversion of one form of excitation energy into another."

He said his research involves discovering how a molecule absorbs one or more photons (molecules of light).

Lin is also interested in the method by which light is scattered by molecules, how a molecule can be ionized by the absorption of light, how electronic excitation energy is converted into heat of vibrational energy, and how excitation energy can be transferred by one molecule to another.

He said discovering the answers to these questions would be invaluable to the sciences of photochemistry, which is similar to solar energy; photobiology, similar to the study of photosynthesis; and photophysics, such as laser processes.

Lin received his bachelor's and master's degrees at Taiwan University in 1959 and 1961. He received a doctorate from the University of Utah.

Joining the ASU department of chemistry in 1965, he was made a professor in 1972.

Lin is on the Advisory Board for the Journal of Molecular Sciences, and is the editor for the Advances in Multi-Photon Processes organization.

He is also an editorial advisory committee member for World Scientific Publishing Co. and scientific advisor for the Institute of Atomic and Molecular Sciences of Academia Sinica in Taiwan.

Lin is also a member of the Chinese and American Chemical Societies and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Lin received the ASU Distinguished Research Award for 1983-84, and has published more than 200 papers and seven books.

He said his next goal is to become a member of the American National Academy of Science.

Professor addresses State Department

By MELISSA OLSON
Staff Writer

An ASU political science professor recently spoke at the White House in a Central American policy speaker series that included former Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

Marvin Alisky, 62, spoke on "Mexico's Relations with Central America" to a State Department audience of 425 after being introduced by John Lehman, secretary of the Navy.

In his March 6 talk, Alisky pointed out the goals of Mexico and America in relation to Central America.

Since both countries are creditors and suppliers to Central American republics, they desire the stabilization of the region's economy, he said.

"For the U.S. not to be concerned would be myopic," Alisky said. "This is very close to our part of the world... friendly ports, and shipping lines should be a priority concern."

Alisky said Mexican policy makers' assumption that guerrilla warfare in El Salvador is due to the unequal distribution of income is false, since Mexico suffers the same malady with less conflict.

"There are obviously other factors," Alisky said. "Mexico and the U.S. differ in their perceptions of the problems in Central America."

The Mexicans ignore Cuban and Soviet intervention in Central America while emphasizing the U.S. role, he said, pointing out that there are 8,000 Cuban advisers in Nicaragua.

This attitude of the Mexican government is "not based on a full-perspective analysis and cannot achieve the goal of peace," said Alisky.

Attending Alisky's talk were Mexican affairs officials and delegates from the Mexican consulate. He said the need to be diplomatic caused him to soften his language.

Alisky said his appearance was a result of his last book, "Latin American Media: Guidance and Censorship," that the government sent to many of its consulates for reference.

"The book did the whole damn thing," said Alisky, author of 17 books and monographs on Latin America.

"I was flattered to be among (Haig and Lehman) since I'm not an official. I'm just a hick from the Southwest."

Alisky also received a certificate of excellence from the Defense Department's Office of Latin American Affairs for his 38 years of research on Latin America.

Alisky said the real honor was giving a speech in the State Department.

He also attended a Washington luncheon with Ambassador-designate to Switzerland Faith Whittlesey and four assistants to the president concerned with Western Hemisphere activities.

Alisky has taught at ASU since 1957, and founded the University's Latin American Center 24 years ago.

He writes a syndicated monthly column on Latin America, carried by the Phoenix Gazette and 25 other newspapers nationally.

Reports says Nicaraguan 'contras' killing doctors, razing health units

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S.-backed rebels fighting against Nicaragua have destroyed medical facilities and killed doctors and nurses in a campaign to terrorize the rural population, says a report by an organization of U.S. health workers.

The group charges that 63 health units have been destroyed or forced to close because of attacks by the rebel groups known as "contras."

Dr. David Siegel is co-author of a new report, "Health and the War Against Nicaragua, 1981-1984," which has been released by the Central America Health Rights Network. The other author is Richard Garfield, an epidemiologist at Columbia University in New York.

"The U.S.-backed contras operate largely by terrorizing the population," the report says. "Doctors, nurses, teachers and especially community volunteers have often been kidnapped, tortured, raped or killed by the contras."

The report is based on visits to health facilities and schools and interviews with witnesses, Siegel said. He has been to Nicaragua four times, most recently last October.

Soviet diplomat defects to U.S.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A Soviet diplomat who disappeared on March 17 during his daily morning jog in a New Delhi park has defected to the United States, leaving his wife and daughter behind, an Indian official confirmed Sunday.

Igor Gezha, a third secretary in the embassy's information department, left India and was granted political asylum in the United States, a spokesman for the Indian External Affairs Ministry said. Gezha, 37, was due to return to Moscow later this year.

"The ambassador said the diplomat was either in the U.S. Embassy or had left the country," the spokesman said.

"The American charge d'affaires confirmed the Soviet diplomat left the country and sought asylum at a point outside India," he said. "He was granted asylum in the U.S. and he is safe."

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in New Delhi declined comment, referring inquiries to the State Department.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Brian Carlson had no statement, saying: "We never comment one way or another on asylum."

Report shows young, single women most frequently targets of rape

WASHINGTON (AP) — Young, unmarried women were most frequently the target of the estimated 1.5 million rapes or attempted rapes which took place between 1973-82, the Justice Department said Sunday in a report that it conceded "understates" the crime.

The department's Bureau of Justice Statistics said a compilation of random surveys conducted over the 10-year period showed that blacks were victimized more often than whites, and a woman is twice as likely to be attacked by a stranger as by someone she knows.

Only half of the rapes or attempted rapes were reported to authorities, the study said.

It stated that women who resisted their attackers managed to avoid rape in 73 percent of the cases, but those who submitted were raped 56 percent of the time.

Most offenders were unarmed, according to the report, and the attackers were strangers to the victims about two-thirds of the time.

Justice Department to start attack on affirmative action programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is forging ahead with court challenges to affirmative action plans, but the attacks will be selected on a "case-by-case basis" and will not be disruptive, Attorney General Edwin Meese III said Sunday.

Meese said the department looks favorably upon "set-aside" programs designed to give minority-owned businesses an advantage in winning government contracts.

"The Justice Department and this administration is very much in favor of affirmative action," Meese said. "We have an obligation to go in where there are impermissible quotas" that discriminate against "certain classes of people."

Since June 1984, when the Supreme Court overturned a Memphis, Tenn. decision to lay off white firefighters to protect jobs held by less senior blacks, the Reagan administration has said it has an obligation to oppose such affirmative action programs in similar cases before the courts.

Civil rights groups contend the administration's decision to fight such cases represents a broad attack on efforts to redress decades of discrimination against women, blacks and other minorities.

UBS seeks donors in blood drive, requests aid for prof

By PATRICK J. KUCERA
Staff Writer

The ASU blood drive will be held this week and United Blood Services (UBS) hopes to obtain nearly 1,500 units of blood, a UBS donor research specialist said.

Lori Bonin said the UBS will establish donor sites at most of the same places it has in the previous semesters.

"Every day we will be in the MU upstairs, next to Danforth Chapel and at the corner of Tyler and Palm Malls," Bonin said. "We will be in all the residence halls either this week or next week."

UBS will also have a moving site that will alternate from day to day, Bonin said. On Monday the site will be in the Nursing Building and Thursday it will be near the ROTC headquarters.

Bonin said specialists will be working on the two fraternity rows on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Last semester, ASU students, faculty and staff donated

1,545 units of blood and UBS is hoping for at least 1,500 units this semester, Bonin said.

This time, UBS is hoping most people will not wait until the last day to donate blood because it causes problems, Bonin said.

At the "last blood drive, every one waited until the last minute to donate and it got backed up," she said. "We also got frightened because we didn't have many people donating at the beginning of the week."

She said the last two months have been the biggest blood user months in UBS's history and that it is very important that all people who are eligible to donate as soon as possible.

She said a sponsoring agency of the blood drive is giving away free coupons to donors.

"This year, every one who contributes gets a coupon for a free soda from SAGA," she said.

UBS also gives special recognition to donors who have consistently donated.

"In order to be a gallon donor, you must donate eight times," Bonin said. "After that, you receive a special certificate in the mail from the executive director, and you also receive a lapel pin with our logo and 'one gallon' on it."

She said each gallon donor will receive special awards.

A special feature of the blood drive this semester is an honorary donation center set up in Gammage Center.

"We have a brand new site which is at the Gammage Center," Bonin said. "It is for Steven DeGroot."

DeGroot, an ASU associate professor of music, was injured in a plane crash and required the services of UBS to supply blood to treat his injury.

"It is a way for the community to say that they are thinking of him," she said. "We are using (the site) as a way to restock the blood he used."

Bonin said 622 postcards were sent to students, faculty and staff who registered to donate blood this semester and most should have received their cards or will this week.

police report

A fire broke out in the trash dumpster on the northeast corner of Tempe Center early Saturday, police said. The Tempe Fire Department extinguished the fire and contacted ASU Police. There was no damage to state property and no injuries.

In other activity, University Police reported the following incidents in the 72-hour period ending at 1 a.m. Sunday:

•Someone broke the rear window of a 1985 blue Volvo station wagon while it was parked behind the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity house late Thursday, police said. Damage was estimated at $200.

•The front windshield of a car parked in Lot 37 was shattered by a softball between 3 p.m. and 9 p.m. Friday, police said. Estimated damage is unknown.

•A motorcycle was found Thursday afternoon in a student's room in Hayden Hall, police said. Police told him to move the motorcycle because it violated fire hazard regulations and that if the motorcycle was found in the room again it would be impounded.

•A man tripped and fell in the parking lot of The Good Earth restaurant Friday night, police said. He told police he tripped on the sidewalk edge causing minor injuries to his head, both knees and left hand. He received first-aid from the manager of the restaurant. He also broke his glasses in the fall. Damage was estimated at $50.

•A woman was found sleeping in her car by the equipment room at the practice fields late Saturday, police said. She was warned of trespassing.

•A grey Schwinn Mesa Runner bicycle valued at $215.13 was stolen from Sahuaro Hall March 1, police said.

•A black Schwinn World Sport bicycle valued at $167 was stolen from Palo Verde East Hall sometime between March 7 and March 18, police said.

•An overheated dryer activated the fire alarm on the fifth floor B-Wing of Cholla Apartments late Saturday, police said.

ASU update: all the news that fits the print

Jerry Brown
Asst. Sports Editor

Well, the baton has been passed around the newsroom again and it's my turn to write for Page 4. Sorry if you're expecting to find something that will change your life, but hang on, I heard Echols and Munsil are writing later this week.

If this babe starts to get boring in the middle, just go read a few of the letters to the editor and then come back to it. That's the way I do it.

On the Local Front

•OK, let's start with these gnats. Has everybody had it up to the toupee with them, or what? I ride a bicycle to school in the morning, and these guys make believe my jacket is a runway at Sky Harbor. Never mind the ones that fly in my mouth.

And once they get on you, they won't leave. You try to swat your hand around, but they just ignore you. Then you have to flick them off with your finger — but if you touch them, they fall apart. Now you have gnat guts all over your hand. Beautiful.

I'm usually five minutes late to class combing gnats out of my hair. I mean, somebody get Truly Nolen on the horn.

But the ones that shimmy up your nose are the worst. Have you ever snorted a gnat? Bad news. Now I just tip my head up and blow them out like a rocket. Come in mission control.

•The next guy that tries to shove a flyer in my hand is going down. I looked in my backpack the other day, which is always full of stuff that just isn't mine. I had six Evelyn Woods, three Maranatha churches and a deficiency notice from 1982. Then there was a "personal" invitation to a party at the Devilhouse. I hope I didn't rain on anyone's parade by not showing.

•The new pizza place in the MU gets high marks, even though the carpet makes you feel like you're walking in snow. President Nelson and Vice President Mulhollan were in line behind me the other day. Got to give them credit — they stood in line like everyone else, even when I offered them cuts. Russ asked me if you could get pizza by the slice. I said "You could get it by the slice." He laughed and asked me if I was receiving any financial aid. He's a pal.

Turning to National News

•Anybody catch the newspaper story this weekend about the public high school in New Jersey that banned kissing? If you even give someone a peck on the cheek it will cost you a two-day, in class detention (if that was enforced at ASU, there'd be a couple of people doing life for puckering up.)

I can understand a little of the thinking here. I, too, get a bit perturbed when I see a couple pressed against a kiosk going at it like a couple of hammerhead sharks. But maybe we can compromise on this. How about no open mouths between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.? Just keep it PG-13 during lunch hour, capish?

•I see Jerry Falwell is getting antsy again. Now he wants everyone to avoid 7-11 food stores because they sell porno mags and X-rated flicks under the counter. Good thinkin' Jer.

Never mind the fact that 7-11 forks over about 10 million bucks a year to Muscular Dystrophy and helped wipe out polio before that. Now we know the real truth. It's all been a cover up so they could push a couple of copies of RAW magazine.

Jer, I don't think any of the stores you like are open at 2 a.m. when I need a pack of Ho-Ho's in the worst way. It's like telling everyone to boycott the Chicago Cubs because Harry Caray slams down a few cold ones in the broadcast booth.

Jerry Falwell, this Bud's for you!

International Newmakers at This Hour

•A few quick thoughts on the changing of the guard in the Soviet Union. I kind of liked Konstantin. He looked just like my Uncle Mickey, and he wasn't popping off every five minutes about wanting to bury America. He was too busy trying to breathe.

This new guy looks like trouble. Gorbachev has style. He's the kind of guy who could talk a cop out of a drunken driving charge while he's blowing chunks into the glove compartment. Too bad Reagan is almost out of gas, eligibility-wise. The two of them going head-to-head for eight years — I'd buy a ticket.

And Finally

Well, I guess I'll see ya in about six weeks — fare thee well.

Abortion decision not forced on women by society

Editor:

I am writing in response to a letter titled "Women: please read this..." in the State Press (March 8).

Ms. Kronberg: I am deeply sorry that you made the wrong decision (for you) when you had an abortion. And you are indeed a victim... but not of society, as you seem to think. Abortion is a choice — not a must. You are a victim of your own irresponsibility. Solutions to unplanned pregnancies are one of the most important decisions faced by women today. Had you thought about the consequences of either completing or aborting an unplanned pregnancy before you conceived. As a woman, you should have taken the responsibility to confront the question that hundreds of women are faced with every year. As you stated in your letter, you made your decision because you were afraid. Perhaps if you had faced the possibility earlier, your fear would not have been as great, and you could have made the right choice. Instead of blaming the right to choose and society, you should realize that you were being irresponsible. And please don't assume that the majority of the female population is also irresponsible.

I was faced with the same situation as you during my first year of college, but with one important distinction. I realized that unplanned pregnancies happened to people who thought "it will never happen to me." And I realized, that like everybody else, that could be me. I had already considered my time of life, my financial situation, and my level of responsibility. When I found out I was pregnant at age 18, I carefully looked at all these factors and at what I wanted to do with my life, and made my decision. I had an abortion, which was the right choice for me.

In your letter, you asked women not to have abortions. I'm asking women to know themselves, to love themselves, and to make their own decisions. Please don't let anyone make it for you. By writing this letter, I am not advising abortion to anyone. That is not my place. I am simply reminding you of your choice and responsibility as a woman... to live to your full potential. And only you know what that is.

University alcohol rules capriciously enforced

Editor:

University rules prohibit alcohol in all university buildings. Liquor is being confiscated at Sun Devil Stadium, and yet at the Activity Center, when there is a concert, liquor bottles are all over the arena; plus, in the locker rooms (which are used by the performers), liquor bottles are carried out by the barrel-full.

Why are there two sets of rules, one for the stadium and one for the Activity Center?

Alumni Association to honor ASU profs

By CARRI L. MITCHELL
Staff Writer

Two ASU faculty members will be honored Thursday night at the University Centennial Founders Day dinner by the ASU Alumni Association, according to Dorothy McWhirter, administrative assistant to the association's director.

Ellamae Branstetter, a nursing professor, will receive the 1985 Faculty Achievement Award, and Karl H. Dannenfeldt, professor of history, will receive the Distinguished Teacher Award, McWhirter said.

The Distinguished Teacher Award is given annually to recognize an outstanding teacher, she said. Professors were nominated by students, faculty and alumni and then selected by a committee from the association.

"It's a nice recognition for all the things you've worked for," Dannenfeldt said.

The Faculty Achievement Award is given to faculty members who have succeeded in off-campus activities.

Ellamae Branstetter

McWhirter said it is usually given for research.

Dannenfeldt said he began working at ASU in 1956. He served as the dean of the College of Liberal Arts from 1963 to 1967 and then became the academic vice president until 1978.

He said he continued to teach while holding the administrative post.

Karl Dannenfeldt

Recipients will receive $1,000 checks and a plaque for their achievements, McWhirter said.

Branstetter began working at ASU in 1958. In 1973 she helped initiate, plan and develop the Community Health Services Clinic at the Vista del Camino Community Neighborhood Center in Scottsdale.

Workshop to offer career preparation

By NICOLE MASSIE
Staff Writer

Career Preparation Week, which will begin April 9, is designed to answer questions and inform students of opportunities available to them as they enter the work force, according to Laurie Barron, director of Women's Services.

Barron said the workshop is being sponsored by Women's Services, which is funded through the Associated Students of ASU. The event will continue for three days, she said.

Speakers from various companies and career fields will highlight topics students may not have been exposed to, but should be aware of concerning their entrance to the work force, she said.

"The workshop will cover aspects of the working world that were not covered at other programs held before at ASU," she said.

A lecture on career exploration in the MU West Cochise Room will open the workshop at noon, Barron said. The speech will be presented by ASU's Counseling and Consultation Office.

The Counseling and Consultation Office is scheduled to present speeches on how the student can choose an employer and what career services are available to them, she said.

On Wednesday, Pat Tillery from Arizona Public Service will talk on how the new employee can understand office politics, she said.

Kaye Settle of Seminar Box Office will also discuss the differences between being an entrepreneur or working for a company, Barron said.

A speech on women's legal rights in the work force will also be presented by Rose Marie Bahe, an ASU Affirmative Action Officer, Barron said.

On the final day of the conference, two lectures will be held in the Apache Room, Barron said.

The first concerns adjusting clothing, hair and make-up from a college look to one more appropriate to the workforce. A company from MGM Makeup will present the topic, she said.

In the second speech, recruiters representing First Interstate Bank, Goldwaters, Digital Equipment Corporation and Mountain Bell will be part of a panel that will relate to students what they look for when hiring, Barron said.

According to Barron, this is the third annual Career Preparation Week held at ASU. She said the conference has previously been held in the fall but has been changed to the spring this year.

She said the program has been helpful to students in the past and she is expecting this year's workshop to be successful with large attendance.

Barron said it is important for students to know the workshop is not restricted to women.

"All students should attend. Men need jobs too," she said.

Activities VP race: Candidates take position

Stories by W. Tim Ahl and Katy McGregor

Mark Isenberg

Increasing library hours and instituting an annual festival to promote ASU are two items Mark Isenberg plans to accomplish if elected Associated Students of ASU activities vice president.

A junior with a double major in political science and geography, Isenberg is proposing that hours at Hayden and Nobel Libraries be extended to 3 a.m. on weekdays and to midnight on weekends.

Isenberg, who is from Phoenix, said a similar plan was implemented in 1983 when he served as campus services director, but ended when he left the position and funding for the extra library hours was cut.

'The film series needs first-rate films, a better sound system and more publicity.'

Isenberg, 21, who served as assistant to the ASASU Activities Vice President this year, said the experience gained from the position has made him qualified for the office.

Serving as assistant was "the next best thing to being activities vice president," he said.

Isenberg is also proposing to start an annual "Spring Fling," modeled after a fair, with rides and booths and featuring a special section to promote ASU.

"Traditions are lacking here at ASU," Isenberg said.

The event had been tried in the past, but was unsuccessful because of rain and poor management, he said.

Funds for the fair could be raised through outside donations instead of University money, said Isenberg, who was homecoming operations chairman in 1984, a job which included soliciting $6,000 in donations. The campus lecture series could also be more beneficial to students if campus organizations and student government worked together on similar projects, he said.

Isenberg said we are currently "dividing our targeted population and resources."

Isenberg suggests working through the Office of Student Life to "pull together all our resources and provide excellent programs for all the (student) population."

The Neeb Hall Film Series can also be improved by better publicity, an improved sound system, and more "first-rate films," he said.

"I would eventually like to see the Neeb Hall Film Series become self-sufficient," he said.

Isenberg also served as ASASU elections director and is a member of the Student Alumni Association.

James Emmelkamp

Speakers and concert groups should be diversified and well-rounded so they will attract more people to Associated Students of ASU events, according to James Emmelkamp, a candidate for the office of activities vice president.

Emmelkamp said Friday that a large committee of approximately 20 people should be in charge of selecting big-name speakers to invite to ASU.

"There is a need for big-name speakers, but I can't promise anybody specific because that would be deceiving students," he said.

'We need to entertain the students and give them a chance to relieve stress.'

Emmelkamp, 21, said he also plans to attract more students by placing a large activities board in the MU to advertise events in a centralized location.

The bulletin board might also give ASASU the chance to inform commuter students about events on campus, he said.

Emmelkamp, the activities vice president for the Residence Hall Association, said the main purpose of the ASASU post is to give students a chance to receive quality entertainment on campus.

"We need to entertain the students and give them a chance to relieve the stress of the classroom," he said. "We need to get students motivated and emphasize student spirit."

The Political Union recently formed through ASASU also gives the activities vice president a chance to help educate students by presenting current events forums, he said.

Emmelkamp said he also has plans to coordinate film programs at the Cinema Tree (Neeb Hall) and the MU to help offset the $15,000 deficit being created by the two theaters.

Because some of the showings are free, a financial loss is expected. But Emmelkamp said ASASU could save money by making sure the same films aren't offered, and by holding only the larger premieres at the Cinema Tree theater.

Emmelkamp, a junior majoring in computer information systems, said his leadership skills and experience in planning events for the Residence Hall Association make him a strong candidate for the job.

"I have experience and I am dedicated to putting in the time," he said. "I will put in the extra hours and work for the students."

"ASASU exists to satisfy student needs and the activities vice president plays an important role in that job."

STUDENT LIFE

R.E.A.C.H.

Research Educate Advise Counsel Help

R.E.A.C.H. STAFF APPLICATIONS ARE NOW BEING ACCEPTED FOR THE FALL SEMESTER OF 1985.

The R.E.A.C.H. Staff is an organization of paraprofessionals who assist Student Life in their efforts to provide informational services to students on campus.

The R.E.A.C.H. staff will be trained to become familiar with, and provide information on:

- ASU policies and procedures
- Student Organizations
- Referral services
- And the campus community at large. In addition, the paraprofessional staff will provide peer counseling and advice to fellow students.

If you are interested in becoming a candidate for our R.E.A.C.H. Program and you will be a sophomore, junior or senior by Sept. 1985, we invite you to submit your application.

Applications are now available in Student Life at the R.E.A.C.H. desk, Lower Level of the Memorial Union, Room 48.

Deadline for applications is 10 a.m., April 12, 1985.

Propositions on films, lecture series and other student issues

John Anton

The next Associated Students of ASU activities vice president needs to increase the publicity of campus speakers and bring more classic and "first-run" films to the Neeb Hall Film Series, according to John Anton, a junior campaigning for the office.

He is also proposing a spirit committee for ASU activities, such as football games, in which one campus organization will be in charge of getting the students "spirited" for the week of the game.

One thing thing committees could do is help students "learn the ASU fight song,"

'His "office door would always be open" so he can hear students' needs.'

Anton said.

Majoring in finance and economics, Anton is proposing more money for the film budget and more publicity for lectures, movies, and concerts be made available, especially to commuter students who spend less time on campus.

Anton, 21, said he would work towards bringing in one speaker every college could "relate to."

"I would help work with college councils and students to bring in speakers," Anton said.

In order to make a smooth transition of department heads under the activities vice president, Anton has suggested a program in which directors from each department file a report and work with incoming students for a week to train them.

The activities vice president also oversees the Political Union and the ASASU lecture series.

Anton said there is a "controversy" over the MU theater and Neeb Hall Film Series and the administration will decide whether the Neeb Hall budget will stay under the supervision of the activities vice president.

Anton said he would like to see the Neeb Hall Film Series remain under ASASU.

As chairman of the Centennial Homecoming Parade last semester, Anton said the operation was completely funded through donations and no ASASU funds were used.

Anton said his "office door would always be open" so he can hear students needs.

If elected, Anton would also like to see the continuation of the activities "hotline" established under the activities department this year. The "hotline" helps students keep aware of campus events.

Anton is also a member of Devil's Advocates, a group that gives campus tours and promotes ASU and the Sigma Nu fraternity.

Darren Chuckry

The Associated Students of ASU activities vice president must increase co-sponsorship of speakers between campus organizations and the ASASU lecture series, and expand the intramural sports program at ASU, said candidate Darren Chuckry on Friday.

Chuckry said intramurals has recently been made a top priority by the University administration.

"Now we (ASASU) need to show more commitment to the program," said Chuckry, a sophomore with a double major in marketing and finance.

A new board controlling the lecture series

'Our purpose is to provide a dichotomy of programs for the student population.'

is being created to promote a more diverse representation of students, he said.

"In the past, the lecture series has been very independent," he said.

The board will include input from the directors of minority affairs and women's affairs, he said.

Chuckry said the scheduling of activities must work within the constraints of the lecture series budget and could bring in more prominent speakers if campus organizations helped finance activities with ASASU.

Co-sponsorship of activities will also lead to more involvement from students, he said.

Chuckry said he also hopes to get to know many organization leaders through the senate, which finances many campus clubs.

"The purpose of ASASU is to provide a dichotomy of programs to educate, culture and entertain the ASU student population," Chuckry said.

In order to benefit commuter students,

Chuckry is proposing half-price tickets for people attending activities at the recently acquired ASU Sundome.

Chuckry, 20, is also suggesting that the Neeb Hall Film Series and the Memorial Union Activities Board Film Series combine to form stronger and more diversified programs.

"Neeb Hall hasn't met its revenue lines or crowd expectation," he said.

The Associated Student Production, which assists in producing concerts at ASU, recently had its budget increased by $10,000, he said. Because of this, an increase in programming and student-produced concerts should occur.

Chuckry is the director of ASASU's Political Union, and in the past has served as Palo Verde West Hall president, executive producer of the "Girls of ASU" calendar, and on the Residence Hall Association executive board.

Consultant offers various tactics to use to counteract attempted sexual assault

By DOUG NEWMAN
Staff Writer

The importance of planning now about what to do if "it happens to you" was stressed in a presentation delivered Thursday by Citizens Against Crime.

"We discuss a lot of preventive measures a person should follow and alternatives to employ if someone should try to attack you," said Trish Willoughby, a certified consultant from CAC.

"All the information we pass on is approved by various law enforcement agencies, attorneys general and the FBI," said Thera Huish, another certified consultant.

If attacked, do not cry "rape," cry "fire," so people will respond, Huish said.

"That way people will want to get involved," she said.

"It's absolutely un-American not to go to a fire," she said. "You've got to attract people."

Huish told women that if they should be attacked on the street, "don't fight back, it only excites them."

Instead, Huish suggested running toward the nearest lighted house, hitting the door as hard as possible and yelling, "Fire."

"Don't worry," she said. "They'll answer."

If someone pulls a gun during an attack, the smartest action would be to act exactly as the attacker, Huish said.

'Huish strongly urged women to carry mace in their purses as a means against a possible attack.'

"Have the courage to find out what the attacker really wants," said Huish.

"Once you know that, you have options," she said. Huish recommended having something clever to say if a woman is ever approached by a strange man.

An example she gave during her presentation was, "I was just on the way to the VD clinic to get a shot."

Huish said the object of these tactics is to surprise the attacker and to increase his risk more than yours.

Another method Huish recommended for deterring rapists is to eat a few clods of grass.

"You will promptly regurgitate," she said. "If you are vomiting all over yourself, you are not attractive."

"If you are defecating and urinating, so much the better," Huish said.

She said fighting is not worth it, "unless all else fails."

A recommended fighting method is using thumb pressure to knock out the assailant's eyeballs.

"It's not nice, but it could save your life," she said.

Huish strongly urged women to carry mace in their purses as a weapon against a possible attack.

She said that high school students in Houston, Texas, are allowed to carry mace to school because of the high crime rate in some areas.

"If my son had a paper route, I wouldn't let him go out on his deliveries without some mace," she said.

Huish demonstrated a can of mace which can be carried on a key chain.

Junior electrical engineering major Kori Dabbs, who arranged for the CAC to visit ASU had first witnessed the presentation at a meeting of the Tempe Jaycees.

"I was always looking for methods of crime prevention and I did not know the answers," she said.

"(The CAC) has changed my habits quite a bit," she said.

Willoughby said more information about free crime prevention classes is available from 833-1888.

"More people spend time planning Sunday dinner than what they would do in case they are attacked," Huish said.

African famine results in increase of volunteers for Peace Corps positions

By the College Press Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The famine in Africa has inspired an unprecedented number of students to inquire about joining the Peace Corps in recent weeks.

More than 12,000 prospective recruits — as many as 8,000 of them college students — have called the agency since Jan. 10, when it launched an appeal for workers with agricultural-related skills to help combat the famine in Africa.

Nearly a month after the recruitment drive was launched, calls are still coming in at three times the normal rate.

The interest has been so strong that the agency may meet its recruitment goals for the first time in 24 years, Peace Corps officials said.

"It's incredible what we've created," said press officer Ron DeFore. "We're breaking all records, both for quantity and quality."

DeFore acknowledged the unprecedented response is almost entirely attributed to widespread publicity in recent months of the extreme famine conditions across much of Africa.

"Now it seems we've reawakened the American population as a whole to the fact that the Corps is still alive."

DeFore estimates that nearly 70 percent of the volunteers for the agriculture assistance programs are college seniors.

Normally, the Corps fills in only about 60 percent of the vacancies in its agriculture assistance programs.

This year, the agency is trying to fill 600 positions for the spring and summer programs in that division of Africa.

"It's most likely we'll fill them all," DeFore said.

Moreover, DeFore said the agency may even be able to send more volunteers to its programs in South America, Central America, Asia and the Pacific.

Men qualify 3 more for Pac-10s with easy victory

By BRAD HALVORSEN
Sports Writer

The ASU men's track team had a field day Saturday at Sun Angel Stadium, thrashing New Mexico and the University of Texas-El Paso in what was projected to be a close meet.

The Devils trounced New Mexico 110-52 and thumped UTEP 105-48 in the three-team meet with dual scoring. UNM edged the Miners 82-78 in the final pairing.

"I thought the meet would be a lot closer," coach Mike Gray said about ASU's first scoring meet. "I'm very pleased at the progress we've made and I think we're right where we should be."

The Devils dominated the track, winning all nine non-hurdle running events and qualifying three more runners for the Pac-10 championships. ASU has now qualified 10 athletes in 12 events for the conference meet.

Saturday's qualifiers were: Mike Stahr, 3:48.6 in the 1,500-meters; McArthur Osborne, 47.7 in the 400-meters; Kenny Robinson, 20.8 in the 200-meters.

Robinson was perhaps the highlight of the day for the Devils, winning the 100-meters with ease with a 10.3 and edging teammate Darryl Clack in the 200-meters with both Devils being timed at 20.8.

"Yeah, I knew I had beat him," Robinson said. "I was worried coming around the turn, he was a ways out there and I thought he might take it. But it really didn't matter; just as long as one of us from ASU won the race."

The Devils' co-captains, Eddie Davis and Ron Kamaka, each won their main events. Davis stayed in the middle of the pack in the 800-meters before catching leader Felix Radrai of New Mexico in the backstretch of the final lap and won going away in 1:52.1.

Kamaka nearly set a new personal record in the high jump while winning the event with his jump of 7-2 $\frac{3}{4}$. Kamaka has already qualified for the Pac-10 finals, and needed to clear 7-3 $\frac{1}{2}$ to qualify for the NCAA championships.

But he elected to go for 7-4.

"I opted to go for 7-4 because it would have been a P.R. for me," Kamaka said. "I didn't think the half-inch would make that much of a difference."

Would he have made it at 7-3 $\frac{1}{2}$?

"It's hard to say," Kamaka said. "I was just grazing the bar at 7-4, so I might have. But I don't regret going for 7-4."

Jim Camp won the shot put and placed second in the discus despite missing the entire week in practice due to an illness.

"We told him to go out there and take one throw (in the shot put) and that's all he needed to win it," Gray said.

Camp threw 56-8 in the put and 172-8 in the discus, where he passed by most of his throws.

ASU finished 1-2 in every sprint, capped by a tight 400-meter race. Osborne and Bernard Mathis were neck-and-neck coming down the stretch, but Osborne put his teammate away at the end for the victory. Mathis' 48.0 missed the conference qualifying mark by .3 seconds.

The Devils cleaned up in the distance events, winning and placing third in the 1500-meters, 5,000-meters and the steeplechase.

Stahr eclipsed the Pac-10 qualifying mark by .4 seconds while winning the 1,500 with Tom Williams behind in third. Dan Fisher breezed to victory by over 30 seconds in front of New Mexico's Phil Armijo in the 5,000-meters with teammate Mike Scannell in third.

Scannell came from off the pace to take the lead with four laps to go to win the steeplechase in 9:08.1, with ASU's early leader, Gary Geyer, fading to third.

The Devils won both the 4x100 and the 4x400 relays.

"The sprint relay was just a delight," Gray said. "They're real close to running in the 39s (40.1) and any time you're in the 39s you can run with any team."

The Devils also won the triple jump, with Dave Barlia's leap of 47-5 outdistancing New Mexico's Fidel Ndyabagye's jump of 47-1 $\frac{3}{4}$. Barlia also finished third in the javelin.

The Devils' hammer throwers finished a respectable second and third after setting new school records last weekend.

UTEP's Tore Johnson, the world record holder in the 35-pound hammer throw, won easily with a throw of 225-9. ASU's Dave Ryer placed second at 193-9 with Terry Payne in third with a new personal-best of 188-5.

In the pole vault, ASU's Cedric Fullard finished second for the second week in a row by virtue of fewer misses. Fullard, the 1984 national prep champion, cleared 15-6 along with UTEP's George Barber.

"Our vaulters have to go higher and we have to do better in the long jump," Gray said. "Those are two areas where we have to improve, but that's about it."

Staff photo by Kip Williams

The 4x100-meter relay team at ASU pleased coach Mike Gray by clocking in at 40.1 seconds Saturday to win. Here Kenny Robinson passes off to Robert Hess.

Runners strong enough to lead women to win

By MICHAEL KONZ
Sports Writer

The ASU women's track and field team won six running events and stayed close enough in the field events to come from behind and win a triangular meet Saturday against Kansas and the University of Texas-El Paso at Sun Angel Stadium.

The Sun Devils won the meet with 63 points. Kansas finished second with 62 $\frac{1}{2}$ points, and UTEP came in third with 49 $\frac{1}{2}$ points.

Coach Roger Kerr said his team's attitude was the key to the victory.

"The attitude this team has is the best attitude of any of my teams in the last four years," Kerr said. "These kids don't know they can't win, so they go out and do it."

Kerr said Pam Brown typified this new-found attitude.

"Pam Brown hasn't long-jumped this season," he said. "We're hurting in the long jump, so she says she'll do it. She takes six jumps, and with no rest, runs the quarter-mile (400-meters) and runs the fastest time of her life.

"That signifies a really good attitude."

Lynn Nelson's victory in the 5,000-meters gave the Sun Devils their first win of the meet. Nelson won with a time of 17:28.1. Teammate Susan Radford finished third in 18:04.7, and Sarah Krumme took sixth in 18:35.6.

"We got a much better mental race out of our distance runners," Kerr said. "Our distance runners have had a good attitude for the past three and a half years."

Nelson's victory was especially reassuring, according to Kerr, because she had been suffering from a tender leg.

"It makes me feel much better," Kerr said. "She said it felt all right after the race."

ASU followed this with a victory in the 4x100-meter relay in a national qualifying time of 45.1 seconds.

Tracy McCarthy kept the Sun Devils close to Kansas with a second-place finish in the javelin, despite having tendinitis in her shoulder.

"She carried us basically by taking throws," Kerr said. "I hope she gets healthy, and I hope she keeps her spirits up."

Cathy Miller won her first race of the day in the 100-meter hurdles in 14.4 seconds. She followed this two hours later with a win in the 400-meter hurdles.

Tamika Foster took second place in the 400-meters with a lifetime best of 55.2 seconds.

Sharon Ware put ASU ahead of Kansas with a victory in the 100-meters.

"Sharon looked very good," Kerr said. "She'll run in the 200-meters next week."

Mette Berger extended the Sun Devil's lead by winning the 800-meters in 2:13.6

"I told her I wanted her to run a tactical race," Kerr said. "Don't take the lead in the first quarter, and then blow them out in the second quarter. She did that. I think she's getting her act together."

In the 3,000-meters, Teresa Barrios only managed a second-place finish.

"I probably have Teresa Barrios out of position," Kerr said. "I felt the 3,000-meters was closer to what she ran in high school. I hoped to get her confidence back. But (Norman) played cat-and-mouse with her, and (Barrios) found herself in the lead after three laps. If she would have followed, she could have run 10 to 15 seconds faster."

Kerr said he will move her to the 5,000-meters.

ASU finished out the meet with a second place finish in the 4x400-meter relay. Kansas' third-place finish ensured the Sun Devil's victory.

Brock out of Sun Devil dugout in Southern Cal series finale

By JERRY BROWN
Assistant Sports Editor

The ASU baseball team split the first two games of a three-game series with Southern California over the weekend, amid controversy which put the ASU baseball program under in-house investigation and coach Jim Brock out of the Sun Devil dugout — at least for now.

Jeff Pentland ran the ballclub in Brock's place Sunday. At deadline, the Devils and Trojans were tied 7-7 after 13 innings. Devil shortstop Bob Drombrowski's grand-slam home run tied the score in the seventh inning.

The Arizona Republic reported Friday the team has been using Nardil, a mood-altering drug which lessens depression and improves stamina. Brock said in a radio interview after Friday night's game that similar practices, "had been going on for at least six years."

Brock managed the club to a 9-7 win Friday night and an 8-3 loss to the Trojans Saturday, but arrived at Dedeaux Field before Sunday's game in street clothes.

Brock answered reporters with "no comment" when asked why he would not suit up and manage the club. Assistant Sports Information Director Mark Brand said Brock was in the stands for a few innings of Sunday's game.

Deputy Athletic Director Frank Sackton said he talked with Brock from Los Angeles Sunday morning. According to Sackton, the ASU coach was upset over a column by Tom Fitzpatrick in Sunday's Republic.

"He called me this morning (Sunday) and was quite concerned about the Fitzpatrick article," Sackton said. "He took it very personally and said he wasn't sure how to deal with it."

"I told him to just continue to do what he's been doing and we'll discuss it when he comes back home on Monday. I heard the radio broadcast after Friday's game, and I thought that he handled everything very well."

Fitzpatrick accused Brock of thinking "the only important thing about being at ASU for a student is hitting the curve ball."

Sackton was not aware that Brock was not managing the club, and said he had no reason to think that Brock would not be in uniform.

"I told him, 'Jim, you're not prescribing the drug to anyone — that isn't your job,'" Sackton said. "But it was very obvious he was upset by the whole thing."

Use of the drug does not violate any Pac-10 rules, which do not mention mood-altering drugs. The drugs are prescribed by Dr. James Gough, the former director of mental health services at ASU.

Sackton said he never heard of Nardil before Friday, and is trying to educate himself about it now.

"I read some material on it and I've found out that it's not a control drug," Sackton said. "It's not a habit-forming drug or a street drug and won't improve the performance of an athlete as well as other drugs."

Villanova's 2nd half knocks out Tar Heels, 56-44

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Harold Pressley, Dwayne McClain and Harold Jensen put Villanova in control with six points each early in the second half and the Wildcats knocked off seventh-ranked North Carolina 56-44 Sunday to advance to the NCAA Final Four.

The Wildcats redeemed themselves in the second half after shooting only 23 percent in the first.

By winning the Southeast Regional championship, Villanova, 23-10, became the second Big East Conference team to reach the national semifinals. The Wildcats will face No. 5 Memphis State, 30-3, at Lexington, Ky., Saturday. Memphis State won the Midwest Regional Saturday 63-61 over Oklahoma.

Villanova, which last appeared in the Final Four in 1971, was led by Pressley with 15 points, McClain and Gary McLain with 11 each and Jensen with 10.

Brad Daugherty had 17 points for North Carolina by hitting a layup.

McCain had the last two baskets to give the Wildcats a 31-26 lead with 14:29 to go.

After North Carolina cut the lead to one on two baskets by Daugherty, Jensen hit three baskets in the 15-to-18-foot range and

It was Villanova's second victory over North Carolina in six meetings, including a loss to the Tar Heels in the 1982 East Regional finals. Villanova also lost to Houston in a regional championship game in 1983 and to Duke in 1978.

It was the second time in three years that North Carolina lost in the regional championship game, following an upset by Georgia in the East finals two years ago. The Tar Heels lost to Indiana in the regional semifinals last year.

Villanova, which finished third in the Big East Conference, had entered the NCAA as the eighth seed and knocked off the region's top-seeded team, Michigan, in the second round and fifth-seeded Maryland Friday.

It was the second time in three years that North Carolina lost in a regional championship, following an upset by Georgia in the East finals two years ago.

Carolina.

North Carolina, 27-9, led 22-17 at the half.

Villanova trailed 26-21 after Daugherty hit a layup two minutes into the second half before Ed Pinckney started a 10 point spurt Pressley added two more, including a slam dunk off of a steal, that provided a 43-33 lead with 8:13 to play.

North Carolina was never able to get closer than seven points the rest of the way.

Redmen reserve spot in Final Four by downing Wolfpack

DENVER (AP) — Swingman Chris Mullin scored 25 points and forward Walter Berry added 19 as third-ranked St. John's defeated North Carolina State 69-60 Sunday in the NCAA West Regional final, sending the Redmen to a Final Four rematch with No. 1 Georgetown.

St. John's, 31-3 and the top seed in the West, will be in the Final Four for the first time since 1952, when it lost to Kansas in the championship game.

The Redmen's victory capped a successful day for the Big East Conference, which will send a record three teams to the national semifinals Saturday at Lexington, Ky. Villanova joined St. John's and Georgetown by upsetting North Carolina 56-44 in the Southeast Regional championship game and will meet Metro Conference champion Memphis State in the other semifinal.

St. John's, which hit 25 of 31 free throws to 18 of 23 for N.C. State, didn't pull away from North Carolina State until the final two minutes.

Mullin's rebound basket and two subsequent free throws staked the Redmen to a 47-42 advantage midway through the second half. To that point, the Redmen had converted all 13 of their free-throw attempts.

With 6:18 left, the 6-foot-6 Mullin in a mismatch against State's 5-7 guard Anthony "Spud" Webb went inside for a three-point play. A minute later he popped a 15-foot jumper over Webb to give St. John's a commanding 56-48 lead.

The Wolfpack got no closer than four points after that, even though St. John's free-throw shooting was shaky down the stretch, missing five of the last 14, most in the final two minutes.

Lorenzo Charles, who started slowly and didn't score his first points until late in the first half, led a Wolfpack rally early in the second half as his team drew within 43-42 with 11:21 to play. But a collapsing St. John's defense inside held Charles to only two points the remainder of the game and he finished with a team-high 15. Webb had 14 for the Wolfpack, 23-10.

Center Bill Wennington added 14 for St. John's.

Softball team manages 1 victory in 3 attempts

By BOB HEILER
Sports Writer

The ASU softball team went one for three this weekend at the Pony tournament, a contest that brought eight top-10 teams to Los Angeles, Calif.

The team's first game, a 4-0 loss to Fresno State, threw ASU into the losers' bracket of the double-elimination tournament. The losing pitcher, senior Laura Houle, threw 5 1/3 innings, then was relieved by sophomore Cheryl Persinger. According to coach Mary Littlewood, however, the loss should be chalked up to poor offensive output.

"The reason we lost was because we were extremely tentative at the plate," Littlewood said. "We had only one hit the whole game. Laura only gave up three hits, but our offense and a few errors cost us."

The team then defeated San Diego State 3-0, behind winning pitcher Lisa Martin. Martin, a freshman, pitched the whole game, striking out three and giving up only four hits and no runs.

"Yolanda Moreno was our power at the plate in that game," Littlewood said. "She went two for four including a triple with two runners on in the fifth inning. She drove in the other run with a single in the seventh."

The team then lost to the University of Oklahoma, 3-2, with Houle again getting the loss. Persinger started the game and threw five innings to a 2-2 tie, then Houle relieved her.

"Cheryl pitched until the fifth inning, and gave up only two runs and four hits," Littlewood said. "They were starting to hit her, though, so I thought that a change would be good. But Laura was not pitching very well, so they hit her, too. I think I probably just picked the wrong time to make the switch."

Moreno again aided the offensive effort by going two for three with one run batted in. Persinger went one for three with an RBI.

"Offensively I would have to say Yolanda was our power this whole week," Littlewood said. "She had a lot of hits in the clutch. She's a good hitter. She was batting about .250 before this weekend."

With conference games coming up next week, Littlewood is considering what to do with her pitching staff, which is without the services of junior Pam White due to academic ineligibility.

"This week I think I'm going to have to pitch Lisa more," Littlewood said. "I think I've been expecting too much from Cheryl, asking her to play all over the field."

Persinger has been alternating between pitcher, outfield and shortstop since White has been ineligible.

Defense negates Young as Outlaws clip Express

By JERRY BROWN
Assistant Sports Editor

Steve who?

One half of the USFL's dynamic duo of quarterbacking invaded Sun Devil Stadium Saturday night, but the Arizona Outlaws did not seem too impressed with his presence.

The Los Angeles Express and $40 million man Steve Young could muster just 88 yards through the air over the first three quarters as the Outlaws prevailed, 27-13, in front of 20,835 fans.

Young left the game in the third quarter with a knee injury and trailing 27-6. Backup Frank Seurer engineered the only touchdown of the game for the Express (1-4).

The Outlaws (3-2), meanwhile, went about their business with a balanced offense. They rolled up 161 yards on the ground and 153 yards through the air, keeping the Express defense guessing most of the evening.

Running back Reggie Brown became the first Outlaw to break 100 yards in a game this season, rolling up 127 on 16 carries, two of them for touchdowns.

Arizona quarterback Doug Williams hit on 14 of his 27 passes, one of them a nine-yard, touchdown strike to Al Williams for the first points of the game.

The next nine points of the game were compliments of the Zendejas family. Tony of the Express booted two field goals from 44 and 49 yards away, which sandwiched cousin Luis' 33-yarder for the Outlaws.

Brown scored the first of his touchdowns just before halftime after the Express muffed an on-side kick attempt, giving Arizona a 17-6 halftime bulge.

After Luis Zendejas connected on a 44-yarder, Williams broke an off-tackle play to the outside and ran 44 yards for the score to put the Outlaws in command at 27-6.
