

Board votes to disinvest holdings

By VICKIE CHACHERE
State Press

FLAGSTAFF — ASU and UA will become the 39th and 40th American universities to divest holdings in companies doing business in South Africa, following a decision Friday by the Arizona Board of Regents to protest the country's segregationist policies.

The schools were instructed by the regents to divest $1.2 million of ASU investments and $2.1 million in UA holdings from such companies as soon as possible. The board voted 4-3 for divestment after less than an hour of discussion.

"I think this issue is probably the single most difficult thing that I have had to do since I came on the board," Regent Herman Chanen said.

The board also unanimously decided to formally protest South Africa's apartheid policies and to support any economic sanctions against South Africa imposed by the U.S. government.

Regents Edith Auslander, Esther Capin, Chanen and Regent President Donald Pitt voted to withdraw the South African investments.

Regent Tio Tachias, who did not attend the meeting, also issued a statement in support of divestment, and student regent Nora Colton, the only non-voting member of the board, also supported the move to disinvest.

"$3.3 million is a drop in the bucket," Auslander said. "It probably won't have that much effect, probably won't save one life. I believe it is necessary as a responsible board, and by golly, this is a responsible board."

Regents Jack Pfister, William Reilly and Donald Shropshire voted against the measure. Shropshire is chairman of the board's finance sub-committee that had been studying the possibilities and implications of divestment.

"I think if we are to take any action it ought to be an effective action," Reilly said. "I think there is a moral obligation involved that goes beyond my ability to help."

Pfister called the divestment decision a mistake.

"To symbolically disinvest in those corporations would be a statement of discouragement," he said.

Capin said, "If it comes down to siding symbolically with that situation (apartheid) or . . . voting for divestment, that is what I will do. I really have no choice than to vote against a system that is providing so much grief."

"If this is the time to stand up and be counted, then I am standing up and being counted," she added.

Pitt said the regents' decision to divest also is being supported by the declining yield and safety of the South African investments.

"I think that it is important to also note that in the past 60 or 90 days . . . the universities have reduced their investments in South Africa by over a million dollars," Pitt said.

But Pfister said the board's decision to divest may reduce the financial support given to the universities by those corporations, which include IBM, Johnson and Johnson, and Exxon.

"A number of those corporations are very significant contributors to the Arizona university system," Pfister said. "I think there are very serious down-side risks to the university system. The symbolism may be very well detrimental to the university system in the long run."

Reilly said, "If you don't like what companies are doing, let's also decide that we won't accept their gifts. If we say to companies that we will take their gifts . . . what kind of judgment are we using?"

BSU won't retract statements calling regents 'closet bigots'

By VICKIE CHACHERE
State Press

FLAGSTAFF — A spokesman for ASU's Black Student Union said he will not retract statements that labeled Arizona Board of Regents members as liars and "closet bigots," despite a decision by the board to divest South African funds.

Santiago Vega, who made the statement during the board's call to the audience Friday, said minutes after the regents' vote that he still considers the regents bigots.

Vega said "past actions" show the regents to be prejudiced, but added that the divestment vote was encouraging.

"We have to be pleased because we have made progress," he said.

In a statement delivered to the board, Vega said "You . . . may be able to fool some of those in the general public . . . but you can't fool us as we see you as closet bigots."

During a press conference in the MU Thursday, Vega said he was "amazed but not amused by the cowardly action" of the regents.

"The board and its evasive tactics have demonstrated once again that bigotry and insensitivity live among our leaders," Vega said.

If the South African situation of a white minority dominating a black majority were to "miraculously change colors, divestment would have occurred long ago," he added.

Andy English, an activist for ASU's newly-formed chapter of Students Against Apartheid, said the decision by the board was just "one battle in a war," and that SAA now is attempting to convince Arizona lawmakers to divest all South African investments held by the state.

He said the group is targeting state pension programs that have invested an estimated $400 million in companies doing business in South Africa.

"I credit the activists," English said. "Without them we couldn't have done it."

Associated Students of ASU President Dave Varnell, who earlier said he did not support an ASASU Senate request for divestment, said he was concerned with the board's decision.

"I hope it's the right decision," Varnell said. "I certainly find it very confusing."

Varnell said he believed the regents were "well-intentioned" in their vote. "The only thing I can do is pray it was the right move."

"I don't think anyone knows the consequences of this decision," he said. "No one has a crystal ball before them."

Student Regent Nora Colton said she agreed with the board's decision to divest.

Colton, the only non-voting member of the board, said she would like to see the board take a "pro-active" stand on the South African issue.

"We also need to realize the fact that society changes, morals change," Colton said.

Officials to select golf course architect

By W. TIM AHL
State Press

Sun Angel Foundation officials will select an architect in the next 60 days to design an 18-hole golf course east of ASU between Rural and Hayden Roads, the chairman of the golf course committee said Friday.

G.M. Sollenberger said an architect for the project should be selected soon, but it is too early to predict any starting or completion dates for the course.

"We don't want to have people getting their hopes up," he said.

Once the architect is selected, it will take about six months to design the course and more than one year to construct it, Sollenberger said.

Dan Devine said the Arizona Public Service Corp. has given ASU a large section of land located next to its Ocotillo Power Plant, and ASU still is trying to obtain a smaller portion of property near First Street and Hayden Road.

"We've got almost all of it — one parcel is still missing," Devine said. "We can build the course without (the smaller section of land), but we would like to have it."

Sollenberger said Union Rock Co., a sand and gravel company, owns the property, and officials have not come to an agreement to obtain the land.

"The land is crummy for any other use, but it would be nice for the golf course because you can move the dirt around and do things with it," Sollenberger said.

"It has been a little frustrating because everything takes longer than you think it should," he added.

Keith Turley, APS chairman of the board and chief executive officer, originally had planned to transfer the land title to ASU officials in early 1983, but Sollenberger said the land was not transferred until this spring.

Although a cost has not been determined at this time, he said the course probably will have a $3-4 million price tag.

"You can spend between $2 million and $10 million to build a course, but we haven't determined any absolutes yet," Turley said.

All fund raising will be handled through the Sun Angel Foundation, he said.

Devine said although the course is being built primarily for student and team use, it probably will be made available to the public to help pay for upkeep.

"It's being built primarily for the student body," he said. "We're not looking to build a pro course. To make it go financially, we'll probably have to open it to the public."

Reagan to initiate limited economic sanctions against South Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, faced with overwhelming pressure from Congress, intends to announce limited economic sanctions against South Africa today, including a desire to ban the sale of gold Krugerrands, congressional sources said Sunday.

They also said Reagan would announce a ban on most new bank loans to South Africa, order a halt to the shipment of nuclear technology and stop large-scale sales of computer equipment used to enforce South Africa's racially discriminatory apartheid laws.

The sources, who requested anonymity, said Reagan would announce requirements for most American firms in South Africa to follow fair employment practices and would make available expanded U.S. aid for South African black students.

The expected announcement would mark a shift in Reagan's long-held policy of "constructive engagement," a low-key effort of negotiations that the president said Friday offered the best hope of accomplishing political reform in South Africa.

Secretary of State George Shultz informed senior Republican congressional leaders Saturday of Reagan's intentions.

In response, Senate GOP leaders have decided to seek a delay in the expected passage of sanctions legislation.

Reagan's reported decision is designed to sidestep one conflict with Congress at the beginning of a fall session that is likely to turn on other controversial issues, including the president's tax reform proposal, trade legislation and other battles over spending.

Divestment

Pitt said, "We are not condemning a company such as IBM. To me the university issue, coupled with the issue as to how the U.S. is perceived in the world community, is the most important thing."

Chanen said the universities could invest wisely in corporations with no financial ties to South Africa.

"I believe the universities are responsible for shaping the political minds of the future, and they must set examples," he said.

A motion presented Saturday by Chanen, which allows board members to meet with corporation executives to explain their reasons for choosing to divest, also was approved unanimously.

"It was not the intent of the board to condemn or pass judgment on those companies doing business in South Africa," Pfister said.

"Doctor Treats Low Back Pain With Professional Method"

There are millions of Americans who at one time or another suffer from lower back problems.

Dr. Kevin Paustian has specialized in the treatment of lower back disorders for the last three years. He takes exception to those who say there is nothing that can be done to stop the pain in the lower back.

He has an effective treatment program that was developed after years of scientific research. The treatment is specifically for low back and leg pain syndromes. It is aimed at what is commonly called the slipped or herniated disc, also known as a disc protrusion.

Dr. Paustian explained that when a spinal disc is injured as a result of an auto accident, a fall or trauma, that the pain can be experienced suddenly or gradually because it sometimes takes weeks to notice the pain. Symptoms can include numbness or tingling of the legs or foot and weakness of the musculature of the leg.

Disc conditions do not get better without treatment. They tend to get worse or reoccur. For 80 percent of disc protrusions, however, the therapy Dr. Paustian advocates can reduce the disc and thus prevent surgery. The technique places the bulging part back into the center, thereby reducing the symptoms. Depending on the severity of the injury, most cases show some improvement of symptoms in three weeks. In some instances he has been able to reduce pain 50 percent after the first treatment.

Humans are pre-disposed because of upright posture to lower back problems. As patients cause more pressure on the disc it becomes more and more fragile. Finally, there is some injury to it, and the disc ruptures or becomes displaced causing pain and agony. Failure to treat this problem immediately can lead to permanent disabilities. Anytime you hurt your back, call Dr. Kevin Paustian for an immediate examination. Call 966-0783.

ASU student appointed health committee leader

By ROB KELTON
State Press

A 22-year-old ASU student has been appointed as chairman of the Student Consumers section at the American College Health Association located in Rockville, Md.

Mark Carpenter, a senior biology major, is currently serving as the director of the Student Health Advisory Committee on campus and carries 18 units.

SHACs are the liaison between the students and health facilities on campuses, Carpenter said.

The primary responsibility of this chairmanship will be to serve as a representative of all the SHACs across the nation, he said.

As chairman of the Student Consumers section, he will report to the executive board of the ACHA and inform them of SHAC happenings at different universities.

"Every major university has a SHAC and a lot of junior colleges have them," he said.

Carpenter served as the chair-elect of Student Consumer section beginning in May 1984 and then automatically became the chairman in June 1985.

His term of office will end in June 1986, he said.

Carpenter said the Student Consumers section of the ACHA is one of 10 sections that exist in the national association.

The ACHA is a clearing house for information regarding student health across the country, he said.

Carpenter said the ACHA was responsible for recommending the proof of measles immunization policy that ASU has approved.

"The ACHA consists of physicians and health care persons around the nation," he said.

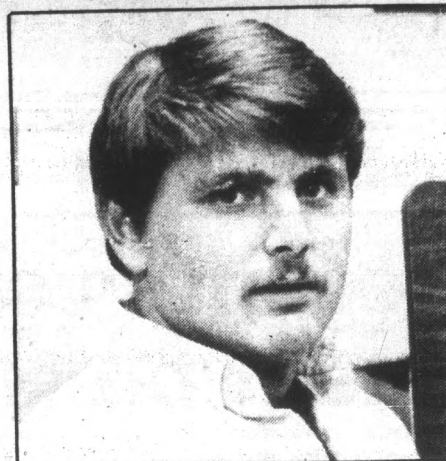

Carpenter will be attending three meetings in Washington, D.C. and one in New Orleans this semester as the chairman of the Student Consumers section and as an executive board member.

"I also attended one this summer in Washington that had about 1,300 people at it," he said.

Carpenter is the only paid employee on the SHAC program at ASU and is paid for 10 hours a week.

"Right now, I'm putting in an average of about 30 hours a week with SHAC alone," he said.

Carpenter said that the six-person SHAC committee, which conduct blood drives and health fairs, is the hardest working committee on campus.

Regent's vote: under pressure

The surprising disinvestment decision by the Arizona Board of Regents raises a question of whether the regents finally obtained a "social conscience" or simply bowed to pressure from activists.

The regents' decision follows protests this summer in Phoenix and Tucson by citizens favoring disinvestment. ASU's Students Against Apartheid and the campus branch of the American Federation of Teachers and University Employees went public in favoring disinvestment at a press conference Thursday.

At that meeting, Santiago Vega of the ASU's Black Student Union called board members "cowardly" for meeting to discuss the disinvestment issue in Flagstaff, far away from the uproar of active groups here and in Tucson. In reality, the board's meeting was scheduled way back when disinvestment calls were barely a low grumble. The regents consistently schedule their meetings based on climate, not clamor, preferring Flagstaff during the hot months.

Even after the regents approved disinvestment in a non-pressured setting, Vega denounced them as "closet bigots" since they did not take such action long ago. The point is well-taken. If South Africa had a situation of a black minority dominating a white majority, there would probably be more political pressure in the United States to try and effect change in that government.

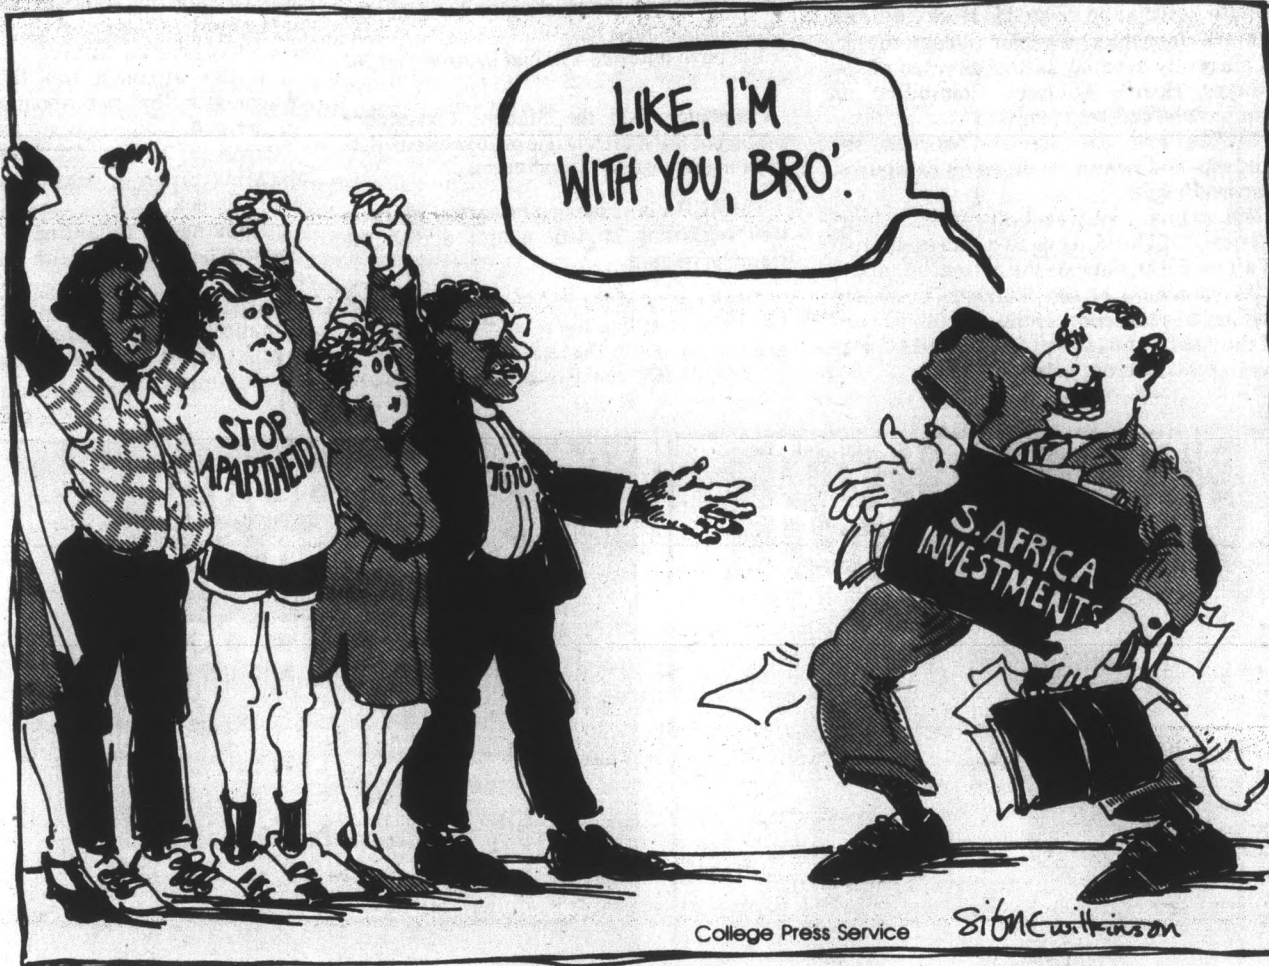

But disinvestment is not a simple question of whether one supports racism. Quarreling factions debate whether disinvestment will help or hurt blacks in South Africa. The protesting groups call themselves anti-apartheid, which presumably we all are. So if one does not agree with their specific objective, disinvestment, there is a certain risk of appearing to be pro-apartheid — not an image the regents or anyone else would want.

Considering the usual lack of expediency in the university system when money is concerned, the board hardly dragged its feet on this one. Pressure by student and citizen groups undoubtedly forced the board into a publicized corner, and members did not like the heat. Divesting a mere $3.3 million in holdings will not have a profound effect on the investment portfolios of ASU and UA, so the vote was a good way for the board to avoid a racist label and silence the unpleasant protests.

If the board's policy of incorporating ethical considerations into investment policy is to be regarded as sincere, then the regents now must review all university holdings. The morality of an investment should not be gauged only by the amount of public attention it receives.

Campus club members explain tenets of Baha'i Faith

Editor:

In light of recent articles published in the State Press about the Baha'i Faith, we members of the campus Baha'i Club would like to take this opportunity to foster better understanding of the Baha'i Faith.

The Baha'i Faith came into existence in Persia in 1844 and its founder, Baha'u'llah, taught that religion is progressive and not absolute, in that different religious teachers ("manifestations of God") appear at different times and in different places in man's history to introduce teachings to enable civilization to progress both spiritually and materially. This may be likened to a child going through school and being taught each year by a different teacher, learning more difficult and complex concepts as the child's capacity increases. Thus the major religions of the world do not disagree with each other (Christ never taught that Moses was in error; Mohammed never taught that Christ was a false prophet...). The break-up into sects is a product of man-made doctrines subsequently injected.

Baha'u'llah claimed to be the next in this continuous succession of religious teachers.

Apart from rekindling the flame of spirituality in man and endeavoring to remove the barriers which separate man from the spiritual world of his creator, Baha'u'llah introduced teachings to bring unity to all the diverse elements of the world. Other teachings include: equality of opportunity for men and women; a universal system of compulsory education; a world federal system including a world government to uphold international peace; the essential harmony of revealed knowledge (through religious teachers) and scientific discovery; the knowledge that man's life here on earth is the beginning of the journey of his immortal soul into the worlds of God beyond; the elimination of all forms of prejudice; the independent investigation of truth by each individual; a universal auxiliary language and so on. The Encyclopedia Britannica contains a good summary of the history and teachings of the Baha'i Faith.

We thank you for this opportunity to foster a better understanding of the Baha'i Faith. Yours Faithfully,

Baha'i Club of ASU

Gas leaks fixed, building declared safe

By ED SCHUBERT
State Press

The Home Economics Building was declared safe late Thursday after a natural gas leak forced the building's evacuation around 5 p.m., said Dave Brixen, acting Physical Plant director.

Brixen said minor leaks and a small amount of gas were discovered in the building, located on the north end of campus west of Cady Mall.

Investigators turned off the building's gas supply after locating the leaks Thursday, he said.

The leaks were repaired and the building declared safe by the Arizona Department of Environmental Health Services, Brixen said.

The search was prolonged because chemicals with an odor similar to natural gas were in a laboratory, Brixen said.

University Police and Southwest Gas Co. officials conducted the investigation, University Police Sgt. Charles Erickson said.

Classes resumed Friday on schedule, Brixen said.

Additions to library to expand facilities

By DAVID O'BRIEN
State Press

An Arizona Board of Regents' approval of $50 million in capital improvements for ASU Friday brings plans for an $11.5 million two-story addition to Hayden Library one step closer.

According to Jennus Burton, business affairs vice president, the library addition ranks first in capital improvement priorities slated for ASU.

"We are the top priority on the capital improvements list," Burton said.

When Hayden Library was built, University officials planned for a future addition and the building was constructed to hold two more stories, said design project manager Carolyn Hoppin.

The additional floors are needed to accommodate a growing number of collections, Hoppin said.

"If we're ever going to become a large university library, we will have to expand our facilities," she said.

In an October 1984 executive report, University officials said ASU would need to increase its capacity by 2 million volumes to compete with other research institutions across the country.

At that time, Donald Riggs, ASU's head librarian, said 20,000 books are being stored in the old Matthews Library and students face a 24-hour lag time to obtain material.

Riggs also said that unless the Hayden Library addition is made, officials would have to store more books at other locations and students would face even more waiting time.

The University was found to be 1.7 million square feet short of sufficient space and provides less than 50 percent of the needed study areas for students, Riggs said.

Campus libraries only provide 2,500 seats for individuals, 3,500 short of the average, he said.

The Hayden Library addition would provide an additional 1,500 seats, he said.

ASU graduate to be honored at ceremony

The general business department of the ASU College of Business Administration will present its first Office Automation Person of the Year Award to Michael P. Schoonmaker, senior vice president and manager of Electronic Services for The Arizona Bank on Sept. 11.

The presentation will be made by Tom Keller, assistant professor of the general business department. The presentation is at the annual meeting of the Dean's Council of 100, a group of leading Arizona business executives, at the Paradise Valley Country Club.

Schoonmaker is being recognized for his management style, leadership qualities, effective use of office automation systems and achievements in office workspace design.

He is responsible for nine departments that sell and service a $100 million loan portfolio, over $250,000 credit card customers, $200,000 debit card customers and $50,000 proprietary card customers.

These departments control all automated clearing house functions as well as automated teller systems. Within Arizona, Schoonmaker's departments provide electronic services of all types to other banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions throughout the Arizona Interchange Network.

Schoonmaker, who began his banking career 18 years ago, has served in several areas of the field including trust, retail lending, systems, data processing and general operations. He holds a bachelor's degree in business from ASU and a law degree from LaSalle University.

Financial aid debts put crunch on grads

By College Press Service

WASHINGTON, D.C.— College graduates are having smaller families and postponing major purchases such as cars and homes because they are leaving school with large financial aid debts, according to preliminary results of a new nationwide survey of aid recipients.

The findings confirm fears of many college aid experts that a continuing reliance on loans over grants for the last decade and skyrocketing tuition rates have forced students to borrow more than they can reasonably repay after graduating.

The student debt issue promises to play an increasingly important role in how financial aid is structured, as well as the amount of money any one student can borrow.

"We are seeing instances where students' lifestyles are being affected by the large amounts of money they have to pay back when they graduate college," said Dennis Martin, assistant director of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators (NASFAA), which sponsored the survey of 3,000 Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) borrowers from colleges around the country.

Among other things, the students with bigger debts tend to delay raising families, buying homes, and purchasing cars because they can't afford added financial commitments, the survey shows.

The survey which Martin calls the most extensive study of financial aid debtors ever undertaken, also shows that younger, more recent graduates are having the most difficulty repaying their loans because they had to borrow more to meet soaring tuition costs.

Single women have more trouble repaying their loans because they get lower salaries — only $17,400 a year compared to $23,000 for men — after graduating, the study shows.

"That's no surprise to many of us," said Arnold Mitchem, executive director of the National Council of Educational Opportunity Program at Marquette University.

"I think there is growing evidence that the student debt burden is affecting the lives and consumer patterns of borrowers," Mitchem said. "And it also appears to be affecting the number of students who don't go on to graduate school because they are already so heavily in debt."

Female, minority and low-income students are hit the hardest, he said, because they typically borrow more to attend school, and earn lower salaries when they graduate.

"In fact," Mitchem said, "it can be shown that most poor and minority students never earn their bachelor's degrees, so they are stuck with repaying aid debts for an education they never finished."

Mitchem, along with many other aid experts, blames the federal government's increased reliance on loans over grants for the problem.

In the early 1970s nearly two-thirds of all student aid money was awarded in direct, non-repayable grants to students.

Today, nearly two-thirds of all aid money is loaned.

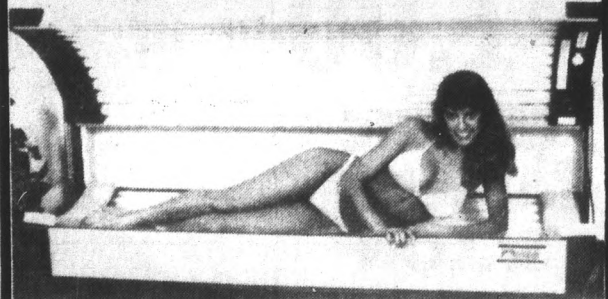

Besides increasing grant money, the government should also stop increasing loan limits, Mitchem said, "because it would only allow more students to borrow more than they are capable of repaying."

But the American Council on Education (ACE) disagrees, and recently asked the House Postsecondary Subcommittee on Education to raise Guaranteed Student Loan annual limits from $2500 to $3000.

"There's a lot of concern over student debt, but there is also a lot of concern over the fact that loan limits aren't keeping pace with college costs," said ACE policy analyst Scott Miller.

"A lot of people want the limits doubled," he said. "We're recommending what we think is a reasonable increase in limits, but not one that is big enough to add significantly to the debt burden problem."

76-year-old building pending h

By ED SCHUBERT
State Press

One of the oldest buildings on campus may be added to the National Register of Historic Places, said Donna Schober, Arizona historic preservation officer.

The Fine Arts Annex, located on the northern edge of campus near University Drive, has been pending official historical status for several months and a decision is expected at "any time," she said.

Under its present "pending" status, the University may not dispose of the 76-year-old building without consulting her, Schober said.

ASU Fire Marshall Andy Anderson said the building is deteriorated and extensively damaged by termites, and that "a lot of work would have to be done" to repair the building.

"My guess is that it's not worth fixing up," Anderson said. If official status is not granted to the annex, the University could destroy the building without consulting the historical preservation officer, Schober said.

Buildings that reach pending status are rarely refused recognition as official historical landmarks, she said.

An official landmark is not immune from destruction, but the owners of the property would have to consult with her before taking any action, Schober said.

Owners of a historical landmark that is structurally unsafe

police report

An ASU student was arrested early Friday in connection with driving while intoxicated, police said.

Bradley Dennis Green, of 620 Alpha Drive, was cited for hitting a median near the 900 block of East University Drive.

Green failed a field sobriety test, and an Intoxilyzer test given at the Tempe Police Department registered his blood-alcohol level at .125 percent.

The maximum legal blood-alcohol level is .10 percent.

Green was booked into the Tempe City Jail and released to a friend.

In other activity, University police reported the following incidents in the 24-hour period ending at 6:30 a.m. Friday:
 •A man not affiliated with the University was arrested early Thursday after he smashed a rhino boot with a sledgehammer, police said.

Kurt Donnell Lott of Mesa parked at Tempe Center and went to ASU.

When he returned he found his vehicle booted for violating the parking rules of the shopping center, which is only open to customers.

Lott took a sledgehammer from his van, broke the boot and placed it in his vehicle.

He was arrested in connection with theft and criminal damage, and released on his own recognizance.

•An ASU police portable radio unit valued at $1,600 was stolen from a police car that had stalled in the Tempe Center Saturday afternoon, police said.

A second police car began pushing the stalled car to the motor pool when the cars' bumpers locked at the entrance of Lot 46. Four college students helped the policemen pull the bumpers apart. After the incident, the radio, which had been in the front seat of the unlocked car, was found to be missing.

•A gold bracelet valued at $400 was stolen from a room in the Palo Verde West Residence Hall sometime between Thursday, Aug. 15 and Friday, Aug. 16, police said.

The bracelet was made from two gold ropes with diamonds in the middle.

•An ASU student damaged his car and a University sign post when he attempted to enter Alpha Drive after it had been closed off due to a concert at the University Activity Center, police said.

The road had been closed off by a chain strung between two poles. When the student tried to cross the chain, it caught his right rear bumper and pulled one of the poles out of the ground. The pole was pulled approximately 15 feet from its original position.

Damage to the car was estimated at $100. Damage to the pole was estimated at $50.

•A U.S. government van damaged the automatic gate machine in Lot 13 when it backed into it Thursday afternoon, police said.

The timer-switch door was dented and the main automatic gate box was knocked loose from the concrete foundation in the accident.

A witness told police the light green van was driven by a man in his early twenties.

Lt. Craig Emanuel said the driver probably did not notice the damage and will not be charged with a hit and run violation.

•A student lost her Coconino County Sheriff's badge and wallet early Thursday, police said.

She told police she lost the items on the first level of the MU in the hall or the restaurant.

The loss is valued at $78.

•A maroon backpack was stolen from the shelves inside the ASU Bookstore early Thursday, police said.

The owner told police she placed the pack in the shelves next to the lockers, and went into the bookstore. When she returned five minutes later it was gone.

She said the pack contained several notebooks and one text book.

Total value of the theft is estimated at $45.

Get down to business faster. With the BA-35.

If there's one thing business students have always needed, this is it: an affordable, business-oriented calculator. The Texas Instruments BA-35, the Student Business Analyst.

Its built-in business formulas let you perform complicated finance, accounting and statistical functions — the ones that usually require a lot of time and a stack of reference books, to help you get the most out like present and future value calculations, amortizations and balloon payments.

The BA-35 means you spend less time calculating, and more time learning. One keystroke takes the place of many.

The calculator is just part of the package. You also get a book that follows most business courses: the Business Analyst Guidebook. Business professors helped us write it, to help you get the most out of calculator and classroom.

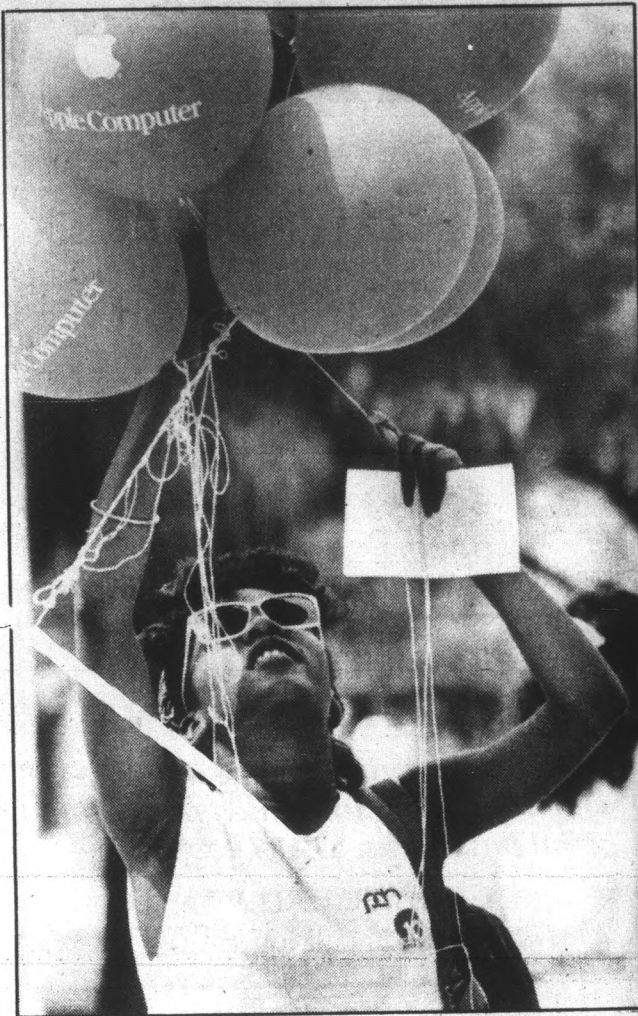

A powerful combination.

Think business. With the BA-35 Student Business Analyst.

ASU spikers receive stiff test, rally to bump Utes in 5 games

By DEAN OBENAUER
State Press

A win is a win.

The ASU women's volleyball team rallied Saturday night in front of 487 fans to defeat the University of Utah in five games, 14-16, 15-7, 13-15, 15-6, 15-3.

"I wish it hadn't gone five," Sun Devil coach Debbie Brown said. "I didn't expect that it would go five. I'm glad we were able to come back and win the fourth and fifth games decisively."

ASU (1-0), an honorable mention top-20 team in the Tachikara volleyball poll, was not expected to have a tough time with the Utes. It was, however, the Sun Devils' season and home opener, and Brown credited first-night jitters as one of the problems prior to games four and five.

"We were a little nervous which is typical of a first match," Brown said. "Hopefully by the time our tournament play comes around, we won't be so nervous."

The Utes (1-2) played a solid match for which Brown gave them credit.

"They were a real hustling team," Brown said. "Their two previous matches helped them a lot. They had a chance to work things out."

For Utah, the match was its third in as many as nights. It defeated Northern Arizona Thursday and lost to the UA Friday night before ending its Arizona road trip at ASU.

"We played a lot better than last night," Utah coach Julie Morgan said. "ASU was the best team tonight. The offense they ran was really the difference. Their setter (Regina Stahl) was awesome."

Stahl set spiking Devils accurately time and time again.

"She really runs the team well," Brown said of Stahl. "She is our key force."

While Stahl was setting, Tammy Motyka was pounding out winners.

"(Motyka) played a great match," Brown said.

Middle blocker Tammy Webb came up with key spikes and blocks in games four and five.

"She didn't have a great match, but she didn't have a bad match either," Brown said.

With outside hitter Valentina Vega not able to start due to a shoulder injury suffered earlier in the week, freshman Christy Nore got the starting nod from Brown.

Nore's play was a pleasant surprise for Brown.

"She was real nervous to get the starting position," Brown said. "She passed really well and kept the ball in play. She also hit the ball well."

"Everyone really played well — the starters and the bench," Brown said. "I feel real optimistic that we should get better and better each match we play. The girls are really quick to pick things up."

Cooper settles kicking game for opener

By MICHAEL KONZ
State Press

Head coach John Cooper heads into the final week of practice before the season opener against Michigan State with his kicking game finally settled.

Freshman Mike Schuh will handle the punting chores while redshirt freshman Kent Bostrom will do the placekicking.

Since Camp Tontozona both jobs had been up in the air with a number of candidates vying for the positions.

"We didn't get as much work for our kickers in camp as we would have wanted," Cooper said. "We took a long look at them when we came back down here."

Freshman Tony Rhynes and junior Joe Sullivan were candidates for the punting job along with Schuh and Bostrom.

Kicking coach Craig Millbranth said Sullivan was the leading choice before a knee injury forced him out of the race. But he is confident Schuh will do a good job.

"Things are going well with Mike and the entire punt coverage team," Millbranth said. "He's been averaging about 43 yards in practice."

Schuh graduated from Mountain View High School in Mesa after lettering twice in football and once in soccer. He was named all-state in 1983 and 1984. He was named to the Arizona Republic all-state team as a senior.

He said he did not know if he would start for ASU.

"I wasn't sure," he said. "My mind wasn't set. I changed that."

Schuh said he realizes he is following Jim Meyer, who was one of the top punters in the conference last season.

"I just put it out of my mind," he said. "I'm going to try to do the best I can. I just hope to help the team and get the job done."

Schuh said the chief problem he needs to overcome concerns the mechanics of kicking.

"I swing my hips," he said. "It makes me hook the ball. I am breaking the bad habits I had."

Schuh's chief advantage is simple.

"I have a strong leg," he said.

Bostrom redshirted last season because all-time leading NCAA scorer Luis Zendejas was a senior. Millbranth said a year of experience will help the freshman in pressure situations.

"Bostrom has been around here a year, and he's a pretty level-headed kid," Millbranth said. "I've been impressed."

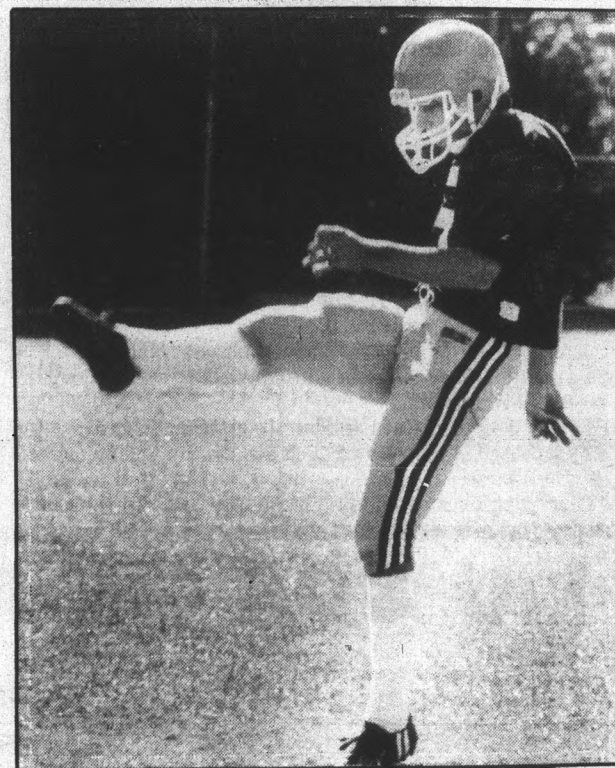

"He may not have a strong leg as Zendejas, but I wouldn't be nervous to see him kick 51 or 52 yards."

Coming out of Wheaton Central High School in Illinois, Bostrom was a Parade All-American and Chicago Tribune first-team all-state selection in 1983.

Nearly 80 percent of his kickoffs in his last two seasons were not returned.

Cooper said he realizes the importance of the kicking game to the Sun Devils' success.

"Your kicking game can be the difference between two and three wins a season," he said.

Pac-10 Conference Previews

Huskies try to fill holes after finishing 2nd in nation in '84

Today the State Press begins its look at the Pac-10 Conference by looking at the state of Washington.

By CHRIS MCKAY
State Press

The Washington Huskies, winners of the 1984 Orange Bowl, have graduated 11 of 22 starters and face a rebuilding season.

Starters lost include Ron Holmes, Tim Meamber and Fred Small, first-team all-Pac-10 selections last season. Second-team all-Pac-10 runningback Jacque Robinson graduated also.

"We've lost a lot of strength, quickness and experience," head coach Don James said.

In 10 years at Washington, James has had nine winning seasons and an 86-31 record. Last season, he led the Huskies to a No. 2 national ranking and the best year since they won the 1981 Rose Bowl. The Huskies ruined their chance for a Rose Bowl bid when they lost to USC, 16-7.

Washington has high expectations for the 1985 season.

Returning quarterback Hugh Millen, a 6-foot-5, 216-pound senior was undefeated in his eight starts and threw for 1,051 yards. He will lead the Husky offense along with sophomore running back David Toy and junior Rick Fenney. Fenney gained 305 yards last season.

"We've got to get the ball to Rick more," James said.

The Huskies graduated their top two receivers, Danny Greene and Mark Pattison, but have experienced players filling in. Their replacements will be junior Lonzell Hill, who averaged 17.9 yards on 12 catches in 1984, and fifth-year senior David Trimble, who averaged 17 yards per reception last fall.

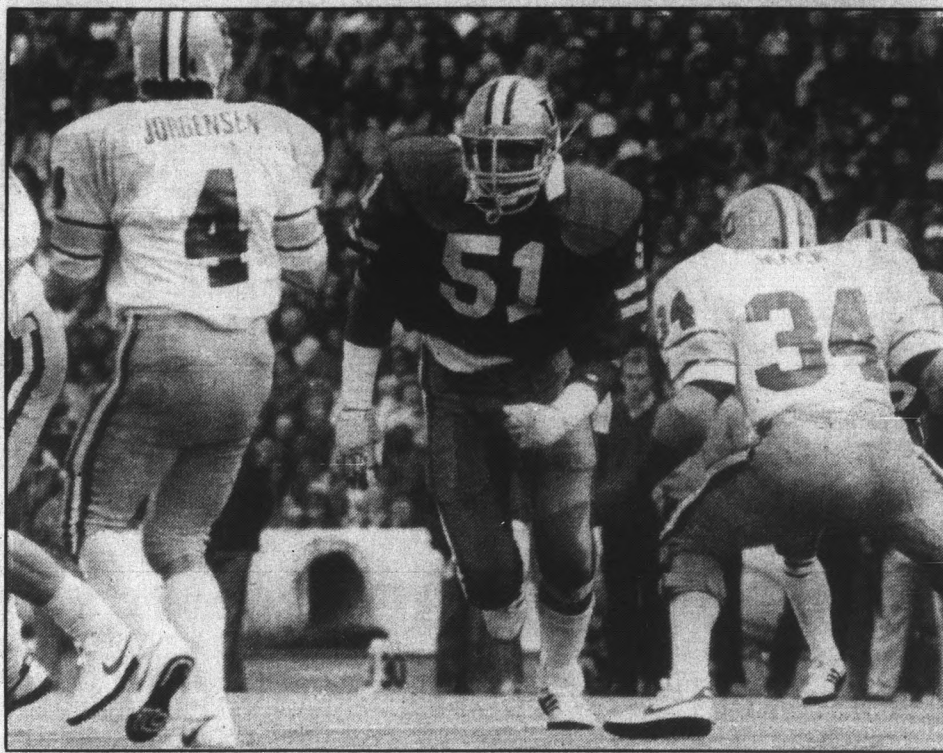

The offensive line will rely on mobility and size. They return three of five starters in guard Tim Burnham (6-6, 264), and tackles Kevin Gogan (6-7, 275) and Dennis Soldat (6-5, 246).

The defense will be led by 1984 Pac-10 Honorable Mention choice Joe Kelly at linebacker and safety Vestee Jackson, a second-team all-Pac-10 selection.

On the defensive line it will be a case of new faces in new places. Junior Steve Alvord (6-2, 217) moves from middle guard to defensive tackle. At the other tackle the Huskies will place former outside linebacker Reggie Rogers (6-7, 245).

At linebacker, Kelly returns after a banner season that saw him finish third in tackles in the Pac-10 with 151. Kelly figures as a prime candidate for all-American honors.

Kelly will be joined by senior Ron Hadley, who missed all but two games last season with a broken hand.

Reggie Rogers will move from linebacker to defensive lineman to anchor the Washington Huskies' defense.

Cougars boast 'RPM' backfield, lack experienced line

By MICHAEL KONZ
State Press

Coming into the 1985-86 season, the Washington State Cougars find themselves with one of the best offensive backfields in the conference, but also with one of most inexperienced offensive lines.

They boast a powerful "RPM" backfield in running backs Rueben Mayes and Kerry Porter and quarterback Mark Rypien.

Mayes rushed for 1,637 yards last season with a 6.3-yard average and 11 touchdowns. His best game came against Oregon, when he ran for a NCAA-record 357 yards. He finished 10th in the Heisman Trophy race and was a United Press International All-American.

Porter rushed for only 243 yards last year, but had a 5.7-yard average. He could team with Mayes to give the Cougars two 1,000-yard rushers.

Rypien was a first-team all-Pac-10 selection that passed for 1,927 yards and 14 touchdowns last season. He will be backed up by Ed Blount.

"There won't be any changes at quarterback," head coach

Jim Walden said. "Rypien and Blount are head and shoulders above anybody else right now."

Walden said the Cougar running attack has depth in backups Ed Tingstan and Junior Tautalatasi.

"What is different this year is we've never had four (running backs) of the quality we have right now," he said. "What can you say about Rueben Mayes and Kerry Porter? They are just stallions, that's all."

The problem is in the offensive line. Although Walden will start four fifth-year seniors, only center Curt Ladines returns.

"We have some new people who have to come along on the offensive line," Walden said. "But I think this offensive line can be good enough to do what we did a year ago offensively. I think the tremendous balance we have... will make the offensive line better than you might think it will be otherwise."

The Cougars' wide receivers should allow Rypien to repeat his 1984 performance.

Sam Burris, Rick Chase and Mike James, who had 61 receptions last year, return along with redshirt Kitrick Taylor.

"We have a very proven wide receiver corps," Walden said. "I think this may be the most speed we've had in a group and the most sure-handed experienced receivers we've had as a group."

On defense, the Cougars are not as impressive. They lost six starters from last year's 6-5 team, including linemen Brent White and Milford Hodge and linebackers Rico Tipton and Lee Blakeney.

The best returner is defensive tackle Eric Howard, a 6-foot-4, 268-pound tackle.

"Howard sticks out on the defensive line," Walden said. "Howard is not only the best we've got, but is the premier defensive lineman in the (conference)."

I think we'll have a good crew before its over," he said. "At linebacker, we are trying to get people into positions where they can perform best."

Washington State faced the unenviable task of opening its season with three straight conference games.

The Cougars' opener was a 41-38 loss to Oregon, and they beat California, 20-19 in their second game.

They play Arizona in Tucson Saturday.

Huskies

In the secondary, Jackson and senior Ron Milus will fill the corners, while Tim Peoples will play safety. Peoples made 92 tackles and earned Pac-10 Honorable Mention honors in 1984.

The Huskies kicking game is a definite plus. Jeff Jaeger, one of the most prolific field goal kickers in the country, returns after making 30 of 33 extra points and 22 of 28 field goals to lead the team in scoring with 96 points.

Scoring was not a problem in 1984 for the Huskies, who led the Pac-10 in points and total offense. They compensated for finishing last in the conference in passing, they finished third in rushing.

This season Washington's offense will have to pick up the slack of the inexperienced defensive.

In their opening game this season, the Huskies fell to Oklahoma State, 31-17. The loss was the first season-opening loss in seven years.
