

Board to consider revising TA guidelines

By VICKIE CHACHERE
State Press

The Arizona Board of Regents is scheduled to consider policy changes for hiring graduate teaching assistants at the three state universities during its meeting today at NAU.

Odus Elliot, associate director of academic programs for the board, said the regents will consider adopting a series of guidelines that will eliminate unprepared teaching assistants or those assistants who do not have a command of the English language.

The decision by the board to review the teaching-assistant criteria follows a call for reform by the Arizona Students Association and a recent decision by ASU administration to test the English proficiency of foreign teaching assistants.

Elliot said the guidelines would require each university to establish programs that would train the assistants in teaching skills.

He said faculty members also would be required to evaluate the assistants each semester and submit a written evaluation to department chairmen.

Foreign teaching assistants would be required to pass a competency test of written and spoken English before they will be allowed to teach, Elliot said.

"In some instances it may be a test similar to what ASU is using," he said.

ASU's English proficiency exam was established after a report from ASA targeted teaching assistants who could not communicate with their students as a factor in the decline of undergraduate education.

The exam became mandatory in May, and since then more than 60 percent of foreign students who would have been allowed to teach under the former guidelines failed the exam.

Kinsinger told the regents in September the testing system would be "infallible," and that teaching assistants will not be allowed to instruct students until they have passed the test.

In other board matters, a final decision on setting tuition rates for 1986-87 has been delayed following a request from the Presidents' Council to suspend action on tuition until the November meeting.

The council, which consists of the three university presidents and Regent Executive Director Molly Broad, said it needed more time to examine financial-aid availability for the proposed increases and the possibility of restructuring the tuition setting formula.

Broad said the council would prefer to base tuition rates on projected education costs for the 1986-87 academic year.

Tuition rates currently are computed using education costs from 1985-86.

A recommendation from the Arizona Students Association called for a $35 to $50 increase in resident tuition fees and a more than $500 increase in non-resident tuition.

The regents also will consider the following:

ASASU committee budget hearing delayed

By KARI BLAND
State Press

The Associated Students of ASU Senate Finance Committee will begin hearings for its 1986-87 budget on Oct. 16, a week later than planned.

The delay, caused by excess paperwork, will shorten the length of time the Finance Committee will have to deliberate on the budget and hold hearings, said Chris Cummiskey, ASASU executive vice president.

ASASU is currently operating under a $845,122 budget, Cummiskey said. Student fees account for $674,000 of that money; the rest is accumulated through revenues.

Both ASASU Finance Committee Chairman Bridget Shelton and Cummiskey said next year's budget probably will be larger due to inflation and departmental requests for larger budgets.

"(The vice presidents) are looking to recommend realistic percentage increases," Cummiskey said. "I would personally like to see an increase in funds for campus clubs and organizations."

This year campus clubs and organizations received $11,297.

Shelton said the committee currently is working with tentative guidelines from the University Budget Office.

"We have a tentative figure that we've been shooting for, but it's possible that it may change," she said.

Continuancy and decision packets will play a large role in deciding the budget, Shelton said.

Continuancy packets allow items that currently are part of the budget to be refunded with percentage increases, while decision packets introduce new programs that have not been funded by ASASU.

Decision packets will be listed in order of importance.

"We know that we will probably not get everything we ask for in the decision package, but the continuation items will be very straightforward," Shelton said.

The funding process begins when directors from various ASASU departments and college councils submit budgets to the vice presidents' offices, which examine the requests and make recommendations to the Executive Budget Committee.

The Executive Budget Committee is made up of the four executive officers and ASASU Coordinator Gary Kleemann.

The executive budget will list the recommendations from the director, the vice presidents and the Executive Budget Committee.

The recommendations then will be submitted to the Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee holds hearings with directors and produces a final budget that is put before the senate for a vote.

If passed, the budget is submitted to Betty Turner-Asher, vice president of student affairs, before being sent to the University Budget Office.

"We will be scrutinized even more this year because of last year's large fund balance," Shelton said.

Shelton said the unspent money was a result of under-spending by directors and unforeseen revenues.

"Since we're spending student fees, everyone has a wise tendency to be fiscally conservative," she said.

A lecture canceled in late April also left money unspent, Shelton said.

"The beauty of our system is that we decide what we are going to do with the portion of the fees ASASU gets to spend," she said.

Cummiskey said he would like to see the college council system brought into the budget process.

"I feel the budget should be funneled through the college council presidents and senators," Cummiskey said. "The problem is that we have all this money, and only 24 people (the senators) are deciding the course of the money."

The final budget must be sent to the Arizona Board of Regents for approval before it is put into effect during the last senate meeting of the year.

Consumers face higher liquor prices after federal tax hike

By ANDREA HAN
State Press

Weekend parties just became more expensive.

Alcohol prices are increasing due to a 19 percent federal tax hike that went into effect Oct. 1, said the manager of the Liquor Barn, 930 E. Broadway Road.

Jim Bentahin said hard liquor such as vodka, gin, scotch and liqueurs — but not wine or beer — are affected by the increase.

The tax will be levied against distillers. The increase will be subsequently passed onto wholesalers, then retailers and finally customers.

Shoppers will see a $2 increase per proof gallon — the amount of alcohol per gallon — but prices will vary by proof and volume.

"The higher the proof, the higher the tax," he said.

The 1985 federal excise tax was established by the U.S. Congress as a result of the 1984 Deficit Reduction Act, said Earl Kleckley, alcohol, tobacco and firearms area supervisor for Arizona and Southern California.

Congress established the tax in July and will increase the tax rate from $10.50 per proof gallon to $12.50 per proof gallon on all distilled spirits, Kleckley said.

The tax on a fifth of 80-proof alcohol will increase 75 cents. A liter bottle will increase $1 and a 1.75-liter bottle between $1.25 and $1.50, he said.

Students also will see an increase in drink prices at local bars.

The manager at After the Goldrush, a Tempe nightclub at 1216 E. Apache Blvd., said he is 90-percent sure that all bar drinks will increase about 25 cents, Ted Raymond said.

"We haven't decided for sure," Raymond said. "Since we are so close to campus and must cater to the students, we will be one of the last to raise our prices."

Current prices at After the Goldrush are $1.75 for well drinks and $2.25 for call drinks, he said.

"We cater so much to the college crowd that we realize they are on a pretty tight budget," he said.

Raymond said he already has seen the effect of the tax. The cost for a case of Jack Daniel's whiskey has increased almost $13 since Tuesday.

Douglas Kiley, general manager at Devilhouse, 430 N. Scottsdale Road, said his club probably will raise prices but not immediately.

"We are going to look at it in time and see how it effects our establishment," Kiley said. "But I am almost positive that we will eventually raise prices."

The new tax has been a "headache" for some retailers because they must pay the additional tax charge on all alcohol in stock beginning Oct. 1, Kleckley said.

For this reason many liquor stores had sales to reduce their stock before the tax went into effect, Bentahin said.

All retailers and wholesalers were required to take inventory of alcohol on hand by Oct. 1, he said.

If an establishment had more than 500 wine gallons of alcohol in stock, it would have had to pay the tax. If it had less, it did not have to pay, Kleckley said.

A wine gallon is a standard U.S. gallon of liquid.

A bar is allowed 130 cases of alcohol before it is taxed for alcohol purchased before the tax hike, Raymond said.

"You can stock up a little, but since they only allow you to have 130 cases of liquor, anything over that will be taxed," he said. "They get you either way."

Distillers will no longer be required to use the paper tax seals on bottle caps because packaged alcohol will not be shipped from the distillery until the tax is paid, Bentahin said.

"If the alcohol is bottled that day, the distillery must pay tax on it that day, so it no longer needs those tax labels on the bottle," Bentahin said.

The paper tax label indicated that the tax was paid and the seal was not tampered with.

Distillers are planning to use snap-top caps or caps similar to those on soft drink bottles, he said.

Final space shuttle fleet members negotiates successful first launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Atlantis joined America's space shuttle fleet Thursday with a dazzling liftoff on mystery mission, carrying five astronauts and a pair of military satellites built to withstand nuclear radiation.

Except for the launch, which could be seen from much of central Florida, the flight had as much secrecy as the Air Force could muster.

"The space shuttle is in orbit," was Mission Control's terse announcement 45 minutes after liftoff. "All systems on board the orbiter Atlantis are good. The mission is proceeding as planned."

The Air Force said in advance there would be only two public reports about Atlantis unless problems develop.

Closure of bathhouses condemned by gay activists, health officials

Shutting down massage parlors and gay bathhouses to block the spread of AIDS — as the House of Representatives authorized the surgeon general to do — would only force sex underground where it could be less closely monitored, many health officials and gay rights activists said Thursday.

"Our approach is not to close it down, but to influence the kind of behavior that goes on there. We feel that educating people is more helpful than driving them out into the streets, so to speak," said Dr. George Lamb, director of community health services in Boston, where there is one bathhouse catering to the city's homosexuals.

Gay rights activists said the measure was discriminatory and meaningless.

police report

University police reported the following incidents in the 24-hour period ending at 6:30 a.m. Thursday:

•Twelve students were found with a supply of beer and smelling of marijuana in the Music Building, room 208, Wednesday evening, police said.

A custodian told police the odor of marijuana was coming from the room.

When police arrived they found the students playing instruments.

An ice chest in the room was full of beer and five empty bottles were on the floor.

The students cleaned up the area and left after being warned they were violating a code of conduct.

•A student's gold bracelet valued at $800 was stolen from his wrist while he was leaving Sun Devil Stadium after the football game Saturday night, police said.

The student told police he thought someone pulled it off his wrist but he did not see who did it.

•Two ADS car speakers valued at $100 each were stolen from a student's Jeep in Lot 42 sometime late Wednesday, police said.

The top of the Jeep had been down during the time the theft occurred.

•Officers found a transient in the women's restroom on the first floor of Payne Education Building Wednesday afternoon, police said.

The man was warned of trespassing and escorted off campus.

•A blue mens 10-speed valued at $120 was stolen from the lobby of the Ocotillo Residence Hall Wednesday afternoon, police said.

The bicycle had been locked to itself.

•A Le Grande 10-speed bicycle valued at $100 was stolen from the bicycle racks in front of the Language and Literature Building Monday afternoon, police said.

The owner told police he had the bicycle locked with a chain and padlock.

•A student's gray Columbia 10-speed bicycle valued at $100 was stolen from the bicycle racks by the Engineering Building G-Wing sometime Monday, police said.

The owner told police he had left the bicycle locked with a chain and padlock.

•A student's orange backpack was stolen from The Club in the MU Wednesday afternoon, police said.

The owner told police he left the pack on the shelf of the restaurant for 20 minutes.

Total value of the theft was estimated at $30.

Hardy abortion ruling has ominous implications

Gray T. Echols
Opinion Editor

From the Arizona Republic, Sept. 24, 1985: A federal judge (Charles L. Hardy) Monday cleared the way for a 17-year-old girl almost 12 weeks pregnant to have an abortion after he barred enforcement of a state law requiring parental notification.

For some years now, the abortion issue has captured the attention of Americans. The State Press has been a forum through which many of the arguments for pro- or anti-abortionists have been relayed to the students of ASU. Arguments have focused on women's rights, men's rights, fetal rights, etc.

The abortion issue has been debated by some of the most capable minds in the country. It has set theologian against theologian, legislator against legislator. Its case has been heard by the Supreme Court, splitting the justices. The controversy has had the effect of mobilizing normally docile citizens to march on clinics and legislature floors to voice their respective positions. In a few cases, it has even impassioned some to the extreme of exploding bombs in these clinics. Mind you, these are adults I'm speaking of — folks who presumably have tempered childish passion with reason.

Bottom line: the abortion issue is complex and explosive, one that profoundly taxes the intellect and moral reasoning powers. Today I would like to address some of the implications of Judge Hardy's ruling.

Our legislature recognizes that the moral reasoning power and maturity of minors is limited and requires parental involvement in a number of decisions. And the state is correct in entrusting the responsible parent with final say over the welfare of the child. Who knows the child's character better? Who is ultimately responsible for the child's actions? The parent — not the state.

Legally, the child under 17 cannot see a movie rated "R" by the Motion Picture Association of America. The assumption: the material presented may be too difficult for the child to properly digest without the parent's guidance.

As all of us surely recall, no minor can obtain a driver's license until the parents or legal guardian sign on the dotted line. They represent the child, assuring the state that the child is ready for the responsibility. Moreover, they guarantee the state that they will be liable for the child's behind-the-wheel actions.

Given that parental approval is deemed necessary in such relatively trivial and non-controversial matters as obtaining a driver's license and seeing an R-rated movie, it would seem to follow that this same approval would be axiomatic in the decision for a child to have something as serious as an abortion. This is why Arizona has a law which quite justly requires the notification of a parent before his or her child undergoes this operation.

Regardless of the particular stance that one takes concerning abortion, it cannot honestly be proposed that driving an automobile or seeing an R-rated motion picture is more serious a challenge to the minor's decision-making faculties than abortion. Abortion is a surgical procedure heavily laden with controversy. It is only fitting that a minor seeking such a procedure do so only with the knowledge and consent of her parents.

Now consider once again how Judge Hardy has ruled. His decision has cleared the way for one minor to have an abortion without parental notification/consent. What sort of precedent does this establish?

Your Honor, I would contend that in addition to being in dire contempt of simple reason, you have given the federal government much more power than it can safely handle. You have trespassed into the sanctuary of the family and have allowed Uncle Sam to usurp power that rightfully belongs in the hands of the parents. And if this girl's parents knew, I'm not at all convinced they would be too happy.

It is indeed ironic that this girl, in suing the state over the parental notification clause, claimed "invasion of privacy."

In light of the invasion of the home that her suit has permitted the government, one could quite effectually argue that the only privacy now violated is that of her own family.

Student Health Insurance Plan insufficient for some

Editor:

I find a remarkable symmetry in the inadequacy of the coverage of Student Health Insurance and the inadequacy of Student Health Insurance itself. Even a cursory look at the Insurance Plan, available at Student Health, will expose the gross benefit figures quoted as extremely misleading. In particular, I will address the vital question of outpatient care; the type of care most needed by a college student, and most likely to cause an interruption in the educational process.

The Insurance Plan allows for "miscellaneous outpatient expense," but reimbursement shall "not exceed $250." In an age of modern sophisticated and expensive testing, such a figure is absurdly low and is not going to prevent a student from being driven from college because of medical expense. A CAT scan is a very common form of testing, and costs close to $400 for the test and close to $100 for a radiologist to read the results. After one such test, the student has exhausted all benefits and now owes almost $250.

The ASU Speech and Hearing Clinic provides outpatient services to students. Because of Mutual's slow pay/no pay policy, the Clinic no longer is willing to bill Mutual, but bills the patient directly and assists the student in filling out the form in hopes of the student getting some reimbursement. If such an attitude became widespread, a student would not be able to access any outpatient medical facility without a cash payment.

I recommend that any other student who has had first-hand experience with the Insurance Plan contact the Student Health Advisory Committee before the Board of Regents makes its decision.

U.S. practices perplex patriotic Americans

Editor:

We have a practice, here in the United States, of aiding and abetting Marxists in fulfilling their avowed imperialistic ambition. We began doing this in 1917 when the original American Liberals financed Lenin in his takeover of the Russian people.

At Yalta, in 1945, we sold the "Iron Curtain" countries into Marxist slavery. Shortly thereafter, in 1949, we did the same to China.

After we helped our friend Cuba fall into the bloody hands of Marxists, our helping the Soviet Union expand its power seems to have become almost a habit. There have been South Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos, and others. More recently we helped the Marxists take over Nicaragua. And now, we seem determined to make South Africa, with the Phillipines nervously anticipating our intervention, the next victim of Marxist aggression.

A logical explanation, on our part, for all this is indeed hard to come by. The dominating influence of so-called "leftists" in our country is partly a factor. Equally responsible are the sinister disinformation experts of the Soviet Union. Of course, both the "leftists" and the disinformation experts were, and are, most effectively helped by our powerful, free and outrageously biased Media Moguls.

It just seems that with a friend like the United States an anti-communist country doesn't need enemies. The patriot asks: "And why is that?"

Message of M*A*S*H universal

Editor:

The State Press article that appeared Sept. 27, 1985, missed some important aspects of Mike Farrell's speech last week. While Mr. Farrell spoke of and answered questions about Central America, he spoke also of human rights in general, covering topics from apartheid to the Middle East.

Anything that "hurts people is wrong . . . and needs to be fixed," he said. In answering questions about M*A*S*H, Mr. Farrell said that its message is "the ultimate triumph of the human spirit." Too, he said that, although he is not a pacifist, human blood ought never to be shed needlessly in war. Therefore, the Message of M*A*S*H is universal; it applies to the entire world, including our government's involvement in Central America.

Should an actor such as Mr. Farrell use his popularity to spread his personal political views? This question was posed to Mr. Farrell. Obviously, he said an actor should. In my opinion, Mr. Farrell's message needs to be heard across the nation; he speaks on behalf of others who have no voice and claims to have no ambitions for political office. But haven't certain other actors used their popularity to help their political careers?

I wish to thank ASASU for bringing Mr. Farrell to ASU and Mr. Farrell himself for making me aware of what is going on in Central America and for sharing his special moments about a television show that is, truly, the greatest ever.

ABC president: public unclear on news reporting techniques

By MEAD SUMMER
State Press

A local poll that favored media censorship by the government shows that the public does not understand how news coverage works, the president of the ABC broadcast group said Thursday.

James Duffy, speaking to ASU National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences members, said, "There was a suggestion that what should be done is the government should lay out some guidelines," said James Duffy. "With that, you're living in a different world."

"If 73 percent (the amount favoring censorship) of the people really meant that, I'd say we're really in trouble. But I don't think the question was phrased quite properly."

The telephone poll, conducted by ABC affiliate KTVK-Channel 3, asked: "Should the government be able to censor television news?"

Duffy related the question to the August 1985 hostage crisis in which Lebanese terrorists commandeered a TWA 727, shot an American serviceman and kept the remainder of the passengers at a number of hideouts in Lebanon.

Critics charged that television overplay of the event provided free publicity for the terrorists, but Duffy said he was generally pleased with his staff's performance during the affair.

"I'd say our coverage was complete, immediate and probably excessive to some degree," he said.

"Instances like that should make us re-evaluate, and that did happen after the Beirut crisis."

"Government shouldn't impose itself on the programming process. Then you would have the BBC (British Broadcasting Service)."

TGIF: Only ten more normal or not-so-normal weeks of fall semester left.

On that happy note . . .

The 1985-86 opera season is in full swing at the Lyceum Theatre with Oliver Goldsmith's classic comedy "She Stoops to Conquer," directed by David Vining. This good-natured romp, which re-established laughing comedy for the English in the 18th century, plays at 8 tonight and tomorrow night and 2 p.m. on Sunday.

Tickets, priced at $5, $3 for students and senior citizens, are available at the Lyceum box office from 1 to 5 p.m. weekdays and on performance evenings. Tickets are also at Gammage and Diamond's box offices.

In the "Line 'em up" department: Foreigner tickets go on sale today. The band will spend Halloween night on an ASU-UAC haunt. Joining Foreigner is John Caferty and the Beaver Brown Band. This is a weird grouping of groups.

Tickets, while they are available, will be at Gammage and Diamond's box offices.

There are still tickets available for Tina Turner's Oct. 18 concert at UAC. For $15, they're at Gammage and Diamond's outlets. Mr. Mister is the opening act.

Kool and the Gang will see exactly how fresh ASU is at 8 p.m. in the UAC. The Gang promises first-rate robots, lights and other effects — enough to cause a celebration. They will be joined by special guests Lisa-Lisa and Ready for the World. Lisa-Lisa will be joined by Cult Jam and Full Force. Tickets for everyone are still available. They cost $17.50 and are available at Gammage and Diamond's outlets and Charts Records.

Light rock, less talk recording artist Melissa Manchester will perform at Gammage Center at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Tickets, at $14.50, are at Gammage and Diamond's ticket outlets.

We hear that Paul Young, will go on and on with the "Everytime You Go Away" single at ASU's UAC around the first of November. We'll keep you posted.

Two notable additions to the State Fair later this month in Phoenix are Kenny Loggins on Oct. 22 and John Parr on Oct. 25. Tickets are free with the price of fair admission. Come early to get prime seats, fair officials warn.

One more time.

Tele-Vid Movie Rentals Inc. will allow every ASU student, faculty and staff member to receive one free movie rental per week until June 1986.

There's no deposit required and no membership fee. All you need to do is bring a valid ASU I.D. and fill out a membership application. Tele-Vid is also offering a reduced rate on VCR rentals. Call 966-0855 after 4 p.m. for details.

Two ASU students completing their MFA degrees in dance, Rosemary Casper and Shane O'Hara, will present their dance/theater production "Dance Cards from Athens" on Oct. 5 and 6 at 8:15 p.m. in the Center for Body Awareness, 414 S. Mill Ave., Tempe. Tickets, at $5 for non-Center members and $4 for members and students, are available at the door.

The fabulous Flying Karamazov Brothers will bring one unique blend of juggling and comedy to Gammage Center at 8 p.m. Monday. Tickets, priced at $10 and $9, are at Gammage and Diamond's box offices.

The ASU Jazz Rock Ensemble, directed by Chuck Marohnic, will perform at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Music Theater. The concert is free.

ASU's Jazz Band II will perform in the Music Theater at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday. It's free.

Ron Kellum and Joel R. Briel will take the stage in ASU's Pippin.

RIC ALPERS
State Press

There is an old saying in the theater concerning animals and children.

The saying basically states that it is theatrical suicide to go on after any act containing either. That is, however, preferable to performing with either.

However, Lyric Opera Theatre is about to prove that adage is wrong on both counts.

First, Otto the duck will be played by a toy. Second, Theo will be played by Adam Fingerhut.

Fingerhut is far from being a toy. Though the 11-year-old will make his Lyric Opera Theatre debut in "Pippin," he is already a veteran performer with six other productions under his belt. In fact, it was in one of these other productions that the seeds were planted.

Jerry Wayne Harkey, Pippin's musical director, worked with a local performing arts school, Centerstage, this summer and was impressed with Adam's performance as Tom Sawyer in a production of "Tom and Huck." He asked Adam to audition for "Pippin" and Brian Hall, the musical's director, must have agreed with Harkey.

Though "Pippin" has been in rehearsal for sometime now, Adam has recently joined the cast. This is a common practice when an actor has a small but pivotal role. And like a trooper, Adam has come in ready to go.

Adam is excited about working with "all these big people," as he calls them, but particularly likes Hall. "He's really funny," Adam said. "He looks for the humor in the character."

"Pippin" tells the tale of Prince Pippin (Joel Briel) and his attempt to find his place in the sun while in the shadow of his father, Charlemagne (John Welty). Helping him look for the meaning in his life is the leading player, (Ron Kellum).

Pippin samples many ways of life in his search: warrior, priest and hedonist. However, he finds simple home life as represented by the young widow, Catherine (Jennifer Mosher) and her son, Theo (Adam Fingerhut), is what he was looking for all along.

"Pippin" opened in 1972 on Broadway under the direction of Bob Fosse. It won five Tony awards.

Fosse has directed several other productions of "Pippin" since, always incorporating new concepts.

Hall, a self-described, hard-core fan and scholar of "Pippin," sees his production as a tribute to the "Fosse magic."

"Audiences today are looking for a theater experience that will do something in addition to entertaining (them)," Hall said.

Pippin samples many ways of life in his search: warrior, priest and hedonist. He is only to find the simple home life.

Adam, who has plans of making acting a career, concurs with Hall. "It's fun," he said. "I've asked all my friends at (my school) Madison Meadows to come . . . I hope they can make it," he said.

"Pippin" opens tonight and will play Oct. 5-6, Oct. 9 and Oct. 11-13. Curtain is at 8 p.m. except on the 6th and the 13th when the curtain is at 3 p.m. Tickets are $9.50, $5 for students and children, and are available at Gammage, the Music Theatre box office and at all Diamond's outlets.

'Agnes of God'

Fonda film juggles saints vs. sinners

By MELISSA SMYTH
State Press

Norman Jewison's "Agnes of God" is a disturbing film. Much of what is troubling about the film is obvious. Yet, the subtleties brought out during the movie are more deeply unnerving.

One night in a cloistered convent outside of Montreal, a young nun gives birth. The baby is found strangled by its umbilical cord and stuffed into a trash can.

A court-appointed psychiatrist, Dr. Martha Livingston (Jane Fonda), is sent to the convent to determine whether young Agnes (Meg Tilly) is fit to stand trial.

As Livingston drives her silver BMW up to the stark gray walls of the convent, the disparity between the doctor and the anachronistic world of the sisters becomes immediately evident.

Fonda, resilient, smoking an endless chain of cigarettes, is determined to use the power of psychology to discover the truth about Agnes.

What would compel a young novice, an innocent and lovely child, to engage in illicit sex and possible manslaughter?

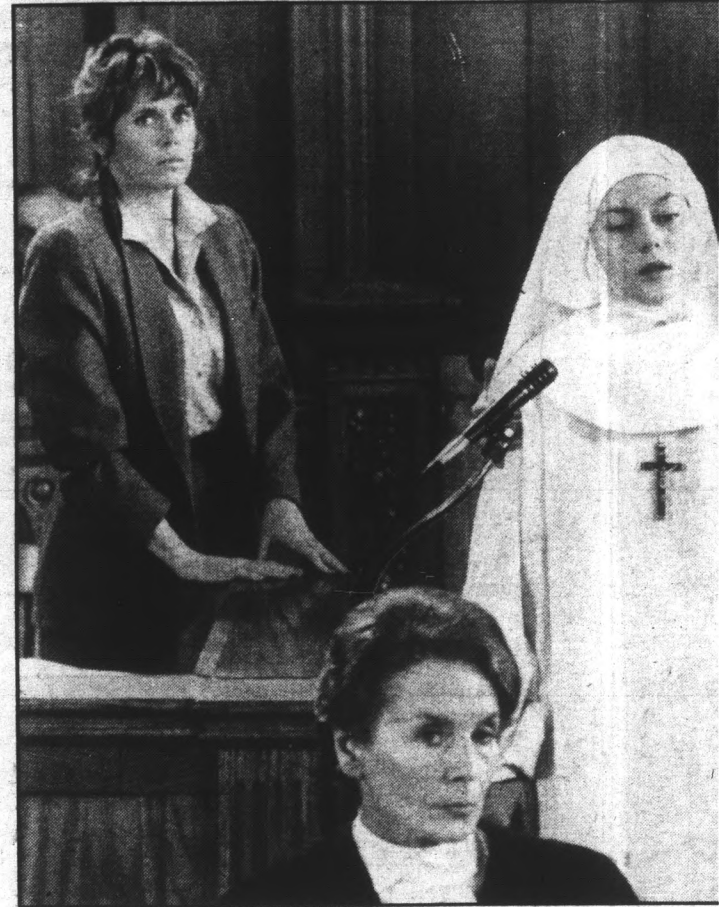

Mother Superior Miriam Ruth, played by Ann Bancroft, is equally determined to spare Agnes from being dissected, from being raped by modern psychology.

While Fonda is driven in her search for a logical explanation for Agnes' behavior, Bancroft cleaves to the possibility that Agnes' dilemma is one of those mysteries unfathomable by the human mind — somehow a divine act involving a young woman touched by God.

What is disturbing is that as more details about Agnes' life are revealed, our questions about her are left suspended. The evidence gathered by Livingston serves to support her own emotionally charged opinions.

Yet there are too many unanswered questions and enough holes in the investigation to lend credence to the Mother Superior's assertion that a miracle has occurred.

Bancroft is superb as the Mother Superior. She is poignant in her role, intimately aware of the struggles practicing Catholics face.

Bancroft's Mother Superior is also warm and empathetic, capable of providing some much-needed comic relief to a disquieting film.

Fonda, while giving a solid performance, is the least credible of the three.

Somehow her performance seems forced; there are no subtle nuances in her character.

Ultimately the film does not answer the questions raised about faith and innocence. But these are fundamental questions that have been at the heart of religious and non-religious alike.

That Jewison was able to re-raise these fundamental questions — yet does not attempt to provide pat answers to them — is both commendable and disturbing.

Trapped in a box; Hart won't let go

Corey Hart
Boy in a Box

It would be a darned good thing if the wives of Washington husbands — the ones who rate rock records — jumped down Corey Hart's throat.

Hart, a 23-year-old, quite punky looking Canadian, sang last year about how he was razed for wearing his sunglasses at night. Inasmuch as that was probably connected to something psychopathic, Hart is now singing lyrics to the tune of "you can't get where you're going, unless you remember where you came from."

"Who you are and what you are is the only thing you own."

And, if everything in the world stinks and everyone hates your guts, never give in; Hart says.

And never — ever — surrender.
It's occult, the wives would say.

It is the single, "Never Surrender," from Hart's second LP, "Boy in the Box." Again, he proves that (if there can be one simple description) he has a weird and interesting voice — a cross between his admitted favorite, Sting, and the throaty, gargle-with-gravel, gritty determination of Bruce Springsteen.

Strangely enough, the love song is the pick of this album. "Eurasian Eyes" is classy, rock-tough, eloquent and deep thinking — much like Corey Hart.

Literary publication may appear on campus in near future

By LYNN LORRAIN SCHULER
State Press

A new literary magazine may hit the ASU campus if a creative writing association has its way.

The Master of Fine Arts (MFA) Creative Writing Student Association, a new group at ASU hopes to have a professionally produced literary magazine out as soon as possible, said Rob Hall, co-chair of the organization.

The association was founded this semester by serious writers who felt an organization was needed to help facilitate communication within the writing community and to help individual writers with their careers.

The magazine is going to be a joint venture between students and faculty, according to Hall, a master of fine arts candidate in creative writing.

The English department faculty has been talking about publishing a magazine for several years, Hall said.

With the birth of the MFA program in creative writing, the students have felt a need for a magazine, he said.

"Every major English department in the country, whether it has an MFA program or not, produces a literary magazine — usually of high quality," Hall said. "The University of Arizona has five separate and distinct magazines. ASU has none. I find that rather embarrassing.

"I don't want to graduate from a program that doesn't even put out a magazine. We need a magazine committed to literary excellence."

Hall feels the faculty-student project is a positive one. Instead of competing with each other, particularly for funding, they will compliment one another.

The faculty has contacts and editorial experience that will undoubtedly contribute to the magazine's success, Hall said.

The editorial board will consist of two faculty members and three students who will share equal votes.

The magazine will not be open just to the ASU community, Hall said.

National submissions will be solicited by the editorial board.

This year's goal is to publish one magazine by the end of spring semester, Hall said.

He said he hopes the magazine will publish bi-annually or quarterly in the future.

The tentative title for the magazine is "Hayden's Ferry Review."

The association, which has 35 members, will also be printing a newsletter, Hall said.

One main objective of the newsletter are to inform individuals of workshops and readings in Phoenix, Tucson and other areas of Arizona.

Another purpose is to announce local writing contests, Hall said, adding the association is considering approaching local residents and businesses to financially support writing contests.

Additionally, the association hopes to sponsor open readings, he said.

"We'd like to bring in area artists who aren't looking to be paid, or not to be paid much," Hall said. "Money is an issue."

He said the association has sought $300 from the Associated Students of ASU Senate Appropriations Committee for the 1985-86 academic year.

The money will be used to support the literary magazine ($200), newsletter ($50) and workshops ($50).

The group will not know until Oct. 21 if its request will be funded, Hall said.

The two other co-chair members of the association are Kelly Thomas, a graduate student in creative writing, and Robbie Matloff, an undergraduate in journalism.

The next general meeting of the association is Friday, Oct. 4 at 4 p.m. in the Language and Literature Building, room 319.

Hall said anyone interested in working on the magazine or who has any questions concerning the association should contact a representative of the association in the Language and Literature Building.

Devils look to improve odds for Pasadena return

Series of near-misses fill history with Bruins

By BRAD HALVORSEN
State Press

The Rose Bowl. Traditionally acclaimed as one of finest football stadiums in the country, the home site of the UCLA Bruins has become a frustrating thought for the ASU Sun Devils.

Since joining the Pac-10 Conference in 1978, ASU has never been invited to the Rose Bowl for postseason play. Furthermore, the Devils have won at least once at every Pac-10 stadium — except the Rose Bowl.

ASU will try to defeat the Rose Bowl jinx Saturday when it faces UCLA, a team they have never beaten, in an 11:40 a.m. regionally televised game.

Recent ASU-UCLA games have been thrillers. In 1983, ASU settled for a 26-26 tie at the Rose Bowl, choosing to run out the clock instead of trying for a game-winning field goal.

'Of all the games we had with ASU, five of them could have gone either way.' — Terry Donahue

Last year at Sun Devil Stadium, the Devils drove to the UCLA 2-yard line during the final seconds, but failed to score and lost another nailbiter, 21-13.

"Of all the games we had with ASU, five of them probably could have gone either way," said UCLA coach Terry Donahue, whose Bruins hold a 5-0-1 series lead on ASU. "One year we won in the last five seconds. Last year we won on the last play. We've been lucky to come out on top."

The Sun Devils go into the game with the hottest defense in the country. It has shut out opponents for eight straight quarters and has not allowed a touchdown since the first quarter of the season opener against Michigan State.

But ASU coach John Cooper said the Sun Devils need a rushing attack to go along with the defense to beat UCLA.

"We have got to be able to run the football if we are going to have any kind of success," he said. "We cannot let people gang up on us."

UCLA has been tough against the run. The Bruins lead the Pac-10 and rank seventh nationally in rushing defense, allowing 70.2 yards per game and 2.3 yards per carry.

Last Saturday during UCLA's 21-14 loss to Washington, the Huskies managed only 78 yards rushing on 41 carries, a 1.9-yard average.

The ASU backfield will be at full strength Saturday, with tailback Darryl Clack returning to the lineup after missing last week's USC game with a bruise above his ankle.

Game at a Glance, p. 18

The Bruins are strong on the ground, despite playing without leading rusher Gaston Green, who Donahue called his best offensive player.

Green suffered strained knee ligaments during practice two weeks ago and will miss the game, but tailbacks James Primus and Eric Ball have compiled 291 yards between them in the last two games.

The Bruins have been vulnerable in the defensive secondary, ranking last in the Pac-10 in passing defense.

Donahue said the problem is a combination of good opposition and inexperience in the secondary.

"We have played good quarterbacks, no doubt about that," Donahue said. "And we're going to play another good one this week (Sun Devil Jeff Van Raaphorst)."

"We are not an experienced secondary, but we are a year older than last year. I don't know if people realize this, but this is a very young UCLA team. We only have six seniors starting and 16 on the whole team. We're inexperienced back there, and we make mistakes."

Cooper said the Bruins' secondary will be a challenge to Van Raaphorst because they use many coverages.

"They play every coverage known to man," Cooper said. "If you came in the offensive meeting room and looked at the board, you'd see every coverage used in college football."

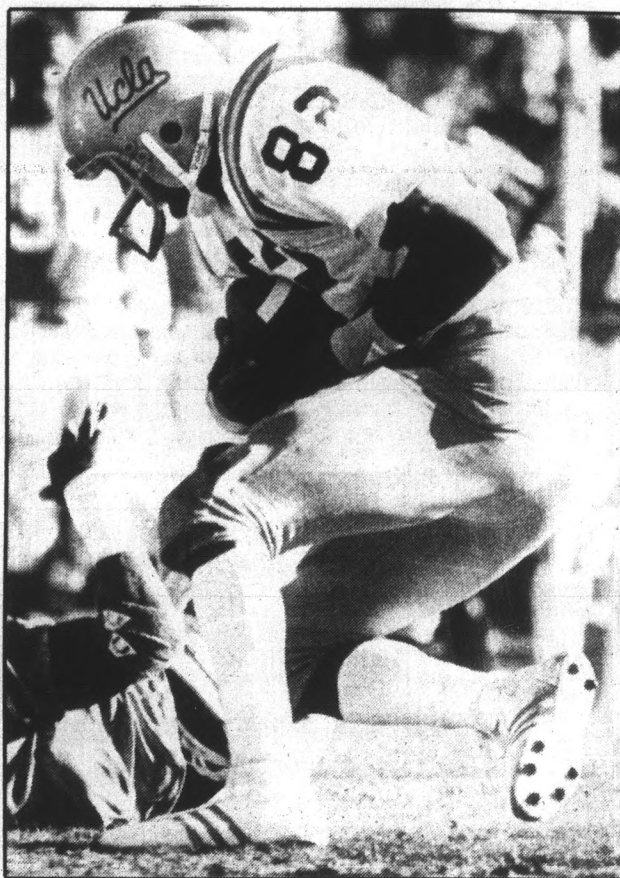

"They play a lot like the Chicago Bears' defense. They'll blitz from one side, zone this side and go man over here."

On offense, the Bruins have an All-American candidate in split end Mike Sherrard, UCLA's all-time leading receiver who began his career as a walk on.

Sherrard has 24 receptions this season for 360 yards and one touchdown after four games. Flanker Karl Dorrell has caught 14 passes for 170 yards.

"They have two of the best wide receivers in the league," Cooper said.

The Bruins will start fifth-year senior David Norrie at quarterback. Norrie has been trading playing time with Matt Stevens, but Stevens sustained a knee injury against Washington and is questionable for the game.

UCLA wide receiver Mike Sherrard started his Bruin career as a walk on but now is an All-American candidate.

Brendan McCracken, a scrambling freshman quarterback, will be Norrie's replacement.

"If Brendan got into the game, there would be a lot of restrictions we'd have to put on the offense," Donahue said. "He has nowhere near the experience that Matt or David have."

Spikers begin California road trip, move up in both polls

By MICHAEL KONZ
State Press

With momentum and middle blocker Tammy Webb on its side, the Sun Devil volleyball team travels West for matches against Southern California and Pepperdine this weekend.

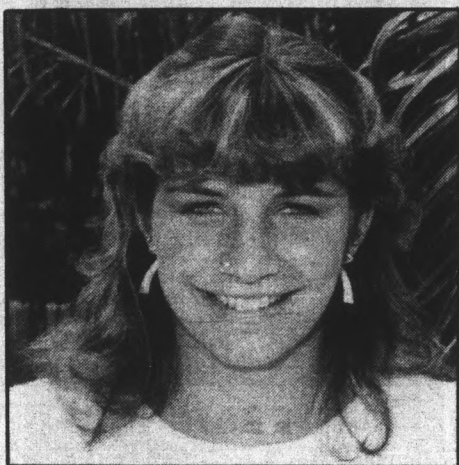

The Sun Devils are coming off a close 3-1 loss against top-ranked UCLA and a 3-0 win over Northern Iowa (17-15, 15-6, 15-8).

The result is ASU being ranked ninth in the NCAA poll and 16th in the Tachikara Collegiate Volleyball Coaches Association poll with a record of 10-2.

"Everyone is pulling their weight," Coach Debbie Brown said. "We're looking for everyone to contribute in a match. We need everyone playing well."

Webb was named the Pac-West Conference Athlete of the Week for her performance against the Bruins. Webb had 25 kills, 19 digs, eight blocks and had a hitting percentage of .478.

Webb was ranked third in the Pac-West in hitting percentage and block average and fourth in kill average.

Tammy Webb

Against Northern Iowa, Brown said her team was not as impressive.

"I thought it was an average game," she said. "There was not a lot of intensity, but we managed to win. We were coming off of UCLA, and we knew Northern Iowa was not a big powerhouse."

The Trojans (15th NCAA, seventh CVCA) are suffering from a variety of injuries to key players.

Setter Kim Ruddins had a sprained knee, but should be in action against ASU. Her backup, Alisa Eishen, is out for the season after undergoing arthroscopic surgery on her knee.

The Trojans lost to Stanford (second-ranked in both polls) in their Pac-West opener, 3-0 (15-4, 15-8, 15-7). Their record is now 8-4 overall and 0-1 in the conference.

"They've been struggling," Brown said. "But they have great talent."

ASU has only beaten USC once in the last two years. They lost both matches to the Trojans last year.

"SC is always a powerhouse," Brown said. "They usually play us really well."

Pepperdine is ranked 20th in the CVCA poll but is also suffering from injuries.

"They're struggling too," Brown said. "Their middle blocker was injured water-skiing."

Brown said being on the road will not have a big effect on her team.

"It doesn't make a lot of difference when in the season you're on the road," she said. "It's not like we're not used to being on the road."

"A lot of our players are from Southern California, so we get family and friends at the matches. We have a pretty good following."

Brown concentrated on individual skills in practice early in the week and on "team-oriented" drills on Wednesday and Thursday.

"Passing and defense are our strengths," he said. "Our attack has been successful because our passing has been there. Defensively, we're able to keep the ball in play."

Brown said the Sun Devils' chief weakness is serving.

"We want to serve tougher," she said. "One thing I have them do is serve 20 times in a row from a certain point. Serving is a lot of concentration. It's not difficult, but you can't run back there, swing and miss it."

Pick 'Um

This is the last day to fill out your Pick 'Um form and turn it into the State Press offices. The box is filling up, so don't be left behind.

One thing is very important, however. Please print your name and telephone number clearly on the form.

But for the part you've all been waiting for — the prizes.

First prize will be an ASU sweatshirt from University Sporting Goods. Second place will get 50 percent off any purchase at Poster's Mostly (excluding Patrick Nagel posters). Hey, pay attention, I'm only gonna do this once. Third prize is a lunch for two at Bandersnatch and fourth place will dig into a 16-inch pizza with a choice of toppings at Gino's Pizza. Pick your little heart out.

Entries must be turned in to the State Press by 3 p.m. Friday in the Matthews Center basement. Only one entry per person. The top four entries will be listed in TUESDAY'S paper. The Arizona State game will be used as the tie breaker, so just predict the score. Place an "X" in both boxes to predict a tie in any game with the point spread taken into consideration. The teams on the left are the favorites, and the points shown will be subtracted from their final score.

Court says no Wrigley lights; Cubs threaten to leave town

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois Supreme Court upheld a ban on night baseball at Wrigley Field Thursday and prompted renewed threats by the Chicago Cubs that they would play elsewhere.

"We're working to stay in Wrigley and play in Wrigley Field. That's our priority and our first thought," Cubs General Manager Dallas Green said after the high court's ruling. "But we're getting banged around by the courts and have to look at the alternatives, other stadiums, other ideas."

The court rejected a challenge from the Cubs' owners of state and local laws barring night baseball at Wrigley, the only major league ballpark without lights.

Labeling the decision "another nail in the coffin" of the Cubs' hopes of staying at Wrigley, Green said the club has three options: trying for a legislative solution, reaching a compromise with the city and neighborhood groups or finding another place to play ball.

The high court's decision, issued without dissent, said state and city lawmakers acted properly in enacting legislation to ensure a continued ban on lights at the 70-year-old National League stadium.

Attorneys for the Tribune Co., which owns the Cubs, argued that the laws unfairly single out Wrigley Field, noting night events are allowed at Chicago's two other major outdoor sports stadiums.

But the high court rejected that argument, saying the state Legislature and Chicago City Council have "broad discretion" to make laws protecting public safety and welfare.

"Simply, the Cubs have failed to meet the burden of showing the unconstitutionality of the legislative actions," the court said in an opinion written by Justice Daniel Ward.

The court also noted Wrigley Field is in a densely populated area without parking facilities or access to major expressways to ease traffic generated by night ball games.

Neighborhood residents opposed to night games praised the ruling, while some local merchants were disappointed.

"We're delighted. It's a victory of the people over money," said Nancy Kaszak, outgoing president of Citizens United for Baseball in Sunshine (CUBS), a neighborhood group.

"If the Cubs were to move out, I don't think it would have a serious impact on the neighborhood... It's a serious misconception of our community to think we rely solely, or even heavily, on Wrigley Field," said Mark Atkinson, the incoming president, at a news conference.

Some merchants near Wrigley Field had hoped night games would bring more customers, "but we're not going to dry up," said John Abrahamson, building manager for Cubby Bear Lounge, a popular tavern adjacent to the ballpark.
