

Regent president favors substantial tuition hike

By VICKIE CHACHERE
State Press

Large tuition increases will be needed for the 1986-87 school year to improve undergraduate education at Arizona's three universities, the president of the Arizona Board of Regents said.

Donald Pitt said he is supporting a substantial tuition increase because additional funds are needed to finance university programs and improve education at ASU, NAU and UA.

"I have constantly indicated that our tuition is not high enough to provide the quality of service that this system aspires to have," Pitt said.

He said 84 percent of the major public universities in the United States have higher resident tuition than ASU and that the Arizona university system has been unable to develop needed programs due to a lack of funding.

He said the board has only two alternatives in funding university operations: It can request additional funds from the Arizona Legislature, or it can raise tuition.

"There has been no discussion with the Legislature this year about higher tuition," Pitt said. "But there is a consistent feeling that the persons who are receiving a service should bear some of the reasonable part of the cost."

Pitt said, "It is unrealistic in light of state revenues and other program needs" to request more funding from the Legislature.

Pitt said he also is supporting a Presidents' Council suggestion that the current tuition setting formula be altered to base tuition costs on a percentage of the anticipated operating costs.

release its tuition-rate proposal to the Arizona Students Association Tuesday.

"I recognize that it is unpopular to suggest that we deal with this difficult issue," Pitt said. "But I believe it is more harmful to try and operate a quality university systems without adequate (funds)."

Pitt said he was not under pressure from the Legislature to increase tuition and that he has not developed his own proposal for tuition rates.

"I have not approached this in terms of a specific dollar amount," Pitt said. "Rather, I have approached it on the basis that we have a need that needs to be met."

Pitt said the regents will have to increase the availability of financial aid and increase the number of tuition waivers to offset any tuition hikes.

Pitt said the board wants to "continue to provide access to qualified students who are economically disadvantaged."

'I have constantly indicated that our tuition is not high enough to provide the quality of service that this system aspires to have.' — Donald Pitt

The regents approved a $398 million state-appropriation request earlier this month — a $54 million increase over last year's request.

But Sen. William De Long, chairman of the Senate Education Committee, said the request may be cut because of monetary demands from other state programs.

"We don't apply that formula ... consistent with our policy," Pitt said. "We have been setting (resident) tuition as 20 percent of the prior year's cost of education."

The council, which met in a closed-door meeting Thursday to decide if it wanted to propose the formula adjustment, will

Student's warning: Get return receipts for library material

An ASU graduate student is advising Hayden Library patrons to obtain receipts when returning books because a computer error forced her to pay a late charge.

Suzanne Alberts, a foreign-language graduate teaching assistant, said she was charged a $10 late fee and her University paychecks were retained because a computer failed to acknowledge that she had returned a book to Hayden Library last spring.

Alberts said she returned a book to Hayden library in June before leaving for summer vacation.

When she returned home, she received a notice that she had an overdue library book and would have to pay a $45 replacement fee and a $10 late fee.

"When I went to circulation to explain to them I had returned the book, they didn't believe me," Alberts said. "A man standing in line behind me suggested that I look on the shelf where it belongs ... and sure enough, there was the book."

Alberts said the librarian removed the $45 replacement fee but said she was still responsible for paying the $10 late fee, even though the librarian admitted the error was the fault of the computer.

Alberts said she tried to contact library administrators but was informed that she would still be required to pay the $10 late fee and could appeal the fine later.

"It's not the $10 that's important," Alberts said. "It's just the whole fact of the matter that it wasn't my fault."

"When you are writing your thesis, it puts you in a difficult situation," Alberts said, adding that she paid the fine to continue with her work because without library materials she "can kiss graduating goodbye."

Maura Pollock, a circulation assistant at Hayden Library, said computer errors do not happen often and the problem could have been caused by the book not being returned properly.

She said a search for the book is conducted before a late

ASU professor finds quick Valley Fever detection method

By ROB KELTON
State Press

An ASU professor has developed a process capable of detecting Valley Fever several times faster than methods used by state health officials.

Chester Leathers, an ASU professor of microbiology, said he has worked with Pratap Awasthi, a specialist visiting ASU from India, to develop a method to detect coccidioidomycosis, the fungus-caused disease known as Valley Fever, in three to five days.

"It usually takes an average of four weeks to detect the fungus, but we have developed a selective culture medium (test-tube experiment) that takes three to five days," Leathers said.

The scientific apparatus consists of a test tube containing a chemical that turns pink when exposed to the Valley Fever fungus.

To use the device, a patient discharges a sample of lung saliva or blood which is inserted into the test tube.

The device currently is being evaluated by Leathers, ASU graduate student Gary Brown and Dr. Mary Fried from the Tucson Medical Center.

Five Valley Fever cases in Arizona have been discovered by this process — after they had gone undetected by normal procedures, Leathers said.

"All five of those cases have been confirmed," he said.

Valley Fever affects about 80 percent of new residents in Arizona, said Monty Roth, director of Student Health Center.

"Valley Fever is pretty common with ASU students coming from out of state," he said.

Carolyn Norris, the nursing supervisor at the Student Health Center, said as many as 50 percent of the people in Arizona have had the disease.

"Fortunately, very few of those cases have had symptoms requiring treatment," she said.

Arizonans and Californians suffer most of the effects from the disease, which attacks 100,000 people each year, Leathers said.

"Conservatively, about 25 people a year in Arizona die from the disease, and those people have been diagnosed," he said.

The actual death rate may be twice as high because of the difficulties in detecting Valley Fever, he said.

The symptoms of Valley Fever are the same as a common cold, Leathers said.

"Some of these may be a fever up to 106 degrees, night sweats, chest pains, cough and aches," he said.

Valley Fever is contracted from a soil-grown mold, similar to the mold that attacks breads, fruits and vegetables, Leathers said.

"The mold is chiefly spread in outside dust," he said.

Leathers and some ASU chemistry graduate students also are planning to administer a survey to 3,000 employed persons that have had Valley Fever to see if there is a correlation between the disease and occupations.

"We want to see if some (dust-related) occupations place workers at a higher risk than other occupations to contract the disease," he said.

The survey also will try to determine how many times a person can catch Valley Fever, and if the length of exposure to the fungus is related to the severity of the disease, Leathers said.

Man tried for espionage expected to plead guilty

BALTIMORE (AP) — The espionage trial of John A. Walker Jr. was postponed Friday so he could appear in court Monday with his son, and a government source said that the father is expected to plead guilty at that time.

The government source in Washington, who refused to be identified by name, said that the elder Walker is expected to offer his full cooperation to the government. That could include testifying against his long-time friend from the Navy, Jerry A. Whitworth, who is charged on the West Coast with supplying the senior Walker with sensitive communications and code secrets for sale to the Soviet Union.

Court tries wrong man in Georgia murder trial

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — A Vietnamese immigrant cried at the defendant's table and kept telling his translator, "Not me, not me," as a murder trial proceeded for a day and a half before authorities found out they were trying the wrong man.

Ngoc Nguyen Tieu was supposed to be on trial in a stabbing death. Instead he was still in his cell, and in his place was Hen Van Nguyen, 27, who had been jailed on a theft charge.

The mistake was not discovered until Thursday, after Cathy Pemberton, who knows both men, checked on the status of Nguyen's case and was told he was being tried for murder.

"We don't know what went wrong," Hall County Sheriff Richard Mecum said.

Soviet nuclear arms cut 'unique,' senator says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Richard

Lugar, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, says the Soviet Union's "unique" proposal to cut nuclear arms 50 percent moves the arms control process "miles down the trail toward some type of agreement."

"Giving credit where credit is due, and not (looking at it) as a propaganda ploy but as an interesting and substantive proposal, the Soviet deep-cut situation is unique," the Indiana Republican said.

"The Soviets haven't offered this kind of thing before," he said. "A year ago they weren't even at the table at all. The fact that they are there and that they have made a (comprehensive) proposal is significant," said Lugar, a consistent supporter of Reagan administration foreign policy.

American pilot escapes leftist guerrilla kidnappers

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — An missionary pilot has escaped from leftist guerrillas who kidnapped him and three other Americans weeks ago. He flew out of the jungle on a foggy, moonless night with his lights out, not knowing if he had enough gas to make it, a spokesman for the missionary group said Friday.

Paul Dye, of Saginaw, Mich., was flying a missionary couple and a copilot out of a remote southeastern village on Oct. 5 when they stopped the single-engine plane in Morichal Viejo, his wife said. Rebels seized the plane and flew off with the four Americans.

Dye escaped on Oct. 10, Wyma said, but did not explain why it wasn't announced earlier.

Wyma said the others still held are copilot Stephen Estelle, of Douglas, Ariz., Timothy Paul Cain, 35, and his wife Bonnie, 33, of Alexandria, Va.

Acting dean looks toward program reconstruction

By COLLEEN MOORE
State Press

Craig Kirkwood, acting dean of the College of Business Administration, will temporarily leave his former position as chairman of the department of decision and information systems until a permanent dean is named.

Richard Burdick, professor of decision and information systems, will become acting chairman of the department today, he said.

Kirkwood said, "I am excited at the opportunity to continue the quite substantial progress the College has made in the past several years.

"Obviously it's an opportunity, but it's a responsibility as well."

Kirkwood assumed the position of acting dean Oct. 21.

Until Burdick was named acting chairman, Kirkwood was both college dean and department chairman.

"It's been active," Kirkwood said.

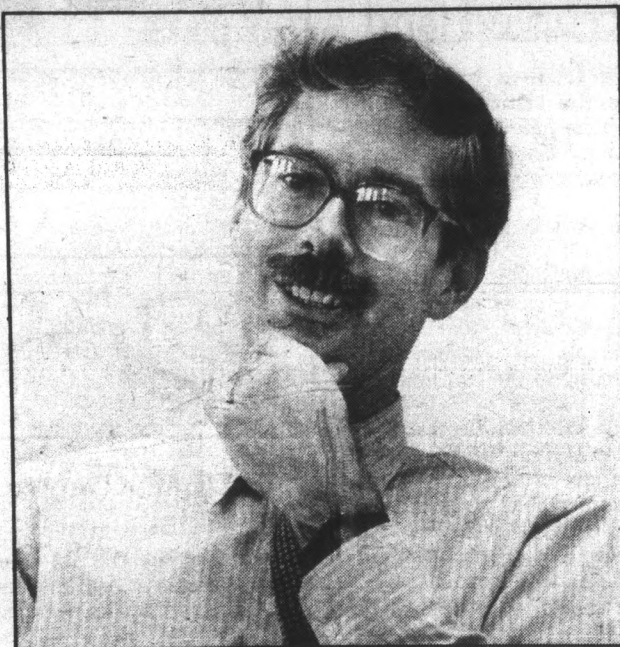

Kirkwood said he does not know how much his work load will increase as acting dean.

"In the short term, (it will increase) because I'll have to learn new things," he said.

Kirkwood said he has three goals to accomplish as acting dean.

"We will continue to build a high quality graduate program and faculty research program," he said.

"We will continue to provide quality undergraduate education in a cost-effective manner.

"In addition, the College will continue to build increased relations with the external business community and the government," he said.

Because of these changes, Kirkwood said, "We may need somewhat different management and faculty governance procedures (within the College).

If any changes are made in management and faculty governance, it will make things easier for the permanent dean who will eventually take over, he said.

"I don't want to give the impression of chaos here. Things are running smoothly," he said.

Marianne Jennings, professor of administrative services, who was named head of the search committee for a new dean, said Thursday that the committee will consider dean candidates from the University and the outside business community as well.

Jennings was named to the position last week by Jack Kinsinger, ASU's vice president of academic affairs.

Jennings said she doesn't anticipate that the committee will have a problem meeting the July 1 deadline for naming a new dean.

Committee member James Simmons, who is chairman and chief executive officer of United Bank of Arizona, said, "It is my opinion that the committee should consider candidates from everywhere: the business community, Arizona State University and academia everywhere."

The committee will meet for the first time this week.

Meeting mandatory for club funding

By KARI BLAND
State Press

Clubs that were allocated funds in the Associated Students of ASU fall appropriations process will not receive money unless they attend a mandatory meeting Nov. 5, the Appropriations Committee chairman said.

Henry Presseller said letters of notification will be mailed this week to clubs receiving funding.

If a club representative does not attend the meeting, the club's funds will be suspended, he said. A representative must then meet with the executive vice president and the Appropriations Committee chairman before funding can be granted.

Presseller said the meeting will be Nov. 5 at 3:30 p.m. on the second floor of the MU.

During the meeting, the club representatives will receive information about submitting funding requisitions and individual bills for additional programming.

Presseller said the clubs will be encouraged to come back because there is "a lot of money left in the account."

He said clubs will be advised to introduce bills through their own college councils, but any senator or vice president may sponsor a bill.

"This will allow the senators to become familiar with the individual club so they could defend the bill more educably," he said.

He said the clubs also will receive an itemized list of what money they were allocated and for which programs.

For example, a club may have received $60 for speakers and $30 for advertising.

"We want to get these clubs to start spending their money," Presseller said.

Although the money is earmarked for each specific organization, he said if a club has not spent the money that was appropriated for the fall semester by the 10th week of the spring semester, it will lose the funds.

"If they don't spend the money or have plans for spending the money, we pull it," Presseller said. "It gives us another opportunity to fund other clubs."

Palestinians rightful owners of occupied land

When reporting on the Middle East, writers often present only the Israeli side of the story. Israel is often portrayed as the victim of terrorism, but Israel came into being by exterminating another country: Palestine.

The people of the Israel forcibly displaced the indigenous Palestinians, who have been dispersed from many lands; Palestinian land is occupied, but not owned or otherwise rightfully acquired, by its present occupants.

Sixty years ago there was only Palestine and its people forming an integral part of the Arab homeland. Today a new state has been created, expelling inhabitants and usurping their land.

A great deal of falsification of history by the Zionists, through their control of much of the Western World's media, continues to misinform public opinion and condone this injustice. How this has succeeded has been graphically described by William Zuckerman in the Jewish Newsletter, Dec. 7, 1958:

"To this observer, nothing demonstrates more sharply the terribly uncanny power of modern propaganda to control minds, sway emotions, and brutalize people than the Zionist propaganda on the Arab refugees during the last decade. It literally succeeded in turning black into white, a big blatant lie into a truth, a grave social injustice into an act of justice glorified by thousands. It has turned clever people, with more than average intelligence, into starry-eyed fools believing everything they are told."

In 1958, Professor Fred Winnett said about Zionism:

"The material achievements of Zionism have tended to blind eyes of many in the West to its real character, just as the material achievements of Nazism and Fascism blinded many to the evil inherent in those creeds."

Abhorrent as anti-semitism is, the most ruthless exploitation of it has been made by Zionists to silence any criticism of Israeli policies by well-informed writers and politicians who inevitably will find the offensive charge of anti-semitism thrown at them.

It should be known to everybody everywhere that there can be only one national home in Palestine, a Palestinian home. The Palestinians are no longer just U.N. refugee numbers, but a people who hold the reins of their own destiny. They have the right to decide their own future and regain their beloved homeland, Palestine.

Long Live Palestine.

Reader course beautiful, rare

Editor:

I was utterly sickened and disgusted to read that Dr. Mark Reader has been targeted by the "student watchdog group" Accuracy in Academia (Oct. 16).

As an undergraduate, I took POS 101 from Dr. Reader with little expectation that I would leave the course a changed person, but that is precisely what happened. Dr. Reader's course was, for me, a painful experience. With sheer disbelief, I sat immobilized while he challenged all of the smug assumptions, unfounded opinions, and unquestioned dogma about our political system that had been part of my value system for my entire life. The course forced me to examine my beliefs and to question their underpinnings. In the end, he didn't change my mind; he opened my mind to other possibilities. To achieve so much in any course, let alone an introductory course, is a rare and beautiful thing.

Of course, I took the class when there were no groups on campus to warn me of Dr. Reader's "biased" teaching—the old days when we openly faced a professor with a challenge rather than cowardly reporting our dislikes or disagreements to AIA behind the professor's back.

Among other things, I learned from Dr. Reader that language can be manipulated through its use. I am now confronted with the chilling reality of this manipulation with the euphemistically titled, doublespeak group that presents itself as seeking accuracy in academia, while its true reason for being is to deny freedom in academia—shades of Orwell?

Expert knowledge not necessary for debate

Editor:

Regarding the Oct. 15 column by Mr. Steve Waterstrat, to my knowledge, no member of Students Against A Marxist South Africa claims to be an "expert" on South Africa. I certainly hope that you are not making the assumption that intelligent discussion of an issue only can be undertaken by "experts." If that were so then both colleges and newspapers would have to close their doors. The purpose of our organization is to make information available to those interested in hearing another assessment of the South African situation and the probable effects of divestment. In our conversations with interested people, we freely quote experts and also express our own opinions. Surely such behavior is acceptable even to as exalted a person as the editor of the State Press. Your own editorial clearly shows that you are certainly no "expert" on the topic you wrote about. But you obviously saw no need to keep your mouth shut or your typewriter idle. Neither do we.

Rock music symptom of deep societal illness: rebellion

Editor:

It seems to me that many people point to rock 'n' roll as being the root cause of the moral deterioration of our society. I do not believe this to be the case. Rock music is only an expression of a deeper problem—rebellion.

Many rock groups place anti-Christian philosophies in their songs. But the question should be asked: "Why are people rebelling against Christianity?" If Christianity is the one true religion, then why are people rebelling against it? It is possible that people are rebelling against authority figures. Colossians 3:20 says, "Children, obey your parents in everything, for this pleases the Lord." Also Colossians 3:18 says, "Wives, be subject to your husbands, as is fitting in the Lord." Titus 3:1 says, "Remind the people to be submissive to rulers and authorities, to be obedient..." According to these verses in principle, we as Christians must submit to authority figures without question.

Mr. Munsil, in your article on rock music, you say that people in society are beginning to examine the contributing factors of the increases in divorce, child abuse, and teenage suicide. You also mention rock music as being one of these contributing factors. Mr. Munsil, these social ills have existed since the time that Jesus Christ walked the earth. But today we have more access to information concerning these widespread problems. Also, due to the population explosion, there are greater numbers of incidents reported. Rock music is not the cause of the moral deterioration of society. It is only an expression of the hurts and frustrations of people.

According to Biblical principles, we must obey authority. But are authority figures perfect? What about cases of child abuse and incest? Last year in Mesa a Mormon bishop did not report to the police a case of child molestation. He knew that the five-year-old child was sexually molested, but he chose to cover the whole incident up. A girl from Tempe had more than one abortion because because her father forced her into having sexual relations with him. This man went to church and claimed to be "religious."

I am not surprised at the number of young people who reject Christianity. If young people cannot look up to parents and religious leaders for proper guidance, then who can they look up to? This is where rock music comes into the picture. Rock stars offer their audience a sense of security, friendship, enjoyable music and self-esteem. How many times have you heard these kinds of questions asked during a social encounter: "What is your favorite rock group? What is your favorite rock song or album?" Face it. We can easily relate to each other through the music that we listen to.

If authority figures like parents and religious leaders do not provide a positive foundation for young people, then the young people will turn to other sources to find a sense of identity. Mr. Munsil, you wrote out a part of the lyrics from the song, "Don't Fear the Reaper." These lyrics show how suicide can be used as a means of escape. Suicide can easily be used to get attention from authority figures, even if it is a negative form of expression. Rock 'n' roll is not the cause of moral deterioration of our society, we are. We as parents, older brothers and sisters, husbands, wives and adults are at fault. It is not the devil's fault. If we as authority figures cannot reach the young people like rock music does, then rock 'n' roll has won.

police report

ASU student Gilbert A. MacPherson was arrested Friday morning in connection with failing to register as a sex offender, police said.

MacPherson was convicted of sexual offenses in Apache County in 1981. After serving a prison term he moved to the ASU campus.

Police said they had been investigating MacPherson as a possible lead in another crime. During the investigation they discovered his failure to register.

In other activity, University police reported the following incidents in the three-day period ending at 9 a.m. Sunday:
 •A man exposed himself to two students while standing on a wall in front of the Nursing Building Thursday evening, police said.

The victims told police the man was wearing a white shirt and nothing else. After exposing himself to the women, he jumped on a dark cruiser bicycle and rode south on Cady Mall.

He was described as white male in his early 20s, about 5-foot-10, 150 pounds with a slim, muscular build. He had a "baby face" and black wavy hair.

•A man exposed himself to an ASU parking enforcement officer while seated in his car in Tempe Center Thursday evening, police said.

The parking enforcement officer said the suspect motioned for her to come to his car. The suspect left the passenger door open, and the officer got in the car beside him as he asked her for traffic directions.

As the officer replied, the man unfastened his pants and exposed himself.

The officer jumped out of the car and the suspect drove away.

The suspect was described as a white male and was 30 to 40 years old. He was about 5-foot-10, 160 pounds and had brown hair. He was wearing a light blue shirt, a light blue jacket, blue pants and brown shoes.

Thursday was the victim's first day at work. She was advised to take more precautions in the future.

•ASU student Scott Phillip Davidson was cited for striking a light pole in Lot 60 around midnight Friday, police said.

A police officer saw Davidson run into a light pole with his car. The pole snapped at the concrete base and the light fixture was smashed.

Damage was estimated at $200.

•A student passed out and temporarily stopped breathing in the hallway of the Palo Verde West Residence Hall Thursday evening, police said.

Someone called police and told them a woman passed out in the hall. Police arrived and treated the victim.

They contacted Tempe Fire Department paramedics who transported the victim to Tempe St. Luke's Hospital.

Police said they suspect the woman was suffering from alcohol poisoning.

•Someone kicked in the door of a room in the Cholla Apartments and stole a nylon wallet containing $5 late Friday, police said. Damage was estimated at $100.

•Jesse Gibson and Travis Rand, who are unaffiliated with the University, were arrested in Lot 27 in connection with bicycle theft early Saturday, police said.

Gibson and Rand were chased near the ASU Bookstore before being apprehended. Four bicycles were impounded as evidence.

•A traffic sign with an orange caution light and its stand were stolen from a fenced construction area in Lot A35 sometime between Friday and Saturday, police said.

The square sign, measuring five across, stated, "Right Lane Closed Ahead" on the front and "Smile — Accidents Can Be Prevented" on the back.

•Someone spray painted the northwest corner wall of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity house at around noon Saturday, police said. Damage was estimated at $50.

•License plates from five cars were stolen sometime between Friday and Sunday, police said. Three of the cars were parked in Lot A51 and the other two cars were parked in Lot 59. No other damage was reported.

Finance Club to reorganize, upgrade

By DAVID O'BRIEN
State Press

Changes are underway within the ASU Finance Club because members have found the club to be a self-serving organization existing only for the sake of its officers, said the club president.

David Green, a senior finance major, said, "We asked ourselves what would be the best way to help the business student and the companies coming on campus to recruit."

The club found that big companies complained the most about the lack of a filtration process for "separating the wheat from the chaff," Green said.

The 100-member club will reorganize next semester to act as the go-between for the students and the business world.

demands high academic standards, as well as active participation of its members, he said.

The Honorary Society won't close its doors on people who don't have a high grade point average, but anyone wishing to enter will need a GPA of 3.0 or better in their overall and financial standings, he said.

The FMA, a national association of financial professionals across the United States, was organized to bring business and academics together, he said.

"We will be able to help (member) students more directly in the area that they want help in most — finding jobs," he said.

recruiting purposes.

"In the past, it has been hard for our finance majors to get to know many company recruiters," he said.

"I became very disenchanted with the guest speaker route.

"Upper-level personnel are too far removed from the students," he said. "They don't make nearly the good job contacts that the interviewers do."

The club will hold its first Career Day Nov. 7, and more than 20 companies will be represented at the luncheon event.

Companies such as Arthur Anderson, Texas Instruments, Intel Corp., Meryll Lynch, Del Webb, Valley National Bank and First Interstate Bank will have booths set up to introduce company operations to students and advise them with career decisions.

Green said recruiters will be looking for May 1986 graduates because interviews for this semester are already completed.

In the past, students have been hurried into selecting a company representative to talk to. This situation has inspired the Finance Club to make organizational changes, Green said.

The office for the new society is located on the third floor of the Business Administration Building in the finance department.

'We will be able to help (member) students more directly in the area they want help in most — finding jobs.' — David Green

The club will join the Financial Management Association and, to help job recruiters who are looking for a particular type of student, will include an Honorary Society as part of the chapter, Green said.

Companies want an organization that "In the past, recruiters have tended to come on campus without prior warning," he said.

"What we want to try to do is give students more breathing space, more time to find out about the major companies coming to the campus for

The hardest thing about breaking into professional music is -- well, breaking into professional music. So if you're looking for an opportunity to turn your musical talent into a full-time performing career, take a good look at the Army.

It's not all parades and John Philip Sousa. Army bands rock, waltz and boogie as well as march, and they perform before concert audiences as well as spectators. With an average of 40 performances a month, there's also the opportunity for travel — not only across America, but possibly abroad.

Most important, you can expect a first-rate professional environment from your instructors, facilities and fellow musicians. The Army has educational programs that can help you pay for off-duty instruction, and if you qualify, even help you repay your federally-insured student loans. If you can sight-

Baha'i club celebrates UN day musically

By ED SCHUBERT
State Press

The lyrics of Doug Cameron's folksongs express his devotion to the Baha'i faith's hope for world peace.

Cameron, 29, performed Thursday in the MU Rendezvous Lounge as part of the Baha'i celebration of United Nations day.

In the words of his song, Cameron reflects the constant struggle everyone faces between anger and love:

*It's easy every day to see the signs
Written by an angry hand across the sky
Which will you be under?
Which will be the one?
The hand that rocks the cradle?
Or the hand that pulls the trigger on the gun?*

"I try to express the Baha'i message without being blatantly Baha'i," he said.

"Basically, Baha'is teach that there is only one God and all the great religions come from the one God," he said. "They all contain the same message of love."

Cameron said he is just starting a career in music, which he says is "always an iffy thing."

"I'm doing what I can to make (my career) a success and still have some integrity in terms of what I have to say about the world."

Cameron's performance in the MU was sponsored by the Baha'i Club of ASU to celebrate the anniversary of the founding of the UN.

Baha'i Club member Suzanne Tatham said they are also commemorating the martyrdom of Mona Mahmudnizhad, who was executed in 1983 by the Iranian government for her religious beliefs.

Tatham said that at 16, Mahmudnizhad was the youngest of 20,000 Baha'is killed by Ayatollah Khomeini's regime since it came to power in 1979.

Husan Erkaya, a member of Muslim Students Association, said he did not know if reports of persecution of Baha'is in Iran were true, but if they were the Iranian government was acting against Islamic law.

"In Islam there is freedom of religion and no compulsion," he said. "God is the only one who can make a person accept religion."

On June 18, 1984, Newsweek reported Mahmudnizhad was one of a group of nine Baha'i women who were tortured and executed in the Iranian city of Shiraz in 1983.

Although Baha'is in Iran "are still being persecuted today," Tatham said her religion is non-political and does not oppose or support any political position.

"We don't oppose the Khomeini regime," she said. "We just want religious freedom for everyone."

Cameron said the title of his forthcoming album, "Mona and the Children," refers to the martyrdom of Mahmudnizhad.

He said Mahmudnizhad was arrested for educating Baha'i children in her home after all Baha'is were expelled from the Iranian school system.

She refused to recant her faith when given the opportunity by Iran's revolutionary guard, he said.

"She was imprisoned for nine months, told to recant, and when she refused she was hanged," Cameron said. "Yet she responded with love to all of these situations."

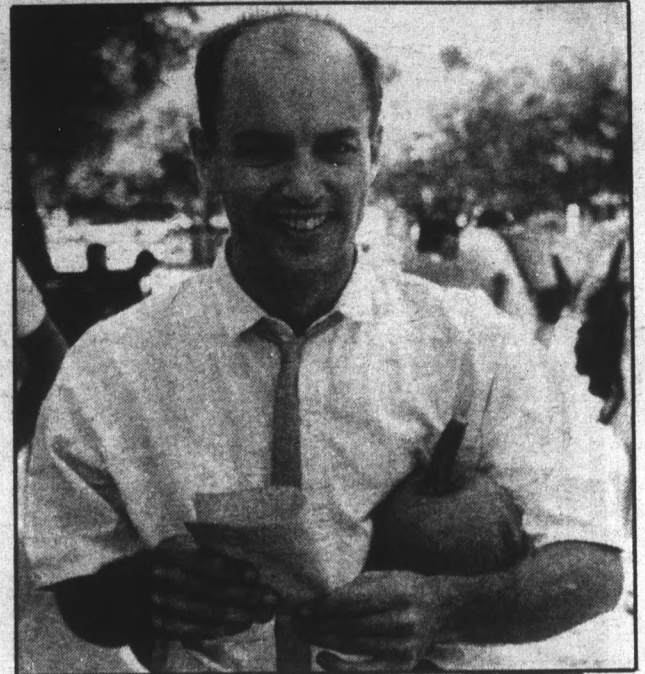

"As extremely idealistic as that may seem, it's a very powerful force for change in the world," he said.

Cameron said the upheaval in the world today is "the sign of an old order that is crumbling."

He said chaos, anarchy and terrorism exist because human civilization is moving from "adolescence to maturity."

"The world has reached the point where it can unite," he said. "All humanity should unite. All wars should end."

Cameron said he first became interested in the Baha'i faith because its emphasis on the underlying unity of the world's great religions "made perfect sense" to him.

Islam, from which the Baha'i religion emerged in Persia in the 1830's, takes a different view of prophecy.

Maan Khalife, a member of the Muslim Students Association, said Muslim belief states there can be no prophets after Mohammed.

notice is sent out and if a borrower contests that the book is returned, three searches for the books are conducted.

But John Alexander, a German-language professor, said librarians often mishandle books, and he has found books that were listed as unreturned on library shelves.

Alexander, who said he has had problems with the computer system at Hayden during the past several years, said: "Their searches aren't worth a damn."

"It's a policy where you are guilty until proven innocent. Maybe they should take the circulation department to Russia with the way the are operating right now."

Pollock said if the book is found, the replacement fee is dismissed, but a $10 fee is charged if the book is not found in the 30 days following the due date.

"If someone else had checked the book out, it would have automatically been taken off (the previous patron's record)," Pollock said.

She said an appeal process also is available for borrowers who believe the charge is unfair.

But Alberts said the appeal form is "ridiculously" complicated and asks borrowers appealing fines to include dates that the books were returned, dates of conversations with librarians and other specific information that may be relevant to when the book was returned.

"(The process) is so ridiculously complicated to repeal your $10 fine that you end up saying it's not worth my time," Alberts said.

'The danger of getting screwed is high at this moment. You know they are going to mess up somewhere down the line.'

— John Alexander

Pollock said the appeal form only requires the call number of the book, the date the book was due, the approximate date the book was returned and why the student believes the fine is inappropriate.

Alberts said she eventually plans to appeal the fine but will have to wait until winter break before she has enough time to go through the proceedings.

Alexander said he has stopped using the library as much as possible because of his difficulties with the system.

"Who remembers when you return a book?" Alexander said. "And that is the document to get your money back. They won't make one exception for anybody."

Alberts said she finds the incident particularly disturbing because the librarians admitted the mistake was a computer error.

"They admitted that this happens all the time," she said.

Alberts said a letter she wrote warning students to obtain receipts was circulated 10 a.m. Friday, and within an hour at least four faculty members and teaching assistants contacted her to say they had similar problems with the library computers.

Alexander said students also are beginning to refrain from using library services because of the computer foul-ups.

"The danger of getting screwed is high at this moment," Alexander said. "You know they are going to mess up somewhere down the line."

Parking office replaces warped decal hangers

By CARRI L. MITCHELL

State Press

The Arizona sun has been known to warp record albums, destroy tapes, crack dashboards and dehydrate golden retrievers. It also has ruined many plastic decal hangers.

ASU will not replace your dog, but Richard Landreth, ASU parking services director, said replacement decal hangers are available at no charge from the Parking and Transit Services Office on the second floor of the Tower Center.

Landreth said heat caused the hangers to warp earlier this semester and rendered them useless because they would no longer hang on the rear view mirror.

Students must bring in their old hanger with the decal attached to receive a new one, he said.

"If anyone has received a parking ticket while they were exchanging their decal, I will dismiss it," Landreth said.

Landreth said the decal hangers were first ordered in late August.

"We tried to get them when we first discovered the problem," he said. "We're at the mercy of the distributors."

When the problem arose, parking enforcement officers were instructed to look on the dash and the floor boards of the cars before issuing tickets for a missing decal.

Penalties, defense key ASU victory over Cougars

By BRAD HALVORSEN
State Press

PULLMAN, Wash. — How vital, yet fatal, a 12th man can be.

Washington State had the 12th man — momentum — on its side as it rallied from a 21-0 deficit to pull within seven points of ASU early in the fourth quarter of Saturday's Pac-10 contest in Pullman, Wash.

But a Washington State penalty moments later for having 12 men on the field nullified a Cougar fumble recovery at the ASU four-yard line and killed a golden opportunity to even the score — just one of several Sun Devil breaks that led to a 21-16 ASU victory.

The victory kept ASU alive in the Rose Bowl hunt and boosted its record to 5-2 overall and 2-1 in the Pac-10. Washington State fell to 2-6 overall and 2-4 in the conference. Only 14,875 fans attended the game, the lowest number at Martin Stadium since 1973.

"This is not a bad football team," Washington State coach Jim Walden said of his Cougars. "It's a football team playing in hard luck and not winning."

What Walden called hard luck, ASU coach John Cooper termed outstanding defensive play.

"This was one of the guttiest defensive performances I've ever seen any football team make," Cooper said. "When the momentum went the other way, our defense came up with the big plays."

The big play came with 4:51 left in the game and Washington State facing a fourth-down-and-inches at the ASU three-yard line with the Sun Devils leading 21-14.

Instead of giving the ball to All-American running back Rueben Mayes, as they had on 32 other plays, the Cougars hoped quarterback Mark Rypien could sneak over the middle for a first down.

Rypien met a wall of Sun Devil defenders and made no gain.

"I thought he got the first down," Mayes said. "His momentum brought him over, and (the referees) marked it back. I think it was a bad mark."

Regardless, the Cougars had came up on the short end of a break for the third time in the final quarter.

The first — the 12-men penalty — also came within the ASU five-yard line.

ASU quarterback Jeff Van Raaphorst was supposed to pitch the ball to tailback Darryl Harris, who had not entered the game. The ball instead bounced off fullback Channing Williams' shoulder pads.

Cougar linebacker Maury Metcalf fell on the ball at the four-yard line while officials threw the flags.

"We just had a kid screw up," Walden said. "I thought there were only 10 men out there. The big thing was (the substitute) waited too long to go on the field. Certainly he didn't mean to."

On the same drive, Walden fumed over the quarter's second break against the Cougars. ASU gained 15 yards and a first down on a penalty by Erwin Chappel for roughing ASU punter Mike Schuh.

"The thing I was griping about is (a Washington State player) shoved (Chappel) in the back," Walden said. "(Schuh) theoretically caught a snap, had to jump to his right to catch it, and then stepped to his right to punt it."

Cooper said: "He knocked the kicker down. That's a 15-yard penalty. The other time they did it, it wasn't even called."

Washington State got the ball back twice after the goal-line stand but could not generate a scoring threat.

With less than a minute left, ASU had a fourth down on its 21-yard line. Van Raaphorst ran out of the end zone to give Washington State a safety with 24 seconds left rather than risking a blocked punt.

Two plays later, ASU devil back Scott Stephen sacked

Mayes answers standard questions for typical loss

PULLMAN, Wash. — Rueben Mayes might as well write out a post-game speech. After so many frustrating Washington State losses this season, the Cougars' most popular player is constantly bombarded with the same post-game questions.

"You can do one of two things," the All-

American running back said after the Cougars blew several scoring opportunities in a 21-16 loss to ASU.

"You can go and hide in a corner somewhere in the lockerroom or learn from it and work harder. Our team is doing the latter."

And much of the latter. It was the fifth time this season the Cougars had lost by a touchdown or less.

"The record seems to be in a groove, and we can't get off the spot," WSU coach Jim Walden said. "We made just enough mistakes to get beat by a little. I could have made this speech six times (this season)."

Throughout this season of frustration, Mayes has been a bright spot for the Cougars. He has racked up 737 yards and averaged nearly five yards per carry.

Against UCLA the previous Saturday, he surpassed Tim Harris to become WSU's all-time leading rusher. Mayes has 3,018 career yards.

Against ASU, Mayes set another Cougar record by rushing for his 10th career 100-yard game. The 6-foot, 202-pound senior picked apart the ASU defense for 158 yards on 32 carries, his best game of the season.

"I felt like I ran quite well, but the blocking was good today," Mayes said. "I could get outside pretty easy."

Near the end of the first half, Mayes found himself involved in a controversial situation when Washington State penetrated deep into ASU territory with ASU leading, 14-0.

With 14 seconds left, Mayes picked up four yards on a sweep to advance the ball to the ASU one-yard line with the clock running and no WSU timeouts remaining.

Free safety David Fulcher made the tackle and did not hurry to get off the pile.

"They were holding me down, laying on me," Mayes said. "Maybe they were hurt. I don't know."

Fulcher said: "I saw there were three or four guys on the pile, and they didn't make any attempt to get up. So I was going to lay there until he'd get up. He didn't move, so I didn't move."

Meanwhile, precious seconds ticked away.

The Cougars lined up with six seconds left and quarterback Mark Rypien threw the ball out of bounds to stop the clock. But after the play, time had already run out.

The Cougars were enraged.

Even Fulcher said he thought there should have been two or three seconds left on the clock.

Referee Verle Sorgen said he made his decision based upon the judgment of another official who was looking at the clock.

"When the whistle was blown on the incomplete pass, there was no time showing," Sorgen said. "The clock clicked from one to zero at the time the whistle was blowing. I conferred with another official, and he said when he looked up, the clock was at zero."

Although the Cougars failed to score at the end of the first half, Mayes said that had no effect on the second half.

"We were just starting to get momentum," Mayes said. "It didn't hurt us, it just helped us to get going."

"They just got the breaks like that, and that was the difference between winning and losing. This is becoming a week-to-week thing for us."

Rypien to end the game.

"You could say they were getting momentum," Stephen said. "But once we got down by the goal line, we had a pretty good idea of how they were running offensive plays."

The Cougars blew another scoring opportunity late in the first half after reaching the ASU one-yard line. Mayes picked up four yards on a second-down sweep to set up a third-and-goal at the ASU one.

With no timeouts left, Rypien threw the ball out of bounds to stop the clock, but time had already expired and the Cougars came up scoreless.

Thanks to tailback Mike Crawford, the Sun Devils established a running game, something they have not done effectively this season.

Crawford racked up 101 yards on 27 carries, while Darryl Harris had 33 yards and Vince Amoia 26 yards.

Mayes led the Cougars with 158 yards on 32 carries. It was his 10th career 100-yard game — a new WSU record.

Washington State dominated the offensive statistics, compiling 445 total yards compared to 217 by ASU. The Cougars averaged 5.2 yards per offensive play. ASU averaged 2.9 yards.

Stephen set up the first ASU touchdown with a 29-yard interception return to the Cougar three-yard line. Two plays later, Van Raaphorst hit wide-open tight end Jeff Gallimore in the end zone. Kent Bostrom's conversion put ASU ahead, 7-0.

On their next drive, the Sun Devils drove 43 yards in eight plays to extend the lead to 14-0. Crawford found a large hole around the right end and scored easily from three yards out.

ASU struck again early in the third quarter, driving 70 yards in 10 plays. Crawford ran the ball on six plays and caught a 21-yard pass to lead the drive, which was capped by a 13-yard touchdown pass from Van Raaphorst to flanker Paul Day.

Washington State drove 75 yards in its next possession to close the gap to 21-7. Rypien connected with Kitrick Taylor for a six-yard touchdown pass on third down, and kicker John Traut added the point after.

Rypien hit reserve wide receiver Jeff Christensen with a 26-yard touchdown pass on the next possession to make the score 21-14 after Traut's conversion.

Spikers split California matches

The ASU volleyball team split two road contests over the weekend by defeating Cal State-Fullerton, 3-1, and losing to UCLA by the same score.

The Sun Devils had unexpected trouble Friday with Fullerton, a team they had easily beaten in straight games at the UCLA National Invitational Tournament earlier this year.

This time ASU (17-8) struggled with the Titans, 16-14, 15-8, 11-15 and 15-13.

Assistant coach Sue Woodstra said the Sun Devils were looking past Fullerton to third-ranked UCLA.

"It was just natural for them to look forward to UCLA," she said. "They did not have their concentration going."

The Titans also were playing better than the last time the two teams met, Woodstra said.

"They played pretty well," she said. "But we gave them plenty of opportunities."

Against UCLA (16-3) Saturday, the Sun Devils stayed close before losing, 15-10, 15-4, 14-16 and 16-14.

ASU lost to the Bruins in four close games in September.

The teams were tied at 10-10 in the first game before UCLA scored five straight points and carried that momentum into the second game.

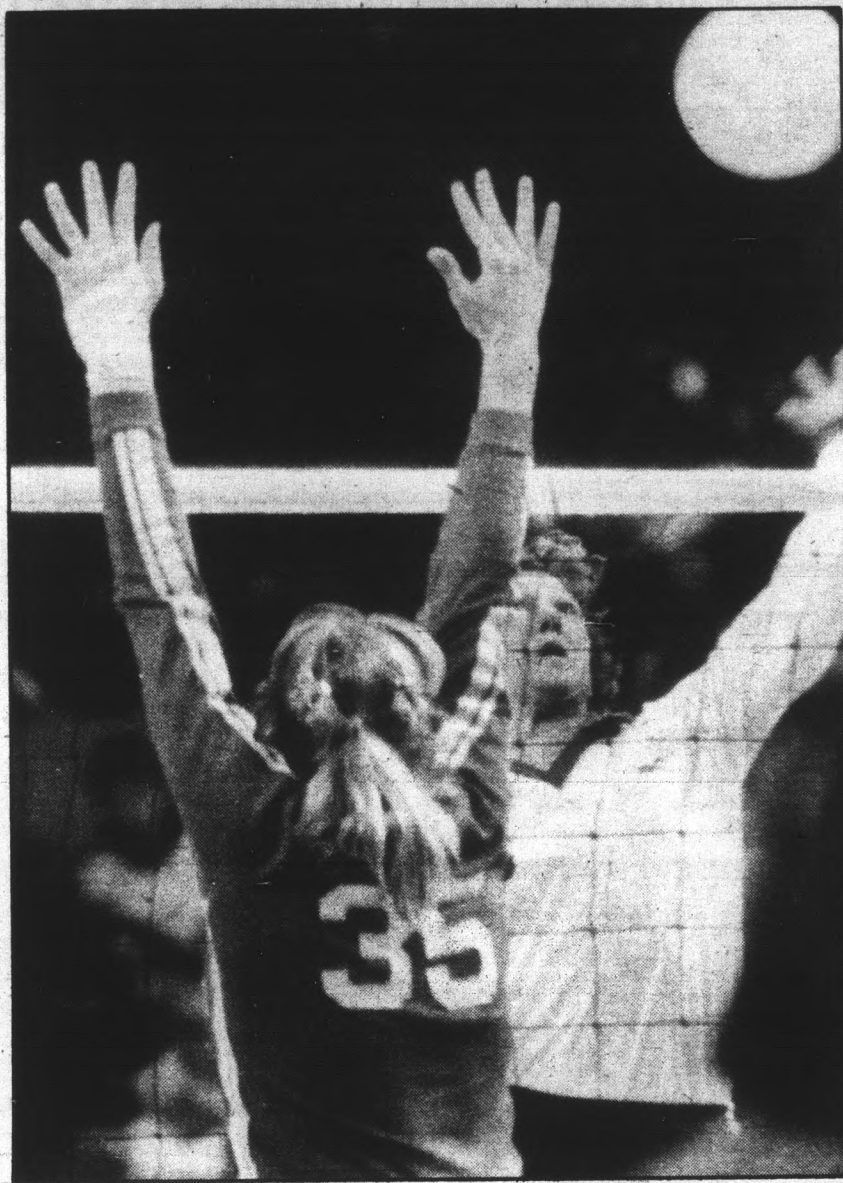

"We stayed pretty even except for that second game," Woodstra said. "UCLA was serving tough, and we were not passing well."

After badly losing the second game, the Sun Devils recovered to win their only game of the night.

"The girls started getting more fired up in the third game," Woodstra said.

The loss to the Bruins had positive results, Woodstra said.

"I think it's nice to see that when we're not on top of our game, we can still play close with the (high-ranked) teams," she said. "It's a good indication of where we are."

Right-side hitter Tammy Motyka and ASU volleyball team split a pair of road matches over the weekend.
