Professors seeking transfers from endangered department

By VICKIE CHACHERE
State Press

ASU's higher and adult education department may be dismantled because faculty members are forced to spend too much time on administrative matters, a department professor said Monday.

Robert Huff, a professor of higher education, said the seven professors in the department unanimously decided to attempt transferring to other areas in the College of Education.

Huff said the five higher education professors and two adult education professors could not efficiently run a department themselves and that too much time was being spent on administrative matters.

"We are talking with (Raymond Kulhavy, acting dean of the College of Education) and with (Jack Kinsinger, ASU vice president for academic affairs) about how to realign with another department," Huff said.

Final permission to merge with other departments has not been granted, he said.

"We are trying to look at our future and find out how to meet the needs of educating our students," Huff said. "It is something we are all behind."

Quentin Bogart, a professor in the department, said that if the merger occurs it should take place in January or June.

He said the professors probably will transfer to the educational administration and supervision department because it is closely aligned with the higher and adult education department.

In addition to teaching classes, the seven professors currently are required to serve on at least five department committees, as well as to serve on college and University committees.

Bogart said he serves on seven committees and is the chairman of two groups.

Kulhavy said he has given the faculty members permission to join other departments.

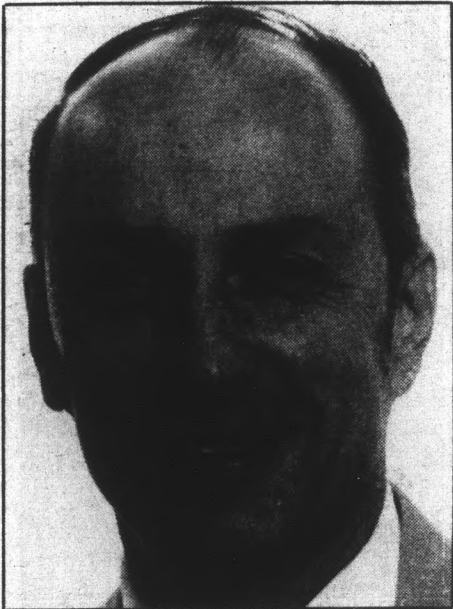

He said the department has "shrunk" in the last few years, and he was asked by the department chair if the seven faculty members could find "homes for themselves where they could pursue academics without administration."

"This is totally faculty initiated," he said.

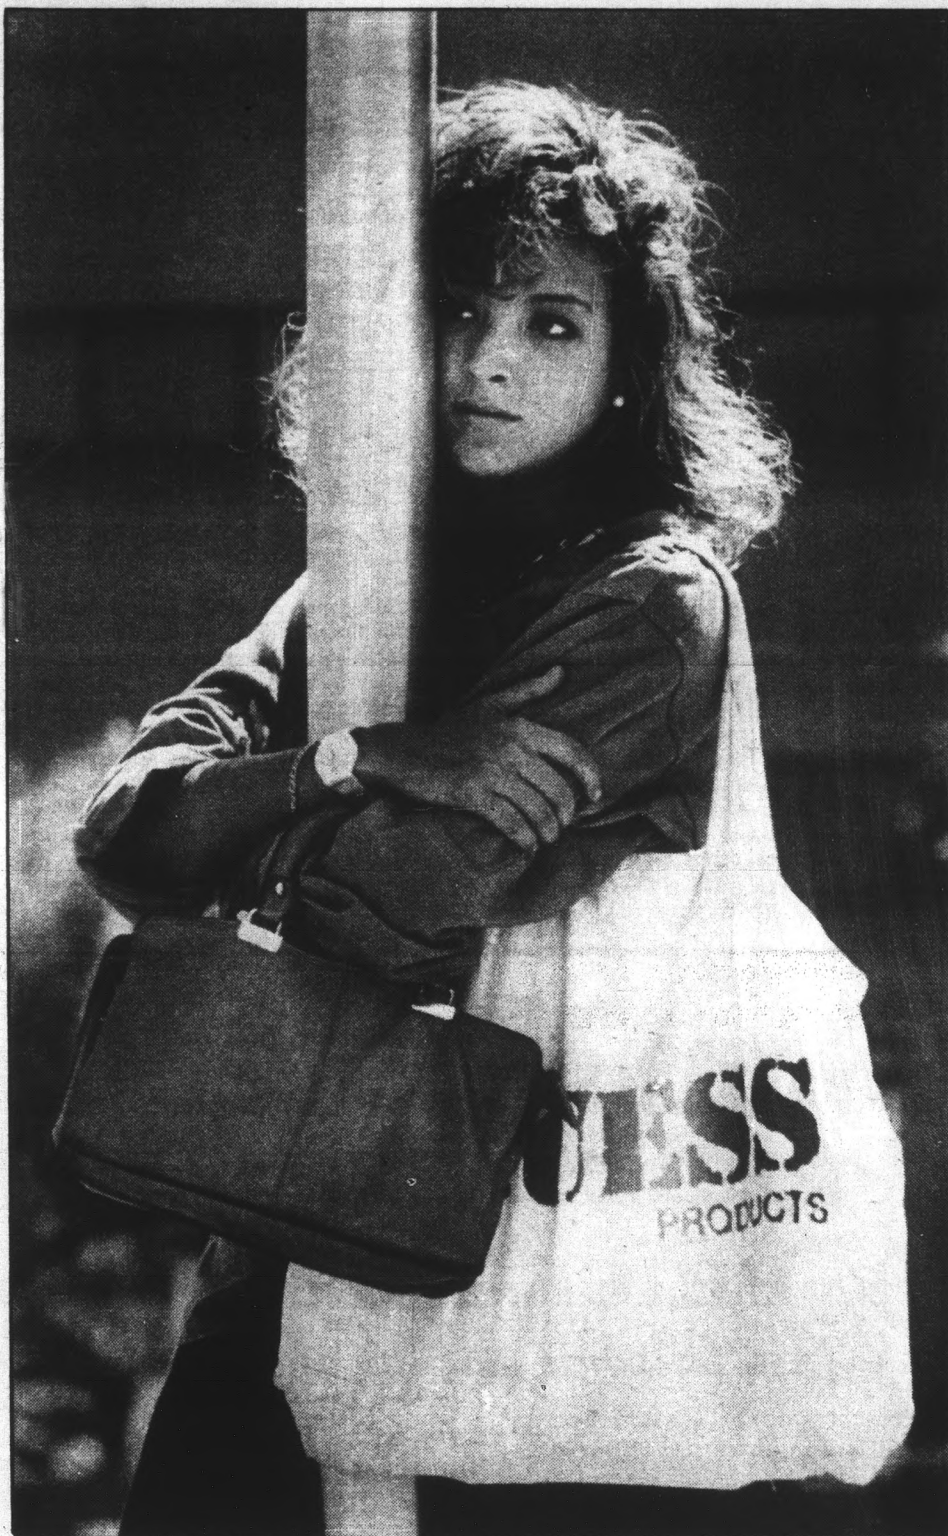

Kulhavy said all seven faculty members will be reassigned and that no one will be dismissed from the University because of the merger.

"The people are not going to be left out or let go or anything," he said.

Kulhavy said the department was "too small a group to be a voice in the college," and that once the merger is complete, the professors would have more time to devote to academics.

Former Star Wars researcher says system encourages war

By COLLEEN MOORE
State Press

The Star Wars program will increase the likelihood of a U.S.-Soviet Union nuclear war, said the former director of Strategic Defense Initiative research for the U.S. Air Force during a speech Monday on campus.

Robert M. Bowman said, "If we both have Star Wars, it will greatly reward the one who shoots first, because it's a great offensive system."

Bowman, president of the Institute for Space and Security Studies, addressed approximately 200 people in the College of Law's Great Hall. The speech was sponsored by the Associated Students of ASU Political Union.

To reduce the chances of nuclear war, the United States should work to see that no country, including itself, obtains a Star Wars defense system, he said.

"That's what we're trying to do in Geneva," he said of the US-

Soviet peace talks taking place in Switzerland.

"Reagan is now beginning to get advice from within his administration to cash it (Star Wars) in as a bargaining chip and get offensive weapons reduction in exchange (from the Soviet Union)," Bowman said.

During Bowman's 22-year Air Force career, which ended in 1978, he was the director of the Advanced Space Programs Development, which is now within the Air Force Space Division.

As director he controlled space programs, including what is now known as Star Wars.

"If you were to succeed in building this system, and it worked, what would you have?" he said. "You would have a system that would intercept, at best, 10 percent of the Soviet missiles that are directed at us. This is an optimistic estimate at best."

pilot, likened the Star Wars program to a body composed of a number of organs.

"All (the Soviet Union) would have to do is disable one organ in that body to render the rest of it up there a trillion dollars worth of junk," he said.

Bowman said there is only one way to make the current Star Wars proposals effective.

"That is to add one more layer — to destroy enemy missiles in their silos before they go off, and we already have the technology to do this," he said.

"I've devoted my life to the security of the United States, but in this nuclear age there is no such thing as national security, only common security," he said.

Researching Star Wars will not add to the security of the Soviet Union or the United States, he said.

The United States approaches the question of nuclear defense as if it were a game with the Soviets in which one wins and one loses, he said.

"That's not how it is," he said. "We must work together (to end) the arms race, or we will surely perish."

Bowman said the Soviet track record of compliance with treaties is as good as the U.S. record.

"The Soviets have been more than willing to negotiate with us for quite some time now because we have about a 10-year lead overall in Star Wars," he said.

"They are willing to give up the possibility of a Star Wars system of their own if they can make sure we don't get one.

"We (the United States) have been unwilling to negotiate seriously recently because people in charge of the process want absolute military superiority.

"More people in the public and Congress are beginning to recognize what a turkey it is. I don't think it will ever come to pass."

A Star Wars program would increase the national debt and increase the defense budget at the expense of other government programs, Bowman said.

Bowman said Star Wars developments cost each U.S. citizen $5,000 to $10,000 annually.

Arafat, Hussein reassess PLO, Jordan relationship

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein and PLO chairman Yasser Arafat met Monday to reassess their relationship and the future of their faltering joint bid to make peace with Israel.

Arafat and eight other top officials of the Palestine Liberation Organization went to the royal palace for meetings with Hussein, who told reporters last week that he was reconsidering his relations with the PLO after a new cycle of violence and diplomatic setbacks.

However, Arafat's chief military deputy, Khalil Wazir, said he believed "everything will be solved after the meeting" with Hussein. Wazir predicted the accord Hussein and Arafat signed Feb. 11 to pursue a joint negotiating strategy would not be affected.

Hussein told a news conference last Thursday he was "reassessing the entire situation" of his relations with the PLO in the light of recent events.

Those events include the Sept. 25 slaying by PLO guerrillas of three Israelis aboard a yacht in Cyprus, Israel's retaliatory bombing of PLO headquarters in Tunis on Oct. 1 and the killing of an American passenger aboard an Italian cruise ship hijacked by Palestinian gunmen.

Sanctuary defendants not refugees, judge rules

TUCSON (AP) — The federal judge in the alien-smuggling conspiracy trial of 11 sanctuary movement members ruled Monday that defense attorneys may not present evidence of the defendants' belief that aliens involved in the charges were refugees.

U.S. District Judge Earl Carroll also excluded evidence of the defendants' understanding of United States immigration laws.

The ruling means that the defendants will be unable to base their case on a good-faith belief that Salvadorans and Guatemalans whom they helped enter the United States were refugees seeking political asylum under the federal Refugee Act of 1980, or that they had been legally admitted by American immigration authorities into the country.

In a ruling Friday, Carroll barred the defense from using international law as evidence to classify the Central Americans as lawful refugees.

police report

ASU student James Arthur Makurat and Michael Edward Hoyt, who is not affiliated with the University, were arrested in front of the Manzanita Residence Hall in connection with obstructing a public thoroughfare around midnight Monday, police said.

The two men allegedly pried open three fire hydrants on Orange Street, two hydrants at Sixth Street and Stadium Drive and one at Sixth Street and Alpha Drive with a fire hydrant wrench. The water released from the hydrants obstructed traffic on those streets.

A student saw Makurat and Hoyt open the hydrant on Alpha Drive, which flooded the volleyball court of the Sigma Nu fraternity house.

The witness, a member of Sigma Nu, told six of his fraternity brothers about the incident, and the seven men chased after the alleged vandals.

The Sigma Nus tackled the two men and threw them down on the pavement in front of the Manzanita Residence Hall. The Sigma Nus called police and told them they were holding them captive.

Makurat, a member of the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity, told police he and Hoyt had been drinking. He admitted to opening the hydrants.

The two men were booked and released on their own recognizance.

In other activity, University police reported the following incidents in the 24-hour period ending at 6:30 a.m. Monday:

•John Lapierre was arrested in connection with driving under the influence of alcohol when he fled the Palo Verde West Residence Hall after allegedly assaulting a student around midnight Sunday, police said.

ASU police said Lapierre, who is not affiliated with the University, allegedly assaulted a student in room 614. The victim, a PV West resident, told police he was sitting in the room with a friend when a man walked in and shut the door.

Lapierre, whom neither the victim nor his friend knew, told the students he was a messenger from God. He cursed at them and said he was there to torment the victim and "any other devil worshippers."

The man punched the victim in the face, temporarily knocking him out.

The assailant fled from the building, followed by the victim's friend. He saw Lapierre get into a car and wrote down the license number.

•A man who is not affiliated with the University suffered a 2-inch gash in his head when a youth hit him with a skateboard in front of the Student Health Center Sunday afternoon, police said.

The victim was bicycling with his mother and another person on Palm Walk when they rode near three youths skateboarding in front of the health center.

The skateboarders yelled obscenities at the bicyclists. The victim stopped, got off his bicycle and walked over to them.

After they argued briefly, a fight ensued. One of the boys took his skateboard and struck the victim over the head with it.

Tempe Fire Department paramedics transported him to Tempe St. Luke's Hospital where he was treated and released.

Council criticized for timing of presentation

The Presidents' Council is expected to release a revision of its tuition-setting formula today to the Arizona Students Association — hours before a scheduled Arizona Board of Regents finance committee meeting.

The information will come too late for ASA to prepare a significant rebuttal to a revision that may end up costing students more money in the form of tuition increases.

The revision is expected to propose basing tuition on projected education costs rather than actual costs from the previous year.

ASA members claim doing this could force extra costs on students.

ASA was good enough to prepare its tuition recommendation two months in advance — giving the three university presidents and the regents plenty of time to analyze and review it. It seems only fair that the council provide its plan as soon as possible.

Is the council hoping to prepare a presentation so solid it need not be reviewed, or do they think it is not necessary for a group of mere students to analyze what they will present?

ASA represents the only input Arizona university students have into the tuition-setting process.

It seems only fair that the organization is provided with the time to prepare an intelligent response to any formula revision. The Arizona Board of Regents and the Presidents' Council should make an effort to provide that time.

Censorship unhealthy; rock music harmless to children

Editor: This letter is in response to Mr. Len Munsil's article of Oct. 21. I would like to thank him for shedding "ultimate wisdom" on the subject of rock 'n' roll.

Where have you been the last 20 years, Mr. Munsil? In a cave? Do you even know what rock 'n' roll is a euphemism for? Certainly, rock 'n' roll has been controversial since its inception 30 years ago. I imagine it will still be that way 30 years from now also (unless jerks like you, Susan Baker and Tipper Gore have your way). Do you really think kids believe in, as you put it, "mock crucifixions, voodoo or black magic"? If you do, you not only do not give kids enough credit, but you are also a very paranoid person. Weren't you ever young? Weren't your parents ever young?

When the Beatles, one of, if not the greatest rock group of all time, sang "Why Don't We Do It In The Road?" do you think they were talking about hanging speed limit signs? The people who listened to that type of music have grown up to become respectable citizens of our community. Is that song any worse, for its time, than the songs of today? I think not.

I am sure that the kids who listen to Motley Crue, AC/DC and the like will also outgrow these groups and positively contribute to society. No song could ever cause a person to do crazy things.

Those people are already crazy and I am sure it is due more to the pressures of society than any song. You and groups like the NMRC can decide for yourselves what you and your own kids can listen to. My kids will have the freedom to choose and listen to what they want and I am sure they will be much healthier mentally for it. Never fear, Mr. Munsil. I will be at that seminar just to see how "fair" Mr. Dunahue is in his presentation.

Iranian life nightmarish; Khomeini oppressive

Bahman Ashraf Guest Columnist

Seven years after the February 1979 mass uprising, life in Iran only can be described as nightmarish. The once sweet smell of the dawn of freedom is now a bitter recollection of lost opportunities. The exhilaration felt throughout Iran when the Shah's regime collapsed is a distant and painful memory. The remembrance of things past — the hopes for a new Iran, the aspirations for a democratic society, the struggle for a peaceful, prosperous and progressive Iran — is now too difficult an exercise. Where people wanted a democratic republic, they got a theocratic dictatorship; they wanted peace but got war; they wanted economic development but got massive unemployment (one-third of the economically active population), spiraling inflation (higher than 60 percent for consumer goods), production paralysis and food rationing. Today's Iran represents a betrayal of all the people fought and died for between 1977 and 1979. It is important to note that the denial of basic freedom under the Shah's regime made the people receptive to Khomeini's seizure of power in 1979, which was largely due to the weakness of democratic and revolutionary organizations with wide popular contact.

From the very early days, the regime of the Islamic republic began to attack the freedoms gained by the people after they toppled the Shah's regime. The first wave of attack came against women. On March 7, on the eve of International Women's Day 1979, Khomeini decreed that all women employed by the government must wear the "chador," an all-enveloping black veil; and on June 29, 1980, mandatory veiling was imposed. No exception was made for women of other religious convictions.

Oct. 2, 1979 marked another gloomy day for women when a bill was passed, once again legalizing "sigheh" (polygamy), a reactionary Islamic law enabling a man to enter into a temporary marriage which he can terminate at will at any time.

In 1981, the Islamic parliament passed the "law of retribution" (ghessas) which replaced the function of civil courts with personal vengeance. It also reduced the status of women to half that of men. According to article #5 of the law, if a woman kills a man, she is subject to vengeance by the man's family. But if a man intentionally kills a woman, he will be subject to retaliation only if the woman's guardian pays the man half of his blood money (compensation paid by the murderer to the victim's family, enabling him to escape punishment).

The situation of the women imprisoned for their political activities against the regime is even worse. The Christian Science Monitor, on Oct. 6, 1982, reported: "Girls are even reported to have been raped before facing the firing squad. Execution of virgins is forbidden by Islam, so some girls are married by force before being shot...." According to Islamic laws, virgin girls should not be executed. "Those who are virgins are forced into 'temporary marriage' (sigheh) with the prison guards," said Ayatollah Montazari, a close aide of Khomeini, in response to a mother's outcry, legalizing the rape on the eve of the execution.

"Everywhere they are saying that we are murderers, that we are killing people. We are faced with enemies, bent on destroying our nation, our humanity and our religion. We have tried to refine their manners. If we don't succeed, then we imprison them. If this doesn't work, then we refine them for good. This has been done by all the prophets since the beginning of time." The shocking reports on torture go far beyond imagination. Every torture is done under the banner of Islam and in the name of God, whom Khomeini represents.

On Oct. 12, 1981, Time magazine published an article entitled "Inside a Khomeini Prison," which stated, "While Khomeini's Islamic guards are executing enemies of the regime on the streets, they are also torturing suspected opponents behind prison walls with a ferocity unequaled even by the deposed Shah's notorious SAVAK agents."

On Nov. 15, 1981, the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported "In the center of the Tehran Bazaar, a man stops and shouts, 'Death to Khomeini.' The guards charge him, put him against a wall and kill him. The guards did not even ask his name."

On Feb. 23, 1982, Amnesty International reported it had received hundreds of detailed reports of torture in Iranian prisons. Some prisoners had died under torture and were then hanged after they were already dead, to make it appear as if they had been "legally" executed, according to reports reaching the organization.

In the past four years more than 40,000 political prisoners have been executed; in most cases no trials were held and prisoners were immediately killed. More than 120,000 political prisoners are being tortured in Khomeini's barbaric dungeons. Families are given no information about their imprisoned relatives. Those who are killed under torture are unannounced.

"My dear children, take good care of yourselves, and if you notice our enemies, disguised as friends and students, trying to influence you, notify the officials," declared Khomeini, addressing Iranian students.

The pro-Khomeini thugs have been doing just that for the last seven years. Progressive students have been subject to attacks by Khomeini's thugs and have suffered physical assaults in university campuses throughout the world. As a result of this, three students have been assassinated by pro-Khomeini goons in the Philippines and India.

As long as oppression and injustice in the socio-economic conditions of Iran exist, the resistance will continue and eventually will topple this unpopular regime. The thugs supporting the regime are just as guilty as the regime, and must answer to the people of Iran.

Distorting the truth is not effective since the people have witnessed the truth themselves — for seven long years.

Bahman Ashraf is a Tempe resident affiliated with ASU's Iranian Students Association.

Some complaints valid in context of classes

Editor:

I have a few comments to make in response to Patrick J. Kucera's editorial of Oct. 23. I must agree that some students do complain quite a bit about school but many do have some valid reasons to complain. One must wonder, for example, why the highest score out of hundreds of students in a recent QBA mid-term fell below 65 percent. One must also wonder why many math and physics classes have means on exams that don't even fall above 50 percent. Obviously, not all of these students could be that stupid or not have studied. Maybe the real fact is that universities have a "quota" of undergrads that they need to resort into withdrawal from college. What would college be if we put academia and knowledge before grades?

Another curiosity is why so few students graduate in four years. Since so few graduate in four years, why does ASU continue to make its curricula harder and harder with each new catalog? By 1990, it will probably take six years to make it through college.

Fortunately, most professors curve their tests that fall into low means, but why don't they just make the tests at the student's level in the first place?

I feel Mr. Kucera is not seeing through all the so-called "whiner's" eyes. Many of their complaints can certainly be construed as valid.

AIA practices what they preach against

Editor:

Regarding Accuracy in Academia, I think these folks have a good idea. The logical next step is to fire the offending professors, or, at least, put them on a list: maybe we could call it a "black list?" Later on, we could burn their books. Then, if we are successful, we could make them wear big "M's" to show that they are Marxists. That'll make them really easy to find when we open up Dachau — er, I mean a "re-education camp."

In all seriousness, this group is going precisely the same way as the folks they profess to dislike. "Accuracy" here means "Like I think it should be." We've seen this sort of activity before, both here and in other countries. Here, its names were witchhunts, McCarthyism, Hoover (J. Edgar, of course), etc. In other nations it has gotten a bit nastier and been called Nazism, Stalinism, Fascism and Maoism.

Anytime such activities go on, where teachers, writers, speakers, etc., are "criticized" for political views and, in essence, threatened with loss of their jobs (or other "inducements" to "straighten up") unless they change, we have lost the real meaning of America and our precious liberty. Thomas Jefferson would roll over in his crypt; Patrick Henry's ghost would moan, and ol' Ben Franklin would wonder whether it was really worth all the pain and sacrifice.

As a former college teacher (engineering) who took part in many discussions of the "humanities" side of the college, and as a former student, I'd say it is utterly impossible for political science, history, sociology or economics to be taught in a way that's totally free of any sort of "bias." A professor has to have some unifying view of his field before he can plot a sensible course of study. This view will, of necessity, contain inherently political aspects.

On the other hand, a professor, or any teacher, must be fair and allow the students to express their beliefs, views and ideas, which are probably infinitely more biased than the professor's, and more rigid. Any professor who puts down a student for political reasons is doing so wrongly and should be censured, then counseled.

Madonna 'wanna-be' claim

STUDY AND INTELLIGENCE NOT ENOUGH FOR HIGH GRADES

If I study hard, I'll ace this course — right? Wrong. There are three essential components for high grades. First, study smart, not hard. Second, organize the results of your study (that's real intelligence). Third, learn to implement classroom savvy.

Just as no two people have the same personality, no two professors will teach the same course in the same way. Why? Each subject is vast. A professor has to select priorities.

How you set your learning priorities will determine your grades. Many students scatter their study time, trying to learn "everything." Others waste their time memorizing trivial and peripheral information. The top achievers know how to concentrate on those areas targeted by their professors. They use their time effectively and successfully.

If you want to join the circle of achievers, call Decision Strategies, 224-0010. You can learn how to get more time for yourself, while you enjoy measurably better college performance.

Spikers play below potential on road trip

ASU right-side hitter Tammy Motyka, shown blocking against Utah earlier this season, had 11 kills and a .409 hitting percentage in a 3-1 loss Saturday to UCLA.

ASU defeats Titans, loses to UCLA; Brown says Devils' efforts fell short

By MICHAEL KONZ
State Press

ASU volleyball coach Debbie Brown faces a conflict.

The Sun Devils are staying close against highly ranked teams, even when they do not use their full potential.

ASU defeated Cal State-Fullerton, 3-1, Friday and then lost to third-ranked UCLA, 3-1, Saturday. Brown had reservations about her team's play.

"I think in both matches they could have played better," Brown said.

But ASU still managed to stay close with the Bruins.

"A year or two ago, to play a higher-ranked team, we would have to play our best," Brown said. "This time we weren't outstanding, but we were still close."

ASU (17-8, 1-4 in the Pac-West Conference) needed four games to defeat a young Fullerton team.

"Against Fullerton, I don't know if the girls took them lightly, but we were not crisp," Brown said. "Our blocking and passing were not good."

Middle blocker Tammy Webb, who has been named the Pac-West player of the week twice this season, led both teams in kills with 18. She also had a .318 hitting percentage. Right-side hitter Tammy Motyka had 14 digs.

Brown said she expects Webb and setter Regina Stahl to pick up ASU when it is not playing its best.

"Tammy and Regina have the capability to pick us up," Brown said. "Regina can control us because she touches so many balls. Tammy can pick us up if she gets fired up. Those two have shown good leadership."

"But we can't rely on that because everyone has to get going."

ASU started out well against UCLA, and the two teams were tied, 10-10, in the first game.

But the Bruins served five straight points to close out the game, 15-10.

"We played well in the first game, but things were happening fast," Brown said. "It was good even though we weren't doing what we should have."

UCLA's momentum carried through into the second game. The Bruins routed ASU, 15-4.

"The same type of thing happened in the second game — we couldn't slow down," Brown said. "They had several players serving well. In the past, we've been able to pass those tough serves."

ASU recovered to win the third game, 16-14, after Brown told her players they had two choices.

'I told them it would be real easy to roll over, or we could work on building character.'

— Debbie Brown

"I told them it would be real easy to roll over, or we could work on building character and come back fighting," she said. "They could dig in and play with desire."

"And that's what they did. They played with intensity, and they believed they could play. They had their backs against the wall."

In the final game, both teams traded rallies and the lead before Stanford had match point at 15-14.

"It was good volleyball," Brown said. "(There weren't) mistakes on one team or the other."

During the final rally, Stahl was setting the ball for the Sun Devils when she was called for double hitting.

"The referee had called one or two double hits all night, and they were obvious," Brown said. "I thought several sets by the UCLA setter were more questionable."

A Royal performance: complete with gestures from jesters

Jerry Brown
Asst. Sports Editor

It's over.

Kansas City wins, four games to three, OK? Now, will "Moonlighting" return at its regularly scheduled time next week? Thank you.

The "Spare-Me" series has reached its inglorious end, and not a bad call too soon. We've all heard of teams playing to the level of opponents, but the boys in blue pulled a new switch by umpiring to the level of play.

My prediction of the Cardinals in six was looking mighty good on Saturday. The Cards had a 1-0 lead going into the ninth, and it looked as if Dick Howser had reached into his bag of tricks only to find a hole in the bottom.

But Jorge Orta's infield nubber, first base umpire Don Dekinger's blunder and Cardinal first baseman Jack Clark's pop-fly flubber gave the Royals new life.

And KC has its Lazarus imitation down pat.

The call by Dekinger was the crucial one. The super-slow motion was not needed to show Orta was out — that was obvious to the naked eye. Even Jim Honochick would have called Orta out, although he would have mistaken him for Boog Powell.

But all umpiring aside, even Ron Luciano couldn't have saved the Cards on Sunday night. The 11-0 pasting by Bret Saberhagen and the Royals not only added insult to injury for St. Louis, but led to insults and injuries in the Cardinal dugout.

The dream pitching matchup became a nightmare for the Cardinals. Whenever starter John Tudor found the plate, the Royal hitters found the ball. Tudor saved his best strike of the night for an electric fan in the clubhouse. A few hours and several stitches later, the Royals were World Champions.

But now, in my best Paul Harvey prose, comes the rest of the story:

The score was 9-0, and I was just about to switch to "Murder, She Wrote," when I heard Al Michaels mention,

"Hey, Jim, is that Joaquin Andujar warming up for St. Louis?"

My hand sprang off the dial. All right, now we're getting somewhere! As the Dominican Republic's answer to Jimmy Piersall stomped in from the bullpen to meet his faithful sidekick Whitey Herzog, it was obvious Tudor's hand wouldn't be the only thing hitting the fan.

After Frank White wacked a single up the middle to punch across run No. 10, Herzog and Andujar decided they'd rather watch the rest of the slaughter from the clubhouse. The only problem was, they had nothing to argue about.

But save everything else, they are an inventive pair. And if the rumors of Joaquin's numbered days with St. Louis are accurate, the fifth-inning finale was a fitting finish.

Whitey went first. A 2-2 pitch from Andujar sailed inside by about six inches, which was close enough to argue when you're being wasted. After thanking home plate umpire Don Dekinger for the fine job he did at first base the night before, Herzog uttered the magic words and disappeared.

But all umpiring aside, even Ron Luciano couldn't have saved the Cards on Sunday night.

Much of the Cardinal dugout that spilled onto the field during Herzog's outburst had just piled back in when Andujar added the evening's crowning jewel.

Now stay with me here, 'cause it gets mighty confusin'. Joaquin fires the pitch nine inches inside. Ump calls ball. Andujar calls foul. Ump calls bluff. You make the call. Terry Pendleton applies half-nelson. Hulk Hogan challenges the winner. Vince McMahon and Mean Gene Okerlund call the action.

Dekinger ended the second pseudo-brawl by giving the "Bad Dominican" the international sign for hitchhiking. Hasta luego, Joaquin.

By that time, the Cardinals were starting to run out of hotheads, and the bench jockeys grew tired of running back and forth if no one was going to throw a punch.

All of which meant, unfortunately, it was time to get back to baseball and the most anti-climatic final inning in World Series history.

Of course, if the Cards had rallied for 12 runs in the top of the ninth, the Royals still would have come up with two in the bottom to win it. But St. Louis never came close to scoring in Game 7, while the Royals scored at will.

So the 1985 season closes with both a whimper and a bang. It found a champion that did what it had to all season to win but did much more than it had to at the end.

And who better to wear the crown than Royal-ty?

BATTLE, PAYE EARN AWARDS — ASU linebacker Greg Battle, who had 22 tackles including 11 unassisted in the Sun Devils' 21-16 win over Washington State, was named the Pacific-10 Defensive Player of the Week on Monday.

Stanford's John Paye, missing from the Cardinal starting lineup because of an injury, took over at quarterback in the second half against Arizona and turned in a passing performance which earned him Offensive Player of the Week honors.

Battle tackled WSU quarterback Mark Rypien at the Sun Devils' three-yard line with 4:38 remaining in the game to stop the Cougars' final scoring threat and preserve the ASU win.

Paye, who suffered a partial shoulder separation a week earlier, entered Saturday's Arizona game at the start of the second half with Stanford trailing 17-7. He completed 12 of 14 passes for 116 yards and one touchdown, ran for a TD, and led the Cardinal to a 28-17 victory.

HAWKEYES STILL UNANIMOUS NO. 1 — Iowa remained a unanimous No. 1 choice as the nation's top college football team for the second week in a row Monday, while defending national champion Brigham Young suffered its second loss of the season and skidded from seventh place to 17th.

Over the last 13 years, the only other team to be voted a unanimous No. 1 for two consecutive weeks was Nebraska early in the 1983 season.

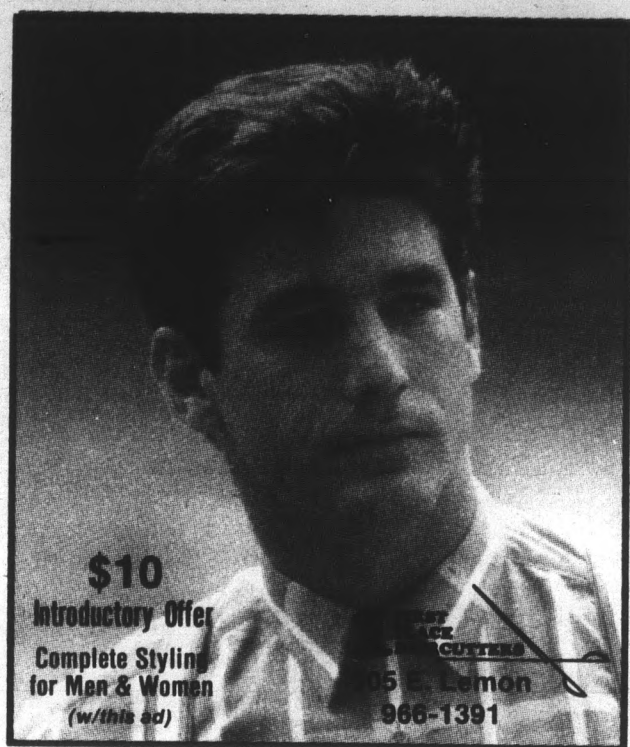

BYU's stunning 23-16 loss to previously winless Texas-El Paso dropped the Cougars 10 places in the rankings. Meanwhile, Air Force, another Western Athletic Conference team, climbed from eighth to seventh with 764 points by defeating Utah, 32-15.

The Second Ten consists of Miami, Fla., Oklahoma State, Baylor, Arkansas, UCLA, LSU, BYU, Georgia, Tennessee and Southern Methodist.

1. Iowa (58)	7-0-0
2. Florida	6-0-1
3. Penn State	7-0-0
4. Michigan	6-1-0
5. Nebraska	6-0-1
6. Auburn	6-1-0
7. Air Force	8-0-0
8. Ohio State	6-1-0
9. Oklahoma	4-1-0
10. Florida State	6-1-0
11. Miami, Fla.	3-1-0
12. Oklahoma State	5-1-0
13. Baylor	7-1-0
14. Arkansas	6-1-0
15. UCLA	6-1-1
16. LSU	4-1-0
17. BYU	6-2-0
18. Georgia	5-1-1
19. Tennessee	3-1-2
20. SMU	4-2-0

Others receiving votes: Alabama 72, Maryland 62, Minnesota 54, Army 20, Bowling Green 20, Georgia Tech 7, Kansas 7, Illinois 6, Colorado 5, Texas A&M 5, Arizona 4, Arizona State 2, Texas 1.

Pick 'Um Winners

It's that time of the week again — time to see if you were one of the lucky four out of 250 entrants to win a Pick 'Um prize. This was the most competitive week so far this year, so don't be discouraged if you're not among the winners.

On with the countdown: Tom Gutierrez won first place and an ASU sweatshirt from University Sporting Goods. Joyce Wim took second place and can get 50 percent off any purchase from Poster's Mostly (excluding Patrick Nagel posters).

Shelley Sparrow won third place and lunch for two at Bandersnatch. By taking fourth place, Paul Goin has won a 16-inch pizza with choice of toppings from Gino's Pizza.

To claim your prize, simply take this article and a piece of identification to the place of purchase. You do not need to come to the State Press offices to pick up the prize.

Spikers

"It's a practice that you don't make a judgement call unless it's blatant. The UCLA coach (Andy Banachowski) called it a 'mystery call.'"

Brown said the call kept ASU from possibly extending the match to five games and even winning.

"Unfortunately, we could have taken it to five games," she said. "And as the match goes on more and more, the girls begin to believe more and more."

Brown could not explain the sudden questionable call.

"The referee might not want the match to go five games," she said. "That sounds horrible, but there's no explanation for it. It was unbelievably bad, and it was match point."

"I can't say that we lost because of the referee, but I wish it had not ended like that."

Brown said she told her team after the match to forget the call.

"I explained to them that I was proud of them and that I don't think I can blame the ref for the match because there were so many things that happened before," she said.

She added there was no official action she could take.

Left-side hitter Valentina Vega finished the match with 18 kills, and Webb had 16. Motyka had 11 kills and a .409 hitting percentage.

"Motyka played really well," Brown said.

The usual effects of playing on the road did not hurt the Sun Devils, Brown said. ASU had to contend with different distractions in California.

"The hardest thing in playing in Southern California is having the distraction of friends and family," she said. "I think that has an effect. It's the hardest thing to overcome. But we've done a good job adjusting to the different gyms and crowds."

 HELP ME, RHONDA

Dear Rhonda,
 I just told my parents that next fall, I'm moving out and into University Towers. Instead of disagreeing, they said they'd help me move and would even pay the rent! Rhonda, you wouldn't lie to me—is there something about UT that I should know?
 An Inquiring Mind

Dear Inquiring:
 Parents are devious creatures. Just when you think they're going to fight you tooth and nail, they turn around and calmly concede to your wildest requests. I once told my mom that my newest boyfriend was taking me to Jamaica to check out the nude beaches. She said to have a good time and please remember to send her a postcard. Needless to say, she ruined my entire trip.
 Which just goes to show that your parents are probably employing the 'ol reverse psychology trick. Instead of throwing tantrums about their baby leaving the fold, they think by agreeing with your decision, you'll be contrary enough to stay put at home. You're falling right into their trap. I bet you're a sucker for Kirby vacuum pitches, too.
 Don't fret about UT. You'll have a blast living there. Just don't let any of your roommates talk you into buying land on campus.

Need some trend-setting advice on your love life, university life or your existence in general? Write to: HELP ME, RHONDA, 1990 West Camelback #306, Phoenix, AZ 85015. Sorry, no personal replies.

HELP ME, RHONDA is sponsored by University Towers, ASU's unique private student housing. Watch for University Towers to become the center of campus life - located across the street from the stadium, it will offer student activities with a full-time director of student affairs, food services, retail center, restaurants, parking garage, swimming pool, volleyball courts, sun decks, generous bicycle parking and lots more.
 Stay tuned to this column for more UT information or call 894-2300.
