Jeff Frazier, a senior in mechanical engineering, and his teammates lost this heat in the preliminaries of an intramural tug-o-war contest Saturday at the P.E. West fields. They held out for a long time before they were pulled over the line, as well they should have for their team name was 'Never Surrender.'

Senate expansion needed, ASASU bill's sponsor says

By KARI BLAND
State Press

The campus population is not represented fairly in the Associated Students of ASU Senate, said the sponsor of a bill calling for more senators from the larger colleges.

Senate Bill 30, scheduled to go before the Committee on Government Operations Tuesday, has been introduced by Sen. Alex Vakula from the College of Law. It would allow each college two senators, but would add a senator for each 5,000 students.

Vakula said the current system of representation, which allows two senators per college, is "basically not representative."

The Colleges of Business Administration and Liberal Arts account for almost half the campus population, but they receive the same representation as smaller schools, such as the College of Law.

He said the bill would not drastically increase the size of the senate.

ASASU President Dave Varnell said he does not see representation in the senate as a problem.

"We have one of the finest senates in the nation," he said. "Our representation is key because it is diverse."

Varnell said the system allows smaller colleges to debate head-to-head with the larger colleges.

"I'm hesitant to dismantle the excellent structure of the senate right now," he said. "It's superb."

If the senate decides to increase representation, Varnell said he would suggest adding freshmen senators and representation for graduate programs.

If the bill is passed by the senate, Executive Vice President Chris Cumiskey said it would have to be put before the entire student body for approval in April because it would mean altering the ASASU Constitution.

Cumiskey said there also have been rumors of an initiative that would call for a campus-wide election of approximately 15 senators who do not represent a specific college.

"If someone is planning this course of action, I hope that they would come forward so we could discuss their concerns and work out some sort of compromise," he said.

The initiative would require 5,000 signatures, and if completed, Cumiskey said ASASU would have to comply.

"This bill may not be the perfect solution, but at least we are looking at alternatives for better representation," he said.

Cumiskey said the possibility of a house of representatives has been considered, but that the process of passing bills would "be bogged down."

Varnell said: "Our association would brake to a halt with all the bureaucracy that a house of representatives would create. There are enough checks and balances and red tape as it is."

Cumiskey said: "Hopefully, the bill will be an item for serious discussion. It would be a crime not to discuss it."

Store Chairman prefers liberal arts to business education

By RICH SWANSON
Contributing Writer

A student aiming at a career in business is better off getting a liberal arts degree than a business degree, the chairman emeritus of the Neiman-Marcus department stores said Friday.

"I'm not sure that business education is all that good," Stanley Marcus said during a talk to ASU business students.

Marcus, 80, said the only thing he learned at Harvard Business School was to weigh carefully the pros and cons of a business decision.

"They didn't teach me anything about finance, accounting or people," he said. "Your business life is with people, and the more you know about them the better you'll do."

Marcus said Neiman-Marcus always has focused on customer satisfaction. In 1907, when his father and uncle opened the first store in Dallas, they published an advertisement in the local newspaper declaring their business principles.

"They were using several new concepts, like ready-to-wear fine clothing at a fixed price," Marcus said. In those days, virtually all fine clothing was made to order from Paris, New York or Chicago.

"My father would say, 'No sale is a good sale for Neiman-Marcus unless it's a good buy for the customer,'" Marcus said. "He would refuse to sell clothing to a customer if it didn't fit properly."

Marcus said that while customers have not changed, business practices have.

"In my 50 years in retailing I never met a consumer, but I met many customers," he said. "A customer lives, breathes, eats and sleeps. A consumer was invented by some marketing guy."

Marcus said businessmen must pay attention to two things: the customer and the product.

"If you take care of the customer, they come back," he said. "If you take care of the product, it won't come back."

Marcus, who says he has been an entrepreneur since he was 9 or 10 years old, defined the term as "one who will make a decision, take a risk and hope that you will make a profit that justifies the risk."

He warned that entrepreneurship is not an easy way of life, nor is it for everyone.

"Some people want the easy way in life, and that's fine too," Marcus said. He pointed out that being an entrepreneur is "no excuse for stupidity or illegality."

"Mr. DeLorean was an entrepreneur, and look where it got him," he said, referring to automobile executive John DeLorean.

DeLorean faces federal charges for allegedly misusing his company's finances.

Marcus said his father made him choose a career in business against his wishes, but it turned out to be the right decision.

"Retailing provided a wonderful education," he said.

Marcus said students should take history, sociology and language courses instead of business courses. Once a student graduates, he probably will never learn these things, but marketing can be learned on the job.

"If I had my choice between a liberal arts graduate and a marketing graduate, I'd take the liberal arts," he said, adding that most businesses do not operate that way, "which is too bad."

Neiman-Marcus now has 22 stores, which Marcus estimates will do $1 billion of business this year. His son is chairman of the board of the company, which was bought in 1969 by Carter-Hawley-Hale, which also owns the Broadway Southwest.

Marcus now runs his own consulting firm for non-retail businesses.

He attributes his success to his energy, health and "good genes."

Parents give up record-rating drive; settle for album-advisory agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prominent parents, who sought to have the record industry alert people whenever songs glorify drugs, sex and violence, abandoned a drive for guidelines and a rating system Friday and agreed to an arrangement including a label warning: "Explicit Lyrics — Parental Advisory."

Under the agreement, recording companies could print the words of songs on the album jacket instead of using the advisory. Because there is no space for printed lyrics on a cassette, a statement "See LP for Lyrics" will be a substitute that can be used by companies taking this option.

Singers with contracts giving them authority to dictate the design of album covers will be free to ignore the agreement.

Ann Kahn, national president of the Parent-Teacher Association, said her 5.6 million-member group will campaign to alert parents to the meaning of the cassette labels.

In September, Susan Baker, wife of Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, had complained to Congress that "pervasive messages aimed at children which promote and glorify suicide, rape and sadomasochism have to be numbered among the contributing factors" to teen-age pregnancy and suicide.

In Nashville, Tenn., musician Charlie Daniels said: "I see nothing wrong with it whatsoever. It's not censorship. They put warning labels on other things — cigarettes, poison. Parents should be able to exert influence over their children. That's our job with our children."

Abandoned OPEC pricing rules not end of high prices, analysts say

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Reports that OPEC has scrapped its pricing rules do not mean the end of high oil prices or the death of the cartel, analysts said Friday.

The oil minister of the United Arab Emirates, Mana Saeed Oteiba, told Abu Dhabi state television late Thursday that OPEC members are free to set their own prices and to disregard official production limits.

OPEC headquarters in Vienna, Austria, was closed for a holiday Friday, but industry experts said they strongly doubted that Oteiba's remarks meant OPEC was officially abandoning its pricing system.

"It's not as if he was announcing the death knell for OPEC," said Paul McDonald, an oil analyst at the investment firm of Shearson Lehman Brothers in London.

Oteiba seemed simply to be confirming what oil buyers had known for weeks: Virtually all 13 member countries are selling oil at prices below official OPEC levels and pumping as much as they like.

Citgo Petroleum Corp. announced it was following other American oil companies and raising the price it will pay for West Texas Intermediate crude, the major U.S. grade, by 25 cents a barrel to $28.

Citgo's president, Ronald Hall, said, however, that excess production worldwide could bring downward pressure on prices by spring, when demand for oil traditionally slumps.

Auschwitz survivor to speak on world injustices

By ED SCHUBERT
State Press

The Congressional Gold Medal of Achievement presented to Elie Wiesel by President Reagan last April is inscribed: "AUTHOR, TEACHER, WITNESS." Yet the number tattooed on his arm at Auschwitz over forty years ago reads simply A-7713.

Wiesel, who will speak in Gammage Auditorium Tuesday at 8 p.m., was sent to Auschwitz in 1944 at the age of 15. He survived to become the foremost spokesman of the generation of Jews persecuted by the Nazis.

Wiesel said he would "try to discuss the problems, the fears, perhaps the hopes of the moment, the day, the week, the year," in his Nov. 5 ASU speech.

His books include "Night," memories of his childhood experience in Hitler's death camps; "A Beggar In Jerusalem," a novel about Israel and the 1967 Six Day War; and "The Jews of Silence," about Jews in the Soviet Union.

In "Night," Wiesel writes: "Never shall I forget that night, the first night in camp, which has turned my life into one long night. Never shall I forget that smoke. Never shall I forget the little faces of the children, whose bodies I saw turned into wreaths of smoke beneath a silent blue sky."

He said the greatest problem of the human race is facing the "indifference to injustice all over the world — the torture, racism, fanaticism, hunger."

"The nuclear issue to me is very important," Wiesel said. "The entire planet is in danger of destruction — and the indifference to the issue is worse than the issue itself."

Upon receiving the Congressional Gold Medal of Achievement, Wiesel expressed his thoughts about the Holocaust to Reagan, shortly before the President made his controversial visit to Bitburg Cemetery in West Germany.

Because 47 Nazi Waffen SS soldiers are buried at the cemetery, Wiesel urged Reagan not to go.

"That place, Mr. President, is not your place," Wiesel said. "Your place is with the victims of the SS."

"The issue here is not politics, but good and evil, and we must never confuse them."

"For I have seen the SS at work, and I have seen their victims," Wiesel said. "They were my friends. They were my parents."

Although Reagan traveled to Bitburg, Wiesel recently told the State Press, "I am without recrimination or anger or bitterness" over the president's decision.

Wiesel, in the March 18, 1985 issue of Time, expressed his concern over indifference to human suffering.

"Silence is the worst thing, worse than mere hate," he said. "If we ignore the suffering, our true literary prophecy will not be 'The Trail' or 'The Stranger,' but Hitler's 'Mein Kampf.' This is what I fight against."

"The specter of starvation is not something consigned to the thirties and forties," Wiesel said. "I see the swollen bellies and haunted eyes of the very young in Cambodia, in Ethiopia, in South America."

"I could have been that child. I was that child." Wiesel told Time his own survival in Auschwitz and Buchenwald was a thing of mystery:

"I will never know," he said. "I was always weak. I never ate. The slightest wind would blow me over."

"In Buchenwald they sent 10,000 to their deaths every day. I was always in the last hundred near the gate."

"They stopped. Why?"

'55 saves lives' misleading government myth

Doug Newman
Columnist

55 saves lives! Or so we are told. As a generally safe driver and law-abiding citizen, I had not seen fit to become too emotionally involved in the issue of the 55-mile-an-hour national speed limit until a short while ago. I had believed the rhetoric of those who favor keeping this law in place, and had seen very few convincing arguments for changing it. Some recent inquiry, though, has led me to conclude that such a law is both unnecessary and, in many ways, downright silly.

My interest in the issue was initially aroused by members of the Libertarian Party and the literature on the table they have set up on Cady Mall. They are asking people to sign a petition putting a referendum on the ballot in the 1986 general election to repeal Arizona's 55-mile-an-hour speed limit. They gave me several logical arguments for doing so. I asked about the safety issue, and they replied that all the studies they had seen which showed the law to be a lifesaver were conducted by government, and not private, agencies. I was prompted to investigate the matter and to re-examine my initial assumptions.

Research at Noble Science Library revealed the absence of any cause-effect relationship in the "55 saves lives" claim. Certain figures are somehow omitted from the information which is usually presented.

To be sure, the number of automobile fatalities has decreased since 1974 when the national speed limit was enacted. However, it would appear from the data used in many of these studies that no statistics concerning automobile-related deaths had been kept prior to 1974. They are never mentioned.

I ran across a study by the National Safety Council (What irony!) in the November 1984 issue of Motor Trend concerning the frequency of traffic deaths on our nation's roads since 1925. In that year, there were 18.2 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles; by 1974, that number had decreased to 3.6 per 100 million miles. During this time, there were no national speed laws at all. Moreover, in the years immediately following the implementation of the 55-mph law, this trend showed a leveling off and then a gradual increase until 1980, when it began to decline to the 1983 level of 2.9.

A few other observations are in order concerning the 55-mph limit:

- The National Research Council, a private study group, recently published a study stating that, due to the 55-mph speed limit, this nation loses one billion man-hours of productivity per year; this translates into substantial economic losses.
- Brewster County, Texas, has a population of 7,500 and a land mass 25 percent larger than the state of Connecticut. I was ticketed there in January for driving 68 in a 55-mph zone; the ticket cost me $45 plus increased insurance rates for the next three years. I am quite perplexed as to how Big Brother can apply the same standards to the Brooklyn-Queens Expressway as he does to Brewster County — where one can drive 10 miles without seeing another car and 30 miles without seeing a building.
- According to Senator Steven Symms (R-Idaho), 75 percent of all drivers consistently violate the 55-mph law. This is not to say that we should therefore tailor all law to the drivers. However, a good percentage of the people who exceed the 55-mph limit would never in their wildest dreams disobey any other law.

•Speaking of compliance, the state of Arizona stands to lose $5 million in federal highway funds because the majority of our motorists drive "slightly" above the 55-mph limit on state highways. State officials will have the opportunity before the end of the year to explain to the Department of Transportation why this is so; if the feds accept the state's explanation, we will be allowed to keep the money.

In other words, if we obey a federal law of which so many of us clearly disapprove, then we will be allowed to keep money which is ours to begin with!

•It has been argued that the 55-mph law has been an energy-saver. Maybe so. But even if it has, the desire of drivers to get from point A to point B in the shortest time evidently outweighs the desire to save a few cents on gasoline.

•This point is mere conjecture: It would seem to me that, in long-distance travel, the more time one spends on the road the greater the chance for hypnosis and general fatigue to set in. I wonder how many lives are lost due to road-weariness each year.

In addition to the Libertarians' proposal, Senator Symms is sponsoring a measure which would allow the states to raise the speed limit to 65 mph on non-urban roads. In urban areas, the limit would be left at 55 mph. He said that speed limits should be decided by local officials who are familiar with their own road and weather conditions. "Common sense and letters from constituents prompted me to co-sponsor (this) legislation," he said.

In sum, the 55-mph national speed limit is just one more method by which those who claim to be acting in the interests of "the people" do little more than tighten the state's vice grip on our lives. The government aside, its only beneficiaries have been insurance companies, manufacturers of radar detectors (a little-known but booming industry), and those individuals who propagate the "55 saves lives" mythology. It is a law we can live without.

Profs paid to attend classes

Editor:
This letter is in response to the article by Ed Schubert, State Press, Oct. 15.

The problem is students' opposition to videotaped teaching. Students at ASU pay $495 per semester to attend classes. In Prof. William Verdini's QBA 222 class, for example, the students enrolled in the 8:40 a.m. class, which the professor attends, are getting more for their money than those in later classes forced to watch a videotaped lecture.

I would like to know how many people from the 8:40 class need to take time out of their day to attend a tutoring session. Those fortunate students may ask their questions in class, while students that paid the same amount of money need to use their own time to learn what should be made clear to them during the scheduled class time.

A student pays to attend classes, and a professor should attend classes because he is paid! I have one question for Professor Verdini: "What do you do after 9:30 a.m. each class day?" It has been stated that the tutoring sessions are not even taught by you, but rather by your assistants.

Godzilla fictional, Americans uniformed

Editor:
Do you think that there are any dinosaurs on the earth?

This is not a joke at all. One of my Japanese friends was seriously asked this by an American friend. I know that it is because of the movie which is called "Godzilla." Some American people still believe in the existence of Godzilla in Japan. I was very disappointed to hear this. Japan is a developed country just as much as America.

It is true that America is one of the most powerful countries, but, in part, Japan is following. It might not be necessary for America to look back to any other countries, but do you know, for instance, that Japan has a superior subway system? It is very accurate in regard to time. What about Japanese cars? Don't you think that a Japanese car has good potential? I would say Japanese cars are just as good as American cars.

Those people who still believe in the existence of Godzilla should learn more about Japan, because Godzilla is only on the movie screen.

Some whiny students lack intestinal fortitude

Editor:
In regards to Patrick J. Kucera's editorial about students who whine too much (Oct. 23), he left out one group. In addition to the students who constantly ask stupid questions regarding an exam or term papers, Mr. Kucera should include those students who don't know the difference between (to borrow a quote from our head football coach) "playing with pain and a real injury." When the work load becomes a little too heavy for the students with little or no intestinal fortitude, it is an amazing coincidence how that student can come up with some illness, real or imagined, to use as an excuse for not taking an exam.

Israel won, not stolen from Palestinians

Editor:
In his Oct. 16 letter to the editor, O.L. Brannaman wrote that the U.S. should give money to the Palestinian people, instead of Israel, as compensation for the land and homes "stolen" from them by the Zionists. I would like to clarify one point that Mr. Brannaman fails to realize. The land that is now Israel was won in a "defensive" war. In no way was it stolen.

History tells us that in 1948, just before the invasion of Israel by the Arab nations, the word was sent out by those invading countries: "Get out of this land, or we will push you into the sea along with the Jews."

And get out is exactly what they did. Leaving with the thought that they would return to a land without Jews pleased them extremely. However, the unforeseen happened, and the Jews held off the offensive of the invading Arab countries. By the end of the war, all the land that both Palestinians and Jews used to live on was now occupied only by Jews.

Therefore, whatever land that was forfeited by the Palestinians cannot be considered stolen. War is expensive. In the case of the Palestinians, it cost them their home.

Students present views on Nicaragua

By ED SCHUBERT
State Press

Conflicting viewpoints on Nicaragua's Sandinista government were presented to ASU students last week. Independent filmmaker Lee Shapiro presented Thursday his work "Nicaragua Was Our Home," a documentary which states that Nicaragua's Miskito Indians are being brutally relocated by Sandinista troops.

Lee Shapiro speaks about the Miskito Indians of Nicaragua during his presentation Thursday of his documentary, "Nicaragua Was Our Home."

Friday, the Committee In Solidarity with the People of El Salvador presented a slideshow and a speech in defense of the Sandinista government by two Phoenix residents who had recently returned from Nicaragua.

Young Socialist Alliance President Andy English picketed the Shapiro film with a poster reading "Brains washed inside, don't be Moonified."

English said CAUSA International, an anti-Marxist education group, presented a grant to Shapiro that was used to finance part of the film.

The Rev. Sun Young Moon, who founded the Unification Church and who recently completed a prison sentence for tax evasion, established CAUSA International, English said.

CAUSA member Kim Berry said, "The same founder founded the Unification Church as founded CAUSA. It was Rev. Moon."

Asked to explain his connection to CAUSA, Shapiro said he had received a partial grant from the organization to make the film, which has placed him substantially in debt.

Shapiro, who secretly filmed "Nicaragua Was Our Home" last year in northeastern Nicaragua, said bombing raids were used against the Miskito Indian villages in the Sandinista government relocation effort of the Indians.

Sandinistas killed old people and pregnant women during the forced government marches to relocation centers, Shapiro said in his narration of the film.

In Friday's CISPES meeting, Steve Doncaster and Dawn Noggle, speaking in defense of the Sandanista government, said "the Sandinistas have admitted they have made some mistakes" in their treatment of the Miskito Indians.

Central American activist Gail LaGrander, quoting a spokesman of the Nicaraguan embassy in the United States, said the Sandinistas have offered the Miskitos self-rule in all areas except defense and foreign policy.

Doncaster and Noggle, narrating slides of a two-week visit to Nicaragua they made in August, said the Sandinista revolution and government is enthusiastically supported by the vast majority of Nicaraguans.

The Contras fighting the Nicaraguan government are mainly mercenaries and supporters of deposed dictator Anastasio Somoza, who was overthrown by the Sandinistas in 1979, they said.

Summer in Greece earns graduate students credits

By COLLEEN MOORE
State Press

Students now can earn graduate credits through ASU while visiting sites in Greece such as the Parthenon, 3,000-year-old amphitheaters and the site of the ancient olympic games.

A three-week Adult Education seminar on Greek Culture will be held this summer from July 12 through Aug. 2. It will be ASU's first study-tour of Greece, said Roger Axford, associate professor of adult and higher education, who will lead the tour.

The new program was announced Oct. 24 by Axford and John Zerfos, director of the Athens Cultural Center, an administrative center that helps universities sponsor study tours in Greece.

The center is recruiting students from across the United States for the program, Axford said.

Students who participate in the seminar will gain "priceless" knowledge they would not get if they did not go, Zerfos said.

"It's one thing to sit around a library and study certain subjects.

"But I can assure you that if you watch a production of an ancient Greek play in the same site and manner it was done 3,000 years ago, then it's certainly a much more valuable and memorable experience," Zerfos said.

Seminar participants will visit sites of ancient Greek activity, such as the Acropolis, Corinth, the Island of Crete, Mycenae and Olympia.

In addition, they will study Greek history, current events, politics, poets and attend lectures by academic authorities.

Participants also will earn three hours of graduate credit in higher and adult education.

The deadline for students to apply for the July 12-Aug. 2 seminar is June 1, Axford said.

The seminar costs $2,500, which includes travel, breakfasts, housing, tuition and instructional sessions.

"Unbeknownst to most people, Greece has very few of the problems that you see in the Middle East," he said.

"It's a very safe place to visit. Greece has the lowest level of terrorist acts of any of the European countries.

"When you see the exquisite sculpture work that was done 2,000 years ago, it somehow makes contemporary works look cheap.

"You can read about it in any library in the world, but physically being there is different," Zerfos said.

We not only give you the money for college. We also give you the time.

If you think the best way to pay for college is to put it off for a few years and join the military, you're half right.

Because with the New GI Bill, you can join the Army National Guard and get a guaranteed minimum of $18,000 for college.

But best of all, you serve two days a month and two weeks a year. Which means you can go to school full-time. Right now. On us.

So the question you have to ask yourself is not, can you afford college.

The question is, can you afford to wait. For more information about the Army Guard and the New GI Bill, fill out the attached coupon and mail it in: Or call 800-638-7600

police report

Carey A. Fellows, James Michael Wedekind and Geoff Todd Samuels, all unaffiliated with the University, were arrested and charged in connection with criminal trespass and threatening and intimidating early Sunday, police said.

The three allegedly trespassed in the ductwork of the Manzanita Residence Hall. When confronted by the Manzanita Hall staff, they allegedly threatened the staff.

They were booked at the ASU police station and released on their own recognizance.

An ASU student was found passed out from a drug overdose in front of the Sahuaro Residence Hall early Sunday, police said.

She was treated by Tempe Fire Department paramedics in her room, and taken to Tempe St. Luke's Hospital by ambulance.

In other activity, University police reported the following incidents in the four-day period ending at 7 a.m. Sunday:

•Four ASU students started a fire that police described as

"recklessly endangering the safety of the building" on the patio of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity house Thursday evening, police said.

Someone called police and reported the fire.

The officers arrived and found fraternity members standing around a fire in a hole 12 inches deep. Two wood doors had been thrown on the fire and flames were leaping 10 to 15 feet in the air, scorching the leaves of a palm tree, police said.

One of the students told police the fire was in a pit and there was nothing dangerous about it.

An officer called the Tempe Fire Department. Responding firefighters extinguished the bonfire.

No citations have been issued, but police are investigating the incident.

•A late model white two-door Dodge Chrysler driving west on Adelphi Drive hit a green Ford Pinto belonging to a Phoenix woman late Saturday, police said.

Damage to the Pinto was estimated at $200. A witness told police the Chrysler received headlight damage.

•Two unidentified males entered a University employee's room in the Ocotillo Residence Hall while he was sleeping and stole $47 from his trouser pockets. They fled when the employee awoke. They were seen driving away in a gray car.

•A man who is unaffiliated with the University was stopped for failing to stop at a flashing red light late Friday, police said. The officer noticed the subject's drivers license had been altered, putting him at the legal drinking age.

The subject denied altering the license, but the officer confiscated it.

•A transient was found panhandling in front of the El Rancho supermarket in Tempe Center Thursday afternoon, police said.

The transient was warned of panhandling and trespassing laws and told to leave the area.

Campaign

Donations to fund construction of p

By VICKIE CHACHERE
 State Press

Funding for a proposed Applied Sciences Building has reached the $5 million mark and initial planning for construction should be underway soon, an ASU development officer said.

Patrick Burkhardt, development officer for the College of Engineering and Applied Sciences, said 37 percent of the $13.5 million needed to build has been raised through private and corporate donations and state-issued bonds.

He said the Arizona Board of Regents approved $3.8 million in bonding for the building, and more than $1.2 million in gifts have been raised from corporations and private individuals.

The gifts include contributions from Valley National Bank and Salt River Project, and an anonymous gift for $150,000 from an individual to the project.

"We are very pleased with the response to this particular project so early in the campaign," Burkhardt said, "and we have every reason to believe the momentum will continue."

The agriculture, construction and technology divisions of the College of Engineering and Applied Sciences will be housed in the new building, along with ASU's Cancer Research Institute, which is currently housed in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, Burkhardt said.

Burkhardt said he has submitted a request to University officials to release funds to start planning for the 150,000-square-foot facility.

An architect will be selected as soon as the University releases the funds, and construction is expected to start in 1988.

The fund raising for the building is part of the $75 million Campaign for ASU, which was launched last spring in an effort to obtain funding for several ASU construction projects.

Lonnie Ostrom, ASU director of development, said $28.5 million has been raised through the campaign since it began in March.

He said $25 million had already been donated to the University when the campaign was formally launched, and the additional $3.5 million has been raised during the past eight months.

The fund-raising project got off to a slow start this summer, and most of the funds were raised this fall by a 16-member staff.

Ostrom said he hopes to have reached the $35-million mark by Jan. 1.

"I think we are on track," Ostrom said, adding that a fund-raising campaign has been started in Tempe and similar campaigns will be launched in Mesa, Chandler and Gilbert in the near future.

'I think many times you have issues that individuals have an opportunity to be concerned with and at times you have to answer them' — Lonnie Ostrom

Ostrom said the fund-raising staff is continuing to work with donors even after ASU has received the contributions.

"We have spent the last two and three years working with friends of the institution," Ostrom said. "You can't just drop them and move on to someone else."

Ostrom said he did not believe that recent controversies in ASU's athletic department and criticisms of the ASU administration from alumni this summer have caused the campaign to start slowly.

"I think many times you have issues that individuals have an opportunity to be concerned with," Ostrom said. "And at times you have to answer them."

"But you have to continue to work with them."

Road warriors

Devils tame Bears, 30-8, run winning streak to 4

By MICHAEL KONZ
State Press

BERKELEY, Calif. — ASU football coach John Cooper's wish has been fulfilled.

The Sun Devils defeated the California Golden Bears, 30-8, on Saturday to sweep their two-week Pac-10 Conference road series and remain in the run for the Roses. Last week ASU defeated Washington State in Pullman, 21-16.

"Today was a good victory on the road for us," Cooper said. "I told the team early this year that this game and last week's game may be the two biggest games of the season."

You have to win on the road to be successful."

The Sun Devils achieved success because of a defense that once again practiced a bend-but-not-break attitude.

ASU allowed Cal to rack up 411 yards and 22 first downs but seven interceptions kept the Bears from threatening more than once.

Anthony Parker had three interceptions, Eric Allen had two and Jeff Joseph one for a 93-yard touchdown return before halftime. Free safety David Fulcher had the seventh pickoff.

Joseph's interception return broke the old record of 92 yards by Bill Baxter against New Mexico in 1934.

"The defense did it for us," Cooper said. "We did not have a great game offensively, but our defense performed when it had to. (California) did make a lot of yards but really did not threaten us. Our secondary kept their quarterbacks looking, and this enabled us to intercept so many passes."

"Jeff Joseph's interception just before the half really turned the game around. I feel that if Cal had scored, it might have been a different game."

California coach Joe Kapp said the Bears' offense gave the Sun Devils a little help.

"I think, without question, that today's game was our worst offensively of the year," Kapp said. "Our offense played its poorest game of the season."

"That is to take nothing away from Arizona State. They played a good game. They are well-coached. They were at the right places in the right times. We just got beat."

The Sun Devils' only lapse on defense came 30 seconds into the second quarter when Cal quarterback Brian Bedford dumped a pass off to freshman halfback Marc Hicks, who broke a tackle by linebacker John Knight and ran 79 yards for a touchdown.

"In the huddle Brian told me to get open and to look quickly," Hicks said. "I made my cut, turned and got the ball. I was looking to see where the defense was, saw that they were spread out and went for it."

Kapp said the run was only a small indication of what Hicks will do for the Bears in the future.

"Marc was able to get loose, and he showed the kind of talent and speed he has," Kapp said. "He showed what sets him apart. We would like to get the ball to Marc Hicks more."

But the defensive three-ring circus overshadowed a quiet offensive performance by ASU.

The Sun Devils only had 16 first downs and 316 total yards. Their longest drive was 80 yards in seven plays in the second quarter.

Quarterback Jeff Van Raaphorst completed 10 passes in 23 attempts for 101 yards and one interception.

The bright spot offensively for ASU was fullback Vinnie Amoia, who had 102 yards on eight carries. Late in the first quarter, he gained 41 yards on a single run, the longest rush of his career.

"Vinnie Amoia is a very courageous football player," Cooper said. "He played hard right up to the end."

"(The 41-yard run) was a trap play run against a defense that we had not seen before. I just wish Vinnie had a little more speed."

ASU started the scoring midway through the first quarter after receiving a Bear punt. The Sun Devils could only move five yards before Kent Bostrom kicked a 30-yard field goal.

'Vinnie Amoia is a very courageous football player.' — John Cooper

Three minutes later the Sun Devils were on their own seven when Van Raaphorst and tailback Darryl Harris fumbled the handoff. Harris recovered the ball in the end zone for a safety to make the score 3-2.

At the end of the second quarter, the Sun Devils marched 80 yards for their first touchdown. Mike Crawford, who finished with 90 yards, ran seven yards for the score.

After Hicks scored on the pass over the middle, Bostrom kicked a 24-yard field goal to put ASU up, 13-8.

Late in the first half, Cal had marched 62 yards in eight plays and had a third down at ASU's 18 when Joseph intercepted and ran it back for a touchdown.

Neither team scored in the third quarter, but another Bostrom field goal and a one-yard touchdown run by Crawford after a Cal fumble ended the game.

ASU secondary gains redemption

Devils pick off 7 passes to seal victory over Cal

BERKELEY, Calif. — It was a dream come true for one defensive back, let alone an entire secondary.

In a 30-8 trouncing of the California Golden Bears, the Sun Devils intercepted seven California passes. Cornerback Anthony Parker had three, Eric Allen had two and Jeff Joseph and David Fulcher each had one.

But Parker, Allen and Joseph have something more in common than their thefts against the Bears. The game was a form of redemption for them.

Joseph's interception and touchdown return meant a 14-point turnaround for the Sun Devils. Instead of California possibly taking the lead right before halftime, ASU was up, 20-8.

For Joseph, the game made up for some disappointment during the season. He was beaten out early in the season for the cornerback position by Allen, and he now sees spot time as a nickel back on passing situations.

"I've not been too happy with my playing time," the sophomore said. "I'd say I'm not playing too bad. But now there's no telling what will happen."

Joseph said on the play he simply had to wait for the ball to fall into his arms.

"I was the nickel back on the play, which means I have responsibility for the flats," he said. "Their inside receiver moved in front, and the quarterback threw high. The ball came to me."

"I got blocks from Scott Stephen and David Fulcher, and I was down the sidelines."

Joseph said the California game was an indication of how the ASU secondary can play.

"We're breaking to the ball much better," he said. "We're adjusting to playing a zone defense."

Parker, whose three interceptions in one game was one short of the ASU record set by Manuel Aja in the Salad Bowl of 1950, gave the defensive line credit for the secondary's play.

"We didn't do anything different, but an aggressive defensive line put pressure on them," Parker said. "We were just sitting back, looking for pickoffs. I think the quarterback was overthrowing all day."

Parker, who was switched from running back to cornerback at the beginning of last season, also said he was not pleased with the season.

"I have not played up to my potential," he said. "I've been down on myself lately. I made up my mind it was time to play."

"This was long overdue. I've been playing in too many

'We didn't do anything different, but an aggressive defensive line put pressure on them.' — Anthony Parker games not to have an interception."

After the game, Allen was flashing a broad grin.

"This is the kind of game you like to have," he said.

Allen also said some credit for the interceptions had to go to the defensive line.

"On the plane coming over, I was talking to the linemen and saying if they rush, we'll get some interceptions," he said. "We were just breaking on the ball."

But the same thread was running through Allen's story as the other three — the Cal game is the beginning of a change for the better.

"I've been doing OK," he said. "Sometimes I get a little overconfident. I make alignment mistakes. I need to improve on communicating."

— MICHAEL KONZ

ASU cornerback Anthony Parker, shown tackling against Washington State last week, had three interceptions against California. The Sun Devils had seven interceptions all together. Eric Allen had two, and Jeff Joseph and David Fulcher each had one. Joseph returned his interception 93 yards for a touchdown.

Devils old and new dominate Sunkist

By JON WILEY
State Press

In fitting fashion, the Sunkist Kids wrestling club dominated its annual open tournament at the Activity Center by winning five weight classes.

The Sunkist Open took place Friday and Saturday with participants from ASU and several other colleges and organizations competing.

The Sunkist Club is led by ASU wrestling coach Bobby Douglas along with Art Martori and Tom Dubin.

In the 110-pound weight division, Tim Vanni of the Sunkist Club defeated unattached (no club affiliation) Rob Eiter, 12-0.

In the 119-pound division, Jerry Garcia from Phoenix College pinned Martin Strimska from Sunkist Kids with 1:02 left in the match.

Joe Melchiorre from the University of Oklahoma took the 130-pound division by defeating Rene Nunez, 12-0.

Gary Bohay, a former ASU wrestler and current member of the Sunkist Club, defeated Joe McFarland 10-4 to take the 141-pound division.

Bohay is also a member of the Canadian National team and participated in the World Championships in Budapest.

In the 154-pound division, Eddie Urbano, also a former ASU wrestler and a current member of the Sunkist kids, beat ASU wrestler Adam Cohen, 10-5.

Urbano won the national championship in the 150-pound class last season for the Sun Devils, who finished sixth nationally as a team.

Sunkist-member Kenny Monday defeated Murry Crews, 5-5, on criteria points to take the 168-pound division.

Criteria points are awarded to a wrestler for riding time and the number of high-point maneuvers.

Monday was national champion at 150 pounds for Oklahoma State in 1984 and is this year's current national freestyle champion.

John Lunberg from Athletes in Action defeated ASU wrestler John Genthner, 10-1, to take the 185-pound division. Lunberg was also named outstanding wrestler for the tournament.

In the 203-pound division, Dan Chaid of the University of Oklahoma defeated Mike Davies, 8-6.

Davies is being redshirted this season and is a member of the Sunkist Kids.

In the 225-pound division, Dan Severn, another former ASU wrestler and current Sunkist member, beat University of Oklahoma's J.J. Johnson, 10-2.

In the heavyweight division, Matt Ghafarri from the Sunkist Kids defeated ASU wrestler Rocco Liace, 10-6.

Watching the tournament were some predominant names in collegiate wrestling.

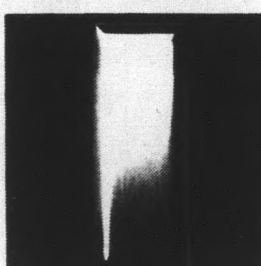

Mark and Dave Schultz, who wrestled at University of Oklahoma, were present. They are the only two brothers to win both the Olympic championships and the world championships with Dave taking last year's world championship and Mark taking this year's.

Dave is now the assistant wrestling coach at Stanford, and both wrestle for Sunkist.

Head referee Rick Tucci, who was a referee at the world championships in Budapest, also was present at the tournament.

Men runners ready for Pac-10 meet

By BRAD HALVORSEN
State Press

After only one official fall meet, a rested ASU men's cross country team heads into today's Pac-10 Championships untested.

The 10,000-kilometer race starts at noon Arizona time at the Stanford Golf Course in Palo Alto, Calif.

Unlike most Pac-10 schools, ASU has competed in only one scoring meet, the Aztec Invitational on Sept. 28, in which the Sun Devils placed sixth out of 22 teams.

ASU ran in the Arizona Invitational on Oct. 19, but was not eligible for team scoring because only four runners made the trip. Five are needed to constitute a team.

"I think it's to our benefit that we have not raced much," Coach Ken Lehman said. "When you go into a race after a lot of practice time, it's easier on you physically and mentally."

"Mentally, it's easier to get up for the race when you haven't raced much. Physically, you can wear yourself down by racing every week, along with the travel and jetlag."

The Devils will try to improve on their seventh-place finish at last year's conference finals, which was run over the same course at Stanford.

Dan Fisher and Steve Preston, the Devils' most successful runners this season, have the best chance at finishing among the leaders.

"I'd say there will be about 10 runners who will have a chance at winning," Lehman said. "Dan and Steve are definitely in that group."

Fisher and Fred Herlitz are the only ASU entrants who ran the race last year. Fisher placed 12th, while Herlitz finished 41st.

Also running for ASU are Paul Boudreaux, Gary Geyer, Treg Scott and Greg Wattier.

UA, currently the nation's No. 1 team, is favored to win the conference title for the third-straight year. Wildcat coach Dave Murray said he feels confident his team will repeat as champions.

"I must say that I feel more comfortable going into the race this year as the pre-race favorite than I did last year," he said.

The Wildcats won the race with ease last year with 44 points, followed by Washington State at 73 and UCLA at 75. ASU defeated only Washington and Oregon State with 146 points.

UA will be without its three top runners from last year's team. Pac-10 champion Tommy Ansberry and runner-up Chris Hamilton completed their collegiate careers in 1984.

Jeff Cannada, who finished seventh last year, suffered a stress fracture in his right leg at the Aztec Invitational and will miss the entire season.

Murray said the loss of Cannada, an All-American from Phoenix Greenway High School, did not hurt the team as much as expected.

"I think it helped the overall team strength more than people thought it would," Murray said. "He was our best runner, but behind him everybody's pretty even. We have a strong, balanced team."

Murray expects Andre Woods, an eighth-place finisher in last year's race, to have the best shot for UA to win individual honors.

Other top runners for UA include Simon Gutierrez, James Maxwell, Aaron Ramirez and Matt Giusto, who all finished in the top five at the Arizona Invitational along with Woods.

Murray said the Wildcats are rested after running tired at the Wisconsin Classic on Oct. 19. The Wildcats ran third behind No. 3-ranked Wisconsin and No. 5 Iowa State.

"We've been working extremely hard for the last six to eight weeks without letting up, and it caught up to us," he said. "It's remarkable we finished third after running so poorly. You can't run tired in a quality meet like that."

UCLA, Washington State and Stanford are forecasted to give UA its stiffest competition. Washington State's Jon Knight, last year's sixth-place finisher, and NCAA steeplechase champion Peter Koech both have a chance at the individual crown.

Two-time All-American Jon Butler is expected to lead UCLA after sitting out last year with an injury. Jerry Marsh returns after finishing ninth last year.

Stanford claims the only returnee who finished in the top five last year in third-place finisher Mark Oleson.

Cardinals hope for turnaround against Dallas

ST. LOUIS (AP) — That the St. Louis Cardinals, considered a preseason title contender, have come upon tough times during the 1985 National Football League season does not surprise Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White.

"I've seen that happen to our team; I've seen that happen to other teams," said White, who is hoping to add to St. Louis' miseries Monday night. "It's something that happens quite a bit, especially when you start finding yourself in the upper echelon."

The Cards, 3-5 following three straight defeats, probably will have a patched-up lineup against Dallas, 6-2.

Running back Ottis Anderson, who missed last week's game with a sore toe, suffered a recurrence of the injury Saturday. All-Pro wide receiver Roy Green is limping with a banged-up leg. And rookie Lance Smith may start at right offensive tackle in place of Tootie Robbins, who has a pulled hamstring.

However, White said: "None of us think the Cardinals are dead. They are a dangerous football team, and there's no doubt they will be back on top before long. We just hope we can get them while they're struggling a little."

In an effort to revive a sagging passing attack, St. Louis has brought back former quarterback coach Harry Gilmer to work with Neil Lomax.

"Our timing hasn't been quite what it was last year," said Gilmer, who had been serving as a Cards' scout. "That's what I'm going to be looking at — situations to try and remedy."

Last week, during a 20-10 loss to the Houston Oilers, the Cardinals' problems also involved letdowns by the special teams that resulted in two deflected punts and three missed field goals by veteran Neil O'Donoghue.

Afterward, O'Donoghue was released, and rookie Jess Atkinson, who was dropped by the New York Giants, was signed to replace him. Wasted in the defeat against Houston was Stump Mitchell's strong running — 148 yards on 21 carries.

The Cowboys, meanwhile, rebounded from a 16-14 loss to the Philadelphia Eagles two weeks ago with a 24-10 victory over the Atlanta Falcons last week.

White, now firmly entrenched as Dallas' No. 1 quarterback, recovered from bruised ribs to key a Cowboys' offense that gained 461 yards. Tony Hill caught 10 of White's passes, and Tony Dorsett raced 60 yards for a touchdown, giving him 10,272 career rushing yards.

"Everyone has an excellent attitude, and they're working hard. I guess that's the reason for it," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said of his team's No. 1 position in the National Conference East.

St. Louis, although able to beat Dallas only twice in their last 13 meetings, usually has proven tough for the Cowboys.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A SUMMER JOB AND A SUMMER INTERNSHIP?

Summer jobs pay your way to the movies. Internships pay now, and also give you a professional head start while you're still in college. Finally, there's one single, comprehensive directory of paid Summer Internship Programs that lead to exciting, fulfilling lifetime careers.

Getting Work Experience opens up more than 10,000 fantastic summer career opportunities:

- Opportunities in every part of the country and virtually every imaginable field
- Opportunities to get hands-on experience in exact areas of interest—to learn and test a wide range of skills, from library research to industrial design to public speaking

From advertising to zoology

Separate chapters in Getting Work Experience include information on advertising and public relations... business and industry... criminal justice and education... museums, cultural and historical organizations... performing arts... science, research and medicine... and much, much more.

Among the organizations with summer internship programs available:

- Standard Oil of Indiana with up to 50 positions in various disciplines of engineering, computer science, accounting
- Democratic National Committee with up to 25 positions for students with a demonstrated interest in political science or politics
